fact that has partly contributed to a belief that Dee might have also worked as a secret agent for Queen Elizabeth. There is not much evidence to support this claim, besides his contacts with Elizabeth's spies Sir Francis Walsingham and William Cecil. Biographer Richard Deacon<sup>9</sup> claims that Dee employed the number 007, or a symbol of a hand over one's eyes when gazing into the distance, on some correspondence, a rather appropriate signature for what would eventually become the quintessential spy hero James Bond. Ian Fleming is believed to have had some contact with Aleister Crowley, who thought he was the reincarnation of Kelley. This might have been where Dee and 007 came into the equation. It seems likely that this is little more than a myth, however.

Dee was well-respected, not only in England, but all over Europe, where he travelled frequently and enjoyed the hospitality and audience of many nobles and royal families. Indeed, at one stage he was invited to the Vatican, though this was, it seems, an attempt to take his life—luckily for us, he was wise enough to turn down the invitation.

Dee also contributed to the exploration of the New World, helping explorers with his knowledge of navigation and cartography. He even developed some new navigational instruments to help seafarers find their way.

Dee was clearly ahead of his time, seeing the scientific reality of things where others relied on superstitious beliefs. For example, he saw the mathematical element of mechanical creatures that were then being experimented with by various people, while many others still saw mathematics as an occult tradition, if not downright the work of the devil.

It was in Dee's production of the Aristophanes play Peace that people got the first glimpse of Dee's "magical" powers, though in reality they were really getting a flash of the future. Dee managed to get a scarab prop to rise into the air, much to the wonder and amazement of the audience. According to Woolley,<sup>10</sup> Dee likely used pneumatics, mirrors, springs and pulleys to achieve this, all of which he wrote about in various papers, but that did not stop him being labelled a “conjurer” by those around him.

Dee is also believed to have earned the attention of William Shakespeare, with many people attesting that the character Prospero in The Tempest is based on him.

THE QUEEN’S CONFIDANT

Dee enjoyed some special favour with Queen Elizabeth, who appointed him as her Court Astrologer. He was given the task of finding an appropriate date for her coronation and was consulted for advice on several other occasions. Dee also analysed the astrological significance of Elizabeth’s reign, something that she was undoubtedly very interested in knowing.

Dee was not just a royal astrologer, however. He acted as a confidant to Elizabeth, being summoned by her a number of times to discuss things that were on her mind, suggesting she valued his intellect and insight. She visited Dee’s house at Mortlake many times, a rare honour for anyone concerned. She also seemed to have more than a passing interest in magic, though it is likely she had no intention of ever practicing it herself.

In 1564 Dee wrote Monas Hieroglyphica, a magical treatise on the importance of a symbol, the Hieroglyphic Monad, that he believed was the key to understanding the universe. This was such a pivotal element of his work and he shared it with Elizabeth, who seemed so fascinated by its mysteries that she told him she would act upon them if he disclosed the book’s secrets. It is not clear exactly what was meant by this, but it may have been that Dee was offering some potential magical aid in the imperialistic pursuits of England, which Elizabeth was obviously keen to encourage.

Dee’s proximity to the Queen led to him enjoying a certain amount of political ‘invulnerability’, a particularly important necessity given that he had previously been jailed for a period during the reign of Queen Mary on accusations of treason after he constructed her horoscope. While England now had a Protestant ruler Dee still could face religious trouble over his esoteric work, particularly given the numerous assassination attempts on his character, making Elizabeth’s favour more important than ever.

His closeness to the Queen also earned him the trust of many of her top advisors, including Sir Francis Walsingham, William Cecil, Robert Dudley, Christopher Hatton, and Edward Dyer, all of whom were very close to Elizabeth and carried significant sway in the court.

Dee's concern for Elizabeth also spilled over into the angelic workings, where at one point he asked the angel Gabriel if she was alive or dead, to which Gabriel said that she was still alive (which was, of course, true). Dee was in Kraków, Poland at this time and likely would have heard little news about what was happening back home.

Dee's importance to Elizabeth cannot be underestimated. Some of the more interesting reports about his magical work suggest that he was responsible for the sinking of the Spanish Armada, as well as predicting an assassination attempt against the Queen. Elizabeth's financial aid in Dee's time of hardship also shows that she felt she owed him a favour or two, despite a sudden shift in the Queen's court and general society against astrologers and magicians.

THE ROSICRUCIAN LINK

Rosicrucianism is an esoteric Christian tradition that began in 1614 with the publication of the Fama Fraternitatis in Germany, a manifesto that first revealed the existence of the Order or Fraternity of the Rosy Cross, a mysterious group based on a mythical figure called Christian Rosenkreuz, who, tradition claims, lived to the ripe age of 106, an extremely long life for the time period.

This text was followed by the Confessio Fraternitatis in 1615 and the Chemical Wedding of Christian Rosenkreutz in 1616, again in Germany, which added fuel to the fire of what was quickly capturing the imaginations of many learned people throughout Europe, with all three texts being translated into numerous languages.

The exact origins of Rosicrucianism are unknown, with some attributing the source texts to a number of famous individuals, including Francis Bacon, who is also believed by some to be the author of the numerous plays traditionally attributed to William Shakespeare. John Dee is also on the list of potential instigators of the Rosicrucian tradition, a theory made popular by the works of scholar Frances Yates.

In The Rosicrucian Enlightenment, Yates argues that “there can be no doubt that we should see the movement behind the three Rosicrucian publications as a movement ultimately stemming from John Dee.”<sup>11</sup>

She asserts that Dee’s extensive travels throughout Europe, and particularly to Bohemia, may have been what set the Rosicrucian fervour in motion.

“The strangely exciting suggestion is that the Rosicrucian movement in Germany was the delayed result of Dee’s mission in Bohemia over twenty years earlier...”<sup>12</sup>

While there might seem like little evidence to support this, there is a peculiar link between Dee and the Chemical Wedding text, the title page of which contains the Hieroglyphic Monad symbol from Dee’s Monas Hieroglyphica, a short book that contains a number of esoteric theorems which Dee believed were of extreme importance.

Of course, Dee died in 1608, six years before the publication of the first Rosicrucian manifesto, which suggests that he was not the author of it, unless he wrote it many years prior to its first appearance, which seems unlikely.

While Dee may or may not have influenced the Rosicrucian tradition, his prominence at the time led to claims that he was, at the very least, a member of that fraternity.

“Although Ashmole himself was not a Rosicrucian and does not seem to have associated Dee with that group, some members of the Rosicrucian fraternity adopted Dee as one of their own. Sometime after the publication 1652 of Ashmole’s Theatricum Chemicum Britannicum, which included a brief life of Dee, a Mr Townesend wrote to Ashmole that John Dee ‘is acknowledge for one of ye Brotherhood of ye R. CR. by one of that Fraternity, who calleth himself Philip Zeigerus, Francus.’”<sup>13</sup>

11 Frances Yates, The Rosicrucian Enlightenment, pp. 55-6.

12 Ibid., p. 56.

13 Peter French, John Dee: The World of an Elizabethan Magus, p. 14.

It is understandable why other Rosicrucians would want to associate Dee with the group, given how well-received he was throughout Europe until Casaubon tarnished his reputation with the publication of A True & Faithful Relation. Dee's achievements in mathematics, navigation, and astronomy, not to mention his fervent interest in occult studies, made him a perfect example of what a typical Rosicrucian should be. It seems unlikely that Dee was really a Rosicrucian, however, since the texts did not exist during his lifetime, but he certainly fit the bill in every way imaginable.

“Dee can plausibly be identified with the Rosicrucian mode of thinking, which tended towards secrecy and science mixed with magic, but only if Rosicrucian is used as a generic term. It is improbable that he was a Rosicrucian in the sense of belonging to a secret fraternity with formal rules, secret ceremonies, and so forth.”<sup>14</sup>

The enigma surrounding the origins of Rosicrucianism make it ripe for speculation, and it is far more appealing to think of individuals like Dee and Bacon, instead of some lesser known people, as the potential figureheads of the tradition. Unfortunately, there is little to support this assertion, but while it seems that Dee was likely not directly connected with the Rosicrucian movement, the presence of the Hieroglyphic Monad in the Chemical Wedding suggests that his works certainly had a major influence on it.

EDWARD KELLEY

Edward Kelley (or Kelly) was born on 1 August, 1555. Little is known about his life before encountering Dee, but it is believed he worked as an apothecary's apprentice, where perhaps he developed his fervent interest in alchemy.

Kelley also went by the name Talbot, making it more difficult to track down details about him. This was the name that he went by when he first entered Dee's life, but the reasoning for the pseudonym is unknown. It might be that he was wary of revealing his true identity, particularly given some previous run-ins with the law.

What little we know about Kelley's early days is that he was notorious for his deception and fraud. At one stage it appears he was arrested for coining (making false money), for which he was allegedly punished by having his ears cut off.<sup>15</sup> Indeed, it seems evident that Kelley was obsessed with material wealth, as his sole magical purpose seems to have been in finding out how to turn lead to gold, an achievement he is rumoured to have achieved later in life.

Kelley claimed that he had ancestors in the house of "Imaymi," more correctly known as Uí Maine, from the Irish province of Connaught, which Kelley wrote as "Conaghaku," according to Wooley.<sup>16</sup> Unfortunately, we do not know if this claim had any truth to it.

Kelley was a powerful "psychic," with strong skrying abilities that Dee and his previous skryers lacked, a fact that is evident alone in the accounts of the Enochian workings. He had a strong personality and often argued with the angels that he communed with, at times accusing them of being illuding spirits. It seems to me that the angels disliked and distrusted him as much as he disliked and distrusted them, and their mutual rivalry was only set aside because they needed each other; Kelley needed the angels to keep his employment with Dee, while the angels needed Kelley to deliver their material. It was, as it were, a relationship of convenience.

In the later years, when Kelley supposedly discovered the secret of alchemy, he enjoyed the fame and welcome that Dee previously had in the crown courts of Europe, even receiving a knighthood from the Holy Roman Emperor, Rudolf II. It is evident that this was because everyone was interested in figuring out how to turn lead to gold, though it is not clear if this was another ploy by Kelley or a genuine belief in the attainment of this secret.

16 Benjamin Woolley, The Queen's Conjurer, p. 268.

Neither Dee nor Kelley really utilised the Enochian system, or, at least, no documentation of such has been found. It seems to me that the angels made many promises purely so that these two conflicting figures would work together long enough to receive the full material that the entities wanted humanity to have. Regardless of the whys, it is Dee's careful journaling of the workings that has allowed us to piece together a viable and, indeed, potent practice that has attracted a lot of attention over the last century in particular.

THE SKRYER AND THE MAGICIAN

It was on 8 March 1582 that Kelley, then known as Edward Talbot, entered Dee's life, a few days later replacing former priest Barnabas Saul, who previously worked as Dee's somewhat unsuccessful skryer and who mysteriously disappeared as Kelley arrived.

It is interesting that when Kelley appeared with one Mr. Clerkson at Mortlake, both of them revealed that Saul was spreading rumours about Dee, effectively axing him from the equation and opening up a position that Dee would desperately want filled. Whether this is coincidence, the manipulation of Kelley, or the work of the angels is a mystery that will likely never be solved.

Kelley was only 26 at this time and had just met Dee, yet he quickly offered to perform some skrying work, clearly eager to prove his ability. Indeed, the apparent wrongdoing of Saul was told to Kelley by "a spiritual creature," an immediate and, we might assume, deliberate hint of Kelley's capabilities.

Dee was initially skeptical and dismissed Kelley's first offer, noting that it was to "entrap" him and find out if he had dealings with "wicked spirits." Two days later, however, on 10 March, and after much reassurance from Kelley, he decided to give the young man a try. It likely did not take much convincing, as Dee clearly wanted a genuine and skilled skryer as much as Kelley appeared to want to fill that role.

Kelley knelt by Dee's desk and began gazing into the shewstone Dee had set up, while Dee retired to his oratory. Both began intense prayer and within 15 minutes Kelley had established contact with the archangel Uriel, whom Dee questioned about his Book of Soyga, a magical text that contained a number of mysterious tables he could not decipher. Uriel responded that this book was delivered to Adam by angelic beings, the first hint of the Enochian or Adamic tongue and teachings that would follow.

Kelley also received a vision of a Goetic style talisman that was later discredited by Uriel and documented as a false vision in a footnote by Dee. This puts the legitimacy of the entire skrying session into question, but even if the contact proved false, it was evidently a much clearer mode of communication than Dee had experienced with his previous skryers, and by the time Dee had found out that it was an illuding spirit he was already deeply engrossed in workings with the true angels.

Dee continued to perform magical workings until 1607, many years after the departure of Kelley and a year or two before Dee's death, but these were obviously not as fruitful without Kelley's skills, and it is unclear to what extent, if any, they relate to the previous transmissions of the Enochian system.

The swiftness with which Kelley established a connection to the angels and with which Dee threw himself into documenting what transpired is almost unbelievable, as these two men barely knew each other. Yet this strange meeting was to become the beginning of a journey of many years and the first insight into what would be revealed as the system of Enochian magic.

A YOUTH OF NECROMANCY & BLACK MAGIC

Kelley has been widely criticised as a fraudster, not simply because of the allegations that he was charged with coining, but also because of his history with black magic and evil spirits.

The first day Kelley worked as a skryer for Dee was 10 March 1582. Dee was 55 and Kelley was 26. Uriel appeared within a short space of time, but it turned out to be an illuding spirit, who delivered a false seal that is Goetic in form. This may have simply been because of the new psychic links being forged or it may have been due to Kelley's past history of working with demons, a history that Dee noted in his diary on that day:

"Note: he had two days before made the like demand and request unto me: but he went away unsatisfied for his coming was to entrap me, if I had had any dealing with wicked spirits as he confessed often times after: and that he was set on, etc."<sup>17</sup>

Two years later, on 8 June 1584, Dee was still writing about Kelley's involvement with evil spirits, commenting that he told Kelley to abandon his "diabolical experiments" and to "renounce the evil angels and all their frauds."<sup>18</sup> Dee recorded this in Latin, most likely so that Kelley, whose Latin was poor, could not read it and take offense.

Kelley's reputation as a necromancer was depicted in a work by Ebenezer Sibly in 1806, which carries the title: "Edw[ar]d Kelly, a Magician. in the Act of invoking the Spirit of a Deceased Person." It is unlikely that Kelley ever attempted any form of necromancy, but clearly he had earned a dark reputation.

17 Joseph H. Peterson, John Dee's Five Books of Mystery, p. 66.

18 A True & Faithful Relation, p. 164.

Some scholars have recently attempted to re-evaluate what we know about Kelley and whether or not the stories about him are true. Michael Wilding, author of a biographical essay on Kelley,<sup>19</sup> claims that Kelley's reputation was unduly tarnished, in much the same way Dee's was.

It is likely that at least some of the reports about Kelley are exaggerated or completely erroneous, but Dee's accounts appear to be quite clear that Kelley was at least in some way involved with evil spirits at some point in his life.

Regardless of who he was or what he did, he was without doubt a gifted individual, with an ability that few could match, then or now. Depending on which side of the fence one sits on, he was either a cunning and convincing conman or a truly remarkable psychic. Either reality means that we must respect his contribution to magical history, real or feigned.

THE WIFE-SWAP

One of the most controversial points in the history of Dee and Kelley is what has infamously become known as the "wife-swap," where the duo and their wives agreed to a covenant that would permit them to exchange wives for sexual relations on one occasion.

On 18 April 1587 Kelley received shocking instructions from the angel Madimi, an entity with whom Dee felt a special closeness, so much so that he named one of his daughters Madinia after her. The instructions suggested that the four should be joined in both a spiritual and carnal sense, with Madimi dismissing the notion of sin when it is asked for by and in the name of God.

It has been proposed by many people that Kelley constructed these visions to fulfil his own sexual fantasy. However, on 22 April he wrote a lengthy diatribe, expressing his dislike for the spirits and the covenant they proposed:

"I Edward Kelly by good and provident (according to the Laws and ordinances of God) determination and consideration in these former Actions, that is to say, appearings, shows made, and voices uttered, by the within named in this Book, and the rest whatsoever Spirits have from the beginning thereof (which at large by the Records appeareth) not only doubted and disliked their insinuations and doctrine uttered, but also divers and sundry times (as coverting to eschew and avoid the danger and inconvenience that might either by them, their selves, or the drift of their doctrine ensue, or to my indamagement divers ways, happen) sought to depart from the exercises thereof: and withall boldly (as the servant of the Son of God) inveighed against them: urging them to depart, or render better reason of their unknown and incredible words and speeches delivered: and withall often and sundry times friendly exhorted the Right Worshipful Master JOHN DEE (the chief follower thereof) as also in the Records appeareth, to regard his soul's health, the good proceeding of his worldly credit (which through Europe is great) the better maintenace to come of his wife and children, to beware of them, and withall to give them over: wherein although I friendly and brotherly laboured, my labour seemed to be lost and counsel of him despised, and withall was urged with replies to the contrary by him made, and promises, in that case, of the loss of his soul's health, if they were not of God: Whereunto upon as it were some farther taste of then, or opinion grounded upon the frailty of zeal, he cased not also to pawn unto me his soul, etc. Which his persuasions were the chief and only cause of my this so long proceeding with them: And now also at this instant, and before a new few days having manifest occasion to think they were the servants of Satan, and the children of darkness; because they manifestly urged and commanded in the name of God a Doctrine Damnable, and contrary to the Laws of God, his Commandments, and Gospel by our Saviour Christ as a Touchstone to us left and delivered, and brotherly admonished the said Worshipful, and my good friend Mr. JOHN DEE to beware of them: And now having just occasion to determine what they were, to consider all these things before mentioned by me, and wisely to leave them; and the rather because of themselves, they (as that by their own words appeareth) upon our not following that Doctrine delivered, gave unto us a Quietas est, a passport of freedom: But the Books being brought forth, after some discourse therein, after a day or two had, and their words perused spoken heretofore, did as it were (because of the possible verity thereof, Deo enim omnia sunt possibilia) gave us cause of further deliberation: so that thereby, I did partly of my self, and partly by the true meaning of the said Mr. DEE in the receiving of them, as from God; and after a sort by the zeal I saw him bear unto the true worship and glory of God to be (as that was by them, promised) by us promoted, descend from my self, and condescend unto his opinion and determination, giving over all reason, or whatsoever for the love of God: But the women disliked utterly this last Doctrine, and consulting amongst themselves gave us this answer, the former actions did nothing offend them but much comforted them: and therefore this last, not agreeing with the rest (which they think to be according to the good will and wholesome Law of God) maketh them to fear, because it expressly is contrary to the Commandment of God: And thereupon desiring God not to be offended with their ignorance, required another action for better information herein; in the mean, vowing, fasting, and praying, Mrs. DEE hath covenanted with God to abstain from the eating of fish and flesh until his Divine Majesty satisfy their minds according to his Laws established, and throughout all Christendom received. To this their request of having an action, I absolutely answer, that my simplicity before the Highest is such as I trust will excuse me: And because the sum of this Doctrine, given in his name, doth required obedience which I have (as is before written) offered, I think my self discharged: And therefore have no further cause to hazzard my self any more in any action. Wherefore I answer that if it be lawful for them to call this Doctrine in question, it is more lawful for me to doubt of greater peril; considering that to come where we are absolutely answered were folly, and might redound unto my great inconvenience. Therefore beseeching God to have mercy upon me, and to satisfy their Petitions, doubts and vows, I finally answer, that I will from this day forward meddle no more herein.”<sup>20</sup>

If this was a show put on by Kelley it had a lot of potential to backfire, as any attempts to discredit the angels would in turn discredit their command that the four should become as one. Therefore if he really did want to go through with this it would make no sense to make such an effort to dismiss the angels entirely. That said, he was probably well aware that Dee would not so easily abandon communication with the angels and would hope to appease their anger at Kelley’s refusal to give in.

While it is possible Kelley pretended to be dismayed, there is another example of this type of distaste for the angels’ commands in a working from five years earlier, which means that Kelley’s utter dislike of the instructions given to him was not a once off affair.

In this earlier working Uriel was discussing some of the Heph-tarchic material with Dee and the process was suddenly interrupted by Michael, who spoke to Kelley alone. When Kelley returned, Dee wrote that he was “much disquieted.” Kelley then recounted what Michael had said to him:

“He said that I must betake my self to the world, and forsake the world. That is that I should marry. Which thing to do, I have no natural inclination: neither with a safe conscience may I do it, contrary to my vow and my profession. Wherefore I think and hope, there is some other meaning in these their words.”<sup>21</sup>

Michael responded by saying: “Thou must of force keep it. Thou knowest our mind.” At this point Dee quickly said a prayer praising God and ended the operation, suggesting that he was uncomfortable with this sudden change of direction. It is also likely that he was afraid of upsetting the angels and was worried about Kelley’s reluctance to do what they asked.

20 A True & Faithful Relation, Actio Tertia, pp. 17-18.

21 Joseph H. Peterson, John Dee’s Five Books of Mystery, p. 172

All of this could have been an act by Kelley to make it look like he did not want to marry, but if it was, it was a very elaborate and convincing act. The next day Kelley “would not willingly” work with the angels, according to Dee, who said that Kelley was now “utterly misliking and discrediting them, because they willed him to marry.”<sup>22</sup>

It is also possible that since Kelley did not want to marry in the first place he was not keen on being limited to one woman, and that therefore he tired of his wife after several years and yearned to be with another.

There is a gap in the diaries with no records for the day following the wife-swap request, suggesting that Kelley refused to conduct any workings that day, as per his promise. However, there is an action recorded on 24 April, two days after Kelley’s vow, most likely at the behest of Dee, who would undoubtedly have pleaded with Kelley to continue the work and try to find some answers to this problematic command the angels had given.

Dee records that they “cannot find how we may do the thing required,”<sup>23</sup> but then Christ appears before them and speaks in language akin to the gospels, assuring them of the divine origin of the wife-swap request and urging them to carry it out with all due faith:

“He that fasteth and prayeth doth but that which is commanded: He that also fulfilleth my will is justified before me: for who is he that raiseth up, or who is he that casteth down? Yea, even I it is that have taken you four Trees out of the forest of the world, and have covered you hitherto with my wings. And behold, this that is take away shall be restored again to you with more power. And Might shall be in it, and a breastplate unto you, of Judgement and Knowledge. [...] Your unity and knitting together is the end and consummation of the beginning of my harvest.”<sup>24</sup>

An interesting thing that is said by Christ (if it was him) was that “this Doctrine is not to be published to mortal men.” This means that the covenant was to be kept secret, a fact that raises a number of questions. On one hand it could have been a genuine request, for there is power in secrecy. On the other hand, it might have been an illuding spirit which knew well that this proposal did not come from God, or it might have been a ploy by Kelley to ensure that Dee did not reveal what had happened to other people, which could have affected both of their reputations. Dee took this clause so seriously that he beseeched God that if any of them should reveal it they should be “stricken dead by thy Divine power.”

22 Ibid., p. 174.

24 Ibid., pp. 19-20.

Dee told his wife Jane about the proposal, telling her that “there is no other remedy,” to which she wept and trembled for a quarter of an hour, as one can expect for someone entrusted to do something that she does not want to do for the one she loves. After a time Dee pacified her and persuaded her to agree to the cross-matching.

It seems that both Dee and Kelley were content with Christ’s words and they swapped wives on the night of Sunday, 3 May 1587. It appears the angels were satisfied with this, yet there is a peculiar incident of the angel Madimi taking away Dee’s shewstone, which he later found beneath one of the pillows on his bed where his wife was resting. Kelley might have put it there, but both John and Jane Dee believed it to be an act of God.

Regardless of what one makes of the wife-swapping agreement and who came up with the idea, ethereal or corporeal, it marks one of the most intriguing and unusual incidents in occult history, where a number of people who were extremely devout Christians agreed to perform an act that was quite un-Christian. Yet it is easy to see why Dee would agree to it, having spent several years at these communications and believing them to be true. Whether or not this covenant really came from the angels, however, is a debate that is likely to never end.

THE ALCHEMIST OF EUROPE

Kelley expressed an interest in alchemy throughout his life, gaining fame and fortune in Europe for his alleged achievements and even writing a book on the subject, Theatrum Astronomiae Terrestris, the only text he ever penned. Kelley claimed that he found this book in a bishop's tomb, but it is likely this was an attempt to add historical credibility to his work.

There are not many mentions of alchemy in Dee's diaries, a fact that Peterson argues is likely due to Dee wanting to keep his alchemical experiments secret from Kelley.<sup>25</sup> It appears that the only direct involvement of the entities with Kelley's alchemical pursuit happened quite early on in the duo's magical career. In 1583, a year after the two met, Dee recorded that Kelley had been instructed by the angels to travel to a "Huets Cross," a monument where he found a red powder, a scroll, and a book of magic and alchemy called The Book of Saint Dunstan.<sup>26</sup>

Towards the end of the angelic workings Dee and Kelley travelled around Europe trying to gain the financial support of some of the royalty and nobility. This was particularly difficult on Dee's family, who were forced to move several times, often back and forth from city to city, and frequently at the behest of the angels.

Two places that they travelled to in particular were Poland and Bohemia. The King of Poland did not appear to be impressed by the duo. Count Vilem Rozmberk of Bohemia, however, saw their potential, securing the favour of the Holy Roman Emperor, Rudolf II, who then reversed a previous banishment from the country. Dee and Kelley settled in the Bohemian town of Trebon in 1586, not long before their angelic communications were brought to a close.

Even if Kelley had not discovered this alchemical secret, he certainly enjoyed a lavish lifestyle thanks to the patronage of Europe's wealthy. Rozmberk, in particular, gave him money and a number of estates, while Rudolf made him a baron. Both had already expressed a keen interest in alchemy and were obviously attempting to earn Kelley's favour if the reports they were hearing were indeed true.

Those reports, of course, were that Kelley had managed to produce an ounce of gold from a mixture of a small amount of a red powder with mercury, a mystery that had confounded and eluded alchemists for many centuries. The rumours travelled throughout Europe, even back to England where Edward Dyer tried to convince the Archbishop of Canterbury of Kelley's abilities and where the Lord Treasurer tried in vain to get the skryer-turned-alchemist to return.

25 Joseph H. Peterson, ed. John Dee's Five Books of Mystery, pp. 30-31.

By February 1589 Dee had lost the favour of Rozmberk and saw the last of Kelley, who travelled to Prague alone, less than two years after the wife-swapping incident and not long after he had amassed a wealth that Dee could not approach. Dee was likely furious that Kelley so quickly abandoned him, considering it was Dee's reputation that initially curried favour with the European courts, but this parting was a blessing in disguise, considering what would follow.

Kelley grew increasingly wealthy, with a castle, nine villages and two houses in Prague at his disposal, but he failed to deliver on his promises, which means that it was either an elaborate ruse or that Kelley did not want to or could not share his secret. If it was the latter, we need to ask why he needed the wealth of others if he could make it for himself. If he really was onto something it may have been the case that he ran out of the mysterious red powder and was no longer able to conduct this miracle of metallurgy.

Kelley's failure angered Rudolf, who ordered his arrest on 30 April 1589, only months after he and Dee parted ways. Kelley appears to have been tipped off about this, and disappeared before the contingent of guards arrived. He was found soon afterwards, however, and brought to Krivoklat Castle.

It is interesting that at this time Elizabeth sought for the freedom of some of Kelley's associates, such as Dyer, but never asked for Kelley himself to be freed. This might be because he refused to share his alchemical secrets with England or because she did not want to upset Dee, who likely was not very fond of Kelley any more.

Kelley was released from prison in 1593, but by 1596 he was jailed once more, now at Most Castle, after a spat with the assistant of an influential alchemist, suggesting that he continued his alchemical work despite losing the support of Rudolf II.

Wealth is the most likely reason for Kelley's alchemical experiments, particularly given his earlier alleged crime of coining and the likelihood that he put up with the angels largely for the handsome pay that Dee was affording him.

Another possible aspect to Kelley's obsession with alchemy is its potential for instilling fertility, of transmuting death into life. According to Woolley,<sup>27</sup> Kelley believed his wife Joanna was unable to conceive, and that this fact plagued his mind while in Trebon. He was also potentially influenced by Rozmberk's own fascination by the idea that alchemy might help him produce an heir, something he had failed to achieve on numerous occasions with multiple wives.

27 Benjamin Woolley, The Queen's Conjuror, p. 252.

A DEATH PREDICTED

One of the most interesting elements of the life of Kelley was actually his death, which is shrouded in mystery and intrigue.

Kelley died in 1597, aged 42, almost half the age of Dee. The story goes that he tried to escape from Most Castle by drugging the guards and climbing down a makeshift bedlinen rope from his prison window. He fell, broke his legs, and joined the angels (or perhaps demons) in the afterlife.

Interestingly, on 21 August 1584, the angel Uriel predicted that Kelley would "die violently."<sup>28</sup> If the tale of his plummet from the heights of the castle is true, then this is an uncannily accurate omen.

To counter this, however, Uriel failed to get their proposed ages right, suggesting that Kelley would live to 87 and Dee to 122, supporting an earlier claim that he would live past 100. Neither of these ages are accurate, nor even close, but they might have been an attempt to placate the duo with promises of long-life, something that many alchemists had been searching for in vain.

A letter from Sir Thomas Browne to Elias Ashmole alleges that Dee's son Arthur said that Kelley attempted to escape, fell and broke his leg, and was then imprisoned again, suggesting that the story is partially true, but that he did not die in the incident. When and how he died is anyone's guess, but it might have been while still in prison, or he might have been released and died a rather unexciting death in the company of the Rozmberks, with whom he still held favour.

Interestingly, Dee recorded Kelley's death as being on 15 November 1595, but Woolley says that sightings of Kelley were reported as late as 1598.<sup>29</sup> It is not clear why Dee marked such an early date, but it seems likely that he was led by a friend or contact in Europe to believe that Kelley had passed on. Dee uses the word "slain" to describe Kelley's passing, suggesting he did not die naturally, but rather at the will or hand of another. We do not know what this alternative story of his death is, but it suggests that Kelley could not escape the fate outlined by Uriel all those years before.

THE MAGIC OF THE ANGELS

Enochian magic is extremely complex, not only in how it was delivered, how the tools are made, and how it is practiced, but also in how it is understood. There are so many layers to the system and so many questions left unanswered by Dee and his angelic cohorts.

For example, most people might take it for granted that the entities involved in this system are in fact angels, but a number of people have questioned this, suggesting they might be demons or some other form of entity unto their own.

Another burning question that many have is: what is the purpose of Enochian magic? Some say it is designed to help humanity, while others postulate that it is intended to bring about the Apocalypse.

These and other questions will be answered, to the best of my ability, in this chapter. I think it is helpful to know exactly what we are working with before getting into the nitty gritty of the system itself. It will make far more sense with that layer of understanding.

THE NAME “ENOCHIAN”

The term “Enochian” is actually a relatively modern name for both the language and magical system delivered to Dee. The magic gets its name from the language, and the language gets its name from the biblical patriarch Enoch.

Enoch is most well known for being the only person in the Old Testament to be assumed or taken up into heaven, based on a particular passage of Genesis:

“Enoch walked with God; then he was no more, because God took him.”<sup>30</sup>

Tradition has it that Enoch became Metatron, the highest archangel in charge of the heavenly hosts, and the archangel attributed to the highest Sephirah, Kether, in the Qabalistic system. Metatron was often afforded such a high status that he became known as “the lesser YHVH,” with some even considering him as a power to rival that of God himself.

There were several apocryphal texts about Enoch, mostly notably the Book of Enoch, which is actually three separate texts, detailing Enoch’s ascent through the palaces of heaven and his assumption of the angelic form of Metatron. The first text (commonly called 1 Enoch) is Ethiopian, the second (2 Enoch) is Slavonic, and the third (3 Enoch) is a Hebrew text purported to be written by Rabbi Ishmael. The first two texts are believed to date from the First Century CE, while the third purports to be from the Second Century CE, but is more commonly believed to have originated in the Fifth Century CE.

Dee was fascinated by the Book of Enoch, but all three of them had been lost at the time Dee lived in. In fact, their loss was probably the primary reason that Dee was fascinated by them, as they offered potential mystical and magical secrets he did not have access to. He would not have been aware that there were several different texts, however. All three were rediscovered between 200 and 400 years after Dee’s time.

30 Genesis 5:24 (NRSV).

What is important to know is that there is a mystical Book of Enoch in Jewish tradition, a book that exemplifies the knowledge Enoch obtained when he was assumed into heaven. 1 Enoch speaks of a book of knowledge given to Enoch, while 2 Enoch tells of God giving Enoch 366 books, containing all knowledge, including the secrets of creation. Indeed, this mystical Book of Enoch was likely the reason these three texts were written in the first place.

The angels whom Dee spoke with made numerous references to Enoch and Dee questioned them about the long lost Book of Enoch. It is these references, which suggest that Enoch had access to a spiritual tongue, that gave us the modern name.

When the Enochian language was introduced, Raphael referred to it as the “celestial speech,” while Dee called it the “angelic language” and “primitive divine or Angelical speech.”<sup>31</sup> He also referred to the letters as the “Adamical Alphabet.”<sup>32</sup>

The angel Ilemese told Dee that Enochian was “a language taught in Paradise ... by infusion, to Adam ... until the Ayrie Tower [of Babel] was destroyed.”<sup>33</sup> When Dee questioned unto whom Adam spoke this language, Ilemese said “unto Chevah,” one of the names for Eve. This suggests that the tongue was not used to converse with God himself.

The reference to the Tower of Babel is interesting, as this biblical story tells of how a unified humanity speaking one language, which we can assume from Ilemese’ explanation was Enochian, angered God by attempting to build a tower that ascended into heaven, resulting in God deciding to “confuse their language there, so that they will not understand one another’s speech.”<sup>34</sup>

Some of the earliest references to the system as “Enochian” come in some texts by Dr. Thomas Rudd, edited by Adam McLean and published in A Treatise on Angel Magic. These brief mentions refer to the “Tables of Enoch,” but do not go into any great detail on them.

The Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn popularised the name “Enochian” through its unique approach to the system, and despite it not being used by Dee, we are stuck with it, for good or ill.

THE THREE SECTIONS OF ENOCHIAN

Generally speaking when people mention Enochian magic they are referring to only one aspect of the system, but there are actually three main parts to it that are very different, yet share some overlap. It is impossible to get a thorough understanding of the system without exploring all three.

The first part is the Heptarchic system. This gets its name from the Greek hept (“seven”) and archy (“realms/kingdoms” - from archon, “ruler”). This, as one can imagine, focuses on planetary energy and beings associated with the planets that can be seen with the naked eye: the Moon, Mercury, Venus, the Sun, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

This was delivered first and includes the basic tools that were deemed necessary for the later Enochian work—such as the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, Table of Practice, Seals of the Bonorum, etc. There is a lot of material here, most of which is covered in Dee’s Five Books of Mystery.<sup>35</sup>

This area was not given as much attention by the magicians in the original Golden Dawn, barring some brief explorations of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, but later Golden Dawn magicians, including several members of the Whare Ra<sup>36</sup> temple, explored the Heptarchic system in significantly more depth. Many modern magicians, both in and outside the Golden Dawn, employ this system, either as a standalone or with the more familiar Enochian material like the Watchtowers.

The second part of the system is Liber Loagaeth, a series of obscure tables that few have worked with and even less have come to any modicum of understanding of. This will be discussed in some depth later in Chapter IV.

The third part of the system is Enochian “proper,” which is the bit most magicians are familiar with. It includes the actual language itself, the Great Table (and its subdivisions into Watchtowers, etc.), all of the Calls, the Aethyr names, and anything else that we traditionally think of when it comes to Enochian (barring the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, which is Heptarchic, as noted above).

35 See Joseph H. Peterson’s John Dee’s Five Books of Mystery.

Towards the end of the Heptarchic material and shortly before the delivery of Liber Loagaeth, the archangel Michael supported the idea of a three-fold division of the Enochian system:

“This Art is the first part of a Threefold Art, joining Man with the Knowledge of 1. the WORLD, 2. the GOVERNMENT of his Creatures, and 3. the SIGHT of his Majesty.”<sup>37</sup>

While the three parts appear to be entirely different systems, and can certainly be treated as such, they share a lot in common and are intended for use as one larger system. Even if a magician intends only to practice one area, he or she will need to study the others in order to truly understand what he or she is doing.

THE DANGERS OF ENOCHIAN

Enochian magic has earned a reputation over the years as being somewhat dangerous, so much so that nearly all books or documents on it come with a caveat warning magicians to be careful. Some even go so far as to say that Enochian magic should be avoided altogether, for one's safety and sanity.

After working with Enochian for many years I came to the same conclusion as many others that there are definite dangers with using the system. However, these dangers are usually dependent on how a person approaches the system, as most of the horror stories surrounding Enochian revolve around someone taking on too much and trying to rush through the system. If the proper protocols are followed, with plenty of rest between workings, then there should be no significant risks.

To give an analogy, learning to drive a car is potentially dangerous, particularly if rushed or if the learner driver ignores the rules of the road. If, however, they take the lessons from a qualified driver, follow the proper recommendations, guidelines, and safety procedures, and, most importantly, take their time, then they will not really encounter any problems at all. The car will then become an asset, a tool to help the person on their journey, rather than a potential death trap.

What is important to note about Enochian magic is that it releases a high volume of energy, which, if not properly channelled, can be extremely destructive. When this energy is invoked into one's aura (or Sphere of Sensation, as the Golden Dawn calls it) it had better be strong enough to withstand it or there will be a re-enactment of the Qabalistic concept of the Breaking of the Vessels.

Therefore it is important that the magician strengthen his or her energetic "vessel" sufficiently before working with Enochian energy. This can be done in many ways, such as working with other less intense magical systems for a while first. For example, use of the Lesser Ritual of the Pentagram, in both its invoking and banishing forms, is a particularly effective ritual for helping to strengthen the aura, among many other uses. Basically the magician needs to gain experience at bringing energy into their aura in small doses before working up to the significantly larger doses present in Enochian workings.

It is also a good thing to recognise that sometimes Enochian is overkill for the result you are seeking and some of the angels themselves, particularly those in the Watchtowers, tend to frown on being asked to do things that other beings can manage. Sometimes one simply need a little buzz of electricity to get something to work, not a massive electrical storm. And, of course, anyone who wants to ignore the safety warnings and stick their fingers in a socket is never going to have a positive experience.

It is important to have a balanced view of the dangers of Enochian and not go to either extreme of thinking it is completely harmless or so dangerous that it should be shunned. It is a very potent system of magic that can produce very strong results, and the energy can be managed a lot easier when certain parts of the system are properly applied, but it can also be harmful if abused.

Much of the danger of Enochian is in the chaotic nature of the energy when there is no channel for it to follow and no container for it to reside in. A lot of this can be dealt with by an experienced magician and by the inherent safeguards of the system, such as with the tools of Heptarchic magic. These tools may seem like standard grimoiric fare at first, but they are actually part of a training system to help develop the magician to withstand the Enochian energy and also to build a kind of matrix of magical objects that work to contain the energy when released. In particular, the Holy Table, Watchtower Tablets and Sigillum Dei Aemeth are very powerful ways to help manage the energy involved in Enochian rituals.

Author and magician Lon Milo DuQuette came to a similar conclusion, emphasising the importance of building the Heptarchic tools in his excellent book Enochian Vision Magick. He wrote:

“By following through (even halfheartedly) the methods by which these magical tools were constructed, you will slip, however subtly, into the divine creative stream that produced them. You will become part of the same process that programmed and prepared Dee and Kelley.”<sup>38</sup>

Golden Dawn magician Israel Regardie felt, quite rightly, that Enochian magic was “the providence of the seasoned veteran in occult matters”, a system to be utilised only by “the mature well-informed student”<sup>39</sup>. Of course, it can often be difficult for the magician to tell if he or she is ready, and there are many who believe they are more advanced than they really are, but at least some knowledge and experience is necessary before delving into such a potent magical system.

The dangers of Enochian magic were highlighted in particular by Paul Foster Case and his group, the Builders of the Adytum (BOTA). Case was an ex-Golden Dawn magician who had a negative experience with Enochian magic, blaming it for the “serious disintegrations of body or mind” of several people he knew. He subsequently axed all elements of Enochian magic from his order, replacing them with Hebrew or simply leaving a few somewhat glaring omissions.

In the first of two letters sent to Israel Regardie in 1933 Case slated Enochian as “subtly harmful” and “dubious,” and he said that he agreed with one Miss Hughes in the questioning of whether or not it “is really a language at all!”

The problem with Case’s views is that they are quite contradictory, because if it is not a real angelic language, but an invention of Kelley, a topic we will explore later in this chapter, then how can it be harmful? Surely a fabricated magical system cannot have any such negative effect on a person.

38 Lon Milo DuQuette, Enochian Vision Magick, p. 43.

In the second letter Case lists several points of contention with Enochian magic, which I will address below.

“1. That it emanated so largely from Kelly”

This is an awful reason to doubt the authenticity and efficacy of a magical system. Firstly, many of the stories we know about Kelley are rumours, and it is clear that there were many people who tried their hand at destroying his reputation as much as there were others who did the same with Dee. From the diaries it appears that Kelley prayed with as much devotion and passion as Dee did, and Kelley displayed as much, if not more, dismay as Dee did regarding questionable incidences like the wife-swap.

Regardless of his personality or failings, however, the Enochian system was granted through him, not by him, and therefore its stature does not necessarily have to rely on how good a man he was. Indeed, it seems on so many occasions that the angels did not like Kelley one bit, and the feelings were mutual, suggesting a distance between the material itself and the man who delivered it. I think it is safe to say that they used him, knowing his psychic skills. It could even be argued that in order to be as psychically open as he was, he would have to be open to negative forces as well, and thus he would be extremely unstable and volatile, and his defects could be seen as a necessary part of what made him such an exceptional skryer.

“2. That the tablets are part of a rigmarole by which Kelly persuaded Dee that they were to be the puppet-masters of a new European political order which should supercede the kingdoms then reigning”

This was a common desire throughout Europe, and I do not think such an earthly goal as this should be a reason to dismiss the Enochian system. Indeed, the diaries show countless cases where it seems that the offers of kingdom for Dee and coin for Kelley were attempts by the angels to keep the parties interested while they then divulged the system. Many promises were made that were never kept, supporting my view that Dee and Kelley were chosen for their respective skills, so that the system would be revealed to the world at large. This is not so different than other magical systems, where spirits often make empty gestures and unfulfilled promises.

Of course, Dee did contribute quite considerably to the imperialistic pursuits of England at the time, with his navigational expertise aiding the exploration of the New World. His alleged participation in the defeat of the Spanish armada, by predicting and, some believe, summoning a storm that destroyed the ships, helped avoid an invasion of England and kept Queen Elizabeth I in power.

It is difficult to say, of course, if any of Dee's contributions came as a result of his work with the Enochian angels, but it is certainly a possibility, and there is plenty of material, such as the Parts of the Earth, that could be used for political purposes.

“3. That the same angel that dictated the Tablets also required that Kelly and Dee should have all things in common, including their wives.”

Well, firstly, who are we (mere humans) to apply our moral codes about marriage and monogamy to the angels? They do not think like us, and often they do not understand in the least how we work. Tyson suggested this request may have been an intimation of a kind of Gnostic union. Even if it was not, and it was Kelley's sinister desires rising to fore, why is that reason to dismiss the rest of the material? To say that this is throwing out the baby with the bathwater would be a huge understatement.

Also, what if the angels made a private agreement with Kelley to allow him to sleep with Dee's wife in order to ensure he continued with the work and delivery of the system (after all, he threatened frequently to leave it beforehand). Just because they do not care what they need to do to achieve their aim does not make the system fake, nor their nature as angels questionable, as we shall explore later in this chapter.

“4. That the entire project came to the same ignominious end that is to be expected of human undertakings based upon the promises of spirits.”

I'm not sure what “ignominious end” Case is referring to here, but this seems like a general distrust of all spirits, manifesting to an extreme in the Enochian system. Let us remember that the Qabalistic angels had their origin somewhere, communicating with someone before they became the accepted part of the Qabalistic system. By all means, we should be wary of any promises given by spirits. It is wise to remember that all spirits have an agenda. If one asks a Goetic spirit to do something, they will want something in return. Likewise for the Enochian angels. We must be extremely careful with this. Again, however, if Kelley threatened to cease the communications before their natural end, the angels may have been forced to grant him any desire, no matter what “ignominious end” that may have come to.

I beg to differ, and Frances Yates has supplied plenty of information that suggests links between Dee, his work, and the Rosicrucian tradition that followed, as discussed in the previous chapter. However, even if we assume no link, or that the traditions are completely incompatible, the Enochian system does not need to be Rosicrucian in styling for it to be valid and effective. By Case's logic anything that does not “correspond” with Rosicrucianism would be inherently wrong or ineffective, an idea that is not only extremely limited, but extremely misinformed.

“6. That I have personal knowledge of more than twenty-five instances where the performance of magical operations based on Order formulae led to serious disintegration of mind or body.”

Firstly, this could suggest a problem with the Golden Dawn's formulae, rather than Enochian itself. Secondly, it could be, and is most likely, the failings of the individuals concerned. Either they were not experienced enough or did not approach the system properly. We have seen that the system can cause illness via its abundance of energy, like an abundance of food can cause obesity. Excessive exposure to Enochian energy can be detrimental, without doubt, but excessive exercise can cause injury and ill health. Balance is key, as Case should have known from his Golden Dawn teachings.

We could also cite the fact that Dee lived almost double the life expectancy of the time. While he might not have overtly used the system, at least not in the way modern magicians use it, he was without doubt exposed to Enochian energy. Sometimes people blame magical work for their ill health, ignoring the other more obvious reasons, like poor diet and lack of exercise.

Most of Case's other criticisms are of the Golden Dawn and its leaders, not Enochian itself. Of course, we know that they did not have access to the entire system, nor do, indeed, we, given the obscurities of Liber Logaeth and the fact that so many documents were destroyed. However, we are in a much better place than them, with better access to not only the sourceworks of Enochian, but those of the Qabalah and ceremonial magic in general. Given this, I think we can more easily avoid the mistakes they made.

Benjamin Rowe recommended that a magician take regular breaks between sessions of Enochian magic, particularly if they noticed symptoms of stress within themselves, such as: "nervous exhaustion, severely lowered immune response, inability to concentrate, hypersensitivity, hyperreactivity, reduced judgment, flights of ideas, and paranoia."<sup>40</sup>

This is extremely solid advice and echoes similar advice fitness instructors often give in relation to exercise. If done on the trot for a long period of time, not only does Enochian magic become less effective, since the magician will be too fatigued and unable to deal with the energy, it becomes somewhat detrimental.

"The importance of pacing yourself cannot be overempha-

40 Benjamin Rowe, A Short Course in Skrying, p. 33.

sized. When you begin getting significant results from your Enochian work, it is very tempting to keep going; the anticipation of even more amazing results drives you on. But the extradimensional or meta-dimensional character of these forces allows them to influence all levels of your being simultaneously, including many levels of which you are not consciously aware. The cumulative effects of this influence can cascade into a dangerous level of stress before you become aware of it. Regular intervals of rest and relaxation, and of immersion in the everyday world, are the only sure way to avoid the problems.”<sup>41</sup>

Having experienced the negative effects of overusing Enochian magic, I cannot stress this point strongly enough. Do not abuse it. Like a little wine, it can have beneficial results. Too much, however, and it can impair judgement and cause health issues.

THE LEGITIMACY OF ENOCHIAN

Over the years several people have questioned the legitimacy of the Enochian system. Clearly Case was one of them, but he was not alone in thinking that the Enochian system was fabricated by Kelley.

Some have suggested that Kelley fabricated the entire Enochian corpus in order to string Dee along for as long as possible so that he could continue to receive his £50 per year salary, a healthy sum of money at the time. This seems to me unlikely, as Kelley frequently attempted to leave Dee’s employment. For example, on 17 April 1584 Kelley expressed doubt about the entire work and told Dee: “John your boy can well enough deliver these Letters, and so you need not me.”<sup>42</sup> Dee would not accept this and pleaded with him to continue.

The wife-swap incident is often used as the de facto example of Kelley falsifying the Enochian workings in order to manipulate Dee into agreeing to something that he would otherwise never agree to. While this is a possibility, Kelley demonstrated a remarkable amount of contempt for the idea, as shown in Chapter I.

42 Stephen Skinner, ed. John Dee’s Spiritual Diaries, p. 252.

Kelley frequently attempted to discredit the angels, a tactic that would be unlikely for someone trying to present a magical system as being genuine. While it is possible that this dismissal was part of the act, an effort to convince Dee that Kelley was not controlling things, it seems very unlikely, as it would mean that Kelley would have been, in effect, a genius, with an intellectual faculty and memory well beyond that of Dee and most other people.

To counter this, however, his alchemical achievement is likely to have been a ruse, and if he could have deceived so many intelligent people throughout Europe about this it is not inconceivable that he could do the same with Dee and the angelic communications.

One of the strongest arguments against the suggestion that Kelley faked the communications is the stark differences between his own style of writing and that of the angels, particularly the extremely powerful and poetic verses in the Calls (see Chapter XIV), a point that scholar Geoffrey James argues in The Enochian Evocation of Dr. John Dee:

“It is difficult to account for the serious stylistic differences between Kelly’s usual writing style and the utterances that he attributed to the spirits. [...] Could Kelly, whose single linguistic accomplishment was mastery of schoolboy Latin and even whose English was laced with colloquialisms, have devised an entire language, with its own unique grammar and syntax?”<sup>43</sup>

While we might be able to question Kelley’s truthfulness, it is difficult to do so when it comes to Dee’s own experiences. These were particularly rare, but there are some examples where he was given a spiritual vision, such as on 24 August 1588, when he wrote that he “saw the divine water” with the help of Kelley. Either he was deluding himself or he was having a genuine experience, and the fact that he says that Kelley helped him achieve this suggests that the other communications were therefore equally genuine.

Dee was not without his doubts, however, and even the angels picked up on this, with one of the Bonorum saying:

43 Geoffrey James, Enochian Evocation of Dr. John Dee, Preface, pp. xv-xvi.

“Beware of wavering. Blot out suspicion of us for we are God’s Creatures, that have reigned, do reign & shall reign forever. All our Mysteries shall be known unto you.”<sup>44</sup>

There are also several incidences where Kelley did not get his way with the angels, suggesting that he was not in control of the communications. For example, in 1585 Kelley wanted to show one of the angelic workings to the Jesuits in Krakow, Poland, a request that Dee understandably was unhappy with, given the likelihood this Catholic order would label them, two Protestant occultists, as heretics. Dee suggested that Kelley seek permission from the angels, which Kelley did, and the angels refused to permit it.

Another example is in the reception of the outer ring of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, a seal or pentacle used in the workings. After much had been given in an elaborate series of visions, Kelley took the Seal away to make some corrections to it. Initially this suggests that Kelley had made a mistake and was fixing it afterwards, but he accused Dee of omitting a letter or place, which Dee doubted and denied. They decided to settle the matter by asking Michael, who told them that Dee had made no error and that it was rather Kelley who failed to declare the missing letters to him.

Again, either this was part of the act, making Kelley’s performance the greatest con of the Renaissance, or the communications were not invented by him.

ANGELS VERSUS DEMONS

A very common argument levelled against Enochian magic is that the entities in the system are not actually angels, but demons. The casual reader may wonder exactly where this argument comes from, but the main source is Kelley himself. On many occasions during the workings, he claimed that the beings he was in touch with were evil spirits. Of course, by this stage he wanted to get out of the operations altogether, and given his personality, it would not be surprising if he were lying in order to do so.

For example, just before the angels matched the names of the

44 Josph H. Peterson, ed. John Dee’s Five Books of Mystery, p. 200.

Parts of the Earth to the regions of the world, Dee recorded that Kelley was once again casting doubt over their nature:

“There happened a great storm or temptation to E[dward] K[elley] of doubting and misliking our Instructors and their doings, and of contemning and condemning any thing that I knew or could do. I bare all things patiently for God his sake, etc.”<sup>45</sup>

Kelley agreed to carry on with the working, but said that his “heart standeth against them.” The next day Kelley came to Dee with a book from Ptolemy, which contained the names of the regions of the Earth that the angels had assigned to the Enochian names, as per Dee’s request. Kelley inferred that they were cheating by using this book, an accusation which Dee would not accept. There is also generally very little basis to this allegation, as Nalvage had made it quite clear the day before that an angel had delivered those names to Ptolemy, so the angels could not have been, as it were, plagiarising his work.

Before we can even consider this argument in earnest, what exactly qualifies as an “angel”? If they are the all-loving, harmonious beings who are out to help humanity, bringing comfort, healing, and love, then I have to disagree with that perception of any type of angel, Enochian, Qabalistic, or other, because, while there are many angels who are indeed interested in the growth of humanity, they are not nearly as ‘nice’ as some people would like to believe. We only have to go back to the early Jewish and Christian scriptures to see how powerful, dangerous and imposing these beings really are. When we accept this, it becomes a little easier to see how intense and ominous the Enochian angels can be, though, like humans, they can each have their own personality, making some more approachable than others.

An example of the common misconception of what angels are like is the Kerubim. In popular culture, we see these as naked babies, with tiny wings, sweet and innocent; the quintessential Cupid figure. That is a mistake, of course, because these entities are actually the Putti, whereas the Kerubim themselves are the four-headed, four-winged angels of Ezekiel, guarding the Throne of God. As one can imagine, there is a huge difference in terms of our conception of these beings, with the latter being much more imposing, and, indeed, terrifying, should someone truly come face to face with them. Here is a passage from Ezekiel describing the Kerubim:

“As I looked, a stormy wind came out of the north: a great cloud with brightness around it and fire flashing forth continually, and in the middle of the fire, something like gleaming amber. In the middle of it was something like four living creatures. This was their appearance: they were of human form. Each had four faces, and each of them had four wings. Their legs were straight, and the soles of their feet were like the sole of a calf’s foot; and they sparkled like burnished bronze. Under their wings on their four sides they had human hands. And the four had their faces and their wings thus: their wings touched one another; each of them moved straight ahead, without turning as they moved. As for the appearance of their faces: the four had the face of a human being, the face of a lion on the right side, the face of an ox on the left side, and the face of an eagle; such were their faces. Their wings were spread out above; each creature had two wings, each of which touched the wing of another, while two covered their bodies. Each moved straight ahead; wherever the spirit would go, they went, without turning as they went. In the middle of the living creatures there was something that looked like burning coals of fire, like torches moving to and fro among the living creatures; the fire was bright, and lightning issued from the fire. The living creatures darted to and fro, like a flash of lightning.”<sup>46</sup>

46 Ezekiel 1:4-14 (NRSV)

There is also the example of Jacob wrestling with the angel Peniel (Hebrew for “face of God”) from Genesis 32:24-30. The angel (referred to in the text as a “man,” but commonly believed to have been a messenger of God) strikes Jacob in the hip, putting it “out of joint,” as he tries to get away, showing the potential for angels to cause physical harm to people, a notion that would horrify many of the modern “angel card” devotees.

It does not, therefore, surprise me to see that Dee and Kelley's interactions with these entities were, at times, quite rough, stern, and demanding, depending on the angel in question. For example, the angels gave Dee a timeframe in which they were planning to deliver this material, and, at times, this timeframe was not met, such as when they were asked to memorize the Enochian letters, to which they failed to do (which received an angered response from the angels, which is somewhat understandable, especially considering Dee had prayed so fervently for this type of interaction). Another example is when Dee got up to check the door during one of the workings, much to the fury of the communicating angel.

The angels also clearly did not, for the most part, like Kelley (and were, as far as I am concerned, using him), and he returned the favour in kind (accusing them of being demons at times). I think it would be naive to think there would not be some "butting of heads" every so often (between both Dee and Kelley, and either of them and the angels).

There is also some suggestion of interference from demons (Dee would not have had the same kind of protective rites we have nowadays, and Kelley seems to be a little too open at times), some of whom impersonate the angels in order to mix up the transmission of the material and deceive the receivers, and if this is so, then it is also understandable that the angels were a bit "at combat," not to mention under pressure to get this material out, against all the above obstacles.

Then, of course, we have to accept the fact that Dee and Kelley were both "God-fearing" men, with a religious fervour and devotion that would be hard to match. They both prayed regularly, often using language that dismisses themselves as being lowly and unworthy, and they would not really have accepted angels who did not live up to this standard. While the angels are objective, their interaction with us is subjective, because they have to speak our language, and that language is not just our native tongue (and any other tongues we might speak), but our cultural upbringing, the symbolism we know, the preconceptions we have acquired, and so forth.

So, while it can be argued to the ends of the earth about whether or not these are angels, demons, or just some kind of vague entity ("Enochian Entities," or EEs, seems to be a popular name for them nowadays), I am of the firm belief, from personal experience and in-depth study of both the source and secondary texts, that they are indeed angelic beings, though, at times, some demons may be are "nicer" and easier to work with.

During one of my own workings, dated 15 February 2009, I received the following message about the Enochian angels' attitude towards us:

"We hath no need of pleasantries, aright or contrived. It enjoineeth Man to ease the passage of Truth with the buffer of miniature lies. We hark not, and delivereth the fire in fire, not rain to douse the flames, that Man might be comfortable."

This is pretty emphatic about their approach and makes it abundantly clear that they do not feel obligated to "play nice" or tone things down so that we can handle it better.

Benjamin Rowe's experience with the angels showed that they were equally cold-blooded with him:

"The entities who provided the basic information feel that people can not grow to spiritual adulthood without being exposed to adult hazards."<sup>47</sup>

Chic and Sandra Tabatha Cicero, the heads of the modern Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, agree that the entities are not always pleasant:

"Enochian angels and archangels are often said to be less tolerant of mistakes than their Hebrew counterparts. They do not suffer fools lightly, and it is sometimes said of the Enochian angels that 'they bite'. They are not to be invoked lightly on a whim or for stupid reasons."<sup>48</sup>

One of the main supporters of the argument that the angels were really demons is Meric Casaubon, who wrote a scathing preface to A True & Faithful Relation. In it he called Dee and Kelley's communications with the angels "a work of darkness" and suggests that Dee was duped, "his only (but great and dreadful) error being, that he mistook false lying Spirits for Angels of Light, the Devil of Hell (as we commonly term him) for the God of Heaven."<sup>49</sup>

If Dee was a pious Christian, then Casaubon was even moreso, with his opening remarks in his Preface addressed "unto thee (Christian Reader)." He writes at length about the evils of magic and what "sober Christian[s]" should do, so he can hardly be considered unbiased in his appraisal of the angelic workings.

Casaubon was particularly disparaging of Kelley, suggesting he may have been leading Dee on throughout the workings, partially due to the handsome salary he received for remaining in Dee's stay. Casaubon writes:

"Kelley ... had generally no other opinion of these Apparitions but that they were mere illusions of the Devil and evil Spirits, such as himself could command by his art when he listed, and was acquainted with, insomuch that we find him for this very cause forsaking, or desire to forake Dr. Dee, who was much troubled about it; and is forced in a place to Pawn his Soul unto him (to use his own words) that it was not so, and that they were good Spirits sent from God in great favour unto them."<sup>50</sup>

The suggestion that Dee was naive is, in my opinion, a little far-fetched, given how evidently intelligent and well-educated he was. It is certainly true that he was zealous in his desire to commune with the angels and may have been willing to agree to some questionable practices, such as the infamous wife-swap, but I honestly do not believe he could be duped so easily, either by Kelley or by illuding spirits, and I think the diaries speak for themselves as to the quality and origin of the material, as does the practical application of it by magicians both in times past and still today. There are also several examples of Dee challenging the angels and questioning the material when he found an inconsistency, suggesting he was not simply accepting everything at face value. Indeed, on several occasions he even challenges the apparently erroneous grammar in certain Latin statements made by the angels, a rather brazen thing to do if he believed that he was really talking to the messengers of God.

50 Ibid.

However, Dee clearly had faith a lot more times than he doubted. His fervent belief in the reality and veracity of the angels can best be summed up in a plea he made to Kelley that these entities were not imposters:

“I answered unto all these parcels and reasons, as time served declaring my perfect trust in God, that seeing I have many years desired, and prayed for wisdom (such as these Actions import) at his hands, and by such means as to his Divine Majesty seemeth best, that [he] would not either mislike my prayer, or abuse my Constant hope in his goodness and mercy: Therefore I concluded that I referred all to the merciful will of God: and doubted nothing at the length to be satisfied of my request, and prayer made unto him.”<sup>51</sup>

Another aspect to the suggestion that the Enochian entities are not angelic is modern magicians’ reading of the first two Books of Enoch. Both 1 Enoch and 3 Enoch include large sections detailing the Grigori, or Watchers, who are seen as fallen angels. This has led a number of people to suggest that the Enochian angels are also fallen.

The problem with this view is that it is very selective and there are numerous contradictory sources. 3 Enoch, for example, does not speak of these fallen angels at all, while the only canonical text to speak of the Watchers, the Book of Daniel, calls them “holy ones” who answer to the “Most High”—hardly what you would expect for supposedly fallen angels.

Indeed, the suggestion that some angels had rebelled against God is one of the reasons the first two Books of Enoch were not included in the canonical collection, as they were widely believed to have been blasphemous.

Even if we accept the idea that these angels rebelled against God as being true, it may not be as black and white as we first assume. For example, a Gnostic view might suggest that the God in question is not really God, but the false God known as the Demiurge, and that these angels are archons rebelling against the Demiurge, while still answering to the Most High, thereby explaining the contradictory teachings from the canonical and apocryphal sources.

The main counterargument to this, however, is that the name 'Enochian' was appended a long time after the transmissions had concluded, with the original name being Adamical or Angelic. Dee also did not have access to the Books of Enoch, and, of course, since there are so many contradictory sources on Enoch, like many other figures of biblical history, it is, in my opinion, questionable to cite a particular unrelated text as evidence to support one's views.

THE APOCALYPSE

Just as debatable as the nature of the entities is their "agenda," the purpose of the communications and the Enochian system. One of the most controversial suggestions is that they are here to bring about the Apocalypse, a belief that some use as further alleged evidence that they are really demons in disguise.

A major impetus for this "end of the world" argument comes from author Donald Tyson, who devoted an entire chapter to the apparent apocalyptic links in his book Enochian Magic for Beginners.<sup>52</sup>

Given the language used within the Calls, in particular, and in various other communications between the angels and Dee, it is understandable where Tyson got his views. However, we need to bear a few things in mind.

Firstly, the Book of Revelation was a pivotal text for guilt-filled and fear-ridden Christians like Dee and Kelley, both of whom were extremely devout and clearly fervent believers in the impending end of all things (which, half a millennium later, has so far failed to arrive). Harold Bloom, in his book Omens of Millennium, outlined how this obsession with impending doom carried throughout history, right into modern times, and we only need to look around to see and hear countless prophecies that “the end is nigh,” with one of the biggest examples of this century being the Mayan calendar and 21 December 2012.

Secondly, the countless magicians who have used the system throughout the years, including those who have gone through or are going through the Golden Dawn system, have not found anything particularly apocalyptic about the angels themselves, their mission, their language, or their message. In fact, many have, myself included, found that they have no intention, nor any ability, to bring about any kind of literal end of the world, as some believe to be the case.

Thirdly, the term “apocalypse” literally means “revelation” and was based on the title of St. John the Divine’s pivotal biblical text. The word “revelation” comes from “to reveal” and essentially means a “vision,” which are quite common with Enochian and other magical work. The fire and brimstone we associate with the word “apocalypse” might not necessarily be what is intended, and just like the Death card in the Tarot, which does not mean literal death, but rather transformation, the meaning may be a lot more metaphorical than it at first appears.

The Ciceros also refute the idea that Enochian magic is for bringing about the Apocalypse:

“If the founders of the Golden Dawn ever thought that apocalyptic magic was the real purpose of the Enochian system, then they certainly would not have included it in the Order’s curriculum—the Adepts would have never considered practicing it or teaching it to others. Likewise, modern-day Golden Dawn magicians do not subscribe to the apocalyptic theory.”<sup>53</sup>

However, it is easy to see why some people argue that Enochian magic is used for apocalyptic ends. Dee’s diaries contain numerous references to apocalyptic events, many reminiscent of the Book of Revelation. For example, on 13 January 1584, Uriel said the following:

53 Chic & Sandra Tabatha Cicero, The Essential Golden Dawn, p. 222.

“This month in the fourth year, shall Antichrist be known unto all the world. Then shall woe, woe, dwell amongst the Kings of the earth: For they shall be chosen all anew. Neither shall any that ruleth now, or reigneth as a King, or Governor of the dead people, live unto the end of the third year: But they shall all perish.”<sup>54</sup>

Uriel continued with other unpleasant imagery, like the rivers running red with the blood of men and beasts, but these unpleasant things are what Dee and others at his time would have heard about on a regular basis.

There are other parallels between the Enochian material and Revelation, such as the link between the 24 Seniors of the Enochian Great Table and the 24 Elders of St. John’s vision, not to mention the wording of the Calls, where, for example, it is said: “the work of man, and his pomp, let them be defaced: his buildings, let them become caves for the beasts of the field.”<sup>55</sup>

Times have changed, of course, and despite many predictions of the supposed end of the world, we are still here. Enochian magic was delivered around 500 years ago and has been practiced extensively for the last hundred years, at the very least, and yet the Apocalypse has never occurred. War, disease and poverty are still as rampant as they ever were, a sign that humanity still has some growing to do, not an omen that we are approaching the End Times.

DEE PURISM VERSUS THE GOLDEN DAWN

Enochian magic was primarily brought to modern magicians’ attention through the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn and its antecedents, which, via a somewhat broken history and lineage, still operate to this day.

The Golden Dawn’s approach to Enochian magic is, like other elements of its system, quite unique and heavily dependent on the idea of unifying material and finding correspondences between different occult principles and teachings. The problem with this approach, however, is that the Order had to change a few things to make it fit.

Those who employ grimoiric traditions to the letter, such as in the works of the Key of Solomon or the Book of Abramelin, find the idea of not following the exact instructions given to Dee as completely abhorrent. This is understandable, as without the source material the system would not exist, and what is the point in using a system if you are not going to do it properly?

While this is a perfectly valid criticism, there is much value in the Golden Dawn's approach and teachings, particularly since the angels did not provide Dee with much by way of practical instructions. The Golden Dawn helped develop the system in a way that made it usable, understandable and incredibly effective. Having used the Dee and Golden Dawn approaches I can vouch for the efficacy of both.

There is, however, a major misconception about the Golden Dawn's treatment of the material, which is that it never encompassed any of the Heptarchic material. The Ciceros address this point quite well:

"The Golden Dawn's knowledge of Enochian is not limited to what MacGregor Mathers compiled a century ago, or the Enochian documents included in the Zelator Adeptus Minor curriculum as printed in Regardie's The Golden Dawn. From published sources such as Regardie, some authors have wrongly assumed that Golden Dawn magicians only work with the Watchtower Tablets and the Enochian Calls—they presuppose that other aspects of Dee's system, such as de Heptarchia Mystica, Tabula Sancta, the skrying crystal, the Golden Talisman, etc. have no place in the Golden Dawn system of magic. This is incorrect. Perhaps one of the greatest tributes to the Enochian system is the position of high respect afforded to it by the Golden Dawn—it is considered to be the apex and crowning jewel of the entire system."<sup>56</sup>

While the original members of the Golden Dawn may have had a limited knowledge of Enochian magic, primarily due to the lack of published material on the subject, there is evidence that at least some of the adepts, such as Hugh Campbell, of a later Golden Dawn temple called Whare Ra explored it in greater detail. Indeed, even Regardie worked with the system in more depth, some of which made it into The Complete Golden Dawn System of Magic, such as a more detailed analysis of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth.

The core framework of the Golden Dawn's Enochian system can be found in the Cipher Manuscript, which is widely believed to have been written by Kenneth Mackenzie. In addition to this, certain other correspondences, such as pairing the Enochian letters with the geomantic figures, can be found in other texts like Dr. Rudd's A Treatise on Angel Magic from the Seventeenth Century CE.<sup>57</sup>

Another element of the dismissal of Golden Dawn Enochian magic is the fact that it made a number of errors with the system. However, it is easy to criticise magicians who lived and practiced magic over 100 years ago in a time when such material was not readily available. Modern students have the luxury of a plethora of books on Enochian, both in print and online, including multiple editions of the original Dee diaries.

There is no doubt that the Golden Dawn got things wrong at times with Enochian, and that is something that modern Golden Dawn magicians need to address. One particular pet peeve of mine is the atrocious spelling of Enochian names, based on a butchered pronunciation guide stolen from a bastardised version of Hebrew. For example, you can expect to see EMOR DIAL HECTEGA for MOR DIAL HCTGA. While this might help some people pronounce it, it has more commonly resulted in people thinking that this is the correct spelling. It also loses out on the division of 3 letters, 4 letters, and 5 letters that are found in the Three Holy Names of God.

Another major error employed by the Golden Dawn is the spelling of ICZHIHAL as IC ZOD HEH CHAL. Obviously this is yet another pronunciation aid gone wrong, but the real issue is that this name is supposed to be ICZHHCAL, which is the name from the Original Great Table. This might not seem like a problem at first, but the Golden Dawn uses the Reformed Great Table, which employs the name ICZHIHAL, yet somewhere along the way this name from the Original Great Table crept into use and no one seemed to spot the error, suggesting a rather unfortunate unfamiliarity with the Great Table itself.

57 Adam McLean, ed. A Treatise on Angel Magic, p. 32.

That brings us onto the use of one letter or another. In the Golden Dawn system the King for the ORO/Air Tablet is called BATAIVAH, employing the two central letters of the tablet, 'A' and 'H'. However, Dee was told to employ only one of these letters, which represent Mercy and Severity respectively.

“Put the A or the h that stand in the Center, to it: Thou hast Bataiva or Bataivh. You must take but one of them, either the A or the h. A, comiter, and h in extremis Judiciis.”<sup>58</sup>

Comiter is Latin for “kind,” “courteous,” “merciful,” and so forth, while in extremis Judiciis is Latin for “in extreme judgement” (i.e. severity). So if Dee was told to use one or the other and the Golden Dawn used both, it seems like an error, and it seems like Golden Dawn magicians were not aware of this rule.

Except, they really were. In William Wynn Westcott’s Clavicula Tabularum Enoch, or Book H, he explicitly says “put the letter ‘A’ or ‘H’” when constructing the name of the King, offering both the BATAIVA and BATAIVH variants. He does not explain, however, why the Order decided to employ both, but it is very clear that it was a deliberate decision, not a mistake from a misreading of Dee’s diaries.

What we know about the choice of letters is that there is an obvious correlation to the Qabalah, with the Sephiroth of Chesed and Geburah representing Mercy and Severity respectively, which the Golden Dawn undoubtedly picked up on. In the Golden Dawn system balance is the key to everything. For example, in the Neophyte initiation ceremony the new initiate is told:

“Remember the Mystery that you have received, and that the Secret of Wisdom can be discerned only from the place of Balanced Powers. Study well the Great Arcanum of the proper equilibrium of Severity and Mercy, for either unbalanced is not good. Unbalanced Severity is cruelty and oppression; unbalanced Mercy is but weakness and would permit Evil to exist unchecked, thus making itself, as it were, the accomplice of Evil.”<sup>59</sup>

58 A True & Faithful Relation, p. 178.

Therefore, it is not surprising that a group that emphasised leaning to neither extreme did not like the thought of using the letter for just the merciful or just the severe form of the King. Using both letters provides an element of balance, forming a single eight-letter name, where the King would have access to both his merciful and severe aspects, allowing a multi-purpose entity, suitable for a wider range of workings, and more in line with the basic tenets of the Golden Dawn system.

THE NUMBER SEVEN

The number seven is of special importance in the Enochian system, cropping up frequently and consistently throughout the communications.

The most noticeable instances of the number seven feature in the Heptarchic material, with the word heptarchy itself meaning “seven rulers.” There are Seven Ensigns of Creation, the 49 Bonorum (made up of 7x7), the 49 Tables of 7x7 squares in the Liber Loagaeth, and, of course, the many seven-fold figures and accompanying names on the Sigillum Dei Aemeth.

The number also features in other parts of the system. For example, the 21 Enochian letters are divided into three groups of seven, and there are six seniors led by a king, totalling seven.

The occult value of this number is not limited to Enochian, however, as it plays a vital role in Qabalistic and general magical tradition. The link with the seven traditional planets is obvious, but there are many other biblical links, the most important of which is the Seven Days of Creation, which symbolises completion.

The Bahir, a key Qabalistic text, links the seven Double Letters of the Hebrew alphabet with the “seven universes, seven firmaments, seven lands, seven seas, seven rivers, seven deserts, seven days, seven weeks, seven years, seven sabbaticals, seven jubilees, and the Holy Palace. Therefore, He made sevens beloved under all the heavens.”<sup>60</sup>

59 Israel Regardie, The Golden Dawn, pp. 129-130.

In fact, the number seven is so vital to Jewish tradition that its importance features in the very first line of the Torah, which contains exactly seven words. This might seem coincidental to some, but Qabalistic tradition largely rests around the mystical understanding of such seemingly strange occurrences throughout the Torah and related Jewish texts. In fact, key Qabalistic sourceworks, such as the Sepher Yetzirah, the Bahir, and the Zohar are essentially an analysis of the Torah through mystical eyes.

If that were not enough, the Jewish New Year (Rosh Hashanah) is celebrated in the seventh month (Tishri) of the Hebrew calendar and the Menorah has seven branches, not to mention the dozens of instances of the number throughout the Torah.

The importance of the Shavu'oth, the culmination of seven weeks after Passover, and the 50 Gates of Binah (which is  $7 \times 7 = 49$ , with the final one remaining closed) in relation to Enochian are discussed in detail in Aaron Leitch's The Angelical Language: Volume 1.<sup>61</sup>

The seven kingdoms of Great Britain may also have had some impact on the significance of this number, given that Dee would have been aware of the use of the term heptarchy for these. His interest in politics and desire to influence the world around him may have extended to these seven regions of the land he was born in.

When Raphael delivered the 21 letters to Dee and Kelley and divided them into three groups of seven, he said: “The number, O most perfect, One and Threefold,” which shows how highly the angels viewed the number seven.

Michael explained part of the mystery of this number as follows:

“Seven comprehendeth the Secrets of Heaven and Earth. Seven knitteth man's soul and body together (3 in soul, and 4 in body). In 7 thou shalt find the unity. In 7 thou shalt find the Trinity. In 7 thou shalt find the Son, and the proportion of the Holy Ghost. O God, O God, O God, Thy Name (O God) be praised ever, from thy 7 Thrones, from thy 7 Trumpets, and from thy 7 Angels. [...] In 7, God wrought all things. Note. In 7, and by 7, must you work all things. O Seven times Seven, Verity, virtue and Majesty.”<sup>62</sup>

THE MOON

Just as the number seven is of importance to Enochian magic, so too is the Moon, which seems to take precedence over the other six planets within the system, so much so that it has been suggested that these angels might actually be lunar entities.

In the very centre of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, which contains the names of many of the highest ranking angels, lies the word Levanael, the angel relating to Levanah, which is the Hebrew name for the Moon. None of the other planets are afforded this central place on the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, which hints at the importance of the Moon.

The significance of the moon is also stressed in the Sabbath day that the angels instructed Dee and Kelley to follow. On two separate occasions, once while delivering Liber Loagaeth and again when delivering the Calls, they are told that Monday is the seventh day and that they should “abstain from all things that live upon the Earth”<sup>63</sup> on these days. This day was of such particular importance that the angels suggested they should be used above other days for communications with them.

The planet associated with Monday is, of course, the Moon. This planet is related with the astral world and psychic abilities, and it may have had some significance in relation to Kelley’s profession as a seer and the fact that much of what transpired between Dee, Kelley and the angels was visionary in nature.

In the OSDL we observed Monday as a special day for connecting with the egregore of the group, a practice that is employed in some other groups, due to the day’s relation with Yesod and the astral world, where the magical egregore has form.

The Moon was also listed last in an ordering of the planets given by the angels. The order is Venus, Sol, Mars, Jupiter, Mercury, Saturn, and Luna. This order does not match the traditional ones employed by Hermeticists and Qabalists, nor the order of proximity to the Earth or the Sun. It is not clear if this is an arbitrary list or if there is some significance in how the planets are ordered.

GNOTICISM IN ENOCHIAN MAGIC

The communications between Dee, Kelley and the angels were highly flavoured in theological material that was overtly Christian, but also subtly Gnostic in form, a point that many magicians and scholars of Enochian magic have noticed over the years, including Geoffrey James, Donald Tyson and Aaron Leitch.<sup>64</sup>

A number of scholars argue over the definition of Gnosticism, with some, like Michael Allen Williams, suggesting that the word is somewhat of a misnomer.<sup>65</sup> For this book I will be employing Gnosticism as a blanket term for a series of sects and traditions from before and after the time of Christ, with many of the more popular forms of it, such as the Valentinian school, espousing esoteric Christian doctrine. However, other groups made use of Jewish, Neoplatonic, and even Pagan symbolism and teachings, some independently and others combined. While the various Gnostic groups had very different views and practices, they usually shared a common appreciation of gnosis, the experiential knowledge of the divine.

One of the most striking sessions recorded in Dee's diaries was on June 8 1584, which revealed some shocking doctrines that were largely Gnostic in persuasion. The session on that day proved generally fruitless, as there was no apparition in the stone, but Kelley talked about his conversion to God and a series of doctrines that "wicked spirits" transmitted to him:

".....That Jesus was not God.

.....That no prayer ought to be made to Jesus.

64 See The Enochian Evocation of Dr. John Dee by Geoffrey James, Enochian Magic for Beginners by Donald Tyson and The Angelical Language, Volume I by Aaron Leitch.

65 See Rethinking "Gnosticism": An Argument for Dismantling a Dubious Category by Michael Allen Williams.

.....That there is no sin.

.....That mans soul doth go from one body, to another child's quickening on animation.

.....That as many men and women as are now, have always been: That is, so many human bodies, and human souls, neither more nor less, as are now, have always been.

.....That the generation of mankind from Adam and Eve, is not an History, but a writing which hath an other sense.

.....No Holy Ghost they acknowledged.

.....They would not suffer him to pray to Jesus Christ; but would rebuke him, saying, that he robbed God of his honour, etc.”<sup>66</sup>

These doctrines were extremely radical for the time and likely shook Dee's Protestant faith, but it seems that he was able to maintain his world view by dismissing it all as “blasphemous” and a “manifold horrible doctrine.” While Dee was not exactly the most orthodox of Christians, he was very devout, and the suggestion that many of the teachings he believed in were not true likely came as a big surprise, one that he would not readily accept.

The working from this date is not very clear about whether or not these views were espoused by the Enochian angels or were given to Kelley at some time before he came into contact with Dee. At first it seems like it might have happened at some earlier time when Kelley was working with evil spirits, but it is important to remember that Kelley regularly dismissed the Enochian entities as being demons, and this may have been one of those times.

Another important point is that for several sessions after this one Kelley was unable to see anything in the shewstone, which left Dee wondering what they might have done wrong. Dee gives one of the potential reasons for the no show as a caveat from one angel, who tells them: "This Action shall never come to pass, until there be no remembrance of wickedness, or Hell left amongst you."<sup>67</sup> Dee appears to have viewed this as a command to rid themselves of sin, but it may also have been a command to rid themselves of the thought of sin – i.e. to no longer worry about such orthodox views, which is particularly apt if they put forward the doctrine that there is no sin. It may have been that Dee and Kelley's refusal to accept this supposedly sinful doctrine that resulted in the angels being unwilling to communicate with them for a time.

Regardless of where these teachings came from, there are many parallels between them and the teachings of Gnostic groups and texts. For example, the idea that Jesus was not God, that they should not pray to Jesus, and that there was no Holy Ghost could be seen in terms of the Gnostic view that Jesus is an Aeon, an emanation of God, but not God himself, and that, indeed, we all can be anointed like Jesus to free ourselves from the shackles of the world.

The dismissal of the Holy Ghost is harder to reconcile with Enochian teachings, which attribute a line of the Great Table to the Spiritus Sanctus, Latin for "Holy Spirit." It may have been that the entities were dismissing the Christian view of the Holy Spirit (noting the use of the term "Holy Ghost" instead) without actually dismissing the Holy Spirit altogether. In Gnosticism the Holy Spirit can be likened to Sophia, the feminine aspect of God that is often paired with Jesus and can thus be seen as equally part of, or an emanation of, God, but not God in totality.

The suggestion that there is no sin is an equally devastating revelation to a Christian world view. However, this was not alien to Gnostic theology, with some Gnostics readily rejecting the idea of original sin, because the God of the Old Testament was often seen as the Demiurge, a fake god, and the tasting of the fruit from the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil was often not seen as an evil act, but as the first awakening of gnosis in humanity, one that was punished by the jealous Demiurge. A popular Gnostic view is that we all have a spark of the divine within us and that we are trapped here, the result of the evil or ignorance of a false god rather than the greed and selfishness of humanity.

67 Ibid., p. 166.

One of the biggest revelations was that “man’s soul doth go from one body, to another child’s quickening on animation,” or, in other words, reincarnation. This was a very radical view for the time, but not so for Gnostics, who widely believed in reincarnation. For example, one Basilidean text reads:

“Indeed, the apostle has said, ‘I was once alive apart from the law’, at some point or other. That is (Paul means), before I came into this body, I lived in the kind of body that is not subject to the law: the body of a domestic animal or a bird.”<sup>68</sup>

The Secret Book of John tells us:

“That soul will be made to follow the guidance of another in which the spirit of life resides, and by that other it attains salvation, and so is not cast into flesh again.”<sup>69</sup>

Another Gnostic text, The Book of Thomas the Contender, states:

“For, the visible parts of humankind will perish, since the instrument of their flesh is going to perish. And when it is dispersed it will come to reside among visible things, among things that are seen. And next, because of the love of the faith, which they formerly had, the fire that can be seen torments them. They will be regathered to the visible realm.”<sup>70</sup>

The Gnostic viewpoint was generally similar to the Buddhist idea of samsara, which is the cycle of rebirth which leads to suffering in the mortal world. The Gnostic would attempt to free him or herself from this cycle and return to the Pleroma, the Fullness of God.

Tying in with this belief in reincarnation was the suggestion to Kelley that there are the exact number of people now as there has always been, which makes sense with a literal belief in reincarnation, but does not necessarily hold up to inspection with the facts about population growth around the world, with growth from several hundred million people in the Middle Ages to several billion today.

The idea that the tale of the generation from Adam and Eve is “a writing which hath an other sense,” not a literal history, is strongly Gnostic, as many of the Gnostics viewed scripture as an allegory, not historical fact. One very clear example of this is Ptolemy's Epistle to Flora, which reads:

“Finally, the third subdivision is the symbolic and allegorical part, which is after the image of the superior, spiritual realm: the saviour changed (the referent of) this part from the perceptible, visible level to the spiritual, invisible one.”<sup>71</sup>

Another example is Herakleon's commentary on the Gospel of John,<sup>72</sup> which is filled with references to one thing signifying something else and once again the mention of “another sense.” Herakelon's exegesis was one of the first in existence, and also one that bore the symbolic meaning of the gospel into consideration more than many others.

Even if we accept the revelations on June 8 1584 as not being the work of the Enochian angels, there are many other parallels between Enochian magic and Gnosticism in the magical system itself.

One of the strongest links can be found in the view of the cosmology of the universe. In Gnosticism there is usually a singular divine source, followed by successive emanations of the divine called Aeons, which, depending on the source text, tended to be viewed as places, beings or states of consciousness. A very strong parallel can be found in the 30 Enochian Aethyrs, which could easily be linked with the 30 Aeons of the Valentinian tradition. Other Gnostic traditions had a different number of Aeons, but the principle was essentially the same.

The Qabalistic tradition of the Sephiroth on the Tree of Life, which Dee was well versed in, is also considerably Gnostic in style, having been partially influenced by it, particularly via the Lurianic tradition, a popular Qabalistic school based on the teachings of Renaissance rabbi Isaac Luria, with many of his concepts still used by Qabalists and Hermeticists today.

71 Ibid., p. 311.

72 Willis Barnstone & Marvin Meyer, ed., The Gnostic Bible, pp. 307-24.

The parallel is even stronger in the Pistis Sophia, an important Gnostic document that was for a long time the best source of Gnostic teaching, until the discovery of the Nag Hammadi collection in 1945. It reads:

“And moreover Jesus had not told his disciples the total expansion of all the regions of the great Invisible and of the three triple-powers and of the four-and-twenty invisibles, and all their regions and their aeons and their orders, how they are extended—those which are the emanations of the great Invisible—and their ungenerated and their self-generated and their generated and their light-givers and their unpaired and their rulers and their authorities and their lords and their archangels and their angels and their decans and their servitors and all the houses of their spheres and all the orders of every one of them.”<sup>73</sup>

Here we see mention of the Aeons, which can be likened to the Aethyrs. Ruling over them there appear to be “three triple-powers,” which is similar to the three governors which rule each Aethyr (barring the last one, TEX, which has four). The mention of “four-and-twenty invisibles” could have some relationship with the 24 Seniors of the Enochian system. The various ranks of angels mentioned could be seen in relation to the numerous ranks of angels on the Great Table.

Later in the text there are references to various gates that are passed through, which is very similar to the many gates mentioned in relation to Liber Loagaeth and the Enochian Calls. This passage also mentions the number 49, which is of pivotal importance to Enochian magic, both in terms of the 49x49 tables of Liber Loagaeth, the 49 Bonorum, the 49 Calls, and many other references to this important number within the system:

“And I left that region behind me and ascended to the first sphere, shining most exceedingly, forty-and-nine-times more brightly than I had shone in the firmament. It came to pass then, when I had reached the gate of the first sphere, that its gates were shaken and opened of themselves at once.”<sup>74</sup>

Some magicians and scholars have suggested that the God mentioned in the Enochian Calls is actually the Demiurge. There is some support for this in the Calls themselves. For example, the First Call mentions Iad Balt, which translates as “the God of Justice.” It is hard not to see the resemblance of this to Ialdabaoth, one name attributed by Gnostics to the Demiurge. The link between the Demiurge and the harsh god of the Old Testament is also apparent in the translation, as Yahweh was very much a “God of Justice,” a very different divine being to the loving God exemplified in the New Testament, something that many ancient Gnostics picked up on.

While some may dismiss the similarity of these words as no more than mere coincidence, let me point out several other similarities between some Enochian and Greek and Latin words. The most obvious examples are the Enochian words Christeos (“let there be”), Iehusoz (“mercy”), Luciftias (“brightness”) and Babalon (“harlot”), which are strikingly similar to the Greek Christos (“the anointed”), Latin Iehus (“Jesus”), Latin Lucifer (“light-bearer”) and the Whore of Babylon mentioned in the Book of the Revelation of St. John the Divine. It is clear that these Enochian words share a relationship with other common words in the Christian lexicon, and it is just as likely that Iad Balt does the same within a Gnostic Christian framework.

Enochian scholar Geoffrey James argues that Kelley might have been consciously or unconsciously lifting material from other sources, including Gnostic works:

“If Kelly was plagiarizing some as-yet undiscovered manuscript, it may have been Gnostic in origin, as significant parallels exist between the Angelical keys and certain Gnostic texts.”<sup>75</sup>

James points out a surprising similarity between a common phrase

74 Ibid., p. 16.

75 Geoffrey James, The Enochian Evocation of Dr. John Dee, p. xix.

in the Enochian Calls, Zacar Ca Od Zamran<sup>76</sup> (“Move, therefore, and show yourselves”), and an invocation in the Pistis Sophia, which reads Zama Zama Ozza Rachama Ozai.<sup>77</sup> There is no known translation for these words, which are most likely a form of glossolalia. The Pistis Sophia describes them as “five words of those from the height,”<sup>78</sup> echoing the frequent mention of “the Highest” in the Enochian Calls.

From the wording used in the Calls, the being who is speaking is clearly the Creator, and yet the end of the First Call reads: “I am the servant of the same your God, the true worshipper of the Highest.” The Call appears to start in the point of view of the Creator and shift to the point of view of the magician towards the end, but it could also be possible that the Creator, or Demiurge from a Gnostic perspective, is still speaking here and is actually acknowledging that there is a higher power than him.

The number seven is particularly important in both Enochian magic and Gnosticism. Many Gnostic texts mention the number frequently. For example, the Pistis Sophia tells us that we are to forgive sins “not only unto seven times, but unto seventy times seven.”<sup>79</sup> A Mandaean text called The Soul’s Deliverance talks about seven enemies, which are also mentioned in several other Gnostic texts, including Poimandres, where the “seven rulers” (or archons) are seen as the seven planets. The Gospel of Mary tells of the ascent of the soul past “the seven powers of wrath,”<sup>80</sup> representing forces of bondage. This is very similar to the attribution of the planets to many seven-fold entities within the Enochian system, though these are not necessarily seen in as negative a light as that of many Gnostic texts.

Perhaps one of the most striking parallels can be found in a passage in Dee’s diaries about the Daughter of Fortitude, which is very similar to the Gnostic text Thunder, Perfect Mind. To best illustrate their similarities I will quote first the full text of Dee:

76 James gives this as Zacar Ca Zamran, but this is an error. It is given as Zacar Ca Od Zamran in the First and Eleventh Calls and Zacar Od Zamran in other Calls, among several other variations.

79 Ibid., p. 222.

80 Willis Barnstone & Marvin Meyer, ed., The Gnostic Bible, p. 480.

"I am the Daughter of Fortitude, and ravished every hour, from my youth. For behold, I am Understanding, and science dwelleth in me; and the heavens oppress me, they covet and desire me with infinite appetite: few or none that are earthly have embraced me, for I am shadowed with the Circle of the Stone,<sup>81</sup> and covered with the morning Clouds. My feet are swifter than the winds, and my hands are sweeter than the morning dew. My garments are from the beginning, and my dwelling place is in myself. The Lion knoweth not where I walk, neither do the beasts of the field understand me. I am deflowered, and yet a virgin: I sanctify, and am not sanctified. Happy is he that embraceth me: for in the night season I am sweet, and in the day full of pleasure. My company is a harmony of many Cymbals, and my lips sweeter than health itself. I am a harlot for such as ravish me, and a virgin with such as know me not: For lo, I am loved of many, and I am a lover to many; and as many as come unto me as they should do, have entertainment. Purge your streets, O ye sons of men, and wash your houses clean; make yourselves holy, and put on righteousness. Cast out your old strumpets, and burn their clothes; abstain from the company of other women that are defiled, that are slut-tish, and not so handsome and beautiful as I, and then will I come and dwell amongst you: and behold, I will bring forth children unto you, and they shall be the Sons of Comfort. I will open my garments, and stand naked before you, that your love may be more enflamed toward me."<sup>82</sup>

Compare this to a short excerpt from Thunder, Perfect Mind:

"For I am the first and the last. I am the honored one and the scorned one. I am the whore and the holy one. I am the wife and the virgin. I am the mother and the daughter. I am the members of my mother. I am the barren one and many are her sons."

81 Enochian scholar Clay Holden suggests "Stone" should be "Sun."

82 A True & Faithful Relation, Actio Tertia, p. 25.

The parallel is very strong. Both texts are from the point of view of a feminine divine power. Both have a strong voice, both talk of an origin in the beginning, and both have multiple paradoxical statements. Dee's text speaks of being a "harlot ... and a virgin," while Thunder, Perfect Mind speaks of being "the whore ... and the virgin." There is even the mention of many sons or children in both texts. The full Gnostic text makes many more paradoxical statements, all of which support the idea of this entity being a vehicle of passion.

A further correspondence can be seen in the infamous wife-swapping incident between Dee and Kelley, which Donald Tyson suggested was a form of Gnostic union:

"There is a great deal of Gnostic imagery in the Enochian communications and Keys, and one of the features of Gnosticism is the use of sexual energy to bring about a union with the divine in order to achieve a heightened spiritual awareness and an enlightened mind."<sup>83</sup>

The Valentinian tradition might offer some support to this argument with its most important sacrament, that of the Bridal Chamber. This ritual was intended as a spiritual marriage of the initiate with their angel, though it is not clear if there was ever an actual ritual enactment of this concept. There also does not appear to be any evidence to suggest that two people took part in this ceremony, or that sex was involved, but some of the language used in Gnostic texts suggests the involvement of both a male and female, such as a passage in The Gospel of Philip, which reads: "a woman joins with her husband in the bridal chamber."<sup>84</sup>

Of course, it does not say that a woman joins with someone else's husband, as Dee and Kelley's wives eventually did, and even if it did say this, the wife-swapping would be a very literal enactment of what scholars generally believe to be a more symbolic sacrament within Gnostic tradition. Tyson suggests that the angels wanted Dee and Kelley to join in a mystical union, but that "since neither Dee nor Kelley would ever have agreed to a homosexual union to bind themselves together spiritually with the occult energies of sex, the angels chose the next best option and used the wives as surrogates.”<sup>85</sup>

84 Bentley Layton, The Gnostic Scriptures, p. 343.

The Bridal Chamber also shares some interesting links with the Hermetic concept of the Knowledge and Conversation of the Holy Guardian Angel, made famous by the Fifteenth Century grimoire The Book of Abramelin, which Dee may have had access to. Dee would also have likely been aware of the Qabalistic concept of tiqqun, the restoration of the world, which was often exemplified in the union of the Sephiroth of Malkuth and Tiphareth, which were traditionally called the Kallah (Bride) and the Chatan (Bridegroom) respectively.

Another link between Enochian magic and Gnosticism can be found in the Enochian angels’ view of Wisdom. A female entity called Galvah relates her name to the Latin Finis (“the end”), but also speaks of the Wisdom associated with her and how such is always a feminine thing:

“I am Finis, I am a beam of that Wisdom which is the end of man’s excellency. These also that are called [Daughters and Daughters of Daughters] are all comprehended in me, and do attend upon True Wisdom; which if Trithemius<sup>86</sup> mark, he shall perceive that true Wisdom is always painted with a woman’s garment; For than the pureness of a Virgin, Nothing is more commendable.”<sup>87</sup>

The Gnostics had a special admiration for the feminine aspect of the Divine, which they called Sophia, Greek for “wisdom,” who fell from her original position and became trapped in the physical world. This is echoed in a vision of Galvah trapped in a field surrounded by a hedge, which can be seen to be symbolic of the world. Eventually Galvah breaks free with the help of another angel.

Galah is widely believed to be the mother of the angels in Enochian tradition, with several references to her in this role. Interestingly, a passage from the Valentinian text The Gospel of Philip reads:

85 Donald Tyson, Enochian Magic For Beginners, p. 34.

86 Johannes Trithemius, cryptographer and occultist. Galvah criticises him for his derision of women as containing “filthiness.” See later for more on this. Dee’s spelling omits the H in Trithemius’ name.

87 A True & Faithful Relation, p. 13.

“Wisdom, who is called ‘barren,’ is mother of the angels.”<sup>88</sup>

Aaron Leitch argues that Galvah is not only Sophia, but that her mystical union with the Christos is symbolised in the Latin version of her name:

“It is my impression that the name Galvah is intended to represent the biblical Omega (The End), as we see it in the first and last chapters of Revelation: ‘I Am the Alpha, and the Omega. The First, and the Last.’ Therefore, Sophia—as Galvah/Omega—represents the passive and feminine aspects of Creation. Her bridegroom—the Christos/Alpha—represents the active and masculine aspect. (In Gnosticism, the union of Sophia and the Christos represents the Holy Spirit, symbolized by the white dove.)”<sup>89</sup>

Another interesting tidbit is that the Qabalistic equivalent of Sophia is the Sephirah Binah, which translates as “understanding,” a title which means little until we look at the earlier passage from the Daughter of Fortitude, where she describes herself as “Understanding.” It is also intriguing to note that the pair of Binah is Chokmah, which means “wisdom,” the traditional translation of Sophia, and both Sephiroth are seen as the divine feminine and divine masculine respectively. While the genders are reversed, this suggests a further link to the syzygies of the Gnostic Aeons.

The Gnostics valued women a lot more than many other groups at the time, and certainly more than the orthodox Christian Church. Not only was woman seen as the equal of man, possessing the same spark of the divine, and not only was the divine feminine recognised, heralded, and worshipped, but many women also took prominent roles within Gnostic groups, including positions as priests, a practice that was strongly criticised by the infamous heresiologist Irenaeus, who, in his dismissal of Gnostic beliefs and practices, ended up preserving a lot of them to this day.

Indeed, there was even a Gnostic gospel attributed to a women, The Gospel of Mary, widely believed to be Mary Magdalene, which tells of how Jesus favoured Mary above the other disciples, giving her secret knowledge that they were not privy to. The text shows the negative attitude that others at the time had towards women:

88 Willis Barnstone & Marvin Meyer, ed., The Gnostic Bible, p. 273.

89 Aaron Leitch, The Angelical Language Volume I, p. 67.

“[Peter] asked the others about the saviour, ‘Did he really speak to a woman secretly, without our knowledge, and not openly? Are we to turn and all listen to her? Did he prefer her to us?’”<sup>90</sup>

Levi, symbolic of the Gnostics themselves, comes to Mary’s defence, saying:

“Peter, you are always angry. Now I see you contending against this woman as if against an adversary. If the savior made her worthy, who are you to reject her? Surely the savior knows her very well. That is why he loved her more than us. We should be ashamed and put on the perfect person and be with him as he commanded us, and we should preach the gospel, without making any rule or law other than what the savior said.”<sup>91</sup>

The Gospel of Philip also supports this view of Mary as the most favoured:

“The companion is Mary of Magdala. Jesus loved her more than his students.”<sup>92</sup>

Galvah tells Dee about the equality of women in a lengthy dismissal of Trithemius’ view that no angel ever took the form of a woman, which caused Dee to doubt the veracity of Galvah. In her response she tells of the nature of angels and women in general:

“Angels (I say) of themselves, neither are man nor woman; Therefore they do take forms not according to any proportion in imagination, but according to the discreet and applicable will both of him, and of the thing wherein they are Administrators: For we all are Spirits ministring the will of God. [...] But if Tritemius can say, That woman also hath not the Spirit of God, being formed and fashioned of the self same matter, notwithstanding in a contrary proportion by a degree; if Tritemius can separate the dignity of the Soul of woman from the excellency of man but according to the form of the matter, then might his Argument be good: But because that in man and woman there is proportion, preparation, of sanctification in eternity; Therefore may those that are the eternal Ministers of God in proportion to Santification take unto them the bodies of them both. I mean in respect of the Form; For as in both you read Homo, so in both you find one and the self same dignity in internal matter all one. But Tritemius spake in respect of the filthiness (which indeed is no filthiness) wherewith all women are stained; and by reasons from the natural Philosophers: as a man tasting more of nature indeed then of him which is the Workman or a supernatural Master.”<sup>93</sup>

91 Ibid.

92 Ibid., p. 273.

Gnosticism was heavily influenced by a myriad of other traditions, including Neoplatonism, which, in turn, influenced other traditions like the Qabalah, which the magical explorations of the Renaissance period were intrinsically dependent on. These may have subtly influenced the form in which the angelic transmissions were delivered to Dee, or the angels themselves may explicitly express a Gnostic viewpoint of the world. Regardless of how one sees it, or even if one argues that Kelley deliberately employed Gnostic material in a constructed magical system, it is hard not to notice the parallels between Enochian magic and the traditions and teachings of the ancient Gnostics.

THE ENOCHIAN LANGUAGE

The Enochian language is the centrepiece of the entire system. It is, according to the angels, the angelic tongue that was spoken by Adam in Eden, used to name all things, making it one of the biggest revelations to humanity.

The reception of this language is largely based around the Enochian Calls, which are large poetic invocations that were initially delivered backwards, since the angels believed that the words were too powerful to be received as spoken.

The language itself may appear very strange, as there are often lots of consonants next to each other, making words seemingly unpronounceable, but this has been worked around with various approaches, some of which will be explained later in this chapter.

Enochian is supposed to be a kind of proto-Hebrew, the forerunner of the language that many within Abrahamic religious traditions consider as the “Holy Tongue.” It is therefore afforded an ever higher level of spiritual significance and shares some similarities with Hebrew, such as its reliance on consonants (though Enochian appears to have vowels, which Hebrew does not have) and the direction it is written, from right to left.

There are clear links between this tongue and other languages, such as Latin and Greek, as explored in the section on Gnosticism in the previous chapter. Benjamin Rowe commented on the similarities and differences to English:

“The language is similar to English in its positioning of subjects, verbs and objects. It is unlike English in its lack of separate articles, possessives, and prepositions.”<sup>94</sup>

As mentioned in Chapter II, the Enochian language was not called Enochian by Dee or the angels, but rather the “angelic language” or “celestial speech.” The countless references to Enoch, however, led modern magicians to, quite understandably, adopt this name.

As befitting such a holy language, the angels wanted it to be treated with solemnity. Ilemese told Dee that the letters should be written carefully:

“These letters represent the Creation of man: and therefore they must be in proportion. They represent the Workmanship wherewithal the soul of man was made like unto his Creator.”<sup>95</sup>

This approach would not be dissimilar to that taken by many Jews with the Hebrew language, with many strict requirements made of a Sopher, a scribe who writes a copy of the Torah. In fact, Sopherim must abide by thousands of laws in writing a “kosher” Torah scroll, which is luckily not a requirement the angels asked of Dee when writing Enochian. A certain level of sanctity is essential, however, and nothing should be written in Enochian without an express purpose.

To understand the power of the language we need only look to Raphael’s words:

“The waters shall stand, if they hear their own speech. The heavens shall move, and show themselves, when they know their thunder. Hell shall tremble, when they know what is spoken to them.”<sup>96</sup>

94 Benjamin Rowe, Enochian Magick Reference, p. 17.

THE ENOCHIAN ALPHABET

The Enochian alphabet was delivered by Raphael on 26 March 1583, as part of the first revelations of the pages of Liber Logaeth. It was delivered again, in a more stylised form, on 6 May of the same year. Dee documents that Kelley had trouble imitating the letters he was being shown, so the angels made the letters appear on the paper before him in light yellow, which he then traced over in black.

He was then told that they began from right to left, suggesting that this is how it should be written, like Hebrew. This makes sense if Hebrew is supposed to be a corrupted version of Enochian.

In Dee’s diaries there are several versions of the letters, including a stylised script form and a less impressive shorthand form, which both Dee and Kelley used. The founders of the Golden Dawn added a new style, with a number of glaring errors, when they transcribed the letters from documents in the British Museum, resulting in a font that is unique to their Order.

Here is a table I have composed to show this, with both the original Dee and later Golden Dawn versions for comparison:

| Original                                                                            |       | English | Golden Dawn |                                                                                     |

| ⵑ        | Gisg | T       | Gisa        | ⵑ |

There are some subtle, and not so subtle, differences between the two. I am not trying to discredit the Golden Dawn, of course, but the most noticeable change in the names of the letters is Na to Na-Hath. I think the problem here arose from one of Dee's documents, which had the word "Hath" in place of the letter H. Either this was an error on Dee's part, an idiosyncratic note for the English letter, or a pronunciation aid for the name or sound of the letter. The letter is called Na in all other accounts throughout his diaries. One can see where this mistake arose from here:

The image shows three lines of handwritten shorthand. The first line is 'Gon' with a horizontal line extending to the right. The second line is 'na' with a horizontal line extending to the right, followed by the word 'hath' in cursive. The third line is 'vr' with a horizontal line extending to the right, followed by a lowercase 'l'.

For those inclined to use the shorthand form, I would personally advise against it for anything but quick documentation. Dee called the form delivered to Kelley “the perfect form of the holy letters,”<sup>97</sup> a description I believe carries some weight. In many ways this is similar to the shorthand form of the Hebrew letters compared to the “print” style that we see in books or in Torah scrolls, the latter of which looks more appealing and offers more in terms of meditation and skrying work.

One of the major problems with the Golden Dawn font style is a number of inaccuracies in the form of the letters. The most notable errors can be found in the letters Veh and Pal, with the former lacking a joining line and the latter lacking a dot in the Golden Dawn versions. Other letters are also subtly different, too tall or too long, or not tilted the right way. These might seem like small things, but they change the letters in sometimes quite drastic ways, and can therefore change the meaning and effect of them. Having used both I can state quite emphatically that the original lettering documented by Kelley has a lot more impact than the Golden Dawn version, and this is one area in particular modern Golden Dawn magicians can benefit with restoring.

Another thing that deserves special attention is the fact that the letters are divided into three groups of seven. This is similar to the three groups of eight in the Norse runes or the three divisions of the Hebrew alphabet into Mothers, Doubles and Simples. There are no official names for these groups, but Donald Tyson calls them the

97 Ibid.

“Family of Pn,” “Family of Tal” and “Family of Pal” after the first letter of each group.<sup>98</sup>

One will also note that there is only one letter for C/K, I/Y/J, and V/U/W, because most of these letters have the same or similar sounds. They were often interchangeable in Latin words and even English words that Dee wrote throughout his journals. In the Kelley font, however, there is a dot with the letter Gon, which distinguishes between the letters Y and I.

ENOCHIAN GRAMMAR

The Enochian language shows elements of grammar that supports its assertion as a real language. Instead of random sounds we encounter repeated root words that change slightly to alter meaning, while retaining the core value of the original word.

For example, in the Third Call we find the words OTHIL and THILN, which at first glance we might assume share a relationship, given the reptition of THIL. This is supported by the translations given to Dee, “the seats” and “in seats” respectively. While we cannot know for certain, the root THIL may simply mean “seat” or “seats,” with the O prefix designating the definite article (“the”) and the N suffix designating the preposition “in.”

The problem with this view is that the Angelic tongue appears not to have a definite article, much like Latin. For example, the word IAD appears to mean both “God” and “the God,” suggesting that the definite article is intimated instead of being made explicit.

This would mean that the O prefix could not be taken to denote the definite article and must apply some other shift in meaning for the root THIL. It may even be that the root is actually OTHIL and that the O is dropped when the word takes on a preposition.

Another word that shares this root is THILD, which appears in the Fifth Call and translates as “of their own seats.” The D suffix could represent the possessive case.

Another example, this time from the Fourth Call, is CASARMI, which means “under whom,” and CASARMG, which means “in whom.” In this case we can more easily infer that CASARM means “whom” and the suffixes I and G are the prepositions “under” and “in” respectively. However, the Fifth Call gives CASARM as “unto whom,” which means either the “unto” is intimated depending on context or the suffixes do not only add a new preposition, but axe the existing preposition of the word if there is one in the first place.

98 Donald Tyson, Enochian Magic for Beginners, p. 94. Tyson erroneously calls the first letter “Pn.” This should be “Pa.”

While these grammatical elements are different to what we find in English, a lot of the Enochian tongue is similar to English in terms of its word structure. We do not encounter instances where the verb goes to the start of a sentence, as with Irish, or the end of a sentence, as with Latin. Some argue that this is an indication that the Enochian language is invented, with English as its basis, but this argument is flawed, because several other languages share the same word order as English, such as German, barring the exception of modal verbs.

Without proper instructions from the angels it is difficult to understand the grammar of the Enochian language. We can garner much from the Calls, but this is mostly speculation.

A number of magicians have received new words from their work with the Enochian entities, but it is hard to add these to the Dee canon, because sometimes it is difficult to differentiate between what was intended for use by the world and what is more of a personal lexicon for one’s individual work with the angels.

Crowley received several new words in his explorations of the Aethyrs, which are documented in The Vision and the Voice. While we cannot be certain that these are authoritative, some of them show a relationship with the ones Dee received. For example, Crowley was given the word ADRPHT, which he translated as “casting down”. The word ADRPAN, which shares the root ADRP, from the Thirtieth Call means “cast down.” However, at the same rate the similarity between ADRPHT and ADPAHT from the Thirtieth Call suggests they should also be related, but the latter translates as “unspeakable.”

Since this material is unofficial, as it were, I have decided not to include any of it in this book, but those interested can find plenty of “channelled” words on the internet, most of which should be taken with a very large grain of salt.

THE SOUND OF THE LETTERS

As Kelley wrote down the Enochian letters he told Dee the names, which Dee wrote in their proper spelling. However, Dee also added some pronunciation notes for the letters, which gives us some insight into how to pronounce the language.

Or - "the voice seemed Orh."

Un - "the sound seemed und."

Graph - "The sound as Grakpha, in the throat."

Tal - "in sound stall or xtall."

Na - "in sound Nach as it were in the nose."

Ur - "in sound our or ourh."

Mals - "in sound machls."

Ger - "in sound, gierh."

Drux - "in sound drovx."<sup>99</sup>

Pal - "the p being sounded remissly."

Ceph - "sounded like Keph."

Interestingly the first four letters, Pa, Veh, Ged and Gal, received no pronunciation aids, being pronounced as they are spelled, which should not be difficult for English speakers. The final three also received no notes. The remaining letters are pronounced as given. The letters given above appear to be extremely guttural in pronunciation, suggesting a potential relationship with the harsh throaty sounds of the letters Cheth and Kaph in Hebrew, the latter of which is also similar in spelling to the Enochian letter Ceph.

THE PRONUNCIATION DEBATE

Given the unusual structure of many Enochian words, and the sheer fact that it is a foreign language, many people have stumbled over how to pronounce it.

The most important thing to remember from the outset is that pronunciation appears to be less important than it would at first appear, with magicians getting results regardless of how they pronounce the words. In many cases it is the intent that matters, in addition to the emotional intensity with which the magician approaches the language. If the Calls are recited in a dull, droning way, then it does not matter how accurate the pronunciation is, as the effect will always pale in comparison to a magician who acts it out, feeling the words and pondering their meaning.

Obviously this does not mean that the words can be pronounced in any way at all. The word ZACAR cannot, for example, be pronounced as “book.” It is understandable, however, if someone were not sure if it was pronounced “zah-car” or “zah-sar,” or if each letter is to be voiced individually.

There are multiple schools of thought when it comes to pronouncing this language, the three most dominant ones being the single letter style, the Golden Dawn style and the original Dee style.

ZOD IS Z EXTENDED

The most unusual and idiosyncratic pronunciation rule that we know of in relation to the Enochian language, in both the Golden Dawn and Dee styles, applies to the letter Ceph or Z. This is often, but not always, extended to “Zod.”

Donald Laycock suggested that this was merely the spelling used at the time for the English letter:

“The letter z has not always been called ‘zed’ or ‘zee’; it has had many names, among them ‘izzard’, and, at the end of the sixteenth century, ‘ezod’. ‘Zod’ is nothing but a variant of this last name.”<sup>100</sup>

This sounds logical enough, but the problem with this is that the angels specifically called for certain words to be pronounced with their Z as Zod. One pivotal example came from the angel Nalvage when delivering the Tablet of God:

“Δ. I pray you, is 'Mozod,' a word of three letters, or of five? Nal[vage] ..... In wrote three, it is larger extended.

100 Donald Laycock, The Complete Enochian Dictionary, p. 45.

[Δ. z extended is 'zod.']

Δ. Will you pardon me if I ask you another question of this extension?

Nal[vage] ..... Say on: 'Moz' in it self signifieth Joy; but 'Mozod' extended, signifieth the Joy o[f] God.

Δ. No word in his radical form is extended.

Nal[vage] ..... These doubts will at length grow easy.”<sup>101</sup>

This passage makes it incredibly clear that Zod is not merely the spelling out of the letter Z, but something that is to be pronounced to give a different, higher meaning to the word. From this we can glean that Zod is used in reference to spiritual things and could possibly be employed for other words that the angels never explicitly used it with if we want to suggest a more lofty meaning.

Dee's final comment is interesting, but it is not exactly clear what is meant by a word in its “radical form.” The use of Zod was obviously equally confusing to Dee and is one of the stranger “rules” in the language.

THE SINGLE LETTER STYLE

The single letter style follows the principle that each letter is to be pronounced individually, either in English or Enochian, making ZACAR either “Zee Ay See Ay Or” or “Ceph Un Veh Un Don.”

This approach is generally touted by people who believe that this is how Dee was told to pronounce the words or that Dee was not given any pronunciation guides at all, which is not true. Israel Regardie was a primary contributor to this view, writing in The Golden Dawn:

“Incidentally, for practical purposes, the language is pronounced by taking each letter separately, whenever a lack of vowels renders it necessary.”<sup>102</sup>

However, the idea of pronouncing a letter individually, while not accurate to Dee's instructions, is not entirely wrong in certain cases.

101 Stephen Skinner, ed. Dr John Dee's Spiritual Diaries, p. 232.

102 Israel Regardie, The Golden Dawn, p. 629.

For example, in the Second Call there is a single letter word M, which means “except.” Dee writes “EM it is a word,”<sup>103</sup> suggesting the letter be pronounced on its own like the English letter.

THE GOLDEN DAWN STYLE

The Golden Dawn style follows a relatively simple formula, but often makes the words more cumbersome, and has certainly contributed to widespread misspelling.

Crowley summed up the Golden Dawn approach to pronunciation of the Enochian language in his Liber 84 vel Chanokh:

“Pronounce Elemental language (also called Angelic or Enochian) by inserting the next following Hebrew vowel between consonants, e.g. e after b (bEth), i after g (gImel), a after d, etc.”<sup>104</sup>

Mathers went further than this in his notes, however:

“For example, in Beth, the vowel following ‘B’ is ‘e’ pronounced AY. Therefore, if ‘B’ in an Angelic Name precede another as in ‘Sobha’, thou mayest pronounce it ‘Sobeh-hah.’ ‘G’ may be either Gimel or Jimel (as the Arabs do call it) following whether it be hard or soft.”<sup>105</sup>

Mathers also stipulated that the letters Y and I be interchangeable, in addition to V and U, depending on whether they are to be used as a vowel or consonant, which matches the Dee rules. M, N and S are to be pronounced as their English names “Em,” “En” and “Ess,” while A, D and P are pronounced like the sounds of the English letters, “Ah,” “Deh” and “Peh” respectively. X is to be pronounced like the Hebrew Samekh or sometimes Tzaddi. Z is, of course, pronounced as “Zod.”

This led to a very warped spelling of Enochian based on the pronunciation guide, a method of spelling that has been taken at face value by many students of the Golden Dawn, leading to significant errors in understanding.

103 A True & Faithful Relation, p. 97.

104 Aleister Crowley, Liber 84 vel Chanokh, p. 21.

105 Israel Regardie, The Golden Dawn, p. 650.

Some examples given in the Golden Dawn material are:

NRFM = “En-ra-ef-em”

ZIZA = “Zod-ee-zod-ah”

TAASD = “Teh-ah-ah-ess-deh”

HCOMA = “Heh-co-em-ah”

NANTA = “En-ah-en-tah”

It is clear from these examples that the Golden Dawn approach is very similar to the single letter approach, albeit with a slew of additional rules. Nearly all of the letters in the above words are pronounced individually, even when there is no need for it. For example, NANTA could have simply been pronounced “Nan-tah,” as it would be using Dee’s guidelines.

One example from Crowley is: “Ol sonuf vaoresaji gohu IAD Balata, elanusaha caelazod sopra [vonupeho].”<sup>106</sup> The original, however, is: “Ol sonf vorsg goho iad balt lansh calz vonpho.” While the former might be easier to pronounce, I think all students of Enochian should learn to spell the original and add the pronunciation later if they so wish.

Despite this criticism, the extra vowels of the Golden Dawn approach make a very melodic sound, which can help create an impressive change in atmosphere and aid the shift in consciousness necessary for magical work.

THE DEE STYLE

The Dee style is quite straightforward for the most part, but has its own oddities.

Generally speaking Dee’s pronunciation notes call for it to be pronounced as one would pronounce an English word, with intimated vowel sounds whenever there is a case of an abundance of consonants. For example, IALPRG, “the burning flames,” is pronounced “Yal-purg,” the natural way most people would pronounce it in English. Note how a vowel sound gets inserted between P and R and how the

The letters PH are usually pronounced as the letter F, as in the English “telephone,” but sometimes just the letter P is also pronounced as F. This suggests another similarity between Enochian and Hebrew, the latter of which has a single letter, Peh, for both the P and F sounds.

The letter C (Veh) is usually pronounced as a hard C (i.e. K), but sometimes, like the English letter, as a soft C (i.e. S). For example, CAOSGO sounds like “ka-os-go,” while words like NONCF and NONCI are pronounced “non-sef” and “non-see,” not “non-kef” and “non-kee.” Generally speaking, however, we can assume that most words with this letter are pronounced with a hard sound.

Because letters like Veh (C/K) and Van (V/U) represent multiple English letters, but yet have only one symbol in Enochian, the OSDL took the approach of standardising things so that only K and V were employed. After extensive research and exploration of the language I now believe this approach to be wrong, as there are several instances where, for example, Van is written and pronounced as a V or U. Eliminating one or the other makes things simpler, but it also makes our writing and pronunciation a lot more inaccurate.

In this book I decided to employ the original Enochian, even when it makes more sense to change it to something more logical. At times Dee is given the letter V in a word when backwards, but then writes it with a U when forwards or when giving a pronunciation aid. For example, in the Second Call the word TAPVIN is to be pronounced “Ta-pu-in,” while QVIIN is to be pronounced “Qui-in.” I could change the V to a U to help with pronunciation, but it is better that readers get as accurate a rendition of the Calls as possible.

The reason for this use of V for the letter U is because they were essentially interchangeable in English at Dee’s time. For example, Dee would often use “seuen” for the word “seven” and “liuing” for “living.”

Other examples of interchangeable letters include W and U, where Dee writes “perswaded” for “persuaded” and “bowntifull” for “bountiful” (the former being more accurate to how it is pronounced). For I and Y, there is “ynckling” instead of “inkling,” and Dee uses both “wycked” and “wicked” at various times. The same interchangeability appears to apply to the Enochian language.

The letter Gon is sometimes written in Dee's diaries with a dot in the upper right-hand corner when it denotes the letter Y instead of I. This is similar to the use of a dot, called a dagesh, in the Hebrew language to distinguish between two possible sounds for certain letters.

Dee also marked accents above certain vowels in his pronunciation notes, designating which syllable is to be stressed. Generally speaking, but not always, the second syllable of an Enochian word is stressed.

Aaron Leitch's The Angelical Language, Volume II provides a very detailed lexicon, complete with Dee's pronunciation notes, and is therefore invaluable for anyone wanting to employ the most accurate pronunciation possible. It is important to note, however, that while Dee's diaries are the obvious authority on the subject, they are not always clear or consistent.

IV

LIBER LOAGAETH

Liber Loagaeth (“Book of the Speech from God”) is a tome of 48 double-sided tables of letters arranged in a grid of 49x49 squares. This results in a staggering 230,496 letters in total, making it one of the largest transmissions during Dee and Kelley’s workings. A 49th table was also mentioned, but never transmitted, as it “neither is, was or shall be known.”<sup>107</sup>

The book was first shown to Kelley by Raphael on 24 March 1583 as a tome with many gold leaves and writing that appeared like wet blood. A second vision showed the 2,401 squares of each table, with Raphael revealing the 21 letters of the Enochian alphabet for the first time above the table.

Dee was told to pronounce the name “Loagaeth” as “Logah.” It is not clear if this is an actual Enochian word or a different language altogether, but it clearly shows a relationship with the Greek word logos, the “Word,” which is a title often attributed to Jesus. Both the idea of the literal word (with logos sometimes being translated as “speech”) and the reference to Jesus supports the translation of the word as “Speech from God.” The translation also suggests that the words used in it might actually be from a higher language than, or perhaps an alternate dialect of, the angelic tongue.

Dee also recorded a footnote in his diaries that read: "The book, the first Language of God Christ," a further suggestion of the link between Loagaeth and logos. This relates to a statement by Raphael that the words used are "the voice and speech of him, which proceeded from the first, and is the first; whose glorious name be exalted in his own horn of honour."<sup>108</sup>

Author and scholar John DeSalvo suggests that the mysterious 49th table of Liber Loagaeth, which technically precedes the other 48, could be a collection of 28 pages of 40 paragraphs and a 49x9 table, making it significantly larger than the 48 tables that follow. This table was intended to contain a word per square instead of a letter or number like the rest, but the sheer size required resulted in the table never being assembled. For some strange reason, however, the final nine lines have a single letter.

It is not exactly clear if this was what the angels intended by the first table, but it is an interesting possibility that students of Liber Loagaeth may want to explore. Personally I believe the first table was intended to be a mystical one that was never shown, representing God, and the instructions from Raphael appear to support this view. This also ties in well with the 49 Calls delivered later, with one of them not being given for pretty much the exact same reasons. Most Enochian scholars and magicians do not know what the Liber Loagaeth is, what it is intended to do, or how to make any practical (or even theoretical) use of it. There were myriads of tables delivered and a few people have some theories on their use, but this is the section that is most open to interpretation and experimentation (and also, because of this, the most potentially risky, if one manages to even get anything out of it at all). It can be linked to the other two sections (after all, they make up one unified system in the end), but how it links up remains theoretical at best.

DeSalvo also holds this view:

"No one to this day has been able to interpret or understand these tables. I do not believe that even Kelley or Dr. Dee knew what they meant or how to interpret them but left them for some future time to decode.”<sup>109</sup>

108 Ibid., p. 268.

Lon Milo DuQuette, in his book Enochian Vision Magick, came to a similar conclusion about the ambiguity of Liber Loagaeth. He labelled it as a “tantalizing mystery” and suggested that while magicians have so far been unable to develop a workable system from it, “it is only a matter of time before someone cracks the code.”<sup>110</sup>

Even Kelley could only get a glimpse of understanding of the tables. On several occasions he could not see or understand the book and was given momentary insight that was taken away after the communications ended.

“The fire came from E[dward] K[elley] his eyes, and went into the stone again. And then, he could not perceive, or read one word. The Fire flashed very thick and all was covered with a veil.”<sup>111</sup>

This suggests that a similar gnosis, as it were, is necessary to penetrate the mysteries of this book, as opposed to conventional knowledge. It also means that while this is not an innate ability of humanity, it is possible to understand the speech of God.

Dee was told that Liber Loagaeth would help restore the holy books, inspire religious unity and hark the end of the world, which is a tall order for such a little used part of the Enochian system. In fact, this might explain why it has not been explored much, as it may simply not be time for the suggested transformations in the world, if, indeed, they are likely to happen at all.

During one working with the angels I inquired about Liber Loagaeth, only to receive the response that I should leave it be for now, as “it is not ready.” It is interesting to note that they did not say I was not ready, but rather that the system itself is not ready, which makes sense, given how many gaps there appear to be in it.

This material was reserved for the highest grades of the OSDL, due to its highly experimental nature. I encourage caution when approaching this aspect of Enochian magic, as it is likely to be more unpredictable and volatile than the rest.

A similar view was upheld by Hugh Campbell, a senior member of the 9=2 grade of the Whare Ra temple, one of the last temples of the original Golden Dawn lineage. Campbell worked extensively with Enochian, well beyond that of most other Golden Dawn members, and reported a very disturbing experience after working with the Liber Loagaeth, which he thought should be reserved for very senior members of the Order, according to Golden Dawn scholar Tony Fuller.

The language contained in these tables is very different to that of the Calls, as it does not show the same elements of grammar. Indeed, it appears to be just a random string of numbers and letters, with no real word or sentence structure to any of it.

However, one specimen of the tables, which was replicated by Meric Casaubon in A True & Faithful Relation, depicts the name BORNOGO in the centre, reading both vertically, horizontally and diagonally. This is the name of one of the Bonorum (good angels), part of the Heptarchic system. There are also several instances of the word BAG in this table, which is the name of one of the Aethyrs (and one that many see as the first barrier in Aethyric workings). What these links to the rest of the system mean is anyone's guess, but it certainly appears that there is a relationship between all three aspects of Enochian magic.

To date there has been little exploration of Liber Loagaeth, but Aaron Leitch gives the most thorough analysis of it, and its possible meaning and application, in The Angelical Language, Volume I, which is worth reading for those considering using this obscure part of the system.

Leitch found some interesting explanations for some of the Liber Loagaeth tables in Dee's diaries. These suggest that the first table relates to "the Son of God", but also to several of the Bonorum, including Befafes and Bobogel.<sup>112</sup>

The second table appears to relate to "the first seven," most likely the seven archangels who stand in the presence of God, who can also be found on the Sigillum Dei Aemeth: Zaphkiel, Zadkiel, Cumael, Raphael, Haniel, Michael and Gabriel.

A Specimen of the Tables or Book of ENOCH.
 ܐܢܘܚܐ Pagesgem ܬܝܢܥ ܐܝܟܝܢ ܒܥܥܝܠܝܢ

The fourth table is explained as relating to “the beginning of your being in body,” which Leitch argues is likely a reference to the creation of Adam in Genesis.

The nineteenth table is linked to “the spirits of the earth,” suggesting an end to the process of Creation elucidated in the previous 18 tables.

Leitch links the remaining 30 tables with the 30 Aethyrs, in order from LIL and table 20 to TEX and table 49. This is one of the most likely explanations of this part of Liber Loagaeth, particularly when coupled with an assignment of all 49 Calls to the 49 tables, but there does not appear to be any direct mention of such a link in Dee's diaries.

After the tables of Liber Loagaeth were delivered Dee was supposed to make a "perfected" copy of the book within a certain deadline, a timeframe which he failed to meet. His frustration led to him asking the entity Galvah for aid, and she promised to write the book for him, only to continuously put it off afterwards, until finally Dee completed a satisfactory version nearly a year later.

Leitch argues that Dee's belief that the book would be written for him is "one of the most unbelievable scenes in the journals."<sup>113</sup> I have to agree with him on this. It seems to me that Galvah's promise was an empty one and that the angels simply decided to chastise Dee by not doing much at all until he had completed the book himself, much like they berated him when he failed to learn the angelic letters in time.

The full set of tables of Liber Loagaeth were published for the first time by John DeSalvo in his book Decoding the Enochian Secrets. The scanned images are relatively small and difficult to read, but they provide a valuable look at the entire 48 double-sided tables for those unable to visit and study in the British Library.

V

THE STONE &amp; THE RING

During the course of Dee's angelic workings, and particularly during the early communications, he was instructed to procure or make a number of basic tools. While it is not necessary for modern magicians to completely replicate this procedure, it is important to know how he came upon them and what they were used for.

THE SHEWSTONE

Perhaps the most iconic tool used by Dee and Kelley, and the one that they could not have done anything without, is the shewstone or crystal ball. It seems that Dee had several of these in his possession, including at least one that he was using with Saul and other previous skryers before Kelley came into his service.

During one session with Saul on 22 December 1581, Dee asked the angel Annael about his “stone in the frame,” a “crystal globe” that was set upon a number of legs, with a circular frame that bore a cross on top holding the stone in place. Dee noted that it was given to him by a friend and he was curious if there was any angel set over it. Annael said that the archangel Michael was assigned to the stone.

Interestingly, nearly three months later, during Kelley’s first skrying session, Dee asked the angel Uriel who else, beside himself, is answerable to the stone, to which he said Michael and Raphael, with Michael being the foremost. The fact that two separate skryers placed Michael in charge of the shewtone is intriguing and adds some additional credibility to the workings.

An even stranger tale surrounds a crystal ball that came into Dee’s possession nearly two years later. On 21 November 1583, after some communications on the Heptarchic system, the angel Carmara, who is the highest power in the rankings of the Bonorum angels, told Dee:

“One thing is yet wanting, a meet receptacle, etc. There is yet wanting a stone, etc. One there is, most excellent, hid in the secret of the depth, etc. In the uttermost part of the Roman Possession.”<sup>114</sup>

He added that “thou shalt have it” and instructed Kelley to point it out, but to not stir from his place. Dee said he could not see anything at the west window of his room, the direction where Kelley pointed. Kelley said that he saw an angel that was the height of a child standing there holding a fiery sword and a round object the size of an egg.

Carmara bade Dee to “go toward it; and take it up,” which Dee did, to his surprise finding a shewstone of around half an inch thick on the ground near a pile of books beneath the window.

This physical appearance of an object was likely astonishing to Dee, who burst into a bout of prayer. It is possible, of course, that Kelley planted it there before Dee entered the room, but if this was not the case then this incident is one of few examples of the angels affecting the real world, not just limiting their communications to visions.

114 Joseph H. Peterson, John Dee’s Five Books of Mystery, p. 253.

Carama explained the significance of this stone, suggesting that Dee would come into contact with even more powerful angels:

“Thou shalt pervail with it, with Kings, and with all Creatures of the world: Whose beauty (in virtue) shall be more worth than the Kingdoms of the earth.”<sup>115</sup>

Carmara also told Dee to “let no mortal hand touch it, but thine own.”<sup>116</sup> Dee clearly took this to heart, as he added a footnote to take care. It is not clear if this warning means that the shewstone will lose its potency if handled by another, but it is similar to the approach taken by many occultists in relation to other modes of divination, such as with Tarot decks. In terms of the shewstone, the contact of another could have an adverse affect, such as by instilling visions relating to the energy of that person. It is, therefore, advisable that such a shewstone, once consecrated or put to use, not be touched by anyone but the magician or skryer.

There is also a black skrying mirror in the collection of Dee’s surviving magical paraphernalia on display in the British Museum, but it is not clear if he ever used this, as all references to the skrying method used refer to a “stone.”

Given the importance of the shewstone in the workings, it might be considered indispensable by modern magicians seeking to work with the Enochian system. Of course, such visions can be obtained by other means, via tools or using a simple technique that basically involves closing one’s eyes and seeing what images occur in one’s mind or on the back of one’s eyelids.

My own experience has shown that the shewstone works as a conduit for the vision, taking a lot of the mental stress away from a vision that does not employ a tool. It can often be more difficult to use a crystal ball in this way, but since it ultimately takes less of a toll on the skryer it is a skill well worth learning. One can only imagine how draining it would have been for Kelley not to have used a shewstone. There are several occasions where the skrying sessions appear to have an adverse effect upon Kelley, but without the shewstone he would have likely suffered from more severe migraine-like symptoms, much like Christian mystic Hildegard von Bingen did during her numerous visions.

115 Ibid.

116 Ibid., p. 254.

THE RING

The magical ring has been a part of grimoire work for a long period, the most notable being that given to Solomon by the archangel Michael, which is reputedly the predecessor of the ring delivered to Dee, according to Michael himself.

On 14 March 1582, one of the earliest workings Dee and Kelley conducted, Michael revealed a gold ring bearing the word PELE on it, saying it “was never revealed since the death of Solomon” and an item that even “the Angels scarce know.” He added that this ring helped Solomon with performing “all Miracles, and divine works and wonders.”<sup>117</sup>

In addition to the word Pele, which means “Worker of Wonders” and was written with one letter in each of the four corners, the ring also bore a large V over a bar, with a large L beneath.

In a stark assertion of the power of this ring, Michael said: “Without this, thou shalt do nothing.”<sup>118</sup> He also hinted further at its use by saying: “Wonders are in him, and his Name is wonderful: His Name worketh wonders from generation, to generation.” This supports the meaning of the word Pele, which was employed in at least one text in Dee's library, Johann Reuchlin's De Verbo Mirifico, which Dee noted in a footnote to the working.

Despite Michael's vehemence that nothing could be done without this ring, very little was said about it. The comments about "wonders" do not tell us anything that could not be ascertained from Reuchlin's book. A month after Michael instructed Dee to make the ring he told Dee that he would teach him about it when it is made, suggesting that Dee had thus far failed to make it. It also means that Michael had much more to say about it, but this material evidently never showed up.

Meanwhile, the V and L were never explained and could mean literally anything that a magician comes up with, as there are no hints or clues to go on. During my workings with the angels I inquired as to the meaning of these letters, receiving the response: "Vide et lux." This is Latin for "see and light." I do not believe this is intended as a phrase, which would not make sense grammatically, but rather that the words are intended on their own. The presence of light is self-explanatory, given the work with angelic entities, but the use of the word "see" is interesting, as it bears on obvious relation to the idea of skrying and might be employed for clarity of sight in visions. Of course, what I was told might be an application of the letters intended only for me and should not be taken as an authority on the subject.

If one approaches Enochian work as a Dee purist, then use of this ring is essential. However, I have experimented with and without the ring and have not honestly noticed a huge enough difference to say that it is in any way essential.

It is certainly beneficial to employ some form of magical ring for Enochian work, mainly as an additional means by which one can dissociate the energy from one's everyday life when the ring is taken off, but I think Michael may have been exaggerating a little that a magician could get nothing done without it. Indeed, there is also the possibility that Michael's comment was directed to Dee alone; i.e. that he alone would need the ring to get things done. The same may not necessarily apply to us.

I think the biggest insight into this ring can be garnered by looking at the Seal of Solomon, since that is what Michael claims was the last time this type of ring was revealed. The ring, sometimes known as the Ring of Aandaleeb, was said to have helped Solomon ward off demons who were interrupting his workings. The idea of not getting anything done without the ring therefore makes a lot more sense, as the demons would otherwise hinder any workings.

This is particularly appropriate, as the working before the one where Dee received the ring, dated 11 March 1582, involved a revelation from Uriel that an illuding spirit called Lundrumguffa had been impersonating him, delivering a false demonic seal. It makes sense, therefore, that Michael, traditionally an angel who battles demons, would give Dee a method to defend against these demonic incursions.

This same working revealed how little power Dee felt he had in banishing evil spirits. Uriel told him to use brimstone (sulphur) to oust Lundrumguffa, but Dee said: "I know no means, or art to do this by,"<sup>119</sup> citing an earlier failed attempt to banish a spirit with sulphur. This suggests that Dee had little in his magical arsenal for dealing with wicked spirits, making the delivery of the ring which Solomon used to command demons an even more pressing revelation.

Nowadays, of course, magicians have a lot of other tools and rituals that can help ward off uninvited guests, such as the Golden Dawn's Lesser Ritual of the Pentagram. Since Dee and Kelley predominantly used prayer throughout their workings, it is not surprising that such a physical defensive tool was deemed necessary.

Personally I would recommend that a magician working with Enochian employ this ring. While the system will still work without it, every safeguard helps in producing the best results and avoiding any unnecessary complications relating to intruding entities or an over-abundance of Enochian energy.

Regarding the construction of the Ring, Michael said "any honest man"<sup>120</sup> could make it for Dee, so the magician does not need to make it for him or herself.

For those who intend to use the ring, it is important to point out that Dee was told it was to be made of gold, a requirement that is not ideal for cash-strapped magicians. One potential compromise for those with limited funds would be to use a gold band and attach a metal or silver piece with the letters on, but this may not fulfill Michael's requirements. Lon Milo DuQuette gives a novel approach of using a paper version,<sup>121</sup> which can work just as effectively, since the magic is in the symbolism and its use, not the material it is made of.

THE SIGILLUM DEI AEMETH

The Sigillum Dei Aemeth (“Seal of Truth” or “Seal of God’s Truth,” from a mixture of Latin and Hebrew) is a pentacle that was delivered by the angels. Iconic of angelic magic. There are few magicians who have not at some time stumbled upon it, or a variation of it, and wondered about its many mysteries.

THE PHYSICAL FORM OF THE SEAL

Uriel gave very specific instructions for the physical form that the Seal should take:

“This seal is to be made of perfect wax. I mean, wax, which is clean purified: we have no respect of colours. This seal must be 9 inches in diameter: The roundness must be 27 inches, and somewhat more. The Thickness of it, must be of an inch and a half quarter.”<sup>122</sup>

Dee was also told to create four smaller seals to put under the legs of the Table of Practice, but there are no guidelines for the size of these. Luckily two of Dee’s smaller seals have survived. Peterson notes their size as being 125mm in diameter and 20mm in thickness. These were to be placed in a hollow wooden container so that the Seals would be “kept unperished,” meaning that they should not directly touch the floor, nor should the weight of the table bore into them and destroy the figures upon them.

Like the ring a paper Seal could be employed. I have had a lot of success with a paper Seal, but one should ensure that the reverse symbols are printed on the back, an omission I have noticed a lot of people making.

SYMBOLS ON THE SEAL

In order to construct the Sigillum Dei Aemeth (I refer to the structure of its form, not the actual physical construction of the seal), we need to take it in sections. To begin with, let us look at the Sigillum Dei Aemeth as a geometric figure, without all of the numbers, letters, and symbols that will later adorn it. One will note two circles (thus forming the outer ring), and within that a double-lined heptagon, with each side divided into seven sections. Inside this is a heptagram of two lines, and inside this again is another double-lined heptagon, this time with point down. Further still we have a pentagram formed of two lines, point upwards, contained in the centre.

122 Joseph H. Peterson, ed. John Dee's Five Books of Mystery, p. 71.

Uriel told Dee that this Seal was “already perfected in a book of thine.”<sup>123</sup> Dee adds a footnote that reads: “Erroneously, to my ignorance.” It is clear that Uriel meant that the general shape was to be found in Dee’s books, but the symbols and names upon it were, in Dee’s reckoning, wrongly recorded. Dee was thus to receive the true form of the Seal. Peterson has pointed out the striking similarities in the shape of this Seal with those found in Liber Juratus and Oedipus Aegyptiacus, which Uriel was likely referring to.

Next let us look at the individual sections in detail, exploring how the letters, numbers, and symbols were delivered for them, and what exactly they mean.

THE OUTER RING

123 Ibid., p. 70.

First Dee was told to create a circle and divide it into four parts, and then to divide those four parts into ten, creating 40 parts total. Kelley saw 40 white creatures, like children, in white silk robes, and each of them came up in turn and showed their chest, belly, forehead, hand, or eyes, upon or in which was a combination of letter and number. Eventually Dee was left with a string of seemingly random letters and numbers, some in lower or upper case, and the final letter being the Greek lower-case omega ( $\omega$ ).

| 4 | 9 | 7 | t | 22 |   | 6 | 22 | 20 | 14 | 6 |   | 18 | 26 | 1  |   | 1 | 7 | 13 | H  |    | y  | t  | o | e  | 10 | 11 | 15 | 8 | r  |   | 6 | o  | s | h  | o  |   | a | a  | 6 |
| T | G | n | 9 | h  | n | m | o  | a  | n  | a | h | o  | 1  | 30 | n | 8 | G | r  | 12 | 08 | 14 | 11 | 8 | 21 | b  | A  | I  | a | 16 | n | A | 10 | G | 14 | 17 | s | 5 | 24 | w |

The division of the outer ring of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth into four parts that contain 10 further divisions suggests a possible relation with the four worlds of the Qabalah, each of which would contain a Tree of Life, which has ten Sephiroth. The creatures also stood in eight groups of five, suggesting a link with the five elements.

Dee questioned why the circle was divided into 40 and not 42, noting that he knew of the 42-letter name of God. Michael responded by saying that “the old rule of 42 letters” is contained within this, but he did not specify in what way this was so.

Michael described the outer ring as “the true Circle of his eternity comprehending all virtue.”<sup>124</sup> He also explained the possible magical application of it:

“Note, Out of this Circle shall no Creature pass, that entereth, if it be made upon the earth. My meaning is, if he be defiled. This shalt thou prove to be a mystery unknown to man. Beasts, birds, fowl and fish do all reverence to it. In this they were all Created. In this, is all things contained.”<sup>125</sup>

THE OUTER SEGMENTS

Michael instructed Dee to take the strip of numbers and letters, which acts as a kind of cryptogram, where the names of seven angels are hidden. He told Dee to take each of the capital letters, starting with the initial T, and use the number above or below it to count towards the next letter. The rule is that a number in the upper line means count right, while a number below means count left.

When Dee followed the procedure he came up with the first of the names, ThAaoth. Michael said that this was not the name, adding another element to the rule:

“Wheresoever thou shalt find two ‘aa’ together the first is not to be placed within the Name, but rather left with his inward power.”<sup>126</sup>

This was thus corrected to Thaoth. Dee came up with the remaining names as Galaas, Gethog, Horlwn, Innon, Aaoth, and Galetsog. Galaas was corrected to Galas, following the above rule, while Galetsog was corrected to Galethog, as Dee had made an error in noting this name. Interestingly, Michael never corrected Aaoth, nor commented on it, despite it having a double ‘A’. This might be because it begins the word, however, and may represent another dimension to the calculation rule.

126 Ibid., p. 111.

Michael also corrected the ordering of the names to: Galas, Gethog, Thaoth, Horlwn, Innon, Aaoth, Galethog. He gave Dee a sigil and a number for each of these, barring the last which only had a sigil, and told him to place them upon the Seal starting in the upper lefthand corner and going anti-clockwise.

|          |                                                                                   |
| Galas    |  |
| Gethog   |  |
| Thaoth   |  |
| Horlwn   |  |
| Innon    |  |
| Aaoth    |  |
| Galethog |  |

What is interesting about this is that all of the sigils contain at least one large letter. The first is G, the second is A, the third is L, the fourth is E, the fifth is T, the sixth is H, and the final one is OG. Taken together these spell Galethog, the name of the final entity, who has no number assigned. Clearly this angel holds a special place within the system and might either rule the others or be the amalgamation of their energies. Some might question the omission of the X, but I personally see this as a cross turned on its side, than a letter, since nearly all of the other sigils contain a cross. Those wondering about the numbers will be unsurprised to find that they employ the same calculation pattern used to gain the names of these seven, revealing a name that is none other than Galethog. This also explains why there was no number assigned to the final name.

Dee was told by Uriel that these seven letters contain seven secret angels, “comprehending the 7 inward powers of God: known to none, but himself.”<sup>127</sup> He also explained that the crosses attached to these letters refer “in substance to the Father, in form to the Son, and inwardly to the Holy Ghost,”<sup>128</sup> an assignment that was also given to the Black Cross of the Great Table (see Chapter XI).

127 Ibid., p. 122.

Another interesting thing about Galethog is that it could be seen as an anagram of Loggaeth, which is very close to Loagaeth. What significance this holds, if any, remains unknown, and is likely hidden in the mysteries of Liber Loagaeth.

This formula for deriving names also explains why some of the forty divisions had no number assigned to them, because, like in the case of Galethog, there needs to be an end to the chain. The first angel to feature no number explained the significance as follows:

“And I am the end, and have no number. I am the number within a number, and every number is my number. Behold.”<sup>129</sup>

It is interesting that when using this formula none of the names go on seemingly endlessly, like the names of the Supreme Elemental Kings in the Golden Dawn system, suggesting that they were not just randomly drawn, but intentionally coded into the circumference.

This section was completed with the addition of a small cross in each corner, two per segment.

THE OUTER HEPTAGON

128 Ibid.

129 Ibid., p. 95.

Next Michael took seven baskets, in each of which was a bird that bore seven feathers. On each of these feathers there was a letter, with the first spelling ZllRHia. He did the same with the remaining six baskets, until 48 letters and a cross (+) had been shown.

It is interesting to note that each bird was different in species and colour, which might give some insight into these names. The first was a pigeon, the second was a white swan, the third was a green peacock, the fourth was a red griffin, the fifth was a golden eagle, the sixth was a “fiery sparkling” pheonix or pelican, and the last was “a strange foul with many wings”. A lot of these have obvious alchemical associations that are worth exploring.

Uriel appeared and commanded Dee to compile the letters into a chart as follows:

|   |   |   |   |   |   |   |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Z | l | l | R | H | i | a |
| a | Z | C | a | a | c | b |
| p | a | u | p | n | h | r |
| h | d | m | h | i | a | i |
| k | k | a | a | e | e | e |
| i | i | e | e | l | l | l |
| e | e | l | l | M | G | + |

This chart is actually formed from the names of the seven traditional Archangels (called by Agrippa the “seven angels which stand in the presence of God”<sup>130</sup>), by starting in the upper left-hand corner and reading down, beginning the name of a new angel with each capital letter, granting:

Interestingly Dee notes that he forgot to ask Uriel where his own name may appear. The fact that Michael had delivered the letters, yet Uriel revealed the names of the archangels hidden within the chart is telling, as clearly Michael did not want to speak of a table wherein his own name was catalogued. In a later passage Dee comments that Uriel accounts for himself as one of those who “stand always before the face of God,”<sup>131</sup> suggesting he has a place with the other seven even though his name is not amongst the tables.

The cross in the final square is clearly to ensure it is a 7x7 table, but it can also be interpreted philosophically as the world (the four elements), or even as the Black Cross of the Great Table, in much the same way the crosses attached to the letters that make up the name Galethog share a relationship. However, Dee was never explicitly told what this cross refers to.

The letters were then to be filled in on the heptagon, with each of the seven letters of the seven rows of the table filling one of the seven sections of the seven sides of the heptagon, starting with the first, ZllRHia, in the uppermost right-hand side, and then going clockwise until it joined back up on the other side.

The image below illustrates these seven names upon the outer heptagon:

131 Joseph H. Peterson, ed. John Dee's Five Books of Mystery, p. 141.

Michael explained that these names are “the 7 governing the 7 which govern the earth,” which means that ZII RHia, etc. could possibly be seen as the direct superior of the traditional seven archangels. To further add to this mystery Michael said:

“Seven, rest in 7: and the 7, live by 7: The 7, govern the 7:
And by 7, all Government is.”<sup>132</sup>

BETWEEN THE OUTER HEPTAGON & THE HEPTRAGRAM

Michael returned to lead the next part of Kelley's vision. A trumpeter called Phanael entered, and from the seven parts of the world came seven companies of fiery pillars. The pillars leaned towards Kelly in turn and upon the top of them was a letter, number, or combination of the two. These were compiled into a table, with each row assigned to one of the empty places between the outer hexagon and the heptagram.

Uriel said that these are “the Names of God, not known to the Angels, neither can be spoken or read of Man.”<sup>133</sup> He also gave a list of Latin titles associated with each, which might be an approximate meaning for their name:

SAAI $\frac{21}{8}$ EME $\frac{8}{1}$  – Vivit in Caelis – “He lives in heaven”

BTZKASE $\frac{30}{1}$  – Deus noster – “Our God”

HEIDENE – Dux noster – “Our Commander.”

DEIMO $\frac{30}{1}$ A – Hic est – “This is.”

I $\frac{26}{1}$ MEGCBE – Lux in aeternum – “Light forever”

ILAOI $\frac{21}{8}$ VN – Finis est – “He is the end”

IHRLAA $\frac{21}{8}$  – Vera est haec tabula – “This table is true”

BETWEEN THE POINTS OF THE HEPTAGRAM

Then entered the Daughters of Light, which Dee called the “daughters of goodness.” They were seven young women wearing green gowns, green silk around their heads, and a wreath that hung down to the ground. Each stepped forward in turn, with a blue tablet upon their forehead bearing a mystical name, until all seven names had been collected.

Then entered the Sons of Light, seven young men wearing white attire, white about their heads, and a pendant behind with a wreath down to the ground, akin to the group of young women. ## BETWEEN THE HEPTAGRAM &amp; THE INNER HEPTAGON

Seven little girls entered, known as the Daughters of the Daughters of Light, wearing white attire similar to those who had gone before. They carried something in their hands, but Kelley could not see what it was. Michael said that it was a mystery not yet to be known. Each bore a square tablet made of white ivory upon their breast, which carried a name as follows:

S
Ab
Ath
Ized
Ekiei
Madimi
Esemeli

Their names can be found upon the table starting in the upper left-hand corner and reading diagonally downwards towards the left. The numbers are ignored.

THE INNER HEPTAGON

Seven boys, the Sons of the Sons of Light, entered, wearing purple robes that had hanging sleeves like priests or scholars, and purple silk about their heads. There were green triangular tablets upon their chests, upon which was a name.

Their names are derived from the table, beginning in the bottom right-hand corner and reading up towards the right. The 21/8 is taken as L, which is depicted conjoined with an E for the first name. The 30 with a dot beneath it is taken as L, while the E with the 30 and dot beside it is taken as a conjoined E and L, as before. The other numbers are ignored.

THE SONS & DAUGHTERS OF LIGHT

There were four particular ranks of angels that are collectively known as the Sons and Daughter of Light. The first is the Daughters of Light, who give birth to the Daughters of the Daughters of Light, who give birth to the Sons of Light, who bring forth the Sons of the Sons of 134 The letters E and L were joined as one.

Light. Dee thought this ranking was particularly important, writing: "Note well this Rule of Art."<sup>135</sup>

In the pattern for deriving their names from the table the first two sets read in the same direction, giving Stimcul twice, while the second two sets use reverse directions, giving Esemeli and the opposite spelling, Ilemese. It is not clear what the purpose of this is, but it suggests that potentially we can derive further angelic names from the table, such as the reverse of Stimcul, Lucmits. Reverse names are often depicted as demonic entities in occult tradition, including within the teachings on the Great Table in the Enochian system, but clearly this rule does not apply to these names.

The fact that Stimcul is used twice means that it is the name of both a Daughter of Light and a Son of Light. This might mean that Stimcul is androgynous and could provide some insights into the mysteries of the union of the feminine and masculine.

BETWEEN THE HEPTAGON & THE PENTAGRAM

Dee was then told to take the table once more and read from the top left-hand corner, diagonally down towards the right, and beginning at the next diagonal line until a name of seven letters is formed.

This gives SABATHI. The 21/8 is taken as EL, conjoined as before, giving us Sabathiel, which Uriel commanded be written as Zabathiel. The rest follow the same pattern, with the 26, 8 and 30 becoming L, and the 21/8 become EL. This gives us the following list:

Zabathiel
 Zedekiel
 Madimiel
 Semeliel
 Nogahel
 Corabiel
 Levanael

These are, of course, the planetary angels, derived from the Hebrew name of each planet with the “el” or “iel” appendage. For example, Nogah is Hebrew for “brightness” and is the name given to Venus. Not all of these names are correct, however, such as Semeliel and Corabiel, which should be Shemeshiel or Shemeshel and Kokabiel or Kokabel, based on Shesmesh and Kokab, the Hebrew names of the Sun and Mercury respectively. Dee noted that Corabiel could be found in Peter of Abano's De Elementis Magicis, suggesting that the names were derived in error from such sources or had simply been accepted by the angels, like many other typographical errors from previous magicians, as part of occult tradition.

Uriel described these as “the angels of the 7 Circles of Heaven, governing the lights of the 7 Circles”.<sup>136</sup>

Zabathiel was written around the outer rim of this section, with the I and 21/8 assigned to one section. The next five names were written around the pentagram, with their first letter within each of the five points. The final name was given a prominent position within the centre of the pentagram, divided into four parts around a cross. The significance of this was discussed in Chapter II.

REVERSE OF THE SEAL

The back of the Seal was actually the first part to be delivered, given with the reception of the Table of Practice (see Chapter VII) over a week before the more intricate details of the front of the Seal. The reverse is far less ornate, with a cross that bears two lines at each end, a circle, and the letters AGLA.

One thing that is clear from the start is that AGLA is a notariqon (a Qabalistic form of acronym) of Atah Gibor Le-olam Adonai, which means “Thou art mighty, forever, O Lord.” The phrase was brought to popular use in the Golden Dawn's Lesser Ritual of the Pentagram, where it is assigned to the North.

The cross is similar to those used in other talismans and pentacles and is likely intended to symbolise the power of Christ, or, like with the Black Cross of the Great Table, the Holy Trinity. The circle could represent the Sun or the Earth, the latter being more likely, given the division of it into four quarters.

The fact that this side of the Seal is so simple in comparison to the front suggest that it plays little role in the actual work itself. My own personal work has suggested that it is entirely designed to ground the energy, with the four sections relating to the four directions, elements and other correspondences that we find in Agrippa.<sup>137</sup>

THE USE OF THE SEAL

A large clue to the use of the Seal is in the name itself. The angels emphasised the word Emeth, Hebrew for “truth,” and this is, in my experience, largely what the Seal is for, to ensure truth and accuracy in the skrying work conducted.

The shewstone is placed upon the Seal, which works like a filter to remove erroneous and misleading visions, and a barrier to prevent intruding entities and the wandering thoughts of the subconscious mind. One only needs to experiment by conducting sessions with and without the Seal to see a marked difference in the feel of the energy and the quality of the visions. This application is supported by Michael's comments on the outer circle of the Seal, where he says that no creature that passes within it may leave. This, in effect, becomes the Triangle of Art used in Solomonic magic, ensuring the entities summoned in the stone cannot pass beyond the barrier of the Seal and attack the magician or skryer. Or, to put it another way, it acts as a reverse protective circle, keeping things in it rather than keeping things out. Given Kelley's visions were frequently party to demonic intrusions it is not surprising that this feature is present.

The Seal also acts like a vortex that helps channel the energy released in a working and plays a particularly integral part in a Golden Dawn temple setup where the Watchtower Tablets are placed on each of the four walls. Since energy comes from these towards the altar in the centre (where, in the Golden Dawn system, would also lay the Table of Union), it helps direct the energy and ground it through the bottom of the Seal.

The Sigillum Dei Aemeth is also called by Michael “the Seal of God’s Mercy.”<sup>138</sup> It is not surprising then that Uriel said: “This seal must no be looked on, without great reverence and devotion.”<sup>139</sup> With some of the secret names of God and the names of so many angels within it, I can hardly think of a reason why anyone would not honour its sanctity.

THE TABLE OF PRACTICE

The Table of Practice, also referred to as the Holy Table, is the workplace upon which the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, the Ensigns of Creation (discussed later in this chapter) and the Shewstone are placed. It is, in essence, a magical desktop, comprising of a large working space that contains a central hexagram spanning most of the table, a border of letters, and a small table of letters in the centre.

THE PHYSICAL FORM OF THE TABLE

Dee and Kelley received some detailed instructions for the physical construction of the Table of Practice, which call for it to be square in shape and made from a sweet wood, such as cedarwood.

“You must use a four square Table, two cubtis square. [...] The Table is to be made of sweet wood: and to be of two Cubits high: with 4 feet: with 4 of the former seals under the 4 feet.”<sup>140</sup>

Peterson marks the length of the Holy Table as 36¼ inches by 35¾ inches and 31½ inches in height. Since the length and width are nearly identical, and since the instructions call for the table to be square, I imagine that the discrepancy is an error on Dee and Kelley’s part and that it was intended to be perfectly square. This shows, however, that the angels were not bothered by it being slightly off, and that modern magicians can equally not worry about this.

Beneath the table is two square yards of red silk. A further four square yards of red silk is placed on top of the table, hanging slightly over the edge and bearing a tassel in each of the corners. Beneath the silk on the Table laid the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, and above the silk laid the shewstone, resting upon the Seal. This meant that there was, as it were, a protective layer between the symbols beneath the silk and the skrying stone above it.

The Table itself must feature a border, wherein Enochian letters are written in yellow. The ink used must be “made of perfect oil, used in the church,” but the choice of what oil was left to Dee. It is not clear what oil he eventually used, but I imagine that any oil used in religious services would be sufficient.

In the visions of the Table many things were taken from beneath the Table, which led Dee to ask if there should be a shelf beneath it, but Uriel said that nothing was to be put there. We can probably take this to mean that the magician should not put their legs beneath the table either, but that might be reading into Uriel’s words.

SYMBOLS ON THE TABLE

The main shape of the Table is similar to the Almadel in the Ars Almadel, a Solomononic magical text. This contained a hexagram, two borders, and a triangle in the centre, with many names adorning it. The Table of Practice contains a hexagram, a single border, and a square table in the centre, with many letters or names adorning it.

Ilemese told Dee to make the border an inch in broadness and half an inch in height. The central square should be six inches square. No dimensions were given for the hexagram, but Dee's diagrams display it with thin lines. It should also encompass the entirety of the inner part of the Table, touching against the border, which means that the top and bottom points will be smaller in proportion than the rest.

According to Elias Ashmole, Dee coloured his Table. There are no instructions for this by the angels, suggesting that it was either an invention by Dee, or, more likely, that the diaries containing the instructions failed to survive. Ashmole described the colours as follows: The background of the letters in the central table and the lines of the border were blue. The letters of the border were red. The hexagram, letters in the middle, and the background of the letters in each of the four corners were gold.

The colours for the letters in the border contradict Uriel's instruction that they should be drawn in yellow oil. This might mean that Uriel really only meant the central letters or that the figures are drawn first in a light yellow before being painted over in red.

Ashmole also records colours for "the 7 scutcheons," noting that the lines of these were blue and the letters and figures within them were red. It is not clear what is meant by "scutcheon," but the word generally refers to a round or shield-shaped object. It is most likely that these refer to the Seven Ensigns of Creation, which were laid upon the Table. Dee himself refers to these as "scotcheons."<sup>141</sup>

THE SECOND TABLE OF THE BONORUM

The symbols that adorn the Table were actually delivered over a year after Dee was first instructed to create the Table. The reason for this was largely because the manner of finding these letters required other information, such as the Bonorum and Enochian script, to be delivered first.

I have decided to cover the Bonorum in a later chapter, as the material on them is extensive, so for now it is simply important to note that there are 49 seven-letter angelic names that Dee was given, 14 of which are compiled into tables that are needed to construct the Table of Practice (and also the Lamén, which is covered in the next chapter).

To derive the letters for the border and central table we first need to construct what is known as the Second Table of the Bonorum, which places the Kings and Princes as they are found in the Tabula Collecta Bonorum (see Chapter IX). First Dee was told to make a 12x7 table, into which must be inserted the names of the Kings and Princes of the Bonorum, without their initial B. To illustrate this I have given a chart with their full names and then the chart Dee constructed with the first letters omitted.

THE BORDER

Ilemese told Dee that each side of the border should have 21 letters (which is the number of letters in the Enochian alphabet), but that before these are entered he must put a large B in every corner, which Dee drew facing inwards.

Kelley then saw a series of letters in Enochian, which were to be drawn upon the border starting with the top line, from right to left. These, it turns out, were drawn from the table we previously constructed, which is divided into four sets of three columns. Each column is attributed to one side of the Table, starting with the right-hand column and the top line.

We then take each column and read downwards, starting at the right. For the one assigned to the top this would give us OSOSSL, followed by GENOEE, and finally OFODGGN. This is entered into the border of the Table, beginning at the top right and going anti-clockwise. The same method applies to the other sides, until we are left with the following:

In the finished form of the Table these letters should be written so that they can be read from the outside, so that if the table is turned in any direction the line closest to the magician shows the letters the right way up. The corner Bs are also to be read in this way, being diagonally positioned so that they may serve both lines on either side of them. The letters should also be converted into Enochian script.

THE CENTRAL TABLE

The central table also employed the Second Table of the Bonorum, but with a much simpler method. The central squares, which form a 4x3 table known as “the Heart,” are taken out and then rotated 90 degrees to the left, resulting in the appropriate letters for the central table, which should then be converted into Enochian.

Uriel commanded that they be placed about the Table or Sigillum Dei Aemeth:

“To be laid before thee upon the Table. Or thou mayest place them, (if thou wilt,) continually at the 7 angles of the Holy Seal laying them besides, and against the points or Angles of the Holy Seal: 7 inches from the utter border of the holy Seal, all at once: Or else they may be painted on the Table.”<sup>143</sup>

There is some room for flexibility here, allowing for the talismans to be placed in a pattern upon the Table or else painted directly upon it, which eliminates the requirement that they be made of purified tin. However, painting them on makes it impossible for them to be used in another manner later on, such as being held during ritual.

Casaubon included a picture of how the Holy Table would look with the Ensigns of Creation upon it in A True & Faithful Relation.

143 Ibid., p. 400.

It is important to note that Casaubon's image appears to be flipped horizontally, an assertion first made by Robert Turner, but denied by Donald Tyson. I am inclined to agree with Turner, as Dee's own diagrams do not show this layout used by Casaubon. Interestingly, however, the placement of the Ensigns of Creation are correct, which lends some weight to Tyson's claims.

While little is documented on these in Dee's diaries, Dr. Thomas Rudd's Seventeenth Century CE text A Treatise on Angel Magic gives planetary assignments for them in order as follows: Luna, Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Sol Venus, and Mercury.<sup>144</sup> He also assigns the names of Goetic demons to them, such as Belial and Buer, so those who want to use the system in its original format with its original intent should take Rudd's insights with a large grain of salt.

THE USE OF THE TABLE

Like many other parts of the Enochian system, Dee was given little instruction on the actual use of the Table of Practice. However, Uriel did tell him that "one month is all, for the use thereof," which Dee expanded upon in a footnote: "The use of the Table of Practice is only for one month."<sup>145</sup>

This instruction is rather emphatic, and while we are not entirely sure how to use the Table, we know that it was only intended for a month-long operation. This has not, of course, stopped modern magicians from using the Table for many months, but I would largely attribute that to the fact that so few are aware of Uriel's command.

It might be the case that the time limitation only applied to Dee, whom we are not even sure actually employed the the Table in practice at all. It could also be that this restriction relates to the use of the Table with Liber Loagaeth, which Uriel spoke about in detail directly beforehand.

One potential answer to this mystery is that each magician is supposed to make their own unique Table. I had not considered this possibility until one of my teachers showed me the one he was instructed by the angels to make. It was significantly different to that used by Dee, and it opened a world of possibility for this Table.

The large letter B, or Enochian Pa, in each corner of the Table is significant, not least of all because this letter appears to hold a special place within the system, being the first of the Enochian alphabet, the most common letter on tables belonging to the Ensigns of Creation, and the initial letter of all of the Bonorum angels.

In one working with the angels I saw the four corner squares becoming pillars, which fed light towards the centre of the table, suggesting that the placement of the letter Bs there is not accidental. Using Qabalistic principles we would therefore equate the central 3x4 table with the Middle Pillar, with the large hexagram representing the powers of Tiphareth focusing on the Table.

At one point Dee refers to this Table as Mensa Foederis,<sup>146</sup> which is Latin for “the table of the covenant.” This is interesting, as it relates the Table of Practice with the tablets of the Ten Commandments and other items placed within the Ark of the Covenant:

“For a tabernacle was constructed, the first one, in which were the lampstand, the table, and the bread of the Presence; this is called the Holy Place. Behind the second curtain was a tabernacle called the Holy of Holies. In it stood the golden altar of incense and the ark of the covenant overlaid on all sides with gold, in which there were a golden urn holding the manna, and Aaron’s rod that budded, and the tablets of the covenant; above it were the cherubim of glory overshadowing the mercy-seat.”<sup>147</sup>

The term “tablets of the covenant” is given as “tables of the covenant” in other translations of this passage, and it is likely that the words “table” and “tablet” were used interchangeably in Dee’s time, just as they are for the various tables and tablets used within the Enochian system.

The significance of this reference is that the Table of Practice could potentially have been given to humanity before as part of the collection of items included in the Ark. It might even be that the Ten 147 Hebrews 9:2-5 (NRSV).

Commandments are in some way recorded upon the Table, perhaps in the letters upon the border. This is speculation, of course, but it gives us some additional material to work with when trying to figure out what exactly the Table of Practice is.

The use of the Bonorum names to create the border and the central table suggests that these “good angels” work to provide a protective barrier around the edge, and that they instil the heart of the Table, upon which the Sigillum Dei Aemeth rests, with their holy energy.

The direction in which the letters are placed upon the border suggests an anti-clockwise flow of energy around the Table. Lon Milo DuQuette uses this flow in his Enochian Vision Magick to facilitate entering an alternate form of consciousness by reciting the letters in the same order that they were received.

THE LAMEN

The lamen is a small table that is to be worn upon the chest, much like the Choshen, a breastplate worn by the High Priest in Jewish tradition, and what was most likely the source of the magical lamens required in Solomonian magic.

THE FALSE LAMEN

During Kelley's first session as skryer for Dee an illuding spirit pretending to be Uriel delivered a lamen that is somewhat Goetic in form and very unlike everything else that followed.

The fake Uriel told Dee that this must be made of gold and worn upon the chest, and that it will protect the body in all places, during all times, and on all occasions. Considering this was an evil spirit, however, we can only imagine what the true intent of this lamén is, but it likely contains the name of the spirit in question (revealed later by the true Uriel as Lundrumguffa).

The revelation that this lamén was “false and devilish” came from the angel Ilemese over a year after it was delivered. Dee was understandably perplexed why it had taken so long for the angels to tell him that the lamén was false, but Ilemese assured him that they would have warned him immediately had he tried to make it, yet since he had failed to do so, they so no reason to inform him. This suggests a kind of punishment of withholding knowledge from Dee since he had so far failed to create a number of the tools the angels had bade him make.

This was not the end of the demonic intrusion on the reception of the Lamén, however, as Dee records that Kelley found a slip of paper that contained forgery of his handwriting in a prayer book. This fake was a version of the true lamén, but with numerous mistakes, and when they questioned Uriel about it he said that it was drawn by Belmagel, a wicked angel belonging to Kelley. A sceptic might wonder if this was simply Kelley’s explanation for a butchered attempt at designing the lamén, but Dee evidently did not consider this a possibility, believing instead that wicked spirits were trying to cast doubt into their minds.

THE TRUE LAMEN

Ilemese delivered the true Lamén after his revelation about the fallacious nature of the former one. He told Dee to make a square that is four inches on either side. Kelley then saw letters that were inserted upon the square, which, it turns out, were derived from another Table of the Bonorum.

THE FIRST TABLE OF THE BONORUM

To obtain the lettering given within the real Lamén, firstly we must construct another table of the Bonorum names, this one commonly known as the First Table of the Bonorum (because it was technically delivered before the other one relating to the Holy Table). To do so we take the names of the Kings and Princes, but this time we put them backwards, Kings on the right and Princes on the left. We also assign the proper Princes with their Kings, rather than using the planetary groupings found on the Tabula Bonorum. Additionally, like the Second Table, we omit the initial Bs.

| PRINCES |   |   |   |   |   |   | KINGS |   |   |   |   |   |   |
|---------|---|---|---|---|---|---|-------|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| O       | G | O | N | R | O | B | L     | E | G | O | B | O | B |
| S       | E | F | A | F | E | B | L     | E | L | A | B | A | B |
| O       | N | O | M | T | U | B | R     | O | P | E | N | Y | B |
| N       | O | D | S | I | L | B | L     | O | P | S | A | N | B |
| S       | E | G | R | O | R | B | N     | E | S | P | A | N | B |
| S       | E | G | L | A | R | B | A     | Z | A | M | U | L | B |
| L       | O | N | E | G | A | B | N     | O | G | I | L | A | B |

Thus, the first pairing is Bobogel and Bornogo. When the Bs are dropped and the table is compiled as one, we have as follows:

|   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| O | G | O | N | R | O | L | E | G | O | B | O |
| S | E | F | A | F | E | L | E | L | A | B | A |
| O | N | O | M | T | U | R | O | P | E | N | Y |
| N | O | D | S | I | L | L | O | P | S | A | N |
| S | E | G | R | O | R | N | E | S | P | A | N |
| S | E | G | L | A | R | A | Z | A | M | U | L |
| L | O | N | E | G | A | N | O | G | I | L | A |

THE HEART, THE SKIN & THE FLESH

We then divide this table up into segments, taking 12 squares in the middle, known as “The Heart,” and taking two columns on either side, known as “The Skin.” The remaining squares, surrounding The Heart, are known as “The Flesh.”

This terminology is significant, not only because it tells us how to assign the various letters to the Lamén, but because it hints that the Lamén is a living thing, not just a magical implement. Of course, all of the Enochian tables are living in a sense, as they contain the names and powers of various angels, but this reality appears to apply doubly so for the Lamén, which I have felt pulsating or vibrating when worn, working in an integral way to activate the heart centre.

|   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| O | G | O | N | R | O | L | E | G | O | B | O |
| S | E | F | A | F | E | L | E | L | A | B | A |
| O | N | O | M | T | U | R | O | P | E | N | Y |
| N | O | D | S | I | L | L | O | P | S | A | N |
| S | E | G | R | O | R | N | E | S | P | A | N |
| S | E | G | L | A | R | A | Z | A | M | U | L |
| L | O | N | E | G | A | N | O | G | I | L | A |

These letters are inserted upon the Lamén, with the Flesh segment becoming the border.

Each column of the Heart is attributed to one of the four triangular corners adjacent to the border.

Each of the four corners of the table (part of the Skin) are attributed to the four corners of the diamond-shaped figure in the centre of the Lamén.

A PERSONAL LAMEN

On 17 November 1582 the angel Hagonel, a Son of the Sons of Light and a Prince who leads the Bonorum, told Dee:

“... the Lamen comprehending the form of thy own name:
which is to be made in perfect gold, as is affore said.”<sup>148</sup>

By this stage Dee did not know the initial lamen was false, nor had he received the true version. Thus, the instruction to make it of gold came from an illuding spirit, yet appears to be verified by a true spirit. This suggests that the material, at least, is real, even if the characters upon it are not.

The big question, however, is how exactly the lamen represents Dee's name. It is generally accepted that the shape of it is akin to the shape of the Greek letter Delta ( $\Delta$ ), which Dee used as a symbol for himself throughout his diaries.

When the true form of the lamen was delivered, Dee unsurprisingly wondered where his name might be found.

“The Character or Lamen for me was noted ... that it should contain some token of my name: and now, in this, (accounted the true Character of Dignification) I perceive no peculiar mark, or letters of my name.”<sup>149</sup>

Uriel responded by telling him that the triangular shape in every corner represented Delta and thus his name, which is akin to the reasoning for the false lamen. Indeed, there are numerous triangles hidden within the true Lamen and Dee seemed satisfied with this answer.

However, this raises significant questions for subsequent magicians, because if the lamen includes Dee's name it suggests the lamen is for his use alone. This means that all of the magicians who have worn it afterwards are wearing it improperly. Indeed, the angels might have intended that each magician create their own unique lamen.

Aleister Crowley supported the idea that the Lamén was intended to represent the individual:

“The Lamén is a sort of Coat of Arms. It expresses the character and powers of the wearer.”<sup>150</sup>

Personally I believe there is no representation of Dee’s name in the lamén, as triangles are a general symbol that crop up everywhere and cannot always be taken to honour Dee. I think the promise of Dee’s name within the lamén was designed to play on his ego, which evidently worked, as he likely would not have asked about it again many months later were he not eager to see his earthly name upon it.

The derivation of the letters on the Lamén from the names of the Bonorum also suggests that this is an impersonal tool that employs divine energy that is not restricted to one person.

Ilemese also gives us some insight:

“Never since the beginning of the world was this secret delivered, nor this holy mystery set open, before the Weaklings of the world.”<sup>151</sup>

Clearly this means that the Lamén had been used before, possibly by Adam, and can therefore not be taken to represent Dee alone.

The proof is in the pudding, of course, and I have not had any adverse effects from employing the Lamén, nor heard of any from fellow magicians.

THE USE OF THE LAMEN

When speaking of the false lamén the fake Uriel said that it was to protect the body. There was little else said about the use of the lamén, and considering this advice came from an illuding spirit we cannot necessarily accept it as true.

However, lamens were generally used for protective purposes in magical work, so there is little reason to believe that this is not used for the same reason. It could also be used to identify the magician with certain forces. For example, in the Golden Dawn each officer wears a lamén that contains a symbol representing his or her office.

Regarding how the Lamén should be worn, Michael said: "It must be hanged unseen, in some skarf."<sup>152</sup> Of course, when Dee asked about this he was referring to the false lamén he had received, and thus Michael could have been hinting that it was to be discarded, and thus "unseen." If, however, this rule applies to the genuine Lamén then it should be worn about the neck, beneath one's clothes. This is generally how modern magicians employ it, though some like to wear it over the clothes so that it can be seen during ritual.

Ilemese described the lamén as "an Instrument of Conciliation,"<sup>153</sup> which means to bring together. Exactly what is being brought together is unclear, but DuQuette suggests that this is the Lamén and Holy Table, both of which are derived from the same angelic names.<sup>154</sup> This is likely to be the case, as there is also another link between the two in the fact that in occult tradition a protective lamén generally includes a hexagram upon it, which can instead be found upon the Table.

THE BONORUM

The Bonorum (Latin for “good angels”) are a collective of 49 planetary entities that make up the heart of the Heptarchic system. They are divided into seven groups of seven, with each group consisting of a King, Prince, and five unnamed and undescribed angels whom we shall call Governors. These latter are often confused with the Ministers, but we will explore the true Ministers, of which there are 42 per pairing of King and Prince, later in this chapter.

One interesting thing that a reader will note quite quickly is that all of the names of the Bonorum begin with the letter B, and all 49 contain seven letters, further reinforcing their planetary link. The significance of the letter B is that it is the first letter of the Enochian alphabet, Pa, and appears to hold some special place within the system.

THE DELIVERY OF THE BONORUM NAMES

The names of the Bonorum were delivered in seven tables of 49 squares, which contained both letters and numbers. The tables appeared to burn in fire and stand in fire.

These tables were arranged in a cross, with the first table in the centre, the second and third squashed together to form the top, the fourth to the right, the fifth and sixth squashing together at the bottom, and the seventh to the left, effectively forming a clockwise spiral.

Michael ascribed each of these an aspect of rulership. The first was linked with wit and wisdom, the second with the exaltation and government of princes, the third with council and nobility, the fourth with gain and trade of merchandise, the fifth with the quality of the earth and waters, the sixth with the air and all that fly in it, and seventh with fire and wisdom. Interestingly, Dee wrote in a footnote that he “marveled” that the earth and waters would be assigned to one, but regardless of where they are placed, all four elements are explicitly mentioned here.

These assignments were further emphasised in a later passage where the first table was linked with books, the second with kings and a crown, the third with nobility and robes, the fourth with merchants, water and a multicoloured animal, the fifth with earth and herbs, the sixth with air and a fan, and the seventh with fire and a flame of fire. Here we can see that the four elements are given a separate assignment.

To get the names Dee was commanded to draw a letter from each of the seven tables, starting with the first one filled with Bs. The numbers are the key to the pattern, with every square numbered 1 giving a letter to the first angel. Likewise for the rest until Dee was left with 49 seven-letter names, as follows:

1. BALIGON
2. BORNOGO
3. Bapnido
4. Besgeme
5. Blumapo

TABULA COLLECTA

The Bonorum names were then collected into a circular table known as the Tabula Collecta or Tabula Angelorum Bonorum, a circular table of all 49 names divided by planet. The King is listed, then the Prince, and then the five Governors. For example, for the Venus segment we have Baligon as the King, Bornogo for the Prince, and then Bapnido, Besgeme, Blumapo, Bmamgal and Basledf as the Governors.

What is interesting about this is that the Prince of Venus does not actually serve the King of Venus—he serves the King of Sol instead.

In the Tabula Angelorum Bonorum Dee draws a dotted line from King Bobogel (ruling over Sol) to Prince Bornogo (ruling over Venus) and writes iste est caeteris, which means “and so on.”<sup>155</sup> This clearly meant that the same rules apply to the remaining Bonorum, applying the Prince of one section with the King of the previous one.

Dee was also given the correct match of the Kings and Princes in a description of them and their seals, which acts as a kind of grimoire for Heptarchical work.

The Golden Dawn does not seem to have noticed this command, or more likely noticed it but wanted to keep the Kings and Princes together on the basis of their assigned planet. This is understandable and logical, particularly when trying to keep the planetary correspondences neat, but Dee's material was clear that they do not work like this.

I have personally worked with both the Golden Dawn's pairing and Dee's original and found there to be a definite and marked improvement both in the working itself and the subsequent results while using Dee's pairing. This is one area where I believe the Golden Dawn got it very wrong and needs to change things back to the original format, even if it means the planets do not match up, because many of the Princes are not exactly happy to serve the wrong King, and this will be reflected in the results of such workings.

THE NATURE OF THE BONORUM

The Bonorum are essentially the planetary powers that govern the Earth, as Michael revealed to Dee after the reception of their names:

"Herein lay their names that work under God upon earth.
[...] The whole government doth consist in the hands of 49."<sup>156</sup>

Uriel revealed to Dee the nature of the entities, supporting the view that they are not merely in charge of the other planets, but more specifically have power over the earth:

"Now you touch the world, and the doings upon earth. Now we show you the lower world: The Governors that work and rule under God."<sup>157</sup>

Uriel made their role somewhat more explicit in another passage:

"Behold; I teach. There are 49 Angels glorious and excellent, appointed for the government of all earthly actions: Which 49 do work and dispose the will of the Creator: limited from the beginning in strength, power, and glory."<sup>158</sup>

156 Ibid., p. 166-167.

157 Ibid., p. 166.

158 Ibid., p. 170.

Uriel continues by saying:

“By them shall you work, in the quieting of the estates, in learning of wisdom: pacifying of the Nobilities, judgement in the rest, as well as in the depth of waters, Secrets of the Air, as in the bowels and entrails of the Earth.”<sup>159</sup>

What is interesting about this is that it further supports the idea of these planetary powers working for terrestrial gain, particularly in the mention of three of the elements. One could even argue that the pacifying of the nobles might be considered an act related to the element of fire, completing the elemental makeup of the earthly board upon which the Bonorum play.

Directly before the reception of the names Michael also commented that Dee and Kelly were about to now “touch [the] world, and the doings upon earth.”<sup>160</sup> Likewise, Carmara says that “the Operation of the Earth is subject to my power” and Dee adds a footnote that says: “Kings of the earth, etc.”<sup>161</sup>

All of this is important, as it gives us some insight into how to employ these entities. Because they govern all earthly actions they can be employed for what we, as magicians, might call “low magic;” i.e. magic designed to enhance our earthly existence, such as in securing work, improving our health, gaining fame and riches, and so on.

This view is held by author and magician Nick Farrell, who wrote in Hermetic Virtues<sup>162</sup> that the Bonorum are linked to the Seven-branched Candlestick employed in the Zelator grade of the Golden Dawn. This grade relates to the element of Earth and Farrell argues that the entities are useful for low magic. While this Golden Dawn link will be of little significance to Dee purists, it is interesting to note how both the original system and the more modern Golden Dawn application of it came to pretty much the same conclusions about the use of the Bonorum.

161 Ibid., p. 188.

162 Nick Farrell, The Seven-Branched Candlestick and the Angels of the Heptarchia, Hermetic Virtues, Volume III, No. 11.

Michael concluded these assignments by saying that “the state of the whole earth is known, and all that is thereon,”<sup>163</sup> suggesting that the Bonorum could not only be employed for changes here, but to find out more about our earthly existence, the planet we live on, and so forth.

There also appears to be potential for using these angels in politics, since the nobilities are clearly in positions of political power. Even the fact that these angels are called governors implies they have significant control over the power plays here on Earth. This would have been of significant interest to Dee, who was very keen to use magic to aid his Queen and country as much as possible, as seen in Chapter I.

It is also important to take a closer look at one of Uriel’s lines about the Bonorum. The angels will do the will of the Creator, but they are “limited from the beginning.” This is an interesting phrase, as I take it to mean that the entities cannot do whatever they like, or, indeed, whatever we ask them to do. Whatever requests we make of them must be within their remit and in accordance with the will of God.

This point is even emphasised in their name as the “good angels.” Unlike their counterparts in the Watchtowers, the Bonorum are restricted in their nature in that they can only do “good.” Of course, we can debate exactly what is meant by this, and they have a very different view of morality than us humans do, but essentially it means they will not do something like cause someone to become ill, which certain of the entities in the Watchtowers would have no real problem with.

Michael also supported this view of the Bonorum, telling Dee that that the names received were “not of the wicked, but the Angels of light.”<sup>164</sup>

Carmara told Dee to “open your eyes, and you shall see from the Highest to the lowest,”<sup>165</sup> which he took to mean the ranks of the angels within the Tabula Collecta. This suggests we could perhaps work with all 49 in a single long operation, from the first to the last, in order to better understand the mysteries of God.

163 Joseph H. Peterson, John Dee’s Five Books of Mystery, p. 169.

164 Ibid., p. 166.

165 Ibid., p. 200.

Raphael also provides some insight into how we can employ the Bonorum, saying that we can call them to speak at any time, but that they will only cause effects at their proper times. This likely relates primarily to the Ministers, who are assigned to specific parts of the day, as the Kings and Princes were said to rule the entirety of the day.

“All those before spoken of are subject to thy call. This vessel at all times they greatly accept. Yet have they times and seasons: When order breaketh in herself, the labour is in vain. Every thing is for and to an end. Of friendship, at any time thou mayest see them, and Know what they wilt. [...] Every one, (to be short) shall at all times and seasons, show thee direction in any thing. But, SO, thou canst not use them, in the determination and full end of every practice. It is one thing to affectionate; and another to effect.”<sup>166</sup>

We might think we have a good idea of what the Bonorum are by now, but Uriel presented a mystery about their nature, telling Dee that “the first 29 are more excellent than the rest.”<sup>167</sup> The significance of these 29 was never explained, but it would mean that the angels assigned to the segments of the Venus, the Sun, Mars, Jupiter, and the King from Mercury have a higher place in the system than the remaining Mercurial angels and those relating to Saturn and the Moon.

KING CARMARA AND PRINCE HAGONEL

While the 49 Good Angels all had names beginning with B, Dee also received the names of two other entities who appear to rule over the Bonorum. These are King Carmara and Prince Hagonel.

Carmara appeared as a well proportioned man wearing a long purple robe and a triple crown of gold. Uriel handed Carmara a rod of two parts black and one part red, which Carmara held by the red part, most likely in the middle, as the red parts would merge into one otherwise.

Dee describes Carmara as follows:

“This king only, is the orderer, or disposer, of all the doctrine, which I term Heptarchical, as first, by calling the 7 Princes and after that, the 7 kings: and by giving instructions for use and Practice of the whole doctrine Heptarchical for the first purpose, and fruit thereof to be enjoyed by me: of two other there was only mention made.”<sup>168</sup>

Carmara gives us some insight into his own office:

“My Charge is not of my self, neither do I speak darkly, obscurely or without a truth, in affirming that I taught thee those Tables: For they are from him, which made and created all things: I am from them in power and message, under whom I here rule and shall do, till the end of all things be. [...] I am the disposer though not the Composer of God’s medicines. [...] I minister under thee the strength of God.”<sup>169</sup>

Carmara initially seems like a bit of an enigma, as at times he appears to be a separate entity, while at other times he is specifically called by the name of one of the other Bonorum. For example, on one occasion, 15 November 1582, Dee wrote a note saying: “Carmara, otherwise Baligon.”<sup>170</sup> He does this again later on several occasions, and Carmara himself said that his name is Baligon to Man, but Carmara to the angels. He said he also goes by the name Marmara, but that the M was not to be expressed. He never explained why.

Carmara appears to answer to Michael and Uriel, and perhaps also Raphael, all of whom were present at the beginning and end of the delivery of the material on the Bonorum.

Hagonel called himself Primus et Quartus, the First and the Fourth, and Dee calls him at one stage the “fourth Prince.” To explain

168 Ibid., p. 184.

169 Ibid., p. 209.

170 Ibid., p. 187.

this mystery, Hagonel said that there are three other Hagonels which he governs, so he is the last of the four, but the first governor.

Prince Hagonel bore a seal that looked like a ring with a dot in the centre (often emblematic of the Sun), which appeared to hang over his middle finger. Unlike the symbols of the other Bonorum, this one had a name, which he called Barees. He showed this symbol to “the Multitudes,” some of which flourished, others of which stood, and other still fell. Dee underlined the part about some falling, suggesting that this might mean “death” over literal falling over.

It is interesting to note that the seal of Bnaspen includes the name Hagonel (see page 176). It is not clear why this is, but it may suggest a relationship similar to that of Carmara and Baligon. The problem is that Bnaspen is a King, while Hagonel is a Prince, so they cannot be one and the same, as Carmara and Baligon appear to be, but Hagonel may in some way serve Bnaspen and share the same day and/or planet.

Hagonel is one of the Sons of the Sons that make up the Sigillum Dei Aemeth. All of the seals of the Kings of the Bonorum contain the name of one of the Sons of the Sons. Hagonel is the only one of these, however, to be afforded a special place in the hierarchy of the Bonorum.

A footnote from Dee says:

“Perhaps Bagenol / Hagonel, if H be for B. Then Bagenol contained Bagenol.”<sup>171</sup>

This seems to suggest that Hagonel is an alternative name for Bagenol, just as Carmara is for Baligon.

171 Ibid., p. 194.

THE BONORUM AND THEIR SEALS

In Dee's Fourth Book of Mystery, Quartus Liber Mysteriorum, the angels gave a detailed list of the Bonorum, their appearance and duties, and their seals, opening the doors for their potential evocation.

Dee wrote that all the Princes had red robes and golden circlets upon their heads, clearly emblematic of royalty, although Prince Hagonel, who does not have a place upon the Tabula Angelorum Bonorum, had a shorter robe than the others. Dee was also very emphatic that they wore circlets, "not crowns [or] coronets."<sup>172</sup>

The information given for some of the Bonorum is extensive, while for others there is next to nothing, which makes it difficult for us to know their offices. Even Dee was confused at why some of the Princes (namely Butmono and Blisdon) were set over multiple fields of interest, while the others had such a limited range of powers.

One will recognise the names of some of the Sons of the Sons of Light within the seals for the Kings: An, Ave, Liba, Rocle, Hagonel, and Ilemese. We can probably assume that they serve the Kings in question, or perhaps the other way around.

KING BOBOGEL

Bobogel had a long beard and wore a black velvet coat and trousers, a velvet cap bearing a black feather, velvet stockings with gold lace, slippers, gloves, and a cape hanging from one shoulder. He also wore a purse around his neck and from his girdle hung a gold rapier.

Bobogel spoke the following words:

"I wear these robes, not in respect of my self, but of my Government. I am the Prince, Chief; yea the only distributor, giver, and bestower of Wisdom and Science. I wear this apparel, for that indeed, being a Prince I am a Counselor to estate and dignity. All Dignity and government that is not counseled by me, and my subjects, is frustrate, void, and clean without firm ground."<sup>173</sup>

172 Ibid., p. 188.

173 Ibid., p. 222-3.

Bornogo wore a red robe and a gold circlet. He described his purpose as follows:

“I am he which have power to alter the Incorruption of NATURE. With my seal, I seal her and she is become perfect. I prevail in Metals: in the knowledge of them. I have been in Power with many, but Actually with few. I am of the first of the twelve, the Second of the Seven.”<sup>174</sup>

When Bornogo showed his seal, he said:

“This is it.”

KING BABALEL

Babalel wore a long white robe and seemed to stand upon water. His left arm was white and his right arm was black. His name was written upon his forehead.

As for his purpose, Carmara called him Rex Aquarum, Latin for “King of the Waters,” which ties in with the description of the prince who serves him.

PRINCE BEFAFES

Befafes was a lean figure who wore a red robe under which appeared to be feathers. He also wore a gold circlet and a golden girdle which bore his name.

Befafes described his purpose as follows:

“I am the Prince of the Seas: My power is upon the waters. I drowned Pharaoh: and have destroyed the wicked I gave life unto the seas: and by me the Waters move. My name was known to Moses. I lived in Israel: Behold the time of God’s visitation. I have measured, and it is ‘8’. [...] I will manifest the works of the seas, and the miracles of the deep shall be known.”<sup>175</sup>

KING BYNEPOR

There is no description of Bynepor, but the previous description of the Bonorum suggests he wore a red robe and a gold circlet. We know nothing of his office.

PRINCE BUTMONO

Butmono wore a red robe and gold circlet. Kelley described him as speaking with a hollow voice which he could not make out, since they were the words of his creation, which Kelley was not worthy to understand. Then Butmono described his nature as warden of the dead:

“My power is in Earth: and I keep the bodies of the Dead. Their numbers are in my books. I have the key of Dissolution. Behold, Behold, All, yea All things, have their workmanship with me. For I am the end of working. [...] I have the light of his anger, and I will destroy it. O, O, Behold, It is a light left within the bottomless pit. It is the end of the Last. [...] It grieveth me to register the bones of the Wicked.”<sup>176</sup>

Speaking of his name he said: “It is the end of all things.”

The mention of buried things prompted Dee to ask Butmono about hidden treasure, to which he said:

“Behold, the bowels of the earth are at my opening. [...] O worlding thou shalt be satisfied with wealth of this world. [...] I have hoarded treasure, for the son of perdition, the first Instrument of his destruction. But, lo these Caverns. Mark this, All spirits, inhabiting within the earth, where, their habitation is, of force, not of will, (except the midst of my self, which I know not), are subject to the power hereof. With this you shall govern, with this you shall unlock. With this (in his name who reigneth) you shall discover her entrails.”<sup>177</sup>

He showed the caverns to Kelley, but they are likely only symbolic. The object he refers to as granting power over the spirits of the earth and unlocking her mysteries is his seal.

KING BNASPOL

Bnaspol wore a red robe and a crown, presumably of gold.
Of his office he said:

“All the Earth with her bowels and secrets whatsoever are delivered unto me. And what I am there thou mayest know. I am great, but he, in whom I am, is greater than I.”<sup>178</sup>

177 Ibid., pp. 197-198.

178 Ibid., p. 240.

PRINCE BLISDON

Blisdon wore a robe of many colours and a gold circlet. Within his bosom is hidden a viol with five or six spoonfuls of oil in it, which he calls “a mystery.”

Blisdon described his office as:

“I am life and breath in Living Creatures. All things live by me, the Image of One excepted. Behold the face of the Earth. Lo, all these, do I endue with life: my seal is their Glory. Of God I am Sanctified: I rejoice: (1) the Living, (2) The end, and (3) beginning of these things are known unto me: and by sufferance I do dispose them until my Viol be run.”<sup>179</sup>

Bnaspol said that unto Blisdon “are delivered the keys of the Mysteries of the Earth.”<sup>180</sup>

KING BNAPSEN

Bnapsen wore a crown upon his head and likely also a red robe.

Speaking of his office, he indicated that he is in charge of exorcisms:

“All enchanters, Conjurors, witches, & Wicked spirits that are hated of God, and included forever in outward darkness. [...] are all at my government. By me, thou shalt cast out the power of all wicked spirits. By me thou shalt know the doings and practices of evil men, and more than may be spoken or uttered to man.”

PRINCE BRORGES

Brorges wore red apparel under which burned a terrible fire which “no mortal ever could abide to look upon any long while.”<sup>181</sup> Speaking of this unsightly fire, he said:

“O I would show thee, but flesh and blood cannot see. [...] I have known the Gate of Death. [...] O, Muse note, My words are dark; but with those that see, light enough. And the Glory of God has struck the walls of the wicked. I have spoken.”<sup>182</sup>

KING BALIGON

Baligon is Caramara and thusly attired. Speaking of his office, he said:

“Behold I am of time present. I am of the last Ternary. Look what may be wrought, in all aerial actions, I can distribute and bestow at my pleasure: my time and day, is Friday.”<sup>183</sup>

PRINCE BAGENOL

Bagenol's description and seal are omitted, which Dee also noted. However, Dee thought him to be Hagonel, or at least a higher version of him, which seems likely, and thus the description of him and his office applies here.

Prince Bagenol's seal is that of Prince Hagonel (the ring called Barees). See page 169.

KING BLVMAZA

There is no description of Blumaza, but the previous description of the Bonorum suggests he wore a red robe and a gold circlet. We know nothing of his office.

183 Ibid., p. 243.

PRINCES BRALGES

Bralges wore a red robe and a circlet. He spoke of his office:

“The Creatures living in my Dominion are subject to my power. [...] The powers under my subjection are Invisible. [...] I will teach the names without Numbers. The Creatures subject unto me shall be known unto you.”<sup>184</sup>

Kelley saw many little smokes without form, and Dee noted that Bralges must be a ruler of the element of Air.

HAPTAGONUM STELLARE

The seals of the seven Princes were collected into a unified seal or talisman called the Heptagonum Stellare, or Star Heptagon.

We do not know much about this seal or its intended use, but Kelley thought it was made of copper, which Dee noted as appertaining to Venus. Interestingly, Venus is also attributed to the first section of the Tabula Collecta, which might suggest it is somehow of great importance to Bonorum work.

It also gives us something to work with in terms of constructing the seal physically and employing it within ritual. It was possibly intended to be held during an evocation, with the magician holding the point relevant to the Prince in question, or perhaps it was to be rotated so that the seal of the applicable angel was on top.

Note how the seal for Bagenol/Hagonel now has what looks like a cross that could be used to slay vampires. Unfortunately, we do not know why this was appended, as Dee recorded: “I have forgotten how I came by this Cross annexed to it.”<sup>185</sup> We can only assume that it was a correction given by the angels or made by Kelley, either with or without Dee’s knowledge. It is interesting how this altered form has a marked resemblance to the glyph for Venus (♀).

THE MINISTERS

Under each Prince are 42 “ministers of God his wrath,”<sup>186</sup> making 294 Ministers in total. They carry out the duties associated with the office of each Prince and his King.

The process of the delivery of the Ministers’ names was extremely complex and contradictory, with so much confusion over the counting of six or seven letters that Dee frequently asked for it to be simplified.

Dee was also told that these ministers rule over parts of the day, with each of the primary six ruling four hours each. We can likely assume that the remaining ministers also rule these same divisions of the day, or rather best serve during these time periods. The Kings and Princes rule the entire day relevant to their associated planet.

THE DELIVERY OF THE NAMES

The manner in which the names of the Ministers were derived is perhaps the most obscure part of the Heptarchic system, so obscure, in fact, that Dee only discovered it after long pleading that it be “made somewhat plainer” to him.

Carmara constantly harked on about the relation of these tables to the Tabula Collecta and the cross-shaped collection of the seven 49x49 tables. The pattern does indeed employ the names of the Bonorum from the Tabula Collecta, but in an odd manner for each group of Ministers.

Firstly, the first five groups took the names from each section of the Tabula Collecta, barring the first, which contains Baligon. This is likely because Baligon is Carmara and the ruler of this system, and thus his section holds a special use. The patterns used for these are simple, going either completely diagonally or two up or down and then diagonally across.

The sixth group took the names of each of the Kings in turn, but axed Baligon. The name of the final angel on the Tabula Collecta, Bamnode, was used in his place, but instead of going first it came last, in respect to the kingly rank of the other six names. The pattern is diagonally downwards for the first name, with the second one beginning one letter down. Unfortunately, this meant that only part of the name, getting progressively smaller, was found in this way, leaving us to find the letters in somewhat random places elsewhere.

The seventh and final group belongs to Baligon or Carmara himself and thus can employ the full list of the Kings, with Baligon in its proper place at the start. The pattern is a simple line downwards in each row starting with the second.

Diagrams showing these patterns can be seen with their respective Ministers.

THE MINISTERS OF KING BLVMAZA & PRINCE BRALGES

Of these Ministers, the first six carried whole crowns, the second six carried three quarter crowns, the third six carried robes, and the remaining three groups of six carried gold balls, which they cast to each other like balloons.

The first six are the primary authority, which Dee records as being “more glorious than the rest,” wearing longer robes and gold circlets upon their heads. Carmara told Dee that for positive purposes he should only work with the first six:

“In all good causes thou shalt work by six in general. The rest are for Deprivation: I mean the next six.”<sup>187</sup>

The remainder serve the intent and purposes of the King. This likely has something to do with the symbolism of the crown versus three quarters of a crown, as the second group appears not to have the full authority of the Prince. The rest appear to have no authority at all, acting entirely as servants, as it were.

It is interesting that for these Ministers the language began with references to six, then shifted to seven. Dee was confused by this, but it seems that the intent was that they were first organised as six rows, and then reckoned as seven columns. This would make the first six OAYNNL, rather than OESNGLE.

Carmara explained the purpose of these Ministers as such:

“... 42, in generally, or one of them do and can work the destruction, hindrance or annoyance of the estate, condition or degree, as well for body as government, of any wicked or ill living Prince.”<sup>188</sup>

187 Ibid., p. 206.

188 Ibid., p. 212.

This clearly means that the Ministers work to control the politics of those in power on Earth, and so the magician can employ them to affect the course of government. Dee was obviously intrigued by this notion and immediately asked how he could put it to use to “have the King of Spain his heart to be inclined to the purpose I have in hand.”<sup>189</sup> The angels gave a formula for this work which can be found in the follow-up to this book, Enochian Magic In Practice.

THE MINISTERS OF KING BOBOGEL & PRINCE BORNOGO

The first seven wore similar attire to Bobogel, but the remaining number wore rough clothes. The final seven wore gowns that seemed to belong to women at the front and men at the back. All of the Ministers danced, leapt about, and kissed.

The first group of seven disappeared in a flame of fire. The second group fell down like dross of metal. The third collapsed in a thick smoke. The fourth vanished like drops of water. The fifth fell like a storm of hail. The last group simply vanished away. These associations could be employed to attribute elemental correspondences to each group of Ministers, with the fifth group representing a mixture of the elements and the sixth representing Spirit.

These were also broken up into four groups of three, with the first and third groups (LEE and BLN) being accepted by Bobogel, while the second and fourth groups (NAR and ANA) are rejected by him. The remainder sat between Bobogel and the rejected. The first group appears to be related to nature, the second to Adam, the third to a pyramid, and the fourth to chaos.

THE MINISTERS OF KING BABALEL

All of these Ministers appear to relate to water, like their Prince and King. The first group took water and threw it up into the air, so that it became clouds. The second group threw it up so that it became hail and snow, and they know all about fishes and monsters of the sea and they are the distributors of God's judgements upon the waters. The third group conduct the waters through the Earth and beautify nature in her composition. The remaining three groups distribute and deliver the treasures and unknown substances of the sea.

This is either a huge mistake in the system, in the delivery from the angels, Kelley's astral sight, or Dee's documentation, or it is a great mystery that has yet to be unlocked.

TRANSMUTATION

Donald Tyson suggests that the names of the 42 Ministers are obtained through a process of transmutation,<sup>192</sup> which Dee would have been familiar with from his Qabalistic studies. The impetus for this likely comes from a comment by Carmara:

"I have told thee, that their workmanship is together. Their names are upon these tables. The first letter, is the Second letter, of the first name of the Table."<sup>193</sup>

192 Donald Tyson, Enochian Magic for Beginners, p. 106.

193 Joseph H. Peterson, John Dee's Five Books of Mystery, p. 207.

This is undoubtedly a misreading of the text, as Carmara was really talking about how to derive the names from the tables of the Bonorum. Carmara's comments elsewhere suggest that each letter on its own is considered one of the 42 Ministers, not the 7 letters across as Tyson assumes.

However, if we accept Tyson's approach we would begin the name of each Minister with one of the letters and then rotate the remaining letters around it. This sounds more complicated than it really is. It simply means that we take each letter in turn to begin a name, with the previous letters rotating around to the back of the name. Thus in OESNGLE we take the second letter, E, and read onwards, moving the previous first letter, O, to the end of the name, giving FENGLEO. The same pattern is used for the rest, making SNGLEOE, etc.

I do not believe this method was instructed to Dee at all, but it might be a good way to come up with a longer and more usable name for each of the Ministers.

THE MEANING OF THE BONORUM NAMES

We do not know the exact translation of the names of the Bonorum, but there are several recognisable elements to their names, which can be found in the Calls.

For example, we encounter the word BUTMON in the Seventh Call, which translates as "hath opened his mouth." This means that the name of the angel BUTMONO most likely means something along the lines of "he who hath opened his mouth," making him potentially very good with issues of communication in addition to his other roles over the dead and treasure.

Likewise the name of the angel BEFAFES is most likely related to the word FAFEN from the Third Call, which means "to the intent that." The angel's name may mean something like "He who intends" or "He who has intent." This gives us an inkling into one of his potential areas of expertise, which could be to help find direction and come up with actionable goals.

Unfortunately similar links cannot be found with all of the names of the Bonorum, leaving us to rely on the sometimes scant descriptions of them and their duties, the possible application of them on what we know from each planet's associations, and our own personal dialogues with them about their nature and role.

THE TABLET OF NALVAGE

The Tablet of Nalvage, also known as the Tablet of God, Round Table of Nalvage, or Corpus Omnium,<sup>194</sup> is a small table that was delivered directly before the Calls, making it, perhaps, one of the first parts of Enochian proper, or maybe a bridge between the Heptarchical system and what we traditionally consider as Enochian magic.

This table was delivered in a skrying session on 10 April 1584, displayed first as a round table made of mother of pearl, in the centre of which stood the angel Nalvage.

194 "Body of All;" see Aaron Leitch, The Angelic Language, Volume I, p. 117.

THE NAME OF GOD

The name IAD, Enochian for “God”, can be read in the four corners of the Tablet:

THE CONTINENTS

The entire Tablet is broken up into four 3x3 Tables called Continents and four four-letter names attached to each side (one four-letter name per Continent), as follows:

|                  |   |   |   |
|------------------|---|---|---|
| H C R V          |   |   |   |
| LUAH | I | D | Z |
|                  | A | O | I |
|                  | M | Z | R |
|                  | B | N | A |
|                  | D | A | Z |
|                  | I | A | B |
|                  | S | A | I |
|                  | G | O | D |
|                  | V | R | R |
|                  | F | O | S |
|                  | S | E | A |
|                  | R | D | I |
| L A N G          |   |   |   |
| H C A S          |   |   |   |

The Continents are enumerated as follows, in distinct contrast with the enumeration of the Watchtowers on the Great Table (see Chapter XI):

|   |   |
|---|---|
| 2 | 4 |

Dee was told that the first two of these divisions were dignified, the third was not dignified but would be, and the last was without dignification entirely. This is clear in the names assigned, with the third group named after what Qabalists would call the World of Action or Form, and the final group carrying names of death and despair.

Within each of the Continents can be read three names, beginning with the IAD we previously noted:

In addition to a Latin name for a “Life” assigned to each IAD, three Latin words were given for each section, the first two corresponding to the remaining three-letter words within the Continents, and a final word commonly seen as representing a choir of angels corresponding to the four-letter words around the perimeter of the Tablet, as follows:

First:

|               |   |              |   |      |
|---------------|---|--------------|---|------|
| Vita Suprema  | - | Supreme Life | - | IAD  |
| Gaudium       | - | Joy          | - | MOZ  |
| Praesentia    | - | Presence     | - | ZIR  |
| Laudantes     | - | Praisers     | - | LVAH |
| or Triumphant | - | [Choir]      | - |      |

Second:

|              |   |             |   |      |
|--------------|---|-------------|---|------|
| Vita Secunda | - | Second Life | - | IAD  |
| Potestas     | - | Power       | - | BAB  |
| Motio        | - | Motion      | - | ZNA  |
| Ministrantes | - | Ministers   | - | LANG |
|              | - | [Choir]     | - |      |

Third:

|              |   |            |   |      |
|--------------|---|------------|---|------|
| Vita Tertia  | - | Third Life | - | IAD  |
| Actio        | - | Action     | - | SOR  |
| Factum       | - | Fact       | - | GRV  |
| Confirmantes | - | Confirmers | - | SACH |
|              |   | [Choir]    |   |      |

Fourth:

|                  |   |                |   |      |
|------------------|---|----------------|---|------|
| Vita, quae etiam |   | Life, which is |   |      |
| est mors         | - | also Death     | - | IAD  |
| Luctus           | - | Mourning       | - | SER  |
| Discordia        | - | Discord        | - | OSF  |
| Confundantes     | - | Confounders    | - | VRCH |
|                  |   | [Choir]        |   |      |

These words are generally accepted by modern magicians as representing a phrase, with the meanings loosely derived from the translation of the Latin when the meaning of the Enochian is not clear (which is the case for most of them). We would therefore have:

|               |                                     |
|---------------|-------------------------------------|
| ZIR MOZ IAD - | "I am the Joy of God"               |
|               | or "The Presence of the Joy of God" |
| ZNA BAB IAD - | "The Power of Motion of God"        |
| GRV SOR IAD - | Action and Fact of God"             |
| OSF SER IAD - | "Mourning and Discord of God"       |

Different authors have given slightly different variations of this based on alternate translations of the Latin, or to make the phrase sound better in English. See Rowe's Enochian Magick Reference, Leitch's The Angelical Language, Volume II, and DuQuette's Enochian Vision Magick for their translations.

THE HOLY TRINITY

Dee was also informed about the "make-up" of the entire Tablet in relation to the Christian Trinity:

|                            |                                                                                                                          |

MOTION ON THE TABLET

The direction in which the various names are derived from the Tablet suggests an element of motion, which is supported by the fact that "Motion" is one of the names or powers within the Tablet itself.

When we take all of the IADs together they form clockwise pattern around the Tablet. This pattern can also be found in the second set of three-letter names, starting with MOZ.

When we look at the direction in which the names of the Choirs are derived, it is anti-clockwise, as are the remaining three-letter names towards the centre of the Tablet. This suggests that the circumference and centre of the Tablet direct energies in one way, while the main body of the tablet directs it in the opposite, creating an energetic push and pull effect.

IAM

ZIR

Firstly, “ZIR” is Enochian, meaning “I am.” This could be clearly seen to tie in with the literal English “IAM” on the other side, read in the same manner.

Secondly, the “ZOD” in the middle is notable, given there was mention of “Z extended” (as Zod) in this particular working, extending MOZ (“Joy”) to “Mozod” (“Joy of God”).

It is possible, therefore, and quite likely, that there are more names of God, angels and choirs hidden within this Tablet when read in different ways.

THE USE OF THE TABLET

The Table of Nalvage is even more mysterious than many of the other tables or tools delivered to Dee and Kelley, with absolutely no instructions for use and very little description to give us an inkling of its intended purpose.

One possible clue lies in the words of Nalvage after he finished the delivery:

“Bear with me, for it is easy for you, but hard for me. [...] Thus I have made plain this body generally: The particulars are long, hard and tedious. Thy name be blessed, O God, which canst open a means, whereby thy powers immediate may be opened unto man.”<sup>198</sup>

If Nalvage, who would later deliver the Calls, found it difficult to provide this Tablet it must carry a potency that is well beyond most other elements of the system. Nalvage's words suggest it can grant humanity great powers, the nature of which we can only speculate.

Leitch gives a possible explanation by linking the four Continents with four Christian Ages:

"The first portion, which is dignified, would relate to the time period from Genesis 1:1 to the point of the Deluge. The second portion, also dignified, would follow the Deluge and represent history up to the time of the Crucifixion of Jesus. The third portion, not yet dignified, represents the present—which has not yet been fulfilled. Finally, the fourth portion, without glory or dignity, represents the End Times (Tribulation) and the reign of the Antichrist. Therefore the Table of Nalvage ... encompasses the entire Universe from the beginning of time to the end."<sup>199</sup>

This view would certainly fall in line with what Nalvage described, and would represent the power of Life and Death, the rise and fall of civilisation. The Continents could be seen as the phases of the Earth, surrounded by the choirs of angels, always in a state of motion.

Rowe notes that the Tablet's "size and described nature suggests that it might be a lamen to be used with the magick that follows it."<sup>200</sup> This is a strong possibility, particularly since it shares a very similar shape to the inner section of the Lamen. Indeed, this tablet might be intended to replace the Lamen used with the Heptarchic system (which contains the names of the Bonorum) and instead align the magician to the Great Table, which is, like this tablet, divided into four sections.

Another possibility is that since Nalvage was seen standing upon the tablet then it is to be inscribed upon the floor, with the magician in the centre. This seems unlikely to me, however, and I imagine Nalvage would have instructed Dee to do so were it the case.

Since so little is known about this Tablet I can only recommend that an inquiring magician seek out the counsel of Nalvage himself, to whom the Tablet is usually attributed.

XI

THE GREAT TABLE &
THE WATCHTOWERS

The Great Table, the Watchtowers, or the Elemental Tablets in the Golden Dawn tradition, are perhaps the most well-known aspect of Enochian magic, and, perhaps because of this, one of the most misunderstood.

On the surface these tables appear to show a random string of letters, and some who have delved into the derivation of the angelic names therein have found it immensely confusing, but the reality is that the Great Table appears outwardly complex, while carrying an inner simplicity.

Speaking of the depth and volume contained within the Great Table, Dee said:

“I do know assuredly that there is very much matter in this Table.”<sup>201</sup>

THE TABLES OF ENOCH

The nature of these tables can be found in a long speech given by Ave directly before their reception, where he links them with the books of Enoch, which he wrote in 50 days.

Ave explained that God was merciful to Enoch, appearing to him and showing him “the use of the earth.” Enoch pleaded with God to show these mysteries to others that followed, that they might not be forgotten.

But the kings of the Earth grew arrogant, thinking themselves invincible because of the powers that were like unto God granted by these books. They began to counterfeit the workings of God, which angered him, and the memory of Enoch was but a whisper in their minds.

So God sent 150 lions, and spirits of wickedness, error and deceit, and they taught the kings false doctrines, which have still survived unto this day. Dee labelled these “wicked magicians,” whom Ave said are in league with demons.

Yet despite this history of dark deeds past, Ave said:

“Now hath it pleased God to deliver this Doctrine again out of darkness: and to fulfil his promise with thee, for the books of Enoch: To whom he sayeth as he said unto Enoch. Let those that are worthy understand this, by thee, that it may be one witness of my promise toward thee. Come therefore, O thou Cloud, and wretched darkness, Come forth I say out of this Table: for the Lord again hath opened the earth: and she shall become known to the worthy.”<sup>202</sup>

A dark smoke then left the table, leaving behind a golden slime. The Cloud clearly symbolises ignorance, which befuddled the minds of Man and stopped us from understanding these mysteries. The golden slime was landed upon by small black flying creatures like moths, and the table itself was filled with little glowing worms with heads, which slithered up and down. I consider these, and the gold slime, to be “angelic larvae,” a primitive form from which the angels grow and become larger. These same creatures are also, in my view, the Cacodaemons of the system, which are expounded upon in Enochian Magic In Practice.

202 Ibid., p. 341.

The overall gist of Ave's message is that God previously granted these mysteries of power over God's creatures to Enoch, but due to Man's sin they were taken away, only to now be revealed again to pious worshippers like Dee and Kelley.

This passage is one of the primary sources for the name "Enochian" when applied to this system of magic, and given the powerful imagery involved and the proposed link back to such an iconic biblical figure, it is easy to see why.

KELLEY'S DREAM & THE GOLDEN TALISMAN

On Wednesday, 20 June 1584, Kelley received a vision while lying awake in bed of a procession of angels marching out from the Watchtowers. He seemed to be alerted to this vision by an angel adorned in feathers, who patted him on the head.

This is generally called a "dream" by commentators, but is actually more of a daydream or a straightforward vision. The distinction is important, as most of Kelley's interactions with the angels occurred in the waking world.

Kelley saw four castles at the four parts of the world. A trumpet sounded within them and a coloured cloth was thrown out of each castle upon the ground. The cloth in the East was red, in the South white, in the West green with large knobs upon it, and in the North black.

Then a trumpeter emerged from the gate of each Castle, carrying a strange wreathed trumpet that grew larger towards the end. After him came three ensign bearers, followed by six ancient men with white heads carrying staves. Then appeared a "comely man" wearing a robe that flowed long behind him, and five men carrying up his train. Then came a great cross surrounded by four smaller crosses, all floating in the air in a white cloud, with the larger appearing like a rainbow. On each part of the cross was the face of a man. After them came 16 white creatures, followed by "an infinite number," who spread themselves out orderly.

The contents of this dream were later explained by Ave as relating to the Great Table, the manner in which we will now explore.

THE RECEPTION OF THE GREAT TABLE

Kelley saw a table that was eight yards square and consisted of a grid of 13x12 squares within it. Within the centre of each square was a dot. Then letters appeared, which Kelley found difficult to draw at first until a fire flashed in his face and he was granted an astral sight. This is similar to what happened when he first recorded the letters.

Kelley continued documenting these until he was left with four tables:

MPH/Water

Since it is necessary to refer to these tables individually I have assigned the names usually employed by both the Golden Dawn and Dee purists, with the latter taking the first Holy Name of God that was born by one of the ensign bearers. Note that each table, or Watchtower, did not have an official individual name.

These tables were then collected together into what is known as the Great Table, adding an extra line of squares between the tables so that there was a cross that effectively “glued” them together. This was known as the Black Cross and will be covered later in this chapter.

ORIGINAL TABLE VERSUS REFORMED TABLE

One of the big debates in Enochian circles is which of the two Great Tables to use, the original or the reformed. Both versions are very similar, but some letters are different and the placement of each Watchtower is changed.

On 24 June 1584 Ave delivered what has since become known as the Original Great Table.

On 20 April 1587 the Reformed Great Table was delivered by Raphael, not long before the angelic workings came to a close and Dee and Kelley parted ways.

Reformed Great Table

Many dismiss the legitimacy of the Reformed Table on the basis that it appears that Kelley went off to correct the mistakes he noticed in it, particularly with the fact that the names of the Governors did not match up with those found in the Table.

The thing is, the idea of the angels correcting things that were previously delivered is not something that is limited to the Great Table. The Lamens, for example, was replaced entirely with a new version, while several other parts of the system received minor corrections throughout the entire process. Those who employ the Original Table generally do not employ the other uncorrected material, which shows up some of the holes in this line of reasoning.

The fact that Kelley received the Reformed Table on his own means that Dee was not there to verify the visions, but if Kelley was faking the entire thing then he could have just as easily done so within Dee's presence, as per the countless sessions they had for many years before. Dee documents that Kelley returned "within an hour or somewhat more,"<sup>204</sup> which does not seem to me to be long enough for someone to attempt to work out any discrepancies within the Table and correct all of them.

One strong argument against the use of the Reformed Table, however, can be found in a note written by Dee on the same night the revised version was delivered:

"Because I have found so much halting and untruth in E[dward] K[elley] his reports to me made, of the spiritual Creatures, where I have not been present at an Action: and because his memory may fail him, and because he was subject to ill tempers, I believe so much hereof as shall by better trial be found true, or conformable to truth."<sup>205</sup>

This suggests that Dee had some doubts about Kelley's reliability when conducting workings alone, not necessarily because he thought he was a fraud, but more that he thought Kelley was liable to alter things he heard from the angels ("in his purpose of utterly discrediting those Creatures," as Dee records in a note directly after the one above) or forget things that were reported, which Dee would have otherwise meticulously documented.

While it is clear that Dee questioned the material delivered to Kelley on his own, he still wrote on the same day that he "greatly rejoiced in spirit" when Kelley brought him the tables, suggesting that the Reformed Table, at least, was not one of the things he doubted.

Another criticism levelled against the Reformed Table is the fact that it was delivered directly after the angels asked Dee and Kelley to perform the wife-swap. There are two possible reasons for this timing: Kelley wanted to placate Dee by giving him something he wanted in return for something Kelley wanted, or the angels wanted to placate Dee for the same reasons. It is difficult to say which is more likely.

204 Ibid., p. 589.

205 Ibid., p. 587.

The original Golden Dawn, and most modern Golden Dawn magicians, use the Reformed Table, primarily due to tradition, but also because it is the most logical of the two transmitted.

Note that for the purposes of this book I will be using the Reformed Great Table.

THE FOUR SEALS

Before the letters of the Great Table appeared, Kelley was shown four seals. The Golden Dawn employed these with each Watchtower, stylising them a little and adding colour based on their elemental associations. The only colour Kelley saw for them was a “dim dunnish, or ashy colour.”<sup>206</sup>

The first was of a letter T, on top of which appeared four beams of “clear colour bright.” The Golden Dawn interpreted these as a Hebrew letter Yod. Ave linked this with the T with the letter 4 above it that began the circumference of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth.

The second was a cross (+). Ave relates this to the cross found in the final square on the table that contained the names of the seven archangels who stand before the presence of God.

The third was another cross, but this time containing a lowercase B in the upper left, another lowercase B in the lower right, a 6 in the upper right, and a 4 in the lower left. Ave said that it can be found in “that table which consisteth of 4 and 8,”<sup>207</sup> which is probably a reference to one of the Ensigns of Creation, where this seal, and another like it, can be found.

The final seal took the form of a “little round smoke, as big as a pin’s head.”<sup>208</sup> Dee stylised this into a circle surrounded by 12 rays, which the Golden Dawn interpreted as 12 small Yods.

The Golden Dawn versions are obviously considerably more artistic, while Dee’s versions are rather crude, but they are essentially the same thing. The Golden Dawn also employed colour for their versions of the seals, which gives them a bit more power and makes them that little bit more pleasant to look upon.

THE BASIC LAYOUT

The basic layout of the Great Table is as follows, featuring four Watchtower Tablets and a Black Cross dividing (or uniting) them:

Each Watchtower on its own is a quarter of the above, as follows:

Each Watchtower also divides into four sub-angles, as follows:

THE BLACK CROSS & THE TABLET OF UNION

Ave told Dee to take the names of the three Governors who rule the Tenth Aethyr of ZAX (see the following chapters), LEXARPH, COMANAN, and TABITOM, and arrange them into a 4x5 table, dropping the initial L.

BITOM

This table is what the Golden Dawn would use and refer to as the Tablet of Union. Dee recorded this table in his diaries, but it was used as a means to an end to form the Black Cross and clearly was not intended to become a table of its own. However, it is certainly functional and works well with a Golden Dawn approach to the Enochian system.

The Golden Dawn attributed the elements, including spirit, to each square, and then each name to one of the Elemental Tablets (EXARP to the Air Tablet, etc.).

The names can be read across in their existing form, or downwards to make five four-lettered names: EHNB, XCAI, ONTA, TORM, and MPAA, beginning each with the letter that intersects the relevant element in both row and column. In the OSDL we also employed transmutation to derive three other names from each of these. For example, EHNB would grant HNBE, NBEH, and BEHN.

The first of these vertical names is given considerable prominence in the tradition by modern magicians, being considered the “Secret King” in the OSDL, “the archangel of archangels of the elements” by Lon Milo DuQuette,<sup>209</sup> and various other epithets that suggest this entity has a considerably high rank, acting, as it were, as ruler of the Tablet of Union, or the Black Cross, and thereby the Great Table as a whole.

THE TRINITY IN THE GREAT CROSS

Each Watchtower is divided into four, like the division of the Great Table itself. This division led to the Watchtowers sometimes being called angles, with their four divisions considered sub-angles. The dividing section for each Watchtower is a large cross made up of two columns and one row, again mirroring the divider of the Black Cross on the Great Table, though this latter only employs one column. This large cross is known in both Dee and Golden Dawn material as the Great Cross.

The Great Cross is divided into three sections, each of which is attributed to a member of the Holy Trinity.

The horizontal line is assigned to the Holy Spirit, called the Linea Spiritus Sancti.

The two vertical lines are assigned to God the Father and God the Son. Ave said that “God the Father is a standing Pillar,”<sup>210</sup> but commanded Dee to divide this pillar in two to get the Father and the Son. It is important to note that Ave stated that God the Father is the pillar without the dividing line, meaning that the two columns must be taken together.

The Golden Dawn calls this pillar Linea Dei Patris et Filiique, which translates as “the line of God the Father and the Son”. However, Regardie at one point calls them the Linea Dei Patris (Line of the Father) and Linea Dei Filiique (Line of the Son) for the left and right lines respectively, ignoring Ave's original instructions. Since they were not divided like this in Mathers' paper, we can only assume that it was an error on Regardie's part or that of one of his teachers.

THE NAMES UPON THE TABLE

Hidden in the apparent chaos of letters upon the Table is a very orderly system for deriving the names of many angelic entities, in addition to some names for God. All of them follow a pattern, which is replicated in the same manner throughout each Watchtower.

THREE NAMES OF GOD

In the very central horizontal line of each Watchtower are three names of God, one of three letters, one of four letters, and one of five letters. These are called the Three Great Secret Holy Names of God in the Golden Dawn.

For example, on the ORO or Air Table we have the names ORO, IBAH, and AOZPI. These are usually taken together and were called the Three-fold Holy Name in the OSDL, but they are technically three different names of increasing power and potency.

In Kelley's vision these are the names carried upon banners carried by the ensign bearers. They are therefore sometimes called the Banner Names. Ave's explanation of the vision describes 12 banners and 12 names of God, so we can also take each letter individually as a name.

The significance of the division into three, four, and five could be seen to represent the elements in their three different distinctions: 1) the three primary elements (Air, Water, Fire); 2) the four traditional elements (Air, Water, Fire, Earth); and 3) the five elements pertaining to the pentagram (Air, Water, Fire, Earth, Spirit). Other possibilities, which are not mutually exclusive, include alchemical, planetary and zodiacal correspondences.

In my studies I also came across the following passage which provides an interesting potential Qabalistic source for this division of God's names:

"Pico inspired the work of Johannes Reuchlin, the first non-Jew ever to write on the Qabalah. His premise was that the history of mankind is based on three periods. In the first period God revealed himself to the Jewish patriarchs through the three-fold name 'שד', Shaddai. The second period was that of Moses and the Talmud, when God appeared as the four-lettered name, 'יהוה' (the Tetragrammaton). Finally, came the period of man's redemption through Christ, when God revealed himself as the five-lettered name 'יהושua', Jeheshua."<sup>211</sup>

Dee was also told that the line across which these names can be found is called the Linea Spiritus Sancti, or the Line of the Holy Spirit.

THE KING

The name of the King begins in the fifth square from the left of the Linea Spiritus Sancti, and goes in a clockwise spiral, taking one of the two central letters at the end, or, in the Golden Dawn system, taking both. In the Golden Dawn he was known as the Elemental King, while in the OSDL we called him the Solar King to avoid confusion with the Great or Supreme Elemental King (see pages 233-239).

211 Robert Wang, The Qabalistic Tarot, p. 24.

Dee was told to employ the left-hand central square for comiter<sup>212</sup> (Latin for “friendly”) and the right-hand central square for in extremis Judiciis (Latin for “in extreme Judgement”). For example, in the ORO or Air Tablet we have BATAIVA in his merciful side and BATAIVH in his severe side.

The Golden Dawn employed both letters, making BATAIVAH, which many critics have labelled as an example of the Order’s ignorance. As pointed out in Chapter II, however, the Golden Dawn leaders were well aware of this distinction and clearly chose to employ both letters to retain balance, a fundamental principle in the Order’s teachings.

The Golden Dawn assigned the King to the Sun, which is where the OSDL got its name for him.

Ave said that the King calls forth the Seniors, which is understandable given that he essentially begins their names. Based on the use of the merciful or severe letter of his name we can postulate which form of him rules which Senior, but this is conjecture.

212 Skinner gives this as comuniter, which is Latin for “commonalty,” a word which generally refers to those without rank in a group. This offers a potentially very different meaning from Casaubon, but we can also perhaps take it that the King in this form is “one of the people,” as it were, and thus easier to approach than his severe counterpart.

THE SENIORS

The names of the Seniors are drawn from the Great Cross, reading from one of the central two squares either upwards, downwards, or to either side, granting the names of six seven-lettered angels or four of seven letters and two of six letters.

For example, in the ORO or Air Tablet we have two names that read upwards: AAOZAIF and HTMORDA; two that read downwards: AVTOTAR and HIPOTGA; and two that read to the left or right, making up six or seven letters (the latter employing both central squares instead of just one): ABIORO or HABIORO and HAOZPI or AHAOZPI. Ave said to employ the extra letter “when the wrath of God is to be increased.”<sup>213</sup> Most magicians employ these all with seven letters for consistency.

In Ave’s expounding of Kelley’s vision he referred the 24 Seniors, or “old men,” to the Elders that St. John the Divine wrote of in his Book of the Revelation. The passage in question reads:

“Around the throne are twenty-four thrones, and seated on the thrones are twenty-four elders, dressed in white robes, with golden crowns on their heads.”<sup>214</sup>

214 Revelation 4:4 (NRSV).

Since the Seniors gathered in a circle in Kelley's vision we can presume that God's throne lies within that circle. This reference to the final book of the Bible could also be taken as a hint that the entire schema of the Great Table in some way relates to what St. John saw in his own vision.

Describing their purpose, Ave said:

"These judge the government of the Castles, and fulfil the will of God, as it is written."<sup>215</sup>

Ave also said that their "judgement is of God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost."<sup>216</sup> This is clearly a reference to the three lines from which they are drawn, and it seems that these are not arbitrary assignments, but reflect the actual nature of the entities themselves.

The Golden Dawn assigned the Seniors to the planets in the following pattern:

My experience with these entities has shown that they are mostly concerned with "higher affairs," the teaching of history, the making and breaking of the world, the nature of Man and angel, and similar philosophical discussion.

This is supported by a comment by Ave, where he describes them as giving "scientiam rerum humanarum et judicum," which is Latin for "knowledge of human affairs and judges." He expanded this by saying that this knowledge is giving out according to their parts, being different for the Seniors of the East than the Seniors of the West, and so forth.

215 Stephen Skinner, ed. Dr. John Dee's Spiritual Diaries, p. 335.

They are not to be employed for purposes of material gain, requests for which they will respond fairly negatively to. Other angels that are lower in the ranks, in addition to the Bonorum, are more appropriate for these requests.

THE CALL AND COMMAND ANGELS

To get the names of these angels we take the Calvary Crosses (or what Dee called the Transversary) in each sub-angle and read downwards for the name of the one who calls or summons and across for the one who commands. In the Golden Dawn these were known as the Calvary Cross or Sephirothic Cross names, based on the shape of the cross and the Order's attribution of the Sephiroth to the squares.

For example, in the ORO or Air Tablet we have IDOIGO and ARDZA.

In Kelley's vision these relate to the four little crosses that surrounded the Great Cross. Ave said that the crosses "have ten faces," which means that they are comprised of ten squares, each of which can be considered an angel in its own right. My own experience shows the central letter of this cross, which is employed in both names, to be more powerful than the rest.

In the OSDL we employed the name Call and Command Angels, based on Ave's description of their use as follows:

"That one [Idoigo] is to call them, the other [Ardza] is to command them."<sup>217</sup>

217 Ibid., p. 350.

KERUBIC ANGELS

The four squares above the Calvary Cross, two on either side, become the name of a Kerubic Angel. This name is drawn from the Golden Dawn, based on its attribution of the Kerubic astrological signs to these squares. Dee was never provided a name for these entities.

For example, in the ORO or Air Tablet we have RZLA.

There are also three more names hidden within this by way of permutation. We begin the second name with the second letter of RZLA and rotate the first around to the end, making ZLAR. By this same process we get the remaining two, LARZ, and ARZL, so that each letter begins the name of an angel in turn.

Dee was also instructed to employ the instructions for prefixing names (see later in this chapter) to these angels to derive a superior form of the angel, which in the OSDL we called the Archkerubs or Kerubic Archangels and what Lon Milo DuQuette calls the Super Kerubs. An example of an Archkerub would be ERZLA (RZLA with the prefix E drawn from the Black Cross, per Dee, or Tablet of Union, per the Golden Dawn). Ave said that ERZLA rules RZLA, and thus my advice is that one should call the prefixed form first.

Ave referred to the prefixed variant as “the name of God which governeth” the unprefixed one. This terminology is important, as it suggests that these names are attributed to God and therefore are not really angels at all. It is not entirely clear if this is the case, but regardless, it does not make a whole lot of difference in practice.

Ave related these squares to the the name INRI, which Pontius Pilate hung above the cross upon which Jesus was crucified. It is believed to be Latin for Iesus Nazarenus, Rex Iudaeorum, which translates as “Jesus the Nazarene, King of the Jews.” Ave appears to suggest that Pilate employed this name of four-letters above the cross in honour, unknown to him, of this form employed in the Great Table.

Ave assigned a purpose to the Kerubic angels on the basis of which sub-angle they were in. Those in the upper left-hand sub-angle were in charge of “the knitting together of natures,” those in the upper right-hand to “carrying [from] place to place,” those in the lower left-hand to “hand-crafts or arts,” and those in the lower right-hand to “the secrets of kings.” The same assignments apply to all four Watchtowers.

DISPOSITORS

The names of the 16 Dispositors can be found in the 16 squares beneath the Calvary Cross in the same manner as the Kerubic Angels. The name “Dispositor” comes from the Golden Talisman, but they are called Servient Angels in the Golden Dawn.

For example, in the ORO or Air Tablet we have CZNS as the first Dispositor.

Ave did not tell Dee to employ transmutation for these angels, but the Golden Dawn adopted the process from that used for the Kerubic Angels. Thus for CZNS we have ZNSC, NSCZ, and SCZN.

In Ave's expounding of Kelley's dream these are the 16 white creatures.

The Golden Dawn's name for these angels is derived from Ave's explanation of their purpose as the “angels who serve to that cross.”

Ave assigned a purpose to the Dispositors on the basis of which sub-angle they were in. Those in the upper left-hand sub-angle are in charge of medicine, those in the upper right-hand “have power over Metals,” those in the lower left-hand rule transformation, and those in the lower right-hand relate to the four elements. The same assignments apply to all four Watchtowers.

DuQuette postulates that the Dispositors might actually be the Kerubic Angels, but then we would be left with no name for these entities, and thus no better off than before. His theory largely centres on the fact that there are, by way of transmutation, 16 Kerubic Angels in each Watchtower. However, since transmutation was not overtly stated for the Dispositors, with Ave instead referring to only four angels of this rank per sub-angle, there are only 16 of these per Watchtower too. The name Dispositor signifies angelic entities who dispose of, or carry out, both God's and the magician's will. Based on experience with both the Kerubic Angels and the Servient Angels, I can state emphatically that the latter are more deserving of this title.

CACODAEMONS

These “evil spirits” (the literal translation of their Greek title) are derived from the squares that make up the names of the Dispositors or Servient Angels. However, only two of these letters are taken, and are then prefixed from the Black Cross.

Note that only the squares below the horizontal arm of the cross can make up Cacodaemon names, as the squares belonging to the Kerubic Angels “have no participation with Devils.”<sup>218</sup>

Ave was clear that they were not to be summoned, but rather bound. The Cacodaemons are treated in more detail in the follow up to this book, Enochian Magic In Practice, which also shows how to work with them.

HIDDEN ANGELS

Dee was given a large number of angelic ranks to work with, but we can find additional ones hidden within the framework of the Table using the same methods of derivation. These are not canon, of course, and would upset the overall layout employed in Kelley's vision, but they have been shown to work, so I share them here in the hopes that some magicians find them useful.

The first two sets of angels below were mentioned in Dee's diaries, but the method of finding their names was left out. The second two sets were never mentioned, but are the logical extension of the system.

THE PRINCES

The Princes, who answer to the King, are a set of angels who were mentioned in Dee's material, yet their names or method of derivation was never given. The first hint of them came in Kelley's vision:

"Then followed a comely man, with very much apparel on his back, his robe having a long train. After him came five men carrying up of his train."<sup>219</sup>

One possibility is that their names could be derived using a similar spiral technique to that employed for the King, giving us four Princes per tablet.

But what of the fifth Prince? On first glance, while the above suggestion seems like a nice one, fitting logically into the system, the figures simply do not add up. However, there is a potential solution to this missing fifth Prince.

219 Ibid., p. 333.

Ave calls the King on two occasions a “Prince,” which suggests to me that he likely doubles as one of these Princes. This could perhaps be seen in the way originally two forms of the King’s name can be derived from the tablets (BATAIVA and BATAIVH, for example).

Let us look at Ave’s exact words to better understand what I have proposed above:

“In each of these Houses, the Chief Watchman is a mighty Prince, a mighty Angel of the Lord: which hath under him 5 Princes.”<sup>220</sup>

This might seem ambiguous at first, but I believe it is quite clear in light of my above suggestion. The King, who is confirmed in a footnote by Dee as the Chief Watchman, is also a mighty Prince. But there are effectively two Kings (depending on the severe or merciful aspect), and only one can be in power at a time, relegating the other to the role of Prince. Thus there is the King who has under him five Princes, one of them being the heir to the throne.

In light of this, my proposal for the Princes is as follows:

The Five Princes of the ORO or Air Tablet are:

BATAIVH or BATAIVA (depending on who is actively King)
RIZOD
IAAUO

And for the MPH or Water Tablet:

RAAGIOS or RAAGIOL
AOCGB

---

220 Ibid., p. 335.

And for the MOR or Earth Tablet:

ICZHIHA or ICZHIHL
 NAAGN EADAN
 LOIMP

And for the OIP or Fire Tablet:

- EDLPRNA or EDLPRNA (some switch letters here to differentiate the names)
- LNAAO
- BVUDA
- IUDLO
- RRFIZ

THE TRUMPETERS

Another enigma is the Trumpeters, who also feature in Kelley's dream, but whom are suspiciously absent from the Great Table. Dee described what Kelley saw:

"There appeared to him [Edward Kelley] four very fair Castles, standing in the four parts of the world: out of which he heard the sound of a Trumpet. [...] Out of every Gate then issued one Trumpeter, whose Trumpets were of strange form, wreathed, and growing bigger and bigger toward the end."<sup>221</sup>

More details, albeit minimal and vague, were given by Ave as follows:

"The Trumpets sound once. The Gates open. The four Castles are moved. There issueth 4 Trumpeters, whose Trumpets are a Pyramis, six cones, wreathed."<sup>222</sup>

Unfortunately, we were never told who the Trumpeters are, nor were we given a method to derive their names from the Tablets (assuming they are even to be found there). However, since all the other members of the procession belong to the Tablets, and since, indeed, they all proceed from the Castles, which are the Watchtowers themselves, it follows that the Trumpeters are to be found there also.

My proposal is that the Trumpeters are the two central letters of the Watchtowers, based on several factors, the reasoning for which I will explain below. Firstly, let us note the names in question:

|                                           |    |
|-------------------------------------------|----|
| Trumpeter of the ORO or Air Watchtower:   | AH |
| Trumpeter of the MPH or Water Watchtower: | SL |
| Trumpeter of the MOR or Earth Watchtower: | AL |
| Trumpeter of the OIP or Fire Watchtower:  | AA |

During my research into the Trumpeters, and after having come to the above conclusion, I was pointed to a work entitled The Key of It All by David Allen Hulse, who seems to have come to the exact same conclusion as me, albeit independently and long before I began working with Enochian magic (his book was published in 1996). On his website, Hulse explained the purpose of the Trumpeters as follows:

“The trumpeter announces the entrance of the King into the center of the watchtower. As such, he is the two lettered mantra that appears at the center of the watchtower. Since the trumpeter is connected to sound, this two lettered formula, when chanted, opens up the watchtower’s power from the exact center of each magic square of 156 letters. The two lettered formula should be chanted as two separate letters. Its sounding announces the entrance of the King who spirals at the center of the Watchtower.”<sup>223</sup>

The problem with Hulse’s explanation is that the two letters at the centre of the tablet do not begin the name of the King (thereby announcing it), but end it (thus the King would have entered before the Trumpeter, which is illogical if the Trumpeter was designed to directly announce the King). The traditional instructions also call for only one of those two letters to be used, depending on the desired aspect of the King, either severe or merciful. The two-letter name at the centre of the Watchtower Tablet does, however, still serve as an annunciary, in that it begins (and thus announces) the names of all 6 Seniors, as outlined above. The relationship with the Seniors is further strengthened by the fact that their trumpets were made of six cones.

223 http://www.geocities.com/d\_a\_hulse/multques-2.html

While we might assume that the King came first, this is not so, as shown below:

“There issueth 4 Trumpeters [...]. There followeth out of every Castle 3, holding up three Banners displayed, with ensigne, the names of God. There follow Seniors six, alike from the 4 Gates. After them cometh from every part a King.”<sup>224</sup>

The Seniors followed the 3 Ensigns who carried the Banners containing the Three Holy Names of God (ORO IBAH AOZPI, etc.), who in turn followed the Trumpeters. It was not until the Seniors went forth that the King followed. Thus, the Trumpeters do not directly announce the King, but moreso the Ensigns and the Seniors. It is interesting to note that the Trumpeter names I suggested also play a huge role in the Three Holy Names of God, since they are the central squares of the Linea Spiritus Sancti from which the Three Holy Names are derived (i.e. the AH of ORO IBAH AOZPI).

Dee asked Ave for more details on the Trumpeters on 2 July 1584:

“Ave. ... What will you?

Δ. If it please you, the solution of the former 8 questions first.

Δ. 1. As of the five Princes, what held up the train of the King.

Ave. .... The knowledge of them helpeth not now.

Δ. 2. Secondly of the Trumpeter, what it betokened.

224 A True & Faithful Relation, p. 171.

Ave. .... It hath no relation to these Tables.

Δ. 3. Of the letters of the Transversary, I would know your will.

Ave. .... They are, as the other, but for a peculiar practice.”<sup>225</sup>

Some people argue that Ave’s statement that “it hath no relation to these Tables” equals a definitive dismissal of any way of deriving the Trumpeters’ names from the Great Table, but the context of his statement seems to indicate otherwise. The problem here seems to be a matter of interpretation. Reading Dee’s diaries clearly reveals how contradictory the angels are, and how much they evade giving direct answers (a tactic frequently used by entities in many magical systems, including the Qabalah and Goetia). Many of the things the angels say are open-ended or open to interpretation, or, indeed, completely contradictory and confusing.

So, what does Ave really tell us in the above passage? Almost nothing. He gives no straight answers. We find out nothing about the Princes, the Trumpeter, or the Transversary. He basically says, in the vein of a magic 8-ball, “Ask again later.”

As for his exact words regarding the Trumpeter, Dee asked “what it betokened,” which is, effectively, “what it indicates” or “what it means.” Note he did not ask specifically what the names of the Trumpeters were, so Ave’s answer is not “they are not in the Tables,” but rather “it has no importance to the Tables I am giving to you.” By my theories and experience, the two-letter named Trumpeters are of little true importance, since they do not really do much (due to the limits of their office and nature), and I think this fits with what Ave said.

Now let us address the concern of whether or not these two-letter names are similar to the two-letter names of the Cacodaemons, one of the possible criticisms of my theory. Some believe that all two-letter names in this system signify an evil or negative force, but this is an erroneous view. The Cacodaemons are base energies, equivalent to the idea of “angelic larvae,” a term employed by one of my teachers. They are extremely myopic, and therefore cannot see or do anything beyond their limited scope of office.

225 Ibid., p. 360.

Since the squares within the Great Cross of each Watchtower are attributed (by the Golden Dawn) to Spirit, a two-letter name here is not equivalent to a Cacodaemon (which in the Golden Dawn system would be attributed to one of the four elements), but rather the base level of Spirit.

Lon Milo DuQuette wrote the following on the Trumpeters:

“The first character to issue from each of the castles was the trumpeter. The trumpeters are the Great Seals of the tablets. In our example (the Elemental Tablet of Fire), the seal is the image of the sun emitting rays.”<sup>226</sup>

While this is just as viable a theory on the Trumpeters as mine, this is never stated in the original material, nor have I found anything to suggest that this is the case. Even Dee was still unsure of what these entities were, and where to find them on the Table, as can be seen in the following query he made on 27 June 1584:

“1. Remember, I have not yet heard any thing of the 5 Princes which held up the train of the chief King.
2. Neither any thing of the Trumpeter which went before all.”<sup>227</sup>

He went on to list a number of other things he wished some clarity on, but they were all ignored. Therefore, we cannot say for certain what is and is not in relation to the Princes and Trumpeters.

However, there are other issues with DuQuette’s suggestion, as firstly the Trumpeters came out from the castles themselves, and therefore must reside in them. They came after the coloured cloths were thrown out, and before the Seniors, which reside in the Tablets. It is only logical to assume that they too must reside in the Tablets.

The Seal is indicative of a name (a procedure explored in the Golden Dawn and outlined later in this chapter), but is the Seal of the entire Tablet as a whole. It is my experience that this Seal and the name that can be derived from it is representative of the entire Watchtower.

RULING ANGELS

These names are derived in the same manner as the Call Angel, but starting in one of the two squares on either side of the Calvary Cross, and reading downwards.

These names can be taken in six letters or five letters (omitting the letter from the Cross). Both are effective, but the five-letter variant is more logical with the rest of the system (see page 246 for more on this). All of them derive their power and authority from the Kerubic angels, to which they serve, drawing their energy downwards from their respective square.

These six-letter names rule over the Servient Angels and can thus be called Ruling Angels, a name we employed in the OSDL. The first rules over the four Servient Angels found as is in the sub-angles, while the second rules over the four transmuted names that begin with the second letter of the original, and so on for the others.

THE GREAT OR SUPREME ELEMENTAL KINGS

The Great Elemental Kings (or Supreme Elemental Kings in the Golden Dawn) are never mentioned in the original material, and are, therefore, a matter of speculation, experimentation, and the ability of new magicians to expand upon the system that Dee and Kelley received. Their addition to the system comes from the work of the Golden Dawn, where the names of these beings were drawn from the Seals attributed to each of the Watchtowers:

“Thou shalt know that these four seals be taken from the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, after and according unto a certain guidance of letters which is there set forth.”<sup>228</sup>

The original document, written by Mathers, gave the following warning: “These names are not to be lightly pronounced.”<sup>229</sup>

Expanding upon this, Regardie gave the following distinction between the Kings (BATAVIA/H, etc.) and the Great Elemental Kings:

“The King of the Quarter bearing the Banners of the Names of God is planetary in nature, representing rather the operation of the divine spirit through the Element and its four sub-elements. Whereas, the King whose name is derived from the Sigil is a powerful elemental force. His operation is essentially elemental, and his nature is elemental, and he does not represent in any way the operation of the Spirit. That is not to say that he is an evil force. On the contrary; but it is purely and intrinsically an elemental force and as such should be handled by invocation with great care.”<sup>230</sup>

My limited exposure to the Great Elemental Kings supports Regardie’s experience. They are, in essence, the primal forces from which the Watchtowers derive their power, but they are impossible to communicate with (any more than one can communicate with lightning or a sandstorm) and are chaotic and difficult to control. In the OSDL our highest ranking officers were required to work with these, but I can honestly say that their sheer force is more detrimental to the magician than good. It is like working with the entire Watchtower in one go.

In Kelley’s vision the Watchtowers were described as follows:

“The 4 houses, are the 4 Angels of the Earth, which are the 4 Overseers, and Watch-towers, that the eternal God in his providence hath placed, against the usurping blasphemy, misuse, and stealth of the wicked and great enemy, the Devil. To the intent that being put out to the Earth, his

230 Ibid., p. 659.

envious will might let bridled, the determinations of God fulfilled, and his creatures kept and preserved, within the compass and measure of order.”<sup>231</sup>

This passage clearly equates the Watchtowers (or Castles or Houses) with four mighty angels, who appear to be separate to all of those contained within. My experience has shown that these forces are both places and beings, powerful beyond measure, and even if the Golden Dawn got it wrong in naming them, they certainly exist within the schema of the system.

One might think that the Golden Dawn pulled the names for these entities from thin air, but there are at least two occasions in the diaries that suggest we can derive more names from the circumference of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth.

In the instructions for generating names from this outer circle, Michael said that Dee would find “the 7 principle Names known with us, and applicable to thy practice.”<sup>232</sup> This is significant, as it means that there are definitely more names that can be drawn from the Seal in this manner, though they are deemed of a lower rank than the seven “principle” ones employed by Dee.

A more explicit reference to the Seals of the Watchtowers and their relation to this process can be found in a note made by Dee:

“The T of Enoch’s Tables seemeth to answer with the T first in the Seal of Aemeth, and the cross also.”<sup>233</sup>

One major problem with these names, however, is that they do not entirely follow the rule. Aside from the apparent mistakes in the calculations, Michael stipulated that any cases where there was a double A should result in one of the As being dropped. This means that THAHEBYOBEAATANUN should become THAHEBYOBEATANUN, THAHAAOTHE should become THAHAAOTHE, and OHOOOHAATAN should become OHOOOHATAN. The multitude of Os might also be condensed, but since such an occurrence never appeared in the names being derived from the Seal a rule in this regard was never employed, and we can therefore not assume that it must take place.

The Golden Dawn employed these names with its pronunciation notes, which I have used above. In the following instructions I give both the original names and their pronunciation guides in brackets.

THAOLOG
(TAHAOELOG)
Great Elemental King of Air

To obtain the name of the Great Elemental King of Air, we must look upon the outer circle of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth as we would to obtain the various other names upon that device. Given the Seal of the Great Elemental King in question, we have four Yods above a large letter T, effectively the number 4 above T. This, as seen by the strip representing the outer “wheel” of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, is the first letter and number combination, giving us our first letter for this name. We then follow suit by moving rightwards by four spaces (not by the number shown above or beneath each given letter, as we would for the names upon the Sigillum Dei Aemeth), until we get to a letter that has a blank space in place of a number. This gives us the following:

|   |    |    |    |   |    |
|---|----|----|----|---|----|
| 4 | 22 | 20 | 18 | 1 |    |
| T | h  | a  | o  | 8 | og |

THHBYBAATNN
(THAHEBYOBEAATANUN)
Great Elemental King of Water

To obtain the name of the Great Elemental King of Water, we must look upon the outer wheel of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth as we would to obtain the various other names upon that device. Given the Seal of the Great Elemental King in question, we have a Cross Potent (Tau), with the numbers and letters b.4.6.b. Obtaining this name is a little more difficult and messy than the one above, but we start in a similar way. The Cross is a Tav in Hebrew, which is generally transliterated by Hermeticists as “Th,” so while we start at 4.T. at the beginning of the wheel, this is actually written as Tav (Th) in the name of the Great Elemental King itself (as shown below). From there we move four places to the right, as per the number given. Then we insert the first Special, which is shown in the Seal itself (b.4.). Now we must go back to the previous letter and number combination (22.h.), but instead of going 22 places to the right from there, we go 22 places from the beginning of the strip, coming to y.14. After this we must insert our second Special, which also seems to tie in with the first Special in that a bastardised version is given four spaces to the right (10.b. – but the Special is 6.b.). From here we simply move 6 places to the right for every subsequent number until we get to a blank (n), giving us the following:

|    |    |   |    |   |   |   |   |    |   |
|----|----|---|----|---|---|---|---|----|---|
| 4  | 22 | b | y  | 6 | 6 | a | t | 14 |   |
| Th | h  | 4 | 14 | b | A | 5 | 9 | n  | n |

THHAAOTH
(THAHAAOTHE)
Great Elemental King of Earth

To obtain the name of the Great Elemental King of Water, we must look upon the outer wheel of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth as we would to obtain the various other names upon that device. Given the Seal of the Great Elemental King in question, we have a Cross Potent (Tav), which, as above, suggests we start with the first combination on the strip (4.T.), albeit spelled as Hebrew Tav (Th). We would then use the normal way of obtaining names from the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, going right for the upper numbers and left for the lower until we get to the first blank (h), giving us the following:

|    |    |    |   |    |    |   |
|----|----|----|---|----|----|---|
| 4  | 22 | 11 | a | o  | t  |   |
| Th | h  | A  | 5 | 10 | 11 | h |

ωHOOOHATN
(OHOOOHAATAN)
Great Elemental King of Fire

To obtain the name of the Great Elemental King of Water, we must look upon the outer wheel of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth as we would to obtain the various other names upon that device. Given the Seal of the Great Elemental King in question, we have a series of circles and 12 Yods. The circle suggests we start with 6.ω. (Omega - long O), and then we move 12 places to the right for each subsequent number until we get to the second (not first, which is another irregularity) blank, giving us the following:

|   |   |   |    |    |    |   |   |   |
|---|---|---|----|----|----|---|---|---|
| 6 |   | o | o  | 22 | H  | 6 | t |   |
| ω | h | 8 | 17 | o  | 12 | A | 9 | n |

The major flaw with this one is that Kelley did not see a circle with 12 Yods, but rather a “little round smoke.” This could definitely give us the O, but it would not give us the number to move 12 spaces. A more appropriate number, drawn from the lower-case Omega, is 6, which would give a different name entirely. However, to counter this, Dee did record 12 rays around the circle in his diagram, so the Golden Dawn did not pull this number out of nowhere. It is not clear if Dee was simply doodling a figure to represent smoke or if there was supposed to be significance in the choice of the number 12.

PREFIXING NAMES

Dee was instructed by Ave to prefix names to make them stronger. At one point Ave states:

“If it be an incurable disease (in the judgement of man) then add the letter that standeth against the name, and make him up five: then he cureth miraculously.”<sup>234</sup>

In a sense, prefixing makes the angel stronger. The instructions for prefixing these names were given by Ave:

“[Ave:] ..... The letters that join those names, which may be put before the names of the four Angels of the four crosses in every angle, (as well from the right, as the left), is the name of God, whereby these Angels, are called and do appear.

Δ. An example (I pray you) give of this rule.

[Ave:] ..... As in the first of the black crosses thou hast, 'e'.

Δ. So it is.

[Ave:] In the first four of the right side thou hast 'r' beginning the name of the Angel Urzla: put 'e' to it, and it changeth the sound, into Erzla. Erzla is the name of God that governeth, Urzla.

Δ. And likewise the other three above the cross are governed by that name of God, Erzla.

[Ave:] ..... Take* X which is the next letter: look under the Cross in the first angle; thou hast 'C z' (then o, in the cross:) then 'n s'. Call it 'C zod-en es:'

* In the cross of union, or the black cross."<sup>235</sup>

These instructions led to two very different methods of prefixing, one developed by the Golden Dawn based on the Table of Union, and the other used by Dee from the Black Cross. I will explain both of these methods, but first I want to highlight what exactly prefixing actually does.

Most people have a hard time understanding the purpose of prefixing names, of whether or not it really changes anything, and if a prefixed and un-prefixed Angel are the same or different. I will (like Ave to Dee) give the example of the Kerubic Angel of the upper left-hand (Air of Air in the Golden Dawn) sub-angle: RZLA. If we prefix this (by either the Golden Dawn or Dee method) we get ERZLA. This is the Archkerub. Likewise, a prefixed Servient Angel would be called a Servient Archangel.

It is the same base spirit, but ERZLA is more "intelligent," as it were, and much more likely to be of help than his un-prefixed variant. Ave informed Dee to prefix the name to give it more power, if, for example, a cure for an incurable disease (in the estimation of man) was sought. By adding the prefix one is, in essence, adding the weight of the Tablet of Union or the Black Cross to the mix, making the energy much more potent.

Generally-speaking (though, it must be noted, not always), the more letters in the name, the more “intelligent,” higher ranking or powerful the Enochian angel is, barring a few exceptions (such as a four or five-letter Kerub being higher in scale than a four or five-letter Dispositor or Servient Angel, given it is spiritual, not elemental, in focus). Likewise, the less letters there are in an Enochian name, the more “wicked” or “base” it is (i.e. elemental, dense, dross, etc.).

To illustrate this:

2 Letters: Cacodaemons (without the prefix)

3 Letters: Cacodaemons (with the prefix)

4 Letters: Dispositors or Servient Angels & Kerubim (without prefix - Kerubim, however, always comprise a higher level of authority and spiritual potency, despite them having the same amount of letters as Servient Angels)

5 Letters: Dispositors or Servient Angels & Archkerubim (with prefix), Command Angels (having more authority than the others)

6 Letters: Call Angels, Ruling Angels

7 Letters: Seniors, Kings (when choosing only one final letter)

8 Letters: Kings (when choosing both final letters)

12 Letters: Three Names of God

X Letters: Great Elemental Kings (having substantially more letters than the rest)

The above should give a general indication of how this works, with the more letters increasing the potency and authority of the being in question (just as adding a spiritual aspect to our previous makeup of mental, emotional, and physical aspects would do for us).

This is not a steadfast rule, however, and should only be utilised for grasping the basic concept, not for rigidly defining a being by the number of letters in its name. An example of how this does not apply is the Tablet of Union, which has both four letter and five letter names, yet these are higher in status than the four and five letter names of the individual Watchtowers. To understand this we need to recognise that the Tablet of Union is a spiritual table, with the Black

Cross that unifies the four Watchtowers representing the four rivers of Eden, being, therefore, highly spiritual in quality. Likewise, the Kerubim lie above each Calvary Cross, being spiritual in essence, whereas the Dispositors or Servient Angels, lying below the cross, would coincide with the four elements of physical creation. This explains why these beings retain the same number of letters, yet differ in potency and authority in the Enochian system.

As a general rule of thumb, it is best to use the prefix. I have found this particularly notable when working with Cacodaemons, as the prefixed variant is much easier to “handle.”

THE GOLDEN DAWN METHOD

In Golden Dawn Enochian, a name from an elemental portion of the Tablets is often prefixed by a letter from the Tablet of Union, which, in a sense, puts it under the rulership of Spirit. This takes the “edge” off certain elemental energies, making them less chaotic or basal.

Prefixing names is often a confusing business, but I do not believe it has to be. Thus, here are my simplified instructions for prefixing names using the Golden Dawn method in a given Watchtower, using that of ORO or Air as an example:

So, firstly we take the horizontal Elemental Name of Air from the Tablet of Union: EXARP. This is the only name we use for prefixing on the Air tablet. The Kerubic Angels, whose names are above the Calvary Cross in each sub-angle are Spirit beings (however elementally biased they may be) and thus always take the Spirit letter of the Elemental Name—i.e. E in this case. Then the rest of the letters are taken in order and attributed to the Servient Angels of each sub-angle in the order of Air, Water, Earth, and Fire.

E is Spirit of Air
 X is Air of Air
 A is Water of Air
 R is Earth of Air
 P is Fire of Air

If we take the Kerubic Angel of the Air of Air sub-angle, RZLA, we would prefix it with E—thus, ERZLA. If we take the Servient Angel of CZNS in the Air of Air sub-angle, we would prefix it with X, thus giving us X CZNS. This likewise applies for all the other Servient Angels in this sub-angle, and even the permutations of them (i.e. XZNSC, etc.).

If we use the Watchtower of Water (MPH), we would use the name HCOMA to prefix. If we use the Watchtower of Earth (MOR), we would use the name NANTA to prefix. And finally, if we use the Watchtower of Fire (OIP), we would use the name BITOM to prefix. The first letter is always the Spirit letter, and always used, in the Golden Dawn method, to prefix the Kerubim. The remaining four letters are elemental and thus used to prefix the Servient Angels.

THE ORIGINAL DEE METHOD

An astute student may notice that many hierarchies of Enochian angels do not seem to follow the prefixing method given above. These follow a different method, originally dictated to Dee, as seen in the quotation at the beginning of this section. This seems confusing at first, even more so than the Golden Dawn method, but it is actually quite simple.

If one looks at a copy of the Great Table, one will note how the Tablet of Union names are provided in the Black Cross that divides the four Watchtowers. Effectively the student simply takes the name that he or she wants to prefix and then traces his or her finger across until it reaches the Black Cross, where there will be a letter. If one were looking for the prefix of the Kerubim of the Air and Water sub-angles of the Air and Water Watchtowers, one would find that the letter horizontal to them is E from EXARP. Likewise, if one were looking for the prefix of the Kerubim of the Earth and Fire sub-angles of the Air and Water Watchtowers, one would find that the letter horizontal to them is H. This is the prefix to be employed using Dee's method. If the magician is looking to prefix any of the Servient angels immediately under the beam of the cross in each of the Air and Water sub-angles of these two Watchtowers, then he or she would prefix them with X. The next is A, and so forth. The Earth and Fire sub-angles would use the letters C, O, M, and A for prefixing the Servient angels of these two Watchtowers.

| ORO/Air |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  | MPH/Water |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |   |
|---------|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|-----------|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|---|
| ←       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  | → |
| ←       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  | → |
| ←       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  | → |
| ←       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  | → |
| ←       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  | → |
| ←       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  | → |
| ←       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  | → |
| ←       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  | → |
| ←       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |           |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  | → |

This system applies likewise for the Earth (MOR) and Fire (OIP) Watchtowers, although the letters are reversed in order, as the two Tablet of Union names are reflected (via a lake reflection) from those in the two Watchtowers above. As one can see from the image on this page, the prefix for the Kerubim of the Air and Water sub-angles of the Earth and Fire Watchtowers is A (the final letter of HCOMA now, not the first letter of EXARP), and the prefix for the Kerubim of the Earth and Fire sub-angles of the Earth and Fire Watchtowers is P (the final letter of EXARP now, not the first letter of HCOMA). Again, the easiest way to approach this is to simply trace one's finger horizontally across from the name one wants to prefix. This must be on the Great Table, however, as the Black Cross, containing the Tablet of Union names, is omitted when the Table is broken into individual Tablets/Watchtowers, as utilised in the Golden Dawn system (perhaps explaining their unique approach to prefixing).

POTENTIAL EXPANSION & IRREGULARITIES

Before I address some of the potential ways we can expand the use of prefixing using the Dee method, and some of the irregularities that are created by this method, I want to stress the following: I do not believe Ave was specific enough to actually rule out the Golden Dawn method entirely. He only gave examples of the Air (ORO) Tablet, and both the Golden Dawn and Dee employ methods that agree with Ave's example, but disagree elsewhere. I am inclined to go with Dee for authority, but I am also inclined to go with the Golden Dawn for logic, as their system is much more streamlined, and it means that all four Tablet of Union names are employed, one per Tablet, whereas Dee's method only uses EXARP and NANTA for prefixing.

However, if we use Ruling Angels (the horizontal equivalent of the Servient Angels, two on each side of the Call Angel), we can actually address this issue to some degree by employing the names NANTA and BITOM on the horizontal line of the Black Cross to prefix these. I should stress that the Ruling Angels are not originally part of Dee's material, but they are a logical extension (see earlier in this chapter), and their addition helps to resolve the structural imbalance of Dee's prefixing method.

First we take the Air (ORO) and Earth (MOR) Watchtowers together, as they will both employ the names NANTA and BITOM to prefix the Ruling Angels (for these two the names are reversed, using a mirror reflection of the names used across the way for the other two Tablets). An example of a Ruling Angel is RCTSF in the Air of Air sub-angle. I was taught by one teacher to employ the letter from the cross: i.e. RACTSF, and this is, I believe, also employed (by conjecture) by Donald Tyson. However, I have personally found fault with this, as I do not believe any of the letters of the Cross should be employed by any Angels other than the Call and Command angels. Thus, the Ruling Angel should be RCTSF (i.e. without the A). If we employ the system of prefixing, which I believe definitely applies to these too, we have the Ruling Archangel as MRCTSF. This prefix fits with the system much better than employing the A from the Cross.

Thus, the first Ruling Angel of the Air and Earth sub-angles of the Air and Earth Watchtowers employ M as a prefix. The second Ruling Angel from both of these employs O. Then I, then B, etc. A, T, A, and N are employed for the Water and Fire sub-angles of these two Tablets.

Likewise, for the Water and Fire Tablets we employ N for the first Ruling Angel of the Water and Fire sub-angles, and B for the Water and Fire sub-angles. And so forth for the rest. Again, the simplest approach is to trace one's finger vertically down the name of the angel in use (if it is a vertical name, that is) until one comes to a letter on the Black Cross.

The astute student will immediately notice a flaw with this. There are only four Ruling Angels, and yet we have five letters in the Black Cross to prefix with. Unlike the horizontal names, where we have four Servient Angels and one Kerub, we have no fifth angel to utilise the fifth prefix letter. The central N and T of NANTA and BITOM lay under and above the Call Angel, so potentially we may be able to prefix that. This would be illogical, however, as we do not have a letter to prefix the Command Angel. Again, I do not believe either of these names should be prefixed. My only “solution” at present is to completely ignore the central letters. This makes for a somewhat cumbersome system. However, if one wants to prefix the Ruling Angels, Dee’s method makes sense. One could also potentially use the elemental letters that the Golden Dawn uses (i.e. XARP for all the Air tablet, COMA for all the Water one, etc.).

THE ELEMENTS, DIRECTIONS & ALCHEMY

Perhaps one of the biggest controversies surrounding the Great Table, and the one that has resulted in the most criticism of the Golden Dawn's approach, is the assignment of the elements to each of the Watchtowers.

Dee was told to arrange the four Watchtower tablets in the following manner, joining them together with the Black Cross. The Golden Dawn attributed the elements to these in the order of Air, Water, Earth and Fire, in distinct contrast to its traditional order of Fire, Water, Air, and Earth (representing the Tetragrammaton).

|   |   |
|---|---|
| 3 | 4 |

Many have assumed that this was an error on the Golden Dawn's part, or simply another of its attempts to mesh the Enochian system into the other traditions it employed. But that would fail to explain the unusual order of the elements employed, which is completely at odds with what the Golden Dawn uses for the rest of its system.

The answer is found in Dee's material, where it is evident that there is at least a snippet of information given by Ave that would suggest an elemental arrangement to the tablets:

"The knowledge of all elemental Creatures, amongst you. How many kinds there are, and for what use they were created. Those that live in the air, by themselves. Those that live in the waters, by themselves. Those that dwell in the earth, by themselves. The property of fire, which is the secret life of all things."<sup>236</sup>

236 Ibid., p. 348.

Here we clearly see the elements given in the order that the Golden Dawn would come to use hundreds of years later. For anyone who thinks that it might just be a random order, Ave repeated it later that day:

“The fourth is the Cross of those Creatures that live in the four Elements, as you call them.

The first Angel – the air.

The second – the water.

The third – the earth.

The fourth – the life, or fire of things that live.”<sup>237</sup>

However, the thing that the Golden Dawn failed to note, or likely noted and ignored, is that this assignment is only for one of the sub-angles of each Watchtower, not the Great Table as a whole. The lower left-hand sub-angle of each Watchtower has these elemental correspondences attached to its Dispositors or Servient Angels, but those of the other sub-angles have different assignments, relating to medicine, metals and transportation.

Of course, the first thing we must consider is that the Cipher Manuscript, upon which the Golden Dawn’s Outer Order grades are based, was created by someone else, likely Kenneth Mckenzie, before the founding of the Golden Dawn. While this document only contained snippets of the Enochian system, it detailed the elemental layout of the Watchtower Tablets that the Order would later adopt.

My personal belief is that Mathers and Westcott, who both researched and wrote about the Enochian system in detail, knew that Ave’s elemental instructions only applied to one sub-angle, but decided to adopt this assignment for the entire Watchtower system, because it fit so well into their own system and provided a handy way for cataloguing each square upon the Great Table. Indeed, in Westcott’s Clavicula Tabularum Enochi, or Book H, he specifically notes the different duties of the angels in each sub-angle. The elemental attribution, therefore, is not wholly a product of the angels’ instructions to Dee, nor is it wholly a product of these magicians’ imaginations.

237 Ibid., p. 351.

The question, of course, is whether or not we should employ such associations when attempting to approach the Enochian system in the way it was intended. Apart from this one sub-angle of each Watchtower, I think the answer is “no.” This is not to denigrate what the Golden Dawn has achieved with its correspondences, as they are an extremely useful way of looking at the Great Table, but clearly we need to look at things in a different manner.

The first way we can do this, which is explicitly stated in Dee’s diaries, is directional. The assignment of the directions is made in two diagrams in Dee’s diaries, the first being the Golden Talisman and the second being another circular diagram that shows the Great Table with the twelve banners containing God’s secret names upon them.

What is important to note about these is that they both give the Latin names for the directions in their four corners, oriens being East, meridies being South, septentrio being North, and occidens being West.

From an elemental perspective this is troublesome, as only the Eastern Watchtower corresponds with the elemental attributions that the Golden Dawn employed. Clearly this is no solution to the problem of the elements, but it does give us something to work with when we want to describe the Watchtowers or find some possible correspondences.

One of the other possible assignments we can employ with the Watchtowers is alchemy. Not only were Dee and Kelly both keen alchemists, but alchemical references and symbolism crop up frequently in the angelic communications. The most pivotal of these is a set of coloured cloths, called by Ave “the Cloth of Passage,” which were thrown out of each of the Watchtowers in Kelley’s vision. These were:

|--------|-------|
| East:  | Red   |
| South: | White |
| West:  | Green |
| North: | Black |

Ave adds some extra information by describing the first like “new smitten blood,” the second like “lilly-colour,” the third like “the skins of many Dragons, green: garlic-bladed,” and the fourth “hair-coloured, Bilberry juice.”

Obviously these colours do not correspond with the elements, but they do correspond with the traditional phases of alchemy. In a three-fold system we have nigredo, blackening, albedo, whitening, and rubedo, reddening, while in a four-fold system another colour, pale green or yellow, is added to the mix.

Of course, “transformation” is the work of the Dispositors or Servient Angels in the lower left-hand sub-angle (attributed to the North), and this is essentially the work of alchemy, so whether or not we should extend it beyond this one sector of the Watchtowers is not entirely clear. Since the lower right-hand sub-angle is attributed to the elements we can possibly find all systems hidden within each Watchtower.

What is abundantly clear, however, is that alchemy has a definite part to play in Enochian work, and if we want to follow in Dee and Kelley’s footsteps, or simply just use the system that was delivered through them, then we must study and practice alchemy in one of its many guises.

THE PURPOSE OF THE GREAT TABLE

During his expounding of Kelley’s vision of the Watchtowers, Ave gave some insight into the purpose and use of the Great Table:

“Hereby may you subvert whole Countries without Armies: which you must, and shall do, for the glory of God. By these you shall get the favour of all the Princes, whom you take pity of, or wish well unto. Hereby shall you know the secret Treasures of the waters, and unknown Caves of the Earth. And it shall be a Doctrine, for you only, the instrument of the World.”<sup>238</sup>

The purpose then can be said to control the course of human government, to gain favour with those in power, and to come into an abundance of riches. This explanation certainly addressed the needs and wants of both Dee and Kelley and could have been made to placate them for the time ahead. That said, both did gain the favour of many royalty throughout Europe, and both enjoyed immense wealth for a time, if not for all their life.

More detail can be found in Ave’s comprehensive list of the duties of the angels contained within the Watchtowers:

- “1. All human knowledge.
- 2. Out of it springeth Physick
- 3. The knowledge of all elemental Creatures, amongst you. How many kinds there are, and for what use they were created. Those that live in the air, by themselves. Those that lives in the waters, by themselves. Those that dwell in the earth, by themselves. The property of the fire: which is the secret life of all things.
- 4. The knowledge, finding and use of Metals. The virtues of themselves The congelations, and virtues of Stones.
- 5. The conjoining and knitting together of Natures. The destruction of Nature, and of things that may perish.
- 6. Moving from place to place, as into this Country, or that Country at pleasure.
- 7. The knowledge of all crafts Mechanical.
- 8. Transmutatio formalis, sed non essentialis.”<sup>239</sup>

Ave later explained which of the angels did what, assigning most of these duties to the Kerubic Angels and the Dispositors or Servient Angels, as per the following diagram:

239 Ibid., p. 348. Physick = “Medicine;” Transmutatio formalis, sed non essentialis = “formal transformation, but not essential.”

XII

THE GOVERNORS & THE PARTS OF THE EARTH

The Parts of the Earth are 91 divisions of the planet with certain angels ruling over each of these locations. These angels, which are called at times Governors, Princes and “spirits of the Air,” have many thousands of ministers.

The angels delivered a series of 91 seven-letter names, which appear at times to be both the names of the Parts of the Earth and the Governors that rule them.

THE PARTS OF THE EARTH

The Parts of the Earth were paired to the known world at the time. Dee asked Nalvage to supply the “Longitudes and Latitudes” of the various countries and regions, but Nalvage refused, saying that the angels do not mark out the world in that way. However, he did agree to supply the names of regions based on those in Ptolemy’s Geographia, which Nalvage claimed were delivered to Ptolemy by an angel.

THE WORLD ACCORDING TO PTOLEMY

Of course, the known world at the time of Ptolemy was a lot smaller than it is today, so many regions were left off the map, including the Americas, which were only recently discovered in Dee's time. Dee questioned a number of omissions from the list, including Polonia, Moschovia, Dania, Hibernia, and Islandia, but Nalvage said that they fall under the other territories, with Polonia and Moschovia under Saromatia, and Denmark, Ireland, Frizeland and Iceland under Britania. Dee also asked about the West-Indies and the mystical realm of Atlantis. Nalvage dismissed him, saying:

"When these 30 appear, they can each tell what they own."<sup>240</sup>

The "30" are clearly the Aethyrs, but Nalvage's phrasing is unusual, as it suggests that these regions are actually sentient in some way. It may be that he actually meant the Governors of those Aethyrs, which seems more likely.

THE GOVERNORS

Dee was told that the Governors answered to the angels that ruled over the Twelve Tribes of Israel. Each one is assigned a governing angel in a seemingly random pattern.

240 Stephen Skinner, ed. Dr John Dee's Spiritual Diaries, p. 320.

“These are generally governed by the twelve Angels of the 12 Tribes: which are also governed by the 7 which stand before the presence of God.”<sup>241</sup>

He was also told that they were “spirits of the Air” and resided in the Air, which is a reference to the Aethyrs, to which they are assigned in groups of three, except TEX, which has four Governors.

“They are all spirits of the Air: not rejected, but dignified; and they dwell and have their habitation in the air diversely, and in sundry places: for their mansions are not alike, neither are their powers equal.”<sup>242</sup>

Dee added a note to this, calling them the “91 Good Angels of the Air, or Spirits dignified.” This is important, as it suggests that they are indeed angels and not just neutral, or, indeed, infernal spirits.

This also tells us that the the Parts and Governors are not equal, though we cannot be sure where each one stands in terms of rank.

Dee asked about these Governors:

“As you gave us taste, or warning of Italia and Britania, so if it be thought good to you, we are desirous to understand of the rest, the Application to such names as we understand.”<sup>243</sup>

However, Nalvage failed to respond, instead ending the operation. This could be taken as a sign that the angels were not keen to divulge too many details about the intimate workings of the Parts of the Earth, which could have a monumental effect on the world.

Some people claim that these are the names of the Parts of the Earth alone and that those who treat them as angelic names are doing so in error. However, on several occasions Ave refers to the names with a personal pronoun (he, his, etc.), suggesting that they are indeed entities. For example:

“Look out Lexarph, with the two other that follow him,

241 Ibid., p. 297.

242 Ibid., p.297.

243 Ibid., p. 312.

with the names of the Earth the three last.”<sup>244</sup>

This quote suggests that they are both entities and places, which, in my experience with them, I have found to be the case. In essence they are the animated presence of the location or the unnamed angelic guide who presides over them and answers to that name.

Another comment from Nalvage confirms that they are indeed beings. He also relates them to the 30 Calls and gives us some insight into their purpose and role:

“Those 30 are the Calls of Ni[nety one] Princes and spiritual Governors, unto whom the Earth is delivered as a portion. These bring in and again disposes Kings and all the Governments upon the Earth, and vary the Natures of things: with the variation of every moment; Unto whom, the Providence of the eternal Judgement, is already opened.”<sup>245</sup>

THE ENIGMA OF PARAOAN

One must also note the enigma of the 65th Governor, which reads LAXDIZI on the Great Table, but is stated as PARAOAN by Nalvage. The latter is taken from the reversed or “spare” letters (bar the reversed L in the MPH/Water Tablet, which is attributed to LEXARPH) found within all four Tablets and is therefore attributed to the four elements.

When the Great Table is displayed in English lettering it is not always apparent that some of the letters are reversed, particularly for O and A, the latter of which features three times in the name.

If one took an entirely cynical view, each Watchtower contains a 12x13 grid, which equals 156 squares. If we want to draw multiple 7-letter names from each we can only do this 22 times, leaving two squares left over. So, from a purely mathematical perspective, these letters are simply the byproduct of an inexact equation, two per tablet.

Yet Dee was told there was more to it than that.

Some Enochian magicians suggest that PARAOAN be included as a 92nd Governor (attributed to LIN, as per Dee), with LAXDIZI as the 65th, so that the sigil equates. While this makes for a more orderly system, it defies the angels' specific instructions, which must have some reason.

The mystery deepens when we see a reference to this Governor when Dee was instructed to make up the Tablet of Union or Black Cross. Ave said:

"Look out the name Paraoan. Write out Paraoan in a void paper."<sup>246</sup>

246 Ibid., p. 348.

The reason for this is never explained, but it could relate to the fact that the first letter of the first Governor whose name becomes part of the Black Cross is the only reversed letter not to be employed in the name Paraoan. The fact that it also does not feature on the Black Cross like the remaining letters might mean it is put aside with Paraoan.

Ave gave us some insight into the nature of this entity:

“Every letter in Paraoan, is a living fire: but all of one quality and of one Creation: But unto ‘N’ is delivered a viol of Destruction, according to that part that he is of Paraoan the Governor.”<sup>247</sup>

Firstly, this confirms that in Paraoan’s case, at least, he is a Governor, not just a Place of the Earth. Secondly, it tells us that he is a destructive force, which I believe is similar to Abaddon the Destroyer, the demonic ruler of the bottomless pit in Revelation. In fact, the original Hebrew shows that Abaddon is a location, the “place of destruction,” and it is likely this dual assignment as a location and a being that gives the Governor’s their similar role.

Dee asked for the name of the city or country set under this letter N, but Ave evaded the question, telling him to ask Nalvage.

It almost would not be Enochian magic if it were not for these kinds of mysteries, which are pervasive throughout the system. This is one of those unanswered questions that has puzzled scholars and magicians for decades, and unless some new source material turns up it will likely remain a puzzle indefinitely, except perhaps to those magicians who attempt to work with this Governor.

GOVERNORS AND SIGILS

The names of the Governors are derived from the Great Table, taking each of the capitalised letters as the beginning of each name, and reading in a certain pattern that provides 91 seven-letter names, and an appropriate sigil for their evocation.

I have listed them in the order of their use with the Aethyrs.

THE AETHYRS

The Aethyrs, or Aires, are the names of thirty astral regions seen by many magicians as surrounding the Earth. These are often likened to the layers of an onion, with the 30th Aethyr, TEX, residing closest to the Earth, and the First Aethyr, LIL, being furthest away and, therefore, closest to the heavens.

:1:

As highlighted in Chapter II there are similarities between the Aethyrs and the Aeons of Gnosticism, particularly the 30 Aeon system employed in the Valentinian tradition. There are also some parallels with the Sephiroth of the Qabalah, which the Golden Dawn attributed the Aethyrs to in its system of Enochian magic.

Speaking of the Aethyrs, Nalvage said:

“Understand, therefore, that from the fire to the earth, there are 30 places or abidings: one above and beneath each other: wherein these aforesaid Creatures [the Governors] have their abode, for a time.”<sup>249</sup>

There are several interesting points about this. Firstly, it confirms that the Aethyrs are actual places and that they are layered one above the other.

Secondly, they extend “from the fire” to the earth, which could mean one of several things. Dee’s footnote says “the element of the fire,” but it could just as well be read as Hell or the Sun, with the Aethyrs layered from the fiery pits beneath the earth until they get to the everyday world, or, as many magicians have experienced, a series of layers extending from the Earth to our star. The latter is the more likely, given that the angels that dwell in the Aethyrs are called “spirits of the Air,” and thus would have to reside above, not beneath, the Earth.

Thirdly, the Governors will apparently only reside in the Aethyrs “for a time.” Dee obviously saw significance in this, as he emphasised it in a note. It is not exactly clear when these entities will leave the Aethyrs, where they will go, or why they will do this, but it could be tied to the apocalyptic expectations that Dee and others had at the time.

The names of the Aethyrs were delivered by Ilemese on 13 July 1584 directly after the Nineteenth Call.

THE MEANING OF THE AETHYR NAMES

It is not clear why all of the names have three letters, but it most likely holds some special significance. What is clear is that they do not represent numbers, a fact pointed out to Dee when he suggested that they translate literally as “the first,” “the second,” and so forth. He was told:

“Not so, they be the substantial names of the Aires.”<sup>252</sup>

Dee did not understand this, asking why they were translated as “the first Aire,” etc. Gabriel responded with a long-winded passage about not being rash or hasty, which Dee appears not to have been happy with. He again asked, somewhat curtly, for his doubt regarding the names of the Aethyrs to be addressed, to which Gabriel berated him as acting childishly, before vanishing into the heavens in a burst of flame.

While Dee might not have been able to get much out of the angels regarding the meaning of these names, we can use what we know from the Calls to gain some insight. For example, the highest Aethyr begins and ends with the letter L, the Enochian word for “one.” The Enochian word I translates as “is,” which means that LIL may equate to “one is one,” a rather fitting name for its lofty heights.

Unfortunately due to the lack of Enochian words at our disposal it is not possible to employ this method for all of the Aethyr names, which means we may never know what they mean unless we ask the angels ourselves.

THE AETHYRS AS INITIATIONS

The original Dee accounts say very little about the Aethyrs, so much so that their place within the system appeared to have a far less prominent role than they do today. Certainly there was no such thing mentioned as skrying or travelling to the Aethyrs, as is commonly the practice by modern magicians.

However, there is some support within Dee’s diaries for the idea of the Aethyrs as places that can be entered. Directly after their delivery Gabriel told Dee:

252 Stephen Skinner, ed. Dr. John Dee’s Spiritual Diaries, p. 385.

“Thus hath God kept promise with you, and hath delivered you the keys of his store-houses: wherein you shall find, (if you enter wisely, humbly, and patiently) Treasures more worth than the frames of the heavens.”<sup>253</sup>

This is an interesting revelation, as it means that they are definite regions that can be entered, but also that they are storage places for “treasures” (likely knowledge) rather than simply empty houses.

It was Aleister Crowley, the so-called “wickedest man in the world,” who popularised the Aethyrs and gave us a practical approach to employing them. The magnum opus of Aethyr work remains to this day his The Vision and the Voice, a collection of his diaries regarding the visions he received while exploring the Aethyrs.

He conducted the initial part of this work on 17 November 1900 in Mexico, where he explored the first two Aethyrs, TEX and RII (noting that they are technically the 30th and 29th respectively). After these visions there was a long gap of many years until he finished the rest.

He received the visions for the remaining Aethyrs in 1909 during an extensive period with his magical consort Victor Benjamin Neuburg in Algeria, where he spent a lot of time in the desert. These workings occurred almost daily over a period of close to a month, from late November to late December, usually with one Aethyr per day, but sometimes, though much more rarely, two or three Aethyrs on a single day.

These visions are quite striking and poetic, but they are ultimately also very personal, and much more so as the magician approaches the Aethyr LIL. While it is interesting and worthwhile to read Crowley’s accounts, I strongly recommend that the magician avoid doing so before his or her own exploration of these Aethyrs, so as not to colour their own visions. The same applies for reading the journals of other Enochian magicians.

Perhaps the most iconic of Crowley’s visions was that of the

253 Ibid., p. 386.

10th Aethyr, ZAX, where he faced Coronzom,<sup>254</sup> the name of Satan in the language of the angels, but an entity known as the Dweller in the Abyss in Crowley's system. The remarkable account shows how Crowley entered the Triangle of Art, an absolute violation of normal magical procedure, and effectively assumed the form of Coronzom, feeling all that he felt, while Neuberg conducted a battle of wits with the entity, which Crowley had warned him to avoid. The situation ended with an almost physical battle between Coronzom and Neuberg after the former broke through the magical circle, but eventually both Neuberg and Crowley succeeded, and Crowley claimed to have crossed the Abyss.

Since Crowley effectively created this approach to the Aethyrs, we need to see what he has to say on the subject to gain further insight into exactly what the magician is supposed to do:

“When I say I was in any Aethyr, I simply mean in the state characteristic of, and peculiar to, its nature. My senses would thus receive the subtle impressions which I had trained them to record, so becoming cognizant of the phenomena of those worlds as ordinary men are of this. I would describe what I saw and repeat what I heard and Frater O.V. [Neuburg] would write down my words and incidentally observe any phenomena which struck him as peculiar.”<sup>255</sup>

This was a technique he learned from his time in the Golden Dawn, and while it was not something that Dee was instructed to do, it clearly works, and provides a level of initiation that is extremely potent and transformational. With so little to go on, we can only put the Aethyrs to practice, and see what kinds of results we get.

254 This name is frequently, and erroneously, written as “Choronzon” in numerous books and essays, including by Crowley himself.

THE CALLS

The Calls (or Keys) are 49 invocations delivered in Enochian and English, the last 30 of which are identical save for the changing of a single word. The Calls give us most of the words in the Enochian language that we know, and act as powerful and evocative prayers for working with the angels.

THE DELIVERY OF THE CALLS

How the Calls were delivered is one of the “proofs” that the system is unlikely to have been a scam, since it would take a mind and memory beyond that which we generally afford to a human being. Initially the Calls were given to Dee backwards in an effort to prevent him from invoking the relevant forces during the transmission. This idea of writing things down backwards is a traditional method in occult practice to lessen the power of a particularly volatile or dangerous force. Clearly the angels saw it necessary at this stage and this is a good initial inkling to the potency behind these Calls.

The power of the words is clear not only in the manner in which they were delivered but in the things Kelley saw as all of this transpired. For example, very early on in the reception of the First Call Kelley notes that the archangel Gabriel “falleth down on his face, and lieth prostrate,”<sup>256</sup> a rather unusual (and somewhat comical) action for such a lofty creature.

Nalvage began with what he himself described as a “tedious” method, which was to draw letters from a table, one by one, spelling words backwards, starting with the final word of the First Call. Soon, however, he appears to have abandoned this procedure and simply pointed to letters on the table, which Kelley was required to repeat. By the Fifth Call Nalvage was delivering the words forwards, which either means that the method became too time-consuming and cumbersome, that these later Calls are less potent, or that Dee and Kelley had been duly attuned to the energies of the Calls by this stage and thus could endure their forward delivery. The reality is likely a combination of the three.

All the while wicked spirits kept attempting to interrupt the sessions, so much so that there were at times great battles between Nalvage, Gabriel and some evil forces. The suggestion is that the Calls are so holy that demonic powers did not want them to be transmitted to humanity.

After the first 18 Calls are delivered Nalvage is replaced by Ilemese, one of the Sons of the Sons of Light from the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, who appears like a little boy with yellow hair and an amiable face, and it is Ilemese who delivers the Call of the Aethyrs. The fact that Nalvage did not continue with this suggests that there is a distinct separation in the angelic rulership over the first 18 Calls and this final one.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CALLS

The purpose of the Calls is explained by Nalvage as follows:

“I am therefore to instruct and inform you, according to your Doctrine delivered, which is contained in 49 Tables. In 49 voices, or callings: which are the Natural Keys to open those, not 49 but 48 (for One is not to be opened) Gates of understanding; whereby you shall have knowledge to move every Gate, and to call out as many as you please, or shall be thought necessary, which can very well, righteously, and wisely, open unto you the secrets of their Cities, and make you understand perfectly the [knowledge] contained in the Tables.”<sup>257</sup>

The language here is important, as it tells us that the Calls are both a key to open the Gates and a method of summoning the angels within. Nalvage also links the Calls with the Tables, but it is not clear if he is referring to the Liber Loagaeth or the Great Table. The mention of “49 Tables” suggests the former, but 30 of the Calls are known to relate to the Governors on the Great Table, which suggests that the Calls might be used for this instead. It may be that they are used for both, and that this is the missing link to answering the puzzle of the Liber Loagaeth.

The link with the Tables explains the modern adoption of using the first 18 Calls to open the Tablet of Union, EHNB, and the 16 sub-quarters of the four Watchtower Tablets, a practice first introduced by the Golden Dawn. This works by using, for example, the Third Call to open the Air of Air quarter, the Fourth Call for Water of Air, and so forth. This approach has been slated in recent times by Dee purists, who claim that the Golden Dawn simply made this up, but Nalvage’s words suggest that this approach is viable and just as plausible as an application to the Liber Loagaeth.

Nalvage gives us further insight when speaking of the First Call:

“It is the sense in your tongue of the holy and mystical Call before delivered: which followeth in practice for the moving of the second Table, the Kings and Ministers of government: The utterance of which, is of force, and moveth them to visible apparition: moved and appeared, they are forced (by the Covenant of God delivered by his spirit) to render obedience and faithful society. Wherein, they will open the mysteries of their creation, as far as shall be necessary: and give you understanding of many thousand secrets, wherein you are yet but children; for every Table hath his key: every key openeth his gate, and every gate being opened, giveth knowledge of himself of entrance, and of the mysteries of those things whereof he is an enclosure. Within these Palaces you shall find things that are of power, as well to speak, as to do for every [1. Palace] is above his [2. City] and every City above his [3. entrance.]”<sup>258</sup>

This clearly relates the First Call with the Second Table, but it is not exactly clear which Tables this is referring to. This passage does confirm the use of the Calls for summoning the angels, however, and tells us that they must obey the magician. Dee saw some significance in the numbered part towards the end, which he called “three degrees.” It suggests a kind of ranking system, or a series of gates that one goes through, starting with a general entrance, then into the city, and then into the palace.

Nalvage also explained that the First Call is “the key of the first seven,” which likely refers to the seven archangels that stand before the presence of God. This gives a whole new meaning to the Calls and suggests that we might be able to use it in relation to the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, which contains the names of these angels. My own personal work supports this possibility, as the Seal responds particularly well to this Call.

While exactly how the Calls relate to the Tables remains unanswered for now, experimentation with them has produced some interesting insights. The First and Second Calls, in particular, seem to produce some very strong results. Rowe wrote that these “define the poles within which the remaining Calls work.” He said that the First Call “produces a generic manifestation of Spirit, a general pull towards higher levels,” while the Second Call “defines a framework or overall form into which the powers of the system can be poured and contained.”<sup>259</sup>

My own personal experience supports this view. The First Call invokes a flood of white light, giving the magician a kind of clean slate with which to work. It also enhances communication with the angels within the Watchtowers, so much so that I found it pivotal to all my workings with them. The Second Call, however, has an altogether different feel. While the First Call pulls the magician upwards, the Second pulls the magician down. I found that I would rarely ever use this Call, but the two seem to be strongly interlinked and could be seen as a kind of equivalent to invoking and banishing. I strongly recommend that these Calls not be used in unison, as it ends up pulling the magician up and down simultaneously, creating an intense strain on the aura, which, if not dealt with, can cause illness. They could, however, be used to bookend a working, the First to elevate the magician to a spiritual level, and the Second to return him or her back to earth, as it were.

258 Ibid., p. 248.

259 Benjamin Rowe, Enochian Magick Reference, p. 18.

The next 16 Calls are usually associated with the 16 sub-angles of the Watchtower Tablets and are effective, in practice, at opening them, even if this was not their original purpose. These Calls are much tamer in comparison to the First and Second Calls, but it may be that the use of either of the latter helps contain the energy subsequently released by the use of these Calls.

The remaining 30 Calls, which are given as one named the Call of the Aethyrs, are linked with the 30 Aethyrs and the 91 Parts of the Earth, which are ruled by 91 Governors drawn from a series of sigils applied to the Great Table. Nalvage explained:

“There are 30 Calls yet to come. Those 30 are the Calls of Ni[nety-one] Princes and spiritual Governors, unto whom the Earth is delivered as a portion.”<sup>260</sup>

The Governors are assigned to the Aethyrs in groups of three for the first 29 and a final group of four for the last Aethyr, TEX. The Call of the Aethyrs is employed by changing the name of the Aethyr and its number, but everything else within the invocation remains the same.

The angel Mapsama explains more about the Calls in relation to the Parts of the Earth:

“These Calls touch all the parts of the World. The World may be dealt withall, with her parts; Therefore you may do anything. These Calls are the keys into the Gates and Cities of wisdom. Which [Gates] are not able to be opened, but with visible apparition.”<sup>261</sup>

In a marginal note Dee describes “the use of these 19 Calls” beside a passage of great significance:

“But you shall understand, that these nineteen Calls ... are the Calls, or entrances, into the knowledge of the mystical Tables: every Table containing one whole leaf, whereunto you need no other circumstances.”<sup>262</sup>

Dee pleads with the angel Ilemese on 11 July 1584 to give the Calls that are “fit for the 49 Gates,”<sup>263</sup> giving a clear link between them and the Tables, as well as the 50 Gates of Wisdom suggested by Aaron Leitch in The Angelical Language: Volume I.

Interestingly there is a gap between the delivery of the first 18 Calls and the Call of the Aethyrs, which makes up the remaining 30. During this period the names of the Governors and the Great Table were delivered. This timing suggests that at least some of the Calls interact with these two aspects of the system.

THE UNVOICED CALL

Dee was told that there were 49 Calls, and yet only 48 are given. The true First Call is actually never revealed, with Nalvage explaining that it is “not to be opened.”

There is a possible parallel between this and the first table of Liber Loagaeth, which was, according to Raphael, not to be known. This would tend to support the idea of the remaining 48 Calls being applied to the remaining 48 tables of Liber Loagaeth, which Leitch deals extensively with in his book.

Dee linked this Unvoiced Call, as I name it, with God:

“These four calls are the second, the [third, fourth and fifth], for the first Table can have no call, it is of the Godhead.”<sup>264</sup>

Crowley likened the Unvoiced Call with the attribution of the number 0 to the Fool card in the Tarot:

“These first 18 calls are in reality 19; that is, 19 in the Celestial Orders; but with us the first table hath no call, and can have no call, seeing that it is of the Godhead. Thus, then, with us hath it the number 0, though with them that of 1. (Even as the first key of the ROTA hath the number 0.)”<sup>265</sup>

It is likely that the angels intended that Dee and Kelly take some time to pray and contemplate God in honour of this Unvoiced Call. It is not spoken because it is an internal connection that language cannot come close to comprehending. Gnosis, as it were.

THE CONTENT OF THE CALLS

The Calls contain a number of references to common occult and biblical imagery, which might give us an inkling into the purpose of them.

The First Call mentions both the Sun and Moon, which are like implements in the hands of God (and thus also the magician reciting this Call). This is an obvious alchemical reference. It then speaks of trussing a person together in the palms of his hands, suggesting the creation of Man. It also mentions an Ark of Knowledge, which might be a reference to the Ark of the Covenant.

The Second Call references the four elements: the “wings of the winds” for Air, the “burning flames” for Fire, the “cups for a wedding” for Water, and the “flowers” and “barren stone” for Earth. It also refers to a “building such as is not,” which could be seen as the House of God. The language employed is very earthy in general and may relate to the creation of the world.

The Third Call refers to “a Circle on whose hands stand 12 Kingdoms” and “seats 12 of government,” a reference that suggests both the 12 Tribes of Israel and the Zodiac. It also refers to the “true ages of time” and the “fires of life and increase,” which could refer to the creation of time and Man’s flourishing on Earth.

The Fourth Call refers to the South, the “Thunders of Increase,” and a “second beginning.” This latter could refer to God’s decision to “start over” with the Flood. The language also calls upon the “sons of pleasure” to arise, and suggest that one among Man might be praised, a potential reference to Christ.

The Fifth Call refers to an olive mount, which is likely a reference to the Mount of Olives in Jerusalem, which is used as a burial site. This suggests that this Call might deal with the first instance of death in the world, and so the “comforters” are sent forth to offer relief to the mourners.

The Sixth Call refers to water and fire and the angelic workmen set over the Earth, who praise God and his Creation.

The Seventh Call refers to virgins, 28 living dwellings, and the Third and Fourth Strong Towers. A continuing theme in this Call is strength, which either demonstrates the might of God or Man’s belief that he is stronger than all things, which could make the towers a reference to the Tower of Babel.

The Eighth Call refers to the Elders and the “stooping dragon,” which might be a reference to Satan. Death and terror also feature.

The Ninth Call refers to a guard of flaming swords, and these have wings, so are likely the Kerubim guarding the Gates of Eden. The overall language suggests the potential wrath of God against those who offend him.

The Tenth Call refers to judgement and wrath, suggesting the enactment of the potential of the last call. Scorpions, sulphur, poison and thunder all feature, along with a repetition of the word “woe” in relation to the iniquity of the Earth.

The Eleventh Call refers to five thunders, an eagle, and the house of death. The eagle is the symbol of the higher aspect of Scorpio, which is attributed to the Death card in the Tarot and is generally linked with this topic.

The Twelfth Call refers to the Lanterns of Sorrow and God’s wrath.

The Thirteenth Call refers to swords which have 42 eyes, perhaps a reference to God's 42-letter name. These appear to "stir up the wrath of sin," however, and make empty people drunk, suggesting that they are the forces that lead astray.

The Fourteenth Call refers to the Sons of Fury and the Daughters of Lust, in addition to 24 seats, which could be a reference to the Seniors or Elders. There is also the Voice of God and more fury and extreme justice.

Calls Four, Five and Six refer to the second, third and fourth angles respectively, the significance of which is unknown, but it could be a possible reference to the angles of the Watchtowers, which would add some support to the Golden Dawn's assignments.

Calls Four, Twelve and Thirteen refer to the South. The Seventh and Eleventh Keys reference the East. Call Nine refers to the West. The Tenth Call refers to the North.

The Eighth Call refers to midday. The Tenth Call refers to night and day. No other times of day are mentioned.

Calls Fifteen to Seventeen are directed towards three flames, all of which appear to relate to God's righteousness and wrath.

The Eighteenth Call, which is the final Call before the Call of the Aethyrs, is directed towards the "mighty light and burning flame of comfort," continuing the fiery imagery. However, it quickly shifts to focus on the idea of joy and calls on God to be a "window of comfort unto me." It may be that this Call could be employed for times of despair, to bring happiness into one's life.

The Nineteenth Call, being the Call of the Aethyrs, provides some striking imagery where God wishes division and confusion upon Earth, and says that he regrets making Man. Dee asked if it was true that God pronounced this malediction, and Ilemese said that it was, blaming it on Adam's transgressions against God in the Garden of Eden. This is important, as it puts the First Call into the timeline of Adam and Eve's expulsion, suggesting not the creation of the world, but Man's banishment into it. It also gives us a unique insight into God's wrath over this biblical event.

It is abundantly clear that while the language of the Calls is beautiful and poetic, the content is usually quite grim, particularly after the first few Calls. There is death, fury, and lots of wrath. This is the vengeful, jealous and somewhat vindictive God of the Old Testament, one that any “God-fearing” Christian would be able to identify with, but also one that no one would particularly want to associate with. The Calls show what many Gnostics would consider the Demiurge, rather than the true nature of God, who is a power beyond even the Demiurge’s conception. From a non-Gnostic perspective, as in Dee and Kelley’s case, these Calls have a definite apocalyptic feel to them and clearly reference some of the events of Revelation.

The common invocation “Move and Appear” appears frequently throughout the calls, with a longer version containing an addendum, “Open the Mysteries of your Creation,” emphasising the magician’s role as a servant of “the Highest.” The frequency with which these passages occur in the Calls suggest that this phrasing is the most suitable invocation for working with the Enochian entities.

THE CALLS AND THE GREAT TABLE

While Dee was left with little instruction on the use of the Calls, the Golden Dawn paired the Calls with the Watchtowers in the following manner:

|                   |                 |
|-------------------|-----------------|
| First Call:       | Tablet of Union |
| Second Call:      | EHNB            |
| Third Call:       | Air of Air      |
| Fourth Call:      | Water of Water  |
| Fifth Call:       | Earth of Earth  |
| Sixth Call:       | Fire of Fire    |
| Seventh Call:     | Water of Air    |
| Eighth Call:      | Earth of Air    |
| Ninth Call:       | Fire of Air     |
| Tenth Call:       | Air of Water    |
| Eleventh Call:    | Earth of Water  |
| Twelfth Call:     | Fire of Water   |
| Thirteenth Call:  | Air of Earth    |
| Fourteenth Call:  | Water of Earth  |
| Fifteenth Call:   | Fire of Earth   |
| Sixteenth Call:   | Air of Fire     |
| Seventeenth Call: | Water of Fire   |
| Eighteenth Call:  | Earth of Fire   |

266 QAA means “of your Creation” at the end of this and numerous other Calls. It is not clear if this is a mistake or if the word has another meaning. Another word, OBOLEH, translates as “your garments” later in this Call and could possibly be used in place of QAA.

267 The Enochian word for “and” is actually OD. DS means “which.” I recommend replacing either the Enochian word or the English translation for accuracy.

268 OD is usually translated as “and,” which means this line could also be read as “whose beginning is not and end can not be.” The meaning is essentially the same, if not entirely grammatically correct.

271 Dee combined ZONG and OM, translating them as “of the winds,” with FAAIP as “understand” and SALD as “your voices of wonder.” This is most likely an error, as OM is “understand” in other Calls. I have corrected them into their likely assignments above.

272 This is translated simply as “the second” elsewhere. It appears that the “O you” is extra English verbiage to add to the invocatory style.

273 SOBAM is used earlier and elsewhere for “whom.” Either these are two words for the same thing or they mean a slightly different thing. It could be that one is more formal or applies only to God.

275 Dee was told that this can be VDL or VDNL. His pronunciation note is not very helpful, but it is likely the V is pronounced as a U.

276 Dee was told that this could be TAPUI also. Note the U pronunciation again for V.

277 This and the previous word were originally conjoined as one.

278 DS is usually "which." The T is likely a transcription error.

280 This was originally conjoined with the previous word and could be pronounced as “mi-am” or “nu-am,” the latter of which suggests a potential alternate spelling of NUAM.

281 The pronunciation guide is “Ump-lift,” suggesting the spelling is in error.

296 TILB is “her,” which means that ELZAP must be “course;” however, the order of the words is reversed in the Enochian version, which is either an unusual grammatical element or an error.

297 This is similar to the incidents of TILB, except TLB appears to mean “his” rather than “her.” Again the order is reversed. Dee’s pronunciation aid combines them as “Orscatl b,” suggesting that they be pronounced as one word, with the pronoun perhaps working as a suffix.

APPENDIX I

ENOCHIAN GEMATRIA

A number of people have suggested that the frequent instances of numbers throughout the Calls might be some form of Enochian gematria that could be applied to other words. While Dee was never given numerical equivalents to the letters, like we have for Hebrew, there is some weight to this theory, because some of the numbers appear to be directly linked with the letters.

For example, in the Fourth Call we encounter the words MAPM, meaning “9639,” and CLA, meaning “456.” The first thing that is clear is that the four digit number has a four-letter name, while the three digit number has a three-letter name. The second thing that is clear from the first word is that the two instances of the number 9 are designated by the letter M, suggesting it is not an arbitrary assignment. The third thing that is apparent is that the 6 in the first word is designated by the letter A, while the 6 in the second word is also designated by the letter A, suggesting this letter is directly associated with this number.

The problem with this approach is that other instances of numbers do not follow the same logic. For example, the Fifth Call gives us the words AF, “19,” and PEOAL, “69636.” While these both have the same number of digits as letters, they do not match what we have previously encountered. Instead of M for 9 we have F in the first word and E in the second. Instead of P for 3 we have A. Instead of A for 6 we have P, O, and L, the latter letter being associated with the word “one” elsewhere in the Calls.

Potentially Enochian allows for multiple letters to be associated with numbers, and perhaps the letter changes depending on whether it is in the tens, hundreds, or thousands, but it seems that there is, in fact, little logic to the numbers, and despite much exploration by numerous magicians, this part of the Enochian system may remain a mystery for some time to come.

In the OSDL we employed the following gematria attributions. It is not clear how these associations came about, apart from the initial seven being in order like with Hebrew. Also note the omission of the English C, Y, etc. I include these for those who are curious.

APPENDIX II

ENOCHIAN DICTIONARY

This appendix includes my own personal Enochian dictionary, which I compiled when I was a member of the OSDL. This dictionary includes all the words from the Calls, and all the names of the angels upon the Watchtowers.

The descriptions for the angelic names are based on the OSDL's system, which was a mix of Golden Dawn attributions (i.e. elemental and planetary), with some of the Order's own terminology. Consult Chapter XI on the Great Table if these are unfamiliar.

Since we omitted English distinctions between letters (i.e. we used I for Gon, even when Dee was given the letter Y), an omission I now believe to be a mistake, one will notice some spelling alterations in some of these words.

I have also included the gematria, as per Appendix I, which some people might find interesting.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Dean F. Wilson is a magician, author and journalist.

He has written extensively on occult topics, including articles for Hidden Spirit, Hermetic Virtues, and The Gnostic. He is also a keen blogger, regularly writing about topics related to the Golden Dawn and Gnosticism.

In addition to a number of other books on magic, Wilson is currently working on several novels. He has also written a number of short stories and poems, some of which have been published.

He has been involved with a number of magical groups, including the Order of the Sons and Daughters of Light and the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, and he is currently a member of the Magical Order of Aurora Aurea.

He lives in Dublin, Ireland.

DISCOVER THE THEORY BEHIND ENOCHIAN MAGIC

Enochian magic is one of the most mysterious occult systems available, enticing adepts and neophytes alike. It is also one of the most impenetrable, thanks to the complex manner in which it was delivered and the misconceptions surrounding it.

This book addresses many of the problems that people interested in Enochian magic face, shedding light on a powerful tool of change and providing insight into the many riddles left behind by the angels.

Without understanding the theory behind the system, the magician can do nothing. This book lays those important foundations.

"We wholeheartedly recommend Enochian Magic in Theory to anyone, beginner or Adept, who seeks a well-rounded, well-researched book on Enochian theurgy."

— Charles "Chic" Cicero and Sandra "Tabatha" Cicero
Chief Adepts of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn authors of The Golden Dawn Enochian Skrying Tarot

"Here, students interested in the 'Dee-purist' tradition will find simple and straightforward introductions to the various tools and tables, angels and spirits recorded in Dee's occult journals."

— Aaron Leitch
author of The Angelical Language, Volumes I & II.

THE AUTHOR DEDICATES THIS WORK TO THE MEMORY OF DAVID P. WILSON, THE MOST TALENTED SCRYER I HAVE EVER MET.

Thy Name be mighty, O God, which canst open the veil whereby Thy All-Powerful Will may be opened unto men. Power, Glory, and Honour be unto Thee, For Thou art the same God of all things, and art life eternal.

Acknowledgments

This book could not have been written without the inspiration and generous assistance of the following friends, scholars, and master Enochian magicians: David P. Wilson (S. Jason Black), Clay Holden, Christeos Pir, David R. Jones, Robin Cousins, Josh Norton (Benjamin Rowe), James Wasserman, Judith Hawkins-Tillirson, Rick Potter, I.Z. Gilford, Poke Runyon, Christopher S. Hyatt, and Robert Powell—and to the regular members of the Monday Night Magick Class of Heru-ra-ha Lodge O.T.O., I give my most heartfelt thanks; Constance Duquette, who co-hosts this 30-year on-going class (and is my most ruthless heckler); Jonathan Taylor; Mike Strader; Jill Belanger; Olver Althoen; Carlos Casadas; and Sandy, Arto, Cobra, Vanessa, Bret, Michael, Patricia, Coleen, Mary, Evgeniy, Jane, Alan, Danny, and scores of others who throughout the years have brought Life, Love, and Liberty into our home each week.

I would also like to thank Glacier Nitz-Mercaeant, of The Enochian's Keep in Indiana, for his beautiful gifts of my gold Enochian Ring and Lamen; and the late Cecil Eugene Burns (a.k.a. Frater White Haired Bull) who built and donated the true and faithful replica of the Holy Table that now adorns our Enochian Temple space.

My thanks also go to Brothers Michael Strader, for his rendering of the Ensigs of Creation in the angelic script, and Robert Powell for his beautiful images of the Tablet of Union and the four Elemental Tablets. They are perhaps the clearest black and white renderings of these complex figures ever published.

Finally I offer my heartfelt gratitude to Clay Holden for his encouragement and support of this project. I am also deeply indebted to him for allowing me to use his magnificent recreations of the original angelic alphabet and his images of the Forty-nine Good Angels, the Holy Table, the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, and Golden Talisman.

I also draw the reader's attention to Brother Holden's original image of John Dee's Monas Hieroglyphica that adorns the cover page of each of the five books that make up Enochian Vision Magick. This image is in itself a most profound and historic element in the entire book for it represents a solution of a geometric puzzle going back to ancient Greek mathematical texts—that is, the production of a regular heptagon in a circle using only a compass and ruler. Please pay special attention to Clay's foreword to discover more.

Finally I offer very special thanks to Jan Johnson, Brenda Knight, and Amber Guetebier of Weiser Books who patiently (and graciously) forgave several deadline breaches.

Foreword

This is the book I would have given my eyeteeth for twenty-five years ago. It is the first work to systematically lay out the whole corpus of Dee and Kelley's magickal system, and the only one to provide a useful path through the dense and multilayered labyrinth of what has come down to us as "Enochian Magick," based almost entirely on their original manuscripts.

When Lon asked me to consider writing a foreword to his book, I think he knew that I had not been deeply involved in Enochian research for a number of years, but asked me to at least consider looking at what he was writing. It took only about fifteen minutes of reading to reignite my enthusiasm for the material which at one time was an all-consuming passion, and to realize that what he was in the process of writing would become a landmark text on the subject. Now that the book is finished, I am even more deeply honored to be able to write a few words of introduction to his remarkable work.

What particularly impresses me with Lon's book is not only the sheer volume of material covered or the clarity with which it is presented, but its immense readability and the fact that he has struck an elegant balance between classical scholarship, practical magickal instruction, and anecdotal events.

One never loses the sense that there is a real person at work here, questioning, organizing, and reporting his conclusions together with his experiences along the path. The self-important tone of many so-called "Enochian Magick" texts is entirely absent, replaced by clear and well-organized content.

When I first encountered Enochian magick, the only available published materials were Regardie's Golden Dawn and Crowley's Gems from the Equinox, fascinating but largely incomprehensible to me. Next was the first of several largely incoherent books on Enochian Magick by Gerald Shueler, which elaborated on the Golden Dawn material and added much of his own invention, most of it of dubious value. In hindsight, they seem more suitable for Dungeons and Dragons than serious magickal work (though to be fair, as David Jones once pointed out to me, D&D is probably an excellent introductory discipline for magickal ritual work).

Then came Geoffrey James's The Enochian Evocation of John Dee, a completely different matter altogether. Still more of a synopsis of a system than a workable guidebook (based largely on Sloane MS. 3191, Dee's precis of the materials received between 1582 and 1587), it gathered together the bulk of Dee and Kelley's work, and gave a sense of where it all came from. Still incredibly useful many years later, when coupled with an examination of the original scrying sessions that produced the material, it still does not serve as a proper guidebook through the system. The heart is there, but the how and why are largely absent.

When looking at what the Golden Dawn and Crowley and their successors put together as "Enochian Magick," it seems clear that they were missing huge chunks of this "how and why," along with many critical pieces to understanding what they were dealing with, and their attempts to graft basically everything else in their magickal system onto it produce a cumbersome thing that Dee and Kelley would not recognize as what they pulled through.

I have likened their resulting patchwork as similar to what happens when one attempts to open a Word document or a highly formatted database file in a text editor: one can read and even extract a good bit of raw data, but the formatting and links to other programs are entirely unreadable and bear little resemblance to the original document.

Without an understanding of Dee and Kelley's early material, mostly presented in Sloane MS. 3188, what comes later on, while workable on its own, will be largely incomprehensible. And while in many ways it can be convincingly argued that the later system, centered on the four Elemental Tablets, and the Tablet of Union are independent of the earlier material, Dee's diaries demonstrate that he went back and added marginal notes to even the earliest diaries to refer to events and communications that transpire several years later, as well as referencing the earlier communications in the later entries.

Fortunately for the reader, Lon's book gives full treatment, background, and application of both the early and the later materials, and provides in spades both the how and why that are missing from so many other books that purport to be guides to the system.

For me, not until David Jones's Center for Enochian Studies, based out of Thelema Lodge OTO in Oakland, began their annotated transcriptions of the first of Dee's spirit diaries, did I get a real sense for the background story of Enochian magick. All of a sudden, it was like reading a Philip K. Dick novel, with the tables and diagrams coming to life, populated by spirits, angels, and demons of all sorts, each with his or her own personality. And notably, John Dee and Edward Kelley for the first time became real people, questioning and struggling to understand and document what was being communicated to them.

I was finally able to borrow microfilms of the spirit diaries from the always truly generous and helpful Bill Heidrick, and I spent countless days printing them out on microfilm reader printers. When I finally had a set of Sloane MS. 3188 (Quinti Libri Mysteriorum) printed out and bound in front of me, the real magick began to take place for me. It was as if one discovered that Jules Verne's Captain Nemo was a real person, and could read his own words and step back 400-plus years into the past, to share his thoughts and experiences. To this day, it is the closest thing to real time travel I have ever felt.

Dee's handwriting presented some difficulty at first, as did his use of many antiquated terms, abbreviations, and frequent recourse to Latin. To my aid came Elias Ashmole's "fair-copy" of the diaries (Sloane MS. 3677), transcribed many decades later, in a beautiful hand which was much easier to read than Dee's. It also has the benefit of being more complete in some cases than Dee's original, as the manuscript was in considerably better shape in the 1600s than it is today, and Ashmole made notes indicating where materials were missing.

Given the difficulty in reading the original texts, it occurred to me to begin transcribing the diaries into electronic texts, laid out exactly as Dee had in the original manuscripts, and this was the birth of the John Dee Publication Project. The idea, which I tested in reading circles at Thelema Lodge, was that once one could get past the difficulties of Dee's sixteenth-century italic and secretarial handwriting, the actual English was not so different from that of Shakespeare, and that the modern reader would more easily be able to approach the work. Producing small batches of texts, with my transcription facing pages of the actual manuscript, it proved a fairly simple matter for people to actually read and understand the material.

While the world has changed immensely over the past two decades, and it is now possible to download electronic copies of all of Dee and Kelley's spirit diaries off the Net, it is still valuable to have the reconstructed electronic texts. And while I have never completed the transcriptions of the Quinti Libri Mysteriorum, it both taught me many valuable computer skills that ultimately changed my life and demonstrated that the text could be reproduced as written in an easily readable form. I am pleased that it still provides many readers with a place to begin in reading the spirit diaries.

It was suggested to me early on by David Jones that rather than attempting to comprehend the whole system, I should concentrate on a particular section and work to understand the mechanism of that piece of the system. In my case, that piece of the puzzle was the Sigillum Dei Aemeth.

While Lon in this book suggests that, rather than trying to reproduce Dee and Kelley's work, one ought to use the system they transmitted, I found it of inestimable value to read through the text of Mysteriorum Liber Secundus, where the layout and working of the Sigillum is systematically laid out, and fill in each of the squares in a blank Sigillum as I went through it. By so doing, this impressive talisman became a truly living being for me, and it was possible also to rectify certain errors which exist in Dee's diagram of the Sigillum.

Case in point: at the bottom of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, both in Dee's original illustration at the end of Mysteriorum Liber Secundus and in virtually every version published since, one finds the character "y" with a "14" under it. The text however clearly gives this number as "15." Replacing this number, and applying the method of backwards and forwards rotation around the outer circle, one utilizes the remaining unused squares, and two additional names are produced, neither of which is mentioned in the text. This exercise is left to the reader.

It further demonstrated that Dr. Dee, in fact, lies in certain places in the record, indicating that there is material hidden even there that he did not want to be visible to an unthinking reader.

One of my favorite quotes from the beginning of Mysteriorum Liber Secundus is Dee's interchange with the archangel Michael:

Mi. [...] Thow shalt sweare by the Living God, the strength of his Mercy, and his Medicinall vertue, powred into man's soule never to disclose these Mysteries

D. Yf no man, by no means, shall perceyve any thing hereof, by me, I wold think that I shold not do well.

Mi. Nothing is cut from the church of God. We in his Saints are blessed for ever.

We separate the, from fyled and wycked persons: We move the to God.

D. I vow, as you require: God be my help, and Gwyde, now and ever, amen.

MIC. This is a Mystery, skarse worthy for us, ourselves, to know, muche lesse to Reveale. Art thow, then, so Contented?

D. I am: God be my strength.

Keeping this in mind, one may begin to understand why Dee occasionally misdirects the reader in his diaries. As with Aleister Crowley's works several hundred years later, if one is paying attention to what one is reading, the erroneous data should just about jump out from the page, and provide a pointer to the actual information.

Investigating such parts of the magickal furniture can provide further unknown or undocumented information, such as the following:

If one adds and subtracts the numbers at the top and bottom of the letters around the outer ring of the Sigillum (having corrected the "y/15"), one arrives at a total number of 440. Adding the "1" in the concentric circles that is given at the end of the instructions on the outer ring (accompanied by the statement "Omnia unum est"), the total comes to 441, the gematric value of the Hebrew "Aemeth," or Truth. Without the correction of the "y/15" square, the total remains 440, the gematric value for "Meth," or Dead. Thus, the Sigillum may be considered as a Golem, and the published version an inactive and unworkable "dead" talisman.

There is also an additional Table to be generated from the instructions given for the characters around the outer ring, as they are described in the text:

D. Note: All the Cumpanies of these 40, stode, five together, and five together, and so in eight Cumpanyes; each, of five

Thus one can lay out the characters in eight rows of five, and in so doing, can produce symmetrical character sigils similar to the ones found on the Elemental Tablets for the angels of the outer ring.

In attempting to find a simple way to generate a regular heptagram in a circle for the purposes of reproducing the Sigillum on paper, I further discovered an interesting connection between the spirit diaries and Dee's earlier Monas Hieroglyphica.

While one cannot in fact produce a regular heptagon in a circle using only a compass and ruler (a geometric puzzle going back to ancient Greek mathematical texts), one can approximate it. There are several classical solutions, each of them rather close, but also involving complex methodology. Laying out the Monas Hieroglyphica in its 4 x 9 grid, as given in Dee's book, using a compass from the mid-point to trace a circle, and rotating the Monas so its "horns" touch on the circle from the top of the grid, one finishes with a very close approximation of a heptagon, in fact, as close or closer than any known classical solution.

Finally, it is perhaps fitting to suggest that one can read and consider Dee and Kelley's spirit diaries in a number of different ways, some of them mutually exclusive, but all of them perhaps of interest and value.

First, they can be considered as authentic records of spirit communication. Over the years I have worked closely with practicing Enochian magicians, including at least one incredibly talented sryer, who can both see and hear through the crystal ball, a very rare combination. Most sryers can do one or the other, but not both. In Edward Kelley, Dee found a rare man, however difficult he may have been to work with, and clearly knew it. Dee could only rarely see or hear anything himself, but with his amazing mathematical and classically trained mind, was perhaps the only man in the world capable of understanding and organizing the instructions that were presented to him. He was also skeptic enough to question and reject transmitted material that appeared to come from lying spirits, as Kelley periodically pulled through "illuding divils" that specialized in disinformation. The internal consistency of the bulk of the spirit diaries, as well as the coherent interrelationship of its many parts, speaks convincingly to its being a genuine record of actual events over a period of years.

Second, one can consider the material as an exercise in cryptographic method, intended as a means of communicating secret information back from the continent to Dee's colleagues and superiors in Elizabeth's court. Clearly, as one reads through Liber Mysteriorum Quartus, and to a certain extent Secundus, one can see similarities to the methodology of Trithemius's Steganographia, a work with which Dee was quite familiar, and which has now been demonstrated to be entirely a cryptographic treatise.

The arrays of "dignified" and "undignified" spirits can be seen as referring to encryption methods involving "nulls," and Dee and Kelley's discussion of "transposition of letters" in Quinti Libri Mysteriorum Appendix is at the very least suggestive again of the same. Then there are the tables in Liber Loagaeth, at the end of which (Sloane MS. 3189) Dee has appended eight tables from "Aldaraia Sive Soyga," the mathematical methods of which have been demonstrated by Jim Reeds. They appear even on the surface to be cryptographic tables, though no one to date has made a systematic study of their content, nor provided any translation or decryption or methodology. They remain the most hermetically sealed of all Dee and Kelley's documents.

In a similar way, one may usefully compare this "cryptography" theme with the Kabbalistic method of transposition of letters along with numeric values as a strictly spiritual exercise (e.g., the "Sepher Yetzirah"), and arrive at the conclusion that the Enochian system might be considered "sacred cryptography" in the same sense as the classical Kabbalistic method, unrelated to the mundane world of secret transmission of political secrets.

Lastly, and perhaps most amusingly, I have entertained the idea that Dee was the author of the first science fiction novel over a period of years, and indeed the first to give thought to the idea of "cyberspace," an interdimensional world where communication takes place through a portal, giving thought to the twentieth-century works of H. P. Lovecraft, Philip K. Dick, and William O. Gibson.

In this view, while Edward Kelley is still a historic personage (he appears in Dee's private diaries as well as being clearly documented both in England and in Prague, usually in conjunction purely as an alchemist), the "Edward Talbot" and "Edward Kelley" presented in the Spirit Diaries, his frequent turns from devout sryer to blaspheming conjurer and back again, along with all the mischievous and light-hearted spirits who are trotted on and off the stage, can be seen as an immense work of fiction. Whether written purely for Dee's amusement or as a secret means of documenting a different sort of spiritual transmission remains hidden today.

Of course, as anyone who has spent any time actually working with the system(s) presented in the Spirit Diaries can attest, when you put them to work as if true, stuff happens. Once invoked (or evoked), the spirits do in fact seem to appear and go to work, whether one believes in them or not.

Which leads to the one piece of advice I would give to anyone starting out in working Enochian Magick: Be very clear of what you ask for, as you are certain to get as much of it as you can handle, and once started, it is much more difficult to get it to stop.

In closing, I would like to quote a passage from W. Wynn Westcott's translation of the "Chaldean Oracles" (quoting Proclus), which I have always found incredibly useful to keep in mind when working Enochian Magick, or indeed, any ritual work:

As the Oracle therefore saith: God is never so turned away from man, and never so much sendeth him new paths, as when he maketh ascent to divine speculations or works in a confused or disordered manner, and as it adds, with unhallowed lips, or unwashed feet. For of those who are thus negligent, the progress is imperfect, the impulses are vain, and the paths are dark.

Lon's wonderful book provides the reader—for the first time—with a clearly lit and well-ordered guide through the maze of Dee and Kelley's Enochian system. The hallowed lips and well-washed feet are up to the reader.

Keep an open mind, a pure heart, and a clean temple, and you will surely hear their angels and spirits speaking to you.

A Note Regarding Original Source Material and Footnote References

The original Enochian magick material is a labyrinth of manuscripts. In preparing this book, I was fortunate to have at my disposal electronic files containing the photographic images of original material currently housed at the British Library, London. The manuscripts are numbered and designated by the name of past owners. The ones I used for the present work are designated: Sloane 3188, 3189, 3191; and Cotton Appendix XLVI parts I and II.

Within these numbered manuscripts are various "books," or "Liber" bearing separate titles. Some of these Liber were copied by Kelley or others and reproduced in subsequent manuscripts (sometimes renamed) and have found their way to London's British Library and the Bodleian and Ashmolean libraries at Oxford University. For my purposes the material from the British Library's Sloane 3188, 3189, 3191; and Cotton Appendix XLVI parts I and II proved to be quite sufficient. Digital scans of the Enochian manuscripts can be accessed electronically at: <http://www.themagickalreview.org/enochian/mssl/>.

Enochian scholar Geoffrey James prepared a concise summary breakdown of Dee and Kelley manuscripts for the bibliography of his excellent book, Enochian Magick of Dr. John Dee.<sup>1</sup> He has graciously allowed me to reproduce his entries for the material that relates directly or indirectly to Enochian Vision Magick. The reader who wishes to explore the source material in greater detail (or who simply wishes to track the book's footnotes and references) should find this list very helpful.

SLOANE MS. 3188.

This manuscript contains Dee's earliest scrying sessions. It contains six individual 'books', which are:—

Mysteriorum Liber Primus covering December 22, 1581 to March 15, 1582, and containing a ceremony with Saul (Dee's first scryer) and the first ceremonies with Edward Talbot, in which the table and Solomon's ring are described.

Mysteriorum Liber Secundus covering March 6, 1582 to March 21, 1582, and containing the first elements of the Heptarchic system, the spirits of the Sigil of Æmeth, and the first suggestion that an antediluvian language would be delivered to Dee. This title page is missing, but can be inferred from textual references in SLOANE MS. 3677.

Mysteriorum Liber Tertius covering April 28, 1582 to May 4, 1582, and containing numerous sigils related but apparently not essential to the Heptarchic system, as well as the names of the 49 good angels.

Quartus Liber Mysteriorum covering November 15, 1583 to November 21, 1583, and containing the remainder of the Heptarchic system; this book is the first to record the name of Edward Kelly<sup>2</sup> as the scriber.

Liber Mysteriorum Quintus covering March 23, 1583 to April 18, 1583, and containing the tables later transcribed by Kelly into SLOANE MS. 3189.

Quinti Libri Mysteriorum Appendix covering April 20, 1583 to May 23, 1583, and containing the famous Enochian letters, as well as information concerning the construction of the Great Table.

SLOANE MS. 3189.

Liber Mysteriorum Sextus and Sanctus or The Book of Enoch revealed to John Dee by the Angels which contains 49 double-sided tables of (apparently) random letters. It is in Edward Kelly's handwriting.

SLOANE MS. 3191.

This manuscript is the only book of ceremonial magic extant in Dee's handwriting. It consists of three separate 'books,' each dealing with a different aspect of Dee's angelic magickal system. The books are:—

49 Claves Angelicæ Anno 1584 Cracoviæ (Liber 18) which contains Dee's transcription of the Angelical Keys (often called the Enochian Keys or Enochian Calls.)

Liber Scientiæ Auxillii et Victoriæ Terrestris which contains a complex system of magic based upon the Great Table (often called The Table of Watchtowers). It is entirely in Latin, and related to the Call of the Thirty Aires.

De Heptarchia Mystica which describes a complete system of planetary magic, along with excerpts from the various scrying sessions.

COTTON APPENDIX XLVI, PARTS 1 & 2.

This manuscript is occasionally referred to as Royal Appendix XLVI, or SLOANE MS. 5007. It contains thirteen 'books,' which are:—

Liber Mysteriorum (et Sancti) parallelus Novalisque covering May 28, 1583 to July 4, 1583, and containing the tail end of the Heptarchic system and the only recorded incident of Kelly speaking Greek.

Liber Pergrinationis Prime Videlicet A Mortlaco Angelicæ Ad Craconiam Poloniæ covering September 21, 1583 to March 13, 1584, and containing the journey from Mortlake to Cracow, Poland and various political speculations.

Mensis Mysticus Saobaticus Pars primus ejusdem covering April 10, 1584 to April 30, 1584, and containing the dictations of the first calls (backwards).

Libri Mystici Apertorii Cracoviensis Sabbatici covering May 7, 1584 to May 22, 1584, and containing the remainder of the calls (except for the call of the Thirty aires, in the Angelical tongue, and the spirits of the Thirty aires.

Libri Septimi Cracoviensis Mystici Sabbatici covering May 23, 1584 to July 12, 1584, and containing the geographic locations of the spirits of the Thirty aires, the Great Table or Watchtowers, and the first third of the Call of the Thirty Aires, as well as the names of the Thirty aires.

Libri Cracoviensis Mystici Apertorius Præterea Præmium Madi-mianum covering July 12, 1584 to August 15, 1584, and containing the remainder of the Call of the Thirty Aires, as well as the names of the Thirty aires.

Mysteriorum Pragensium Liber Primus Cæsarique covering August 15, 1584 to October 8, 1584, and containing an attempt to convince the Holy Roman Emperor of the canonical nature of the visions.

Mysteriorum Pragensium Confirmatio covering December 20, 1584 to March 20, 1585, and containing mostly political speculation.

Mysteriorum Cracoveinsium Stephanicorum Mysteria Stephanica covering April 12, 1585 to June 6, 1585, and containing an alchemical formula and a letter from Dee's wife to the spirits.

Unica Actio, quæ Pucciana vocetur covering August 6, 1585 to September 6, 1585, and containing religious visions obviously meant to impress the Papal Nuncio who was then attending the ceremonies.

Liber Resurrectionis Pragæ, Pactum seu Fædus Sabbatismi covering fragments from April 30, 1586 to January 21, 1587, and containing further ceremonies with the Papal Nuncio.

Actio Tertia Trebonæ Generalis covering April 4, 1587 to May 23, 1587, and containing a complex series of corrections to the Watchtowers and the infamous wife-swapping episode.

Jesus, Omnipoten sempiternæ & unæ Deus covering March 20, 1607 to September 7, 1607 and containing the last records of Dee's magickal experiment.

Some of this material has been published in more modern times in books that are still readily available. Foremost of these are A True & Faithful Relation of What Passed for Many Yeers Between Dr. John Dee and Some Spirits,<sup>3</sup> and John Dee's Five Books of Mystery.<sup>4</sup>

To make things a bit easier for the reader to access more readily available source material, I will, wherever possible, try to make references with the text and in notes to passages in these modern works.

Prologue to the Prologue

Something Secret

Vyasa: There's something secret about a beginning. I don't know how to start.

Ganesha: As you claim to be the author of the poem, how about beginning with yourself?

—THE MAHABHARATA<sup>5</sup>

There is indeed something secret about a beginning, secret and invisible like the soul of infinite potential that broods in the heart of every living seed. My tongue is tied. I stare at the blank screen of my monitor. I don't know how to start. For the writer it is the most difficult moment—a million things to say, but where to begin? My eyes search the walls and ceiling of my little office and fall upon the mask of the Hindu god Ganesha. His bright, pleasant face reminds me of the opening scene of Jean-Claude Carrière's play, The Mahabharata,<sup>6</sup> where Vyasa, the author of the epic poem is faced with his own writer's block as he strives to begin his monumental story. Unable to read or write himself, Vyasa is blessed by the arrival of Ganesha, the beloved elephant-headed god, who offers to serve as Vyasa's scribe and take down his story from dictation. He also gives Vyasa some advice about how to start.

"How about beginning with yourself?"

And so, in pale imitation of the poet Vyasa, I will heed the wise counsel of my elephant-headed lord, the remover of obstacles. I shall begin this work of magick by telling you something about myself. Don't worry, I won't tell you much. Just enough to get us started.

I am a man. I am what they call in the East a householder—that is, I am married and have for my entire adult life endeavored with varying degrees of success to provide a loving and stable environment for my family. I am also an exceedingly lucky man, for in truth, throughout the years it has been my sainted wife and beloved son who have provided me with a loving and stable environment.

Fate (coupled with a conspicuous lack of ambition) has conspired to make our lifestyle one of genteel poverty (well, not always so genteel). We've never owned a house, a new car, or a credit card. On the other hand, we've always lived in moderately affluent communities and safe neighborhoods. We've always owned old cars that usually get us where we're going. Our bills consist primarily of the rent, the utilities, health insurance, and our groceries. We have no debts.

Some people say that's a miracle. I agree. Miracles are part of my job, for I am a magician. I'm not the type of magician who creates illusions to entertain audiences, but the type of who seeks to dispel the myriad illusions that hinder my own spiritual growth and enlightenment.

Aleister Crowley (1875–1947), the great twentieth-century magician, defined magick as the “science and art of causing change to occur in conformity with Will.”<sup>7</sup> This is obviously a very broad definition of the term. In my opinion, however, it is the only one that is entirely accurate. You are, of course, free to interpret this definition any way you wish. Personally, I've come to the realization that the only real changes I can effect with magick are changes in myself. By changing myself, I change the world around me, hopefully for the better.

Naturally, I haven't always considered myself a magician, but for as long as I can remember I've been a seeker. Please don't project any undue piety upon this statement. I'm as wicked as anyone who seldom breaks any criminal or civil statutes can be. But even as I wallow in my dark and lazy wickedness, I find myself again and again stumbling inadvertently toward the Light.

As a magician I have also been extraordinarily lucky. Early in my career I was befriended (and many times guided) by some very wonderful, and in their own ways masterful, magicians to whom I owe an immeasurable debt: Israel Regardie, Phyllis Seckler, Helen Parsons Smith, and Grady L. McMurtry. I have also collaborated with others who have enlarged and enriched my magickal life. Foremost among these is my wife, Constance, who is the greatest natural magician I have ever known. There are many others as well: Karen James, whose profound sense of beauty and passion for the art of dramatic ritual keeps alive the mysteries of Eleusis; Douglas James, William Breeze, James Wasserman, Steven Abbott, LeRoy Lauer, David P. Wilson, Rick Potter, Dewey Warth, Nathan Sanders, Christopher S. Hyatt, Poke Runyon, Michael Strader, Sandra Brautigam, and Jonathan Taylor; and, for the last twenty-eight years, the assembled magi of my weekly magick class.

On my fortieth birthday I began to write professionally. In this vocation I have also been exceedingly fortunate. Readers who are familiar with the body of my work know that I am occasionally taken to task by knowledgeable critics who accuse me of writing for beginners and who chide me for diluting or oversimplifying complex and esoteric concepts. Against these charges I can say very little in my defense except to confess that I am indeed a simple man who, by conventional academic standards, is a lazy and undisciplined student. I have to learn anecdotally. I need to put things in a personal context. I need to appreciate and understand the general before I can be thrilled and inspired by the specifics.

Yes, I'm proud to write for beginning students of magick. But first and foremost I write to explain things to myself. I write to find out what I know. I write the books that I wish I could have studied during the first five years of my magickal studies—books that might have saved me years of frustration, blind alleys, and wheel-spinning. I also like to think that I write for more advanced students who may find themselves entangled in the elegance of magickal minutiae or else have become so entranced and self-impressed with their encyclopedic memories that they've lost sight of why they are doing magick in the first place.

I write about things with which I'm familiar and have had hands-on experience. One of those things is Enochian magick. I began my study of this most curious of quaint and curious subjects in late 1979 and began practicing it in earnest in autumn of 1980. Back then there was very little published information available. The only person I actually knew who had any significant hands-on experience with the system was Dr. Francis (Israel) Regardie,<sup>8</sup> who cautioned me in no uncertain terms that I probably shouldn't be dabbling in such things.

Nevertheless, armed with my copy of Aleister Crowley's Gems from the Equinox<sup>9</sup> and the two-volume set of Regardie's The Golden Dawn,<sup>10</sup> I naïvely plunged into what I thought was the deep end of the Enochian magick swimming pool. A year or so later a friend would present me with a huge stack of photocopied<sup>11</sup> documents from the British Museum. This material represented several significant portions of surviving diaries and magickal notebooks of Elizabethan magus Dr. John Dee (1527–1608 or 1609) and his clairvoyant partner Edward Kelley<sup>12</sup> (1555–1595).

Only then did I begin to realize how dreadfully deep the waters of Enochiana really are. By then, however, it was too late for me to get out of the pool. What little of the system I had mastered had already yielded breathtaking results. My life was becoming very magickal.

Those primitive photocopies eventually yellowed, then browned, then charcoal-blackened into illegibility, but my interest didn't fade. Neither did the interest of others in the magickal community. Today clear copies of the museum manuscripts are readily available to the serious student, and there are no less than thirty books currently in print with the word "Enochian" in the title. I confess a few of those are my doing. In 1991 Dr. Christopher S. Hyatt and I wrote a commentary on Aleister Crowley's little Enochian masterpiece, Liber Chanokh.<sup>13</sup> A year later Herman Slater of Magickal Childe Publishing asked me to pen the introduction to the new facsimile edition of the 1659 A True & Faithful Relation of What Passed for Many Yeers Between John Dee . . . and Some Spirits. In 1995, my wife, Constance, and I created a deck of tarot cards<sup>14</sup> that incorporates a large number of images relating to the Enochian Elemental Tablets. In the book that accompanies the cards,<sup>15</sup> I elucidate on how they can be used for practical Enochian magick operations.

But writing (and reading) about Enochian magick is one thing; actually using it in a practical way to advance one's own spiritual evolution is another. With few exceptions, the thirty odd books mentioned above are very long on theory and history and very short on straightforward suggestions on how to actually sit down and perform Enochian magick, or reasons why one would want to do such a thing in the first place. I hope to remedy this, at least in small measure, by writing this book. I feel qualified to do this not because I have any illusions that I am the world's most knowledgeable scholar on the subject (I assure you I am not). I offer simply the credentials of nearly thirty years of applied experience with several aspects of Enochian magick. I have come to some very fundamental conclusions that I believe might be of significant and practical value to both the speculative student and the operative practitioner of this elegant and complex magickal system.

Before I plunge us directly into those waters, however, I need to briefly address the question of why a relatively sane and rational twenty-first-century adult would wish to seriously embark upon the path of magick. I will do this with a device that will most assuredly irritate my publisher—a second prologue. And once again, to please my Lord Ganesha,<sup>16</sup> I will begin by talking about myself.

Prologue

Why Magick?

Magick is as mysterious as mathematics, as empirical as poetry, as uncertain as golf, and as dependent on the personal equations as Love.

—ALEISTER CROWLEY<sup>17</sup>

I'm a magician. I practice the art of ceremonial magick. I adore and invoke the essence of highest Deity and hold congress with divine angels. I also evoke and command spirits and demons.<sup>18</sup> Ceremonial magick is the path I have chosen to give expression to the spiritual yearnings I believe are inherent in every human being. It is my Tao, my Way, my religion, my philosophy, my psychology. But ceremonial magick isn't my life. I already have a life, thank you. But I use magick to help make my life magick.

I have closets and chests full of bizarre and colorful robes and crowns and wands and daggers and chalices and swords and lances and thuribles and banners and veils and rings and incense and candles and oils and tablets and talismans and mirrors and crystals. I have books—strange books (some very old and rare), books that would scare the daylights out of most of my neighbors. I use these magickal tools; I study these books in order to perform the rites of ceremonial magick. These things are not my life. But I use them to make my life magick.

On the surface one might think it reasonable and fair to ask, "Why are you a magician, Lon? Why do you believe in this stuff? Why do you do these crazy things?"

It might surprise you to know I don't have a proper answer to these questions. It is impossible for me to adequately explain or justify why

I celebrate my spiritual life through the vehicle of magick, for the same reasons it is impossible for any artist to properly explain why he or she has taken up the brush or the chisel or the violin or ballet slippers. If reasonableness were the sole criterion for the existence of art, there would be no music, no dance, no magick.

Make no mistake about it, magick is an art form, and every true magician is an artist. Just like the musician and dancer, the magician must practice, create, and perform. Just like the painter or sculptor, he or she must be armed with proper tools, skills, knowledge, and, most of all, inspiration. But what about people who've never learned to play a musical instrument, never learned to dance or paint or sculpt, yet who find themselves spiritually touched by listening to music, watching ballet, and visiting galleries? Are they not artists too?

In a very important way, I believe they are. As quantum physicists tell us, both the observer and that which is observed are changed by the act of observation itself. By appreciating the artist's handiwork, we are fundamentally affecting the reality and life of that creation. More importantly, when we expose ourselves to the artist's creation, we enjoy the passive luxury of allowing our consciousness to be altered, elevated, and enriched in unique and personal ways the artist might have never imagined.

The art of ceremonial magick, however, is a little different. There is no painted canvas to display, no audience to applaud. Regardless of how altruistic the magician's motives may be, magick is spiritual performance art that must ultimately be executed and appreciated by the magician alone. He or she is at once the teacher, the student, the medium, the conductor, the performer, the venue, the audience, and the critic. The magician touches the broader audience of humanity only by affecting changes in the magician, and success can be weighed only in the silent Holy of Holies of his or her own soul.

So, here and now and for the duration of this book, I shall lay aside the question of "why magick?" If my magickal efforts seem to propel me closer to self-realization, if my work brings me a measure of health or happiness or wisdom or a sense of fulfillment, good. But none of these things, nor indeed any thing, can be the goal of my art. Instead of asking, "why magick?" I suggest all who would fancy themselves magicians seek answers to the following questions, questions I struggle to answer every day of my life:

Am I really an artist? Am I drawn to this strange and irrational art form because of my mad passion to enrich my art and fulfill my creative life purpose? Or am I doing all this to avoid fulfilling my destiny? Am I running away from myself? When I don my magickal robes and enter the temple, do I do so as a radiant artist-magician, armed and ready to storm the gates of heaven and hell to do battle for the triumph of my soul, poised to take the next step in my spiritual evolution? Or am I merely a foolish man in an exotic costume, a mystic poseur in serious need of a life?

CHAPTER ONE

In the Middle of the Night

Teach me (O creator of all things) to have correct knowledge and understanding, for your wisdom is all that I desire. Speak your word in my ear (O creator of all things) and set your wisdom in my heart.

—JOHN DEE<sup>19</sup>

It's 3:43 a.m. I've been up for about a half an hour bathing, dressing, and preparing myself to operate. Constance is asleep in the bedroom, and I'm trying to be as quiet as I can. In just a few minutes I will turn off the computer here in my office, take up my almond wand, and go into the darkened living room. There I will quietly perform a Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram, light two tapered candles, and sit down before the Holy Table.

Once comfortably seated I will close my eyes and pray:

Teach me (O creator of all things) to have correct knowledge and understanding, for your wisdom is all that I desire. Speak your word in my ear (O creator of all things) and set your wisdom in my heart. Amen.

I will then open my eyes, take the golden Ring, and quietly recite the Prayer of the Ring:

Behold the Ring. Lo, this it is. This is it, wherewith all miracles, and divine works and wonders were wrought by Solomon: this is it, which the Archangel Michael has revealed to me. This is it, which Philosophy dreameth of. This is it, which the Angels scarce know. This is it, and blessed be his name: yea, his Name be blessed forever. Without this I shall do nothing. Blessed be his name, that encompasses all things: Wonders are in him, and his name is WONDERFUL: PELE. His Name works wonders from generation to generation. Amen.

I will put on the Ring and then take up the golden Lamen that is attached to a black ribbon. Before putting it around my neck I will again pray:

Behold the Lamen. As the Holy Table conciliates Heaven and Earth, let this Lamen which I place over my heart conciliate me to the Holy Table. Amen.

I will then take up my almond wand, reach across the Holy Table, tap the upper right-hand corner, and begin to chant. As I do so, I will move the tip of the wand from right to left along the far edge of the table and chant:

Pa Med Fam Med Drux Fam Fam Ur Ged Graph Drux Med
Graph Graph Med Med Or Med Gal Ged Ged Drux.

Then, moving the tip of the wand down the left edge of the table, I will continue to chant:

Pa Drux Un Tal Fam Don Ur Graph Don Or Gisg Gon Med
Un Ged Med Graph Van Ur Don Don Un.

Then, moving from left to right along the bottom edge:

Pa Drux Ur Ur Don Ur Drux Un Med Graph Graph Med Med
Graph Ceph Ged Ged Ur Mals Mals Fam Un.

Then up the right-hand edge to finish where I started:

Pa Gon Med Un Graph Fam Mals Tal Ur Pa Pa Drux Un Un
Van Un Med Un Gon Drux Drux Ur.

I will repeat this entire procedure six more times, each time increasing the intensity of my focus on the words and movements. When I've completed the seventh round of chanting, I will hold the wand over the center of the table and chant seven rounds of the following:

Med Gon Gisg, Don Ur Van, Ur Don Ur, Med Med Graph.
Med Don Ur Med, Gon Ur Don Med, Gisg Van Ur Graph.

Then I will trace a circle over the center of the table and say:

Seven, rest in Seven: and the Seven, live by Seven: The Seven, govern the Seven: And by Seven all Government is.

Galas Gethog Thaoth Horlwn Innon Aaoth Galethog,

Zaphkiel Zedekiel Cumael Raphael Haniel Michael Gabriel,

E(l) Me Ese Iana Akele Azdobon Stimcul,

I Ih Ilr Dmal HeeoA Beigia Stimcul,

S Ab Ath Izad Ekiei Madimi Esemeli,

E An Ave Liba Rocle Hagonel Ilemes,

Sabathiel Zadkiel Madimiel Semiel Nogahel Corabiel
Lavanael.

Finally, I will place the tip of my wand upon the center of my forehead and whisper:

luah lang sach urch

iad moz zir—iad bab zna—iad sor gru—iad ser osf.

The chanting will take about eighteen minutes. By then I will have chanted myself into an altered state of consciousness. In fact, I'll be high as a kite and struggling to avoid drifting into a directionless rapture. I will no longer be the overweight knot of worries and vices that haunts the daylight world of bills and phone calls and deadlines—vampires of time. I will be a magician, a key player in the business of creation, a spiritual being occupying my own indispensable rung on a hierarchical ladder of spiritual beings: gods, archangels and angels, spirits, and demons—spiritual entities who personify in metaphoric Technicolor every natural force, every monad of energy, every atom of matter, every concept and principle, potentiality, and tendency in the visible and invisible cosmos.

My living room will disappear, and in its place will tower the Temple of the Universe, holy ground demarcated by a consecrated carpet of red silk, upon which rests the Holy Table, the center of the universe, the Holy of Holies where heaven touches earth.

The table is completely veiled by a red silk cloth, with its gold tassels that hang from each corner. The cloth conceals an elaborately painted and engraved tabletop, the perimeter of which is carved with eighty-four squares containing letters from a sacred angelic alphabet—letters whose names I chanted in the angelic tongue during my seven rounds of chanting. A large carved hexagram spans the entire inner surface of the tabletop. And in the center of the hexagram broods a large rectangle made up of twelve squares, each containing an oversized angelic letter—the same letters whose names I chanted during the second round of chanting—artfully carved into the surface of the table. Seven talismans, Ensigns of Creation, are arrayed around the central rectangle. They are made of purified tin and are peculiarly lettered in the angelic script.

The centerpiece of the Holy Table is the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, a wax disk approximately nine inches in diameter and one and one-half inches thick, bearing the carved image of a complex diagram consisting of an interlocked heptagram, two heptagons, a pentagram, and an array of numbers and letters, which, when decoded, spell the names of seven sets of seven divine beings: Seven who rest in seven, seven who live by seven, the seven who govern the seven, and seven by whom all government is. Four smaller waxed versions of this Sigillum (wrapped in red silk bags) rest under the legs of the Holy Table, insulating it from distracting geocurrents.

The chanting completed, I will unveil a circular black mirror made of highly polished obsidian. I have it placed in a stand directly upon the covered Sigillum Dei Aemeth, and I will carefully angle it so I see my dimly lit face reflected in its pool of deep blackness. After only a few moments the reflection of my face will disappear, and I will see with magick eyes and hear with magick ears.

Now, the vision magick begins.

In the middle of the night I will call upon the angels.

I will call upon the angels, and they will answer.

CHAPTER TWO

The Magick of Dr. John Dee

If Merlin is an inner resonator who generated the literature which gathered about his name, then Dr. John Dee must be considered almost his outer manifestation in the real world.

He is probably the single most influential aspect of the magician ever to have lived and a worthy successor to the Arthurian mage.

—JOHN AND CAITLIN MATTHEWS<sup>20</sup>

The little ceremony I described in chapter one cannot be found in any other book of magick. I composed it in the spring of 2006 for the benefit of the members of my weekly magick class. It is designed as a ritual of preparation—a ceremonial “drug,” as it were, to safely induce an altered state of consciousness, a trance in which specific techniques of magick may be practiced and visions can occur.

The components of the ritual are not, however, a modern invention. The magical implements and furniture were fabricated as faithfully as possible from descriptions found in sixteenth-century manuscripts and items currently housed at the Bodleian Library of Oxford University, the British Library, and the King’s Library wing of the British Museum.

The prayers and the chants were drawn from those same ancient texts. In a group magical working, the prayers are recited in unison and the chants intoned Tibetan style, in a deep monotone chorus of two or four groups of voices. The hypnotic effect on the participants is tangible and powerful. (I have yet to discover what it does to our eavesdropping neighbors.)

The ancient manuscripts I refer to are the diaries and magical records of Dr. John Dee<sup>21</sup> and his partner Edward Kelley, and these texts represent the source material for the system of magick known and practiced today as Enochian magick.

It is not my intention, nor is it within the scope of the present work, to present a proper biography of Dee. That has been handled nicely in Peter French’s brilliant biography<sup>22</sup> and other texts that I’ve itemized in the bibliography. I cannot, however, escape the necessity of providing a brief outline of his life and work, because it will have a direct bearing on our understanding of Enochian vision magick and why I think my little ritual of preparation is so important for those who wish to pursue this path.

Son of a gentleman server to Henry VIII, John Dee was a true Renaissance magus and one of the most extraordinary individuals of his time. Historian John Aubrey called him “one of the ornaments of his Age.”<sup>23</sup> That is saying a lot, for his age was peopled with some of the brightest lights in the history of western civilization: Queen Elizabeth I, Charles V, Francis Bacon, Ben Johnson, Edmund Spenser, Giordano Bruno, Christopher Marlowe, and William Shakespeare.

Dee’s unique genius blossomed at Cambridge University, and his fame as a published mathematician propelled him as a young man to academic rock-star status throughout Europe. It also brought him to the attention of the rulers of his world, including the future Queen Elizabeth.

He was the master of scores of disciplines. He was a physician, an engineer, a theologian, an astronomer, and cartographer. He invented the nautical instruments and developed the advanced navigational charts that helped make Britannia ruler of the waves. He even coined the term Britannia. A master astrologer, he was allowed to choose the date of Elizabeth’s coronation, and throughout her reign he remained her friend and counselor.

Because he was fluent in many languages and lectured often on the continent, Elizabeth enlisted his services as a spy. Dee enjoyed this role very much. As a matter of fact, I believe he remained in this position until the day she died. He was fascinated with cryptography and loved word and letter puzzles. Dee was secretly known as "the queen's eyes," and he signed his dispatches to her with the stylized image of a hand shading two eyes.

Yes, John Dee, on "her majesty's secret service," was the first agent 007.<sup>24</sup> Dee possessed the largest private library in England and was constantly enlarging it. He was perhaps the most educated man of his day. Part of his education included esoteric philosophy, Qabalah, alchemy, and magick—not illogical pursuits for a Renaissance magus. Magick, in particular, was a science to be explored and exploited. Dee wanted to talk to angels (as did the biblical patriarch Enoch) not only to discover the wisdom of the past and the secrets of the universe, but also, more immediately, to discover the secrets of Elizabeth's enemies and brandish the power to magically manipulate the spiritual forces that control them. Dee wanted to be a magical spy.

His approach to magick (at least at first) was pretty standard procedure for the day. After bathing and dressing in clean clothes (extraordinary measures for the times—unless, of course, it was May, when many people of the day took their annual bath), he would enter a room set aside for the purpose. There he would drop to his knees before a consecrated table/altar and for a half hour or so pray fervently to God and His good angels, alternately reciting a litany of self-abasing confessions of his unworthiness to enter into the divine presence and boasting of his God-given right to do that very thing. With his consciousness duly exalted by prayer, he would then gaze into a crystal or a black mirror (a process known as scrying<sup>25</sup>) and wait to receive a vision.

In theory that's how it was supposed to work. However, even though Dee was skilled at composing long and eloquent prayers, he was not very good at scrying. In 1581 he started to advertise for someone who was. He had a small measure of success with a handful of rented seers until March of 1582, when he made the acquaintance of one Edward Talbot. Talbot (who would soon confess that his name was actually Kelley) was an unemployed alchemist's assistant and convicted forgery. Kelley's questionable character notwithstanding, his skills as a scryer immediately impressed Dee, who hired him on the spot at a salary of fifty pounds a year, a handsome figure for the day.

The partnership of Dr. John Dee and Edward Kelley would last until 1587. Their angelic-magick workings for the most part concluded in 1584. During their time together they engaged in hundreds of scrying sessions of varying lengths, in which Kelley gazed into a crystal ball or a black obsidian mirror and reported everything he saw and heard during a variety of angelic communications. Dee, sitting at a nearby table with pen and ink, led the questioning and recorded everything in anal-retentive detail.

Not all of the sessions yielded profound revelations. Indeed, many appear to be attempts by the communicating intelligences to simply keep the conversation going. There were numerous instances when information received in earlier sessions was amended (sometimes radically) in subsequent sessions. There were even times when the magicians were informed that they had been deceived in earlier communications by evil spirits. Nevertheless, the consistency of the bulk of the material is staggeringly impressive, and the double-/triple-blind nature in which it was delivered, especially the angelic language, calls, and magical tablets, boggles the imagination.

The Dee and Kelley years can be viewed as having occurred in three major phases, resulting in what appears on the surface to be three separate and unique magical systems. I will discuss these in more detail shortly. Here at the beginning it is enough to simply point out it is the third and last phase of their angelic workings (the three-month period between April 10 and July 13, 1584) that yielded the material for the system of vision magick that can be properly called Enochian.

The Enochian period was highly productive and bore much promise. In fewer than a hundred days Dee and Kelley received an angelic language, tablets containing the names of elemental and celestial beings, and calls in the angelic tongue that promised to unlock the secrets of heaven and earth. With sad, almost Faustian irony, however, once the Enochian material was in their hands, Dee and Kelley did not proceed to actually operate the system in subsequent workings.

They would go on to other magical adventures, attempting to impress (with little success) the crown heads of Europe with their supernatural counsel. Finally, after nearly five years of working together, years of exhausting magical sessions, and years of traipsing their families around Europe (not to mention a notorious wife-swapping incident), familiarity finally bred contempt, and the two magicians parted company without ever getting into the driver's seat of Enochian magick and turning the key.

Dee's complicated life would draw him back to the English court and the distracting world of political intrigue and survival. In 1588, as the Spanish armada set sail to annihilate England's much smaller fleet (an event Dee predicted years earlier), Elizabeth called again upon her Merlin. Dee shocked her courtiers by urging the queen to not engage the Spanish armada and keep her ships at bay, prophesizing that a mighty storm would scatter and destroy the Spaniards. Elizabeth wisely heeded Dee's words. The storm manifested right on cue, and in the chaos that followed, the Spanish armada went down to defeat. In many circles Dee was credited with magically raising the tempest that saved England. The story of this event became instant legend. William Shakespeare, writing only twenty-three years later, would use Dee as the model for Prospero, the storm-raising magician in his play, The Tempest.

Kelley's post-Enochian years would not earn him such renown. His ambitions kept him on the continent, where he peddled the promise of alchemical treasures to the crown heads of Europe. He was knighted by Emperor Rudolph II of Bohemia but was shortly thereafter imprisoned by his royal patron for failing to manufacture alchemical gold. With fairy-tale panache, Sir Edward Kelley plunged to an untimely death in November of 1595 while attempting to escape from the turret of Emperor Rudolph's prison tower.

Dee's end was not so colorful. Elizabeth appointed him warden of Christ's College in Manchester, but it was not a happy tenure. His wife (and, it is believed, several of his children) died there during the plague in 1605. Dee returned to his home at Mortlake, where his daughter Katherine cared for him until his death in late 1608 or early 1609.

How so many of Dee's manuscripts survived to see the light of the twenty-first century is a magical wonder story in and of itself. Several of the most important documents Dee had hidden in the false bottom of a cedar chest (can we get much more romantic?), where they lay undiscovered for over fifty years after his death. Through a curious chain of events (that tragically saw a portion of the manuscripts baked as pie wrappings), the surviving material came to the attention of the illustrious antiquary, politician, astrologer, chemist, and Freemason, Elias Ashmole (1617–1692), one of the few people in the world capable of recognizing the importance of the discovery. Thanks to Ashmole, the material was catalogued and finally housed safely in his own museum at Oxford, the British Museum, and the British Library, where, over three hundred years after its reception, it captured the attention of S. L. MacGregor Mathers, Wynn Wescott, and the adepts of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, then Aleister Crowley—and now you.

CHAPTER THREE

Dee and Kelley vs. the Golden Dawn and Aleister Crowley

Now hath it pleased God to deliver this Doctrine again out of darkness: and to fulfill his promise with thee, for the books of Enoch: To whom he sayeth as he said unto Enoch. Let those that are worthy understand this, by thee, that it may be one witness of my promise toward thee.

—THE ANGEL AVE, MONDAY, JUNE 25, 1584<sup>26</sup>

Modern Enochian magick (as first developed in the late nineteenth century by S. L. MacGregor Mathers and the adepts of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn and later adapted and augmented by Aleister Crowley and others) is a remarkable and tidy self-referential system of visionary magick. It is based upon a small portion of sixteenth-century manuscripts of Dr. John Dee and Edward Kelley, and the mystique of its colorful origins make it initially alluring to magical dilettantes and dabblers. However, the complexity of the system, as outlined by Golden Dawn/Crowley texts, continues to effectively guard the mysteries of this marvelous magical art form from all but the most serious, courageous, tenacious, foolish, or naïve.<sup>27</sup>

For most of us who cut our Enochian-magick teeth during the latter half of the twentieth century, the Golden Dawn (GD) and Crowley books were at the time the only source material readily available to us. By following the intricate procedures outlined in these texts, we proceeded with our visionary quests along the two avenues of experimentation offered us by the GD/Crowley model: one branch of the system dealing with the elemental (manifest) universe, the other dealing with the aethyric (celestial). I'll discuss these branches in more detail in book IV.

Both of these magical environments are populated by spiritual beings whose names are drawn from five grids of lettered squares received by Dee and Kelley during a series of angelic communications during the third (or Enochian) period of their magical operations. Both the elemental and the celestial magical environments (and their spirit inhabitants) are accessed by intoning one or more of nineteen calls, which are chanted in an angelic language that was given to the Elizabethan magicians under breathtaking and extraordinary circumstances during the last months of their angelic magick workings. Theoretically, these calls induce very specific trances, whereby the magician can pinpoint particular spiritual entities or environments he or she wishes to contact or visit. As you can imagine, this is a very attractive prospect to the magical explorer.

The visionary labor of many post-modern Enochian explorers was well repaid, for we soon discovered that despite our very limited access to the original texts (not to mention our inexperience and ineptitude) this kind of magick actually worked. With surprisingly few exceptions, when we followed the GD/Crowley procedures and techniques, even the most insensitive and skeptical among us received visions we deemed appropriate to the particular regions we were exploring.

The technique used to receive visions such as these is called scrying. The Golden Dawn and Crowley often referred to the practice as "traveling in the spirit vision." Scrying is, quite simply, the ability to put oneself in touch with one's own psychic senses. In magical operations the scrying session is usually preceded by a formal ceremony designed to put the magician in an altered state of consciousness. It is, for all intents and purposes, a shamanistic experience. The thoughts, mental images, and impressions that flood the magician's mind during this altered state are subsequently recorded in the magician's journal and analyzed.

Naturally, some of us proved more talented than others. Art lovers and movie fans make particularly good candidates for Enochian vision magick, for they see with the romantic's eye and already possess a vast memory bank of evocative landscapes, archetypal characters, and supernatural beings. They are by nature dreamers skilled at communicating through a vocabulary of images and visual metaphors. But even the least imaginative of us, in short order, learned to develop our own visionary skills that became increasingly honed by our repeated work with the system.

There is no question (in my mind, at least) that the Enochian magick procedures and techniques developed by the Golden Dawn and Crowley embody a highly effective system of magical working that, if properly applied, can become an integral component in the modern magician's program of personal self-development. This is especially true for those of us whose magical careers have led us to the Qabalah-based disciplines referred to today in specialized circles as hermetic or ceremonial magick.

To modern ceremonial magicians, Enochian magick appears at first glance to enjoy a comfortable compatibility with our world of pentagram rituals, hexagram rituals, tarot cards, trees of life, qabalistic path workings, chakra work, invocations, god-forms, and spirit evocations. This compatibility, however, has been, for the most part, contrived and jerry-rigged. For as efficacious as the GD/Crowley applications and techniques are, they bear little resemblance to anything Dee and Kelley practiced or were instructed to engage in by their angelic contacts. With all due respect to Mathers, it is clear that he and his Golden Dawn adepts chose to limit their attention to only those portions of source texts that offered material that they could fit easily into the qabalistic/hermetic schema to which they were so passionately committed. Furthermore, it is clear that in many instances, when the original material didn't fit the schema, they found a way to make it fit.

This fact should not diminish in our respect for the wonderfully effective system the Golden Dawn and Crowley have bequeathed to us. But it has prompted many of us (who obviously have an inordinate amount of time on our hands) to examine in greater detail the surviving Dee and Kelley material that has now become more readily available to the serious student. What we discovered is an overwhelmingly large body of work—books, notebooks, and diaries—the most interesting of which span the better part of three years of intense magical operations.

Most of this material appears to have nothing whatsoever to do with Enochian magick as practiced today.

As I mentioned earlier, Dee and Kelley's magical workings took place in three distinct phases that yielded three unique magical systems. For convenience, I will refer to these as (1) Heptarchia Mystica (or simply Heptarchia), (2) Loagaeth (which includes an angelic alphabet), and (3) Enochian.

One could argue quite convincingly that the revelations Dee and Kelley received during the Enochian period represent the crème de la crème of their magical workings and that it is unnecessary to waste our time on the painfully complex details of the Heptarchia and Loagaeth working periods. After all, the GD/Crowley system and techniques were developed from this plus ultra Enochian material, and everything seems to work just fine, thank you. In fact, for the better part of twenty years I was one of the most vocal apologists for the Enochian school whose motto is, "Don't try to duplicate the magick Dee and Kelley did to receive the system—just use the system they received!" Then, starting in 1999, a couple of things happened that caused me to rethink the wisdom of this attitude.

First, I became enthralled with the work of Clay Holden and the John Dee Publication Project, which brought the glories of Quinti Libri Mysteriorum to life on the World Wide Web. Then, in 2003, my O.T.O.<sup>28</sup> Brother and Enochian magick adept Christeos Pir sent me a computer disk of material from a marvelous Enochian seminar he presented in Pittston, Pennsylvania. Along with the seminar material, he sent me a collection of photographic files of surviving Dee manuscripts from the British Library and other materials that were of great interest to me. I assure you, I could not have written this book without these materials and the profound insights of this great modern magician.

Around the same time, my publisher sent me a copy of Joseph H. Peterson's book John Dee's Five Books of Mystery: Original Sourcebook of Enochian Magic. I had years earlier examined much of this material enlarged from microfilm, but now I had the luxury of comfortably reviewing it in clearer formats (with Latin translations) on my home computer and from Peterson's marvelously well-organized book.

I must confess that even with this information stacked conveniently and legibly under my nose, I was overwhelmed by the sheer immensity of it all. I'm interested in the magical adventures of Dee and Kelley as much as the next fellow, but I also have a life. Did I need to sacrifice three years of my own life in order to eavesdrop on every detail of three years of theirs? More than ever I saw the wisdom of simply using the magical system Dee and Kelley received and of not wasting precious time trying to recreate the magick they practiced to receive the system. After all, can't I drive a car without first having to build it myself?

But we're not talking about driving cars; we're talking about the art of magick. In the final analysis, no matter what system the magician chooses, in order to make it work most effectively he or she must first become attuned to that system's particular way of viewing of the universe. This concept is so important to the understanding of what will follow in this book that I will pause to illustrate with an example.

The ceremonial magician who practices qabalistic magick acquiesces (at least for the duration of the working) to see all things in heaven and earth in terms of a hierarchy of spiritual personages expressed by the various god names, archangels, angels, spirits, intelligences, and demons of the system. In Qabalah-based magic, such spiritual beings are conveniently organized and arranged according to fourfold formulas dictated by the Hebrew letters that make up the great Name of God, Yod Heh Vav Heh, and by the familiar schema of the Tree of Life, with its ten sephiroth and the twenty-two paths that connect them. Before the magician is ready to operate within the laws and peculiarities of this qabalistic worldview, he or she must first become a fit component of that universe—a harmonious and integral part of this great divine machine, a vital step on this hierarchical stairway of consciousness.

Like the ballerina whose ninety minutes on stage is the product of years of practice and thousands of hours of rehearsal, the magical artist must also be first transformed into a proper instrument of his or her craft. Magicians achieve this transformation with preliminary meditations and rituals, by which we adjust our focus step-by-step until we become comfortable citizens of the specific magical world in which we intend to operate. For the western ceremonial magician, the well-worn curriculum of the Golden Dawn provides perfect examples of this step-by-step adjustment process.

First the magician becomes master of the pentagram and a full citizen of the world of the five elements of the microcosmic universe. By repeated performances of the pentagram rituals and meditations, the magician's psyche becomes balanced and accustomed to the world of the four directional winds, the four elements, and the corresponding magical weapons: the wand, cup, sword, and disk.

Once the elemental (microcosmic) universe is mastered, the magician then moves on to the next step in the attunement process by mastering rituals of the hexagram. Here the magician's point of reference is enlarged as his or her consciousness and identity is obliged to expand from the microcosmic world of the elements to the macrocosmic greater world—the world characterized by the sun orbited by the planets and surrounded by the belt of the zodiac.

This is very basic stuff, but it illustrates how rituals enable the ceremonial magician to externalize internal processes and undergo self-transformation. Would-be magicians who attempt more advanced work without being adjusted by these early attunements are ill prepared to understand or properly absorb what is happening to them within the context of the progressively higher magical environments in which they presumptuously wish to operate. It is true that some magicians may receive seemingly dramatic and noteworthy effects from such premature efforts, but seeds of promise cannot long take root in soil that is not properly prepared or that is too shallow.

Late in 2005, while gathering material for yet another workshop series on Enochian magick for my Monday night magick class, I poured over the records of Dee and Kelley's pre-Enochian workings in hopes of finding the key to their preparatory processes. What exactly did the angels do to Dee and Kelley during the years prior to the final Enochian revelations? Dee and Kelley received some pretty interesting things during those earlier workings, including instructions for the creation of an array of magical implements that the Golden Dawn and Crowley all but ignored:

- a Ring;<sup>29</sup>
- a Lamen, which was to be worn by the magician as a breastplate and which connects him or her to the Holy Table;
- the Holy Table itself, inscribed with letters from an angelic alphabet and upon which would rest the Sigillum Dei Aemeth;
- the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, an intricately carved disk made of purified beeswax (an artifact so stunning and historically intriguing that it is prominently displayed today in the King's Library wing of the British Museum);

- seven talismans (five squares and two circles), called Ensigns of Creation, which surround the Sigillum on the Holy Table.

All of these items were linked to one another and to the magicians by an overwhelmingly complex process that distilled, shuffled, and organized thousands of letters from numerous and varied alphanumeric grids. These grids had been painstakingly received in vision, one letter at a time, by Kelley and duly transcribed by Dee. The letters spelled the names of great angels, which, in turn, when manipulated, yielded the names of subordinate angels, which produced still more names.

Now, before we get too excited about dusting off and playing with all these pre-Enochian magical tools and furniture, I have to make myself clear on one very important point. These items were received during the first phase of Dee and Kelley's workings.

This period yielded a unique system of planetary magick they referred to as Heptarchia Mystica (see book II). To all appearances, heptarchic magick has little or no direct relationship to the Enochian magick system they received during their final days of practice. Also, it is demonstrably clear (in my mind at least) that Enochian magick can be performed quite effectively without using the Ring, the Lamén, the Holy Table, and so on. However, it is equally clear to me that, as Dee and Kelley were receiving and working with the items and concepts of heptarchic magick, their minds and psychic bodies were, day by day, undergoing subtle yet profound evolutionary changes.

Could the reason the practical Enochian material came so very late in the game be that Dee and Kelley had to first complete their transformation into magicians who could appreciate and handle the advanced work? After all, isn't that what magick is really about—changes in the magician? Could these changes have been brought about by the mere act of meticulously following the angels' complex directions, which filtered and distilled these magical concepts into material manifestation? If so, this would be a vital preparatory step that modern Enochian magicians are omitting entirely.

I grew intrigued with this idea. Given the fact that the GD/Crowley methods of Enochian magick already work so well right out of the box, how much better might these same techniques work if the magician were first prepared and attuned in a manner similar to the way Dee and Kelley had been prepared and attuned. A magician so equipped would be picking up, as it were, where the two Elizabethans left off in 1584.<sup>30</sup>

I was at first uneasy with this theory because it came dangerously near to destroying my comfortable philosophy of "Don't try to duplicate the magick Dee and Kelley did to receive the system—just use the system they received!" However, my inherent laziness was rewarded, and I eventually took comfort in the realization that in order to ceremonially prepare oneself to perform Enochian magick, one might not need to torturously repeat everything Dee and Kelley did to receive the Ring, the Holy Table, the Lamén, the seven Ensigns of Creation, and the Sigillum Dei Aemeth. Instead, one must simply understand and use (in a way that mirrors the preparation process) the Ring, the Holy Table, the Lamén, the seven Ensigns of Creation, and the Sigillum Dei Aemeth that they received!

This book was written to show the practicing Enochian magician how to do precisely that, and the little ritual in chapter one (and outlined in greater detail in appendix I) is the ceremony that embodies this preparation process. Like the rituals of the pentagram that prepare us for elemental magick, like the rituals of the hexagram that prepare us for planetary magick, I believe this little ceremony captures the essence of the step-by-step processes of personal alchemy that prepared and attuned Dee and Kelley.

The material is based on two series of classes that Constance and I held in our home in 2005 and 2006—visionary workings that spanned a period of just over seven months. While the class spent a considerable amount of time discussing and analyzing the magical theories that underlie these methods of preparation, most of our time was spent actually applying the techniques in a formal and ceremonial manner prior to group and individual Enochian scrying sessions.

My biggest challenge, for both the class series and writing this book, has been how best to communicate the essence of the breathtakingly intricate procedures that occupied Dee and Kelley during their years of preparation without enmeshing the reader in a time-devouring web of details. It is somewhat like trying to convey the profundity of a great cathedral without dwelling minutely on every action of every stonemason who fashioned each perfect stone. I have resolved, therefore, to stay focused on the big picture and allow the reader to wrap his or her mind around the major themes, secure in the knowledge that he or she can proceed to dissect the method of the madness—and discover further revelations—by referring to the now readily available source texts. It is very important for the reader to understand that this book was not written as a substitute for the source material but simply as a guide to the practical, self-transformational applications of this magical art. I advise those of you who may be committed to in-depth academic research of this subject not to view my book as an authoritative replacement for the original texts. Dee and Kelley's records are liberally peppered with irregularities, conflicting instructions, missing pieces, and typos. I've done my best to wade through these and be as consistent and accurate as possible. But when I say I'm going to stay focused on the big picture, that is exactly what I mean.

Are you ready to begin? If so, we need to first talk briefly about the mind of Dr. John Dee and explore the reasons why the secrets of heaven and earth were communicated to him in alphanumeric ciphers, tables, and squares.

CHAPTER FOUR

The Mind of a Cryptographer

Now first I understand what he, the sage, has said: "The world of spirits is not shut away; Thy sense is closed, thy heart is dead!"

—FAUST, ACT I, SCENE I<sup>31</sup>

Are angels, spirits, and demons real? Do they have an existence apart from and outside the mind? Ever since human beings could frame thoughts into words, we have asked ourselves that question. It is an eternal debate among magicians and mystics and one that likely will never be resolved to anyone's complete satisfaction. Personally, I agree with the venerable Rabbi Lamed Ben Clifford who said, "It's all in your head. You just have no idea how big your head is."<sup>32</sup> Certainly every outside impression we receive is ultimately processed inside our own minds. Just keeping that fact in mind we might conclude that, where objective reality is concerned, there is no outside-of-ourselves.

In either case, in the art of magick, the magician must behave (at least for the duration of the operation) as if the spirits are independent intelligences and have an objective existence in a dimension outside his or her own mind. Dee and Kelley (who believed most fervently in a tangible heaven, hell, and the characters and events of the Bible) certainly assumed that the communicating spirits and angels were real and enjoyed an independent existence. This gave the Elizabethan partners a decided psychological edge over modern magicians, who must overcome a smug mountain of logic, rationality, and spiritual cynicism in order to even begin to operate this most naïvely romantic of spiritual art forms.

For practical purposes, it does not matter whether the magician is making contact with “spirit” intelligences from a “spirit world” or merely tapping into currently unexplainable levels in his or her own mind. If the magician is properly prepared (and operating under the right circumstance), it is indeed possible for him or her to make contact with intelligences that for all intents and purposes could be characterized (objectively or metaphorically) as angels, spirits, and demons.

No two individuals are alike, and the art of preparing oneself and arranging the right circumstances for spirit contact is unique for every magician. For us to understand the elements of Enochian magick, we will need to get a basic idea of how the spirits went about reaching the minds of Dee and Kelley—especially Dee, who was, after all, the operating magician. In fact, there are instances where the communicating intelligences indicated that they viewed the two magicians as a single entity with Kelley acting as an extension of Dee’s mind. On April 28, 1582, Dee asks of the archangel Michael, “You mean us two (Dee and Kelley) to be joined so, and in mind united, as if we were one man?” and Michael answered, “Thou understandest.”

As I mentioned earlier, Dee was not a particularly talented scryer. Although his diaries record several instances when he saw certain spirits and phenomena, he relied almost entirely on the visionary skills of others. This makes perfect sense to me. Dee’s immense intellect was actually a magical handicap. His magnificent brain was too engaged to surrender its analytical control. His mind worked too fast, and his thoughts were too loud to hear the subtle messages from the spirits. This is not good for mystical experiences. In order for the communicating intelligences to get past Dee’s constantly churning mind, they had to force him to use his mind to overcome his mind. They had to beat his brain at its own game.

And what were the favorite games of Dr. John Dee’s brain? Ciphers, codes, puzzles, magick squares—these were the arts that touched Dee’s sense of wonder. Had he been obsessed with music, the spirits might have communicated to him through melodies or harmonies or rhythm. Had he been a dancer, they would have communicated through elements of body movement; had he been a military man, they would have through the metaphors of battle. But he wasn’t a musician or a dancer or a soldier. Dee was, at heart, a cryptographer—perhaps the best in the world—and whether he consciously realized it or not, this was how he could make contact with his subconscious mind. This is how he expected the cosmos to unveil her secrets to him. For Dr. John Dee, the secrets of the universe were codes that could be broken. Divine revelation was a matter of decipherment, and he was willing to work for it. Indeed, by working for it, he would prepare himself to receive it. Give me the raw data, and I will decode the mind of God.

Dee was already looking for that raw data the day Edward Kelley first knocked on his door. He was looking for it in the Book of Soyga.

CHAPTER FIVE

The Book of Soyga

Dee: Is my book of Soyga of any excellency?

Uriel: That book was revealed to Adam in Paradise by God's good angels . . .

Dee: . . . Oh, my great and long desire hath been to be able to read those tables of Soyga.

—JOHN DEE AND THE ARCHANGEL URIEL, MARCH 10, 1582<sup>33</sup>

Even before Dee met Kelley he was immersed in the study of a magical treatise written in Latin called Aldaraia sive Soyga: Tractatus Astrologico magicus or, more simply, the Book of Soyga.<sup>34</sup> We know that Dee was intrigued by the Book of Soyga because his diary records that it was the subject of one of the very first questions he asked of the archangel Uriel during Edward Kelley's inaugural scrying session on March 10, 1582. In later diary entries he laments that he has misplaced his Book of Soyga, and still-later entries indicate that he eventually found it.

The book is an anonymous, late-medieval grimoire of planetary, angelic, and demonic magick that is in many ways not too dissimilar from other magical treatises of the period. However, there are several things that distinguish Soyga—things that obviously made it particularly attractive to Dee. For one thing, a great deal of the text concerns itself with alphanumeric exercises and puzzles; letters with numerical, astrological, and elemental values, which are combined, recombined and reduced to form magick words (spelled forwards and backwards), all of which contain increasingly complex values and magical virtues. As we will see, this magical letter distillation process is characteristic of Enochian magick.

Perhaps most intriguing to Dee were the last eighteen leaves of Soyga. These pages contain thirty-six tables, each comprising a grid of 1,296 squares, arranged in 36 x 36 grids. Each of the tables' 1,296 squares is filled with a Latin letter. Together the tables could form a cube comprising 46,656 squares. Each of the thirty-six tables is identified by an astrological or elemental symbol; the first twenty-four are attributed (in pairs) to signs of the zodiac, the next seven to the planets, the next four to the elements (Fire, Water, Air, and Earth), and one simply to "Magistri."<sup>35,36</sup>

For our purposes, I impress upon the reader's mind the profound importance of alphanumerices and how much information can be encoded within a grid of a magick table. I will try to demonstrate this with a very simple illustration, shown in figure 1.

|                  |                  |                  |
|------------------|------------------|------------------|

This table is made up of nine squares. Each square contains one of nine letters, and these letters can be considered by themselves or in combination with the others to spell magical words. Each individual letter has many traditional meanings attached to it. To keep things simple, I've arbitrarily assigned just two correspondences (numerical and planetary) to each of the letters; these are shown in the corners of each lettered square. Theoretically, the number of correspondences each square can represent is nearly infinite.

For example, in this particular table, c not only represents the letter c but also the number three and all things threeish. What do I mean by threeish? One very big example is all things in the universe that exist in time and have movement, and all things that have a beginning, a middle, and an end. In this example c also represents Saturn and everything Saturnian (from wisdom and restriction to darkness, old age, and lead).

Like DNA, alphanumeric squares carry an unimaginably vast amount of information in a deceptively small package. As a resident of our 3 x 3 table, the c square also carries information drawn from its position relative to the other letters and their correspondences. Can you begin to see how much information is contained in that one little square alone? Imagine, then, the mass of complex data that could be tightly stored in a 36 x 36 x 36 square cube represented by the Book of Soyga.

I've discovered no evidence of a direct connection between the Book of Soyga and any of the magical workings that led ultimately to the reception of Enochian magick. Nevertheless, the fact remains that even before Dee met Kelley, the mechanics of the alphanumeric cipher system, as presented in Soyga, captured Dee's analytical imagination and had become part of the way he expected to receive divine information. Indeed, at every phase of Dee and Kelley's workings, alphanumeric squares and codes would play a major role.

We know Dee held the Book of Soyga in high regard and was particularly preoccupied with learning the secrets of the thirty-six tables. The magical process of the Book of Soyga (shuffling and distilling immense numbers of letters and squares into smaller and smaller bits of concentrated information) would become the modus operandi by which the spirits would ultimately communicate the secrets of Enochian magick to Dee and Kelley. It would be the method by which they received the Holy Table, the Lamen, the Ensigns of Creation, the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, the Table of Nalvage, the Elemental Tablets, and, most dramatically, the angelic language and the forty-eight calls. In a way, this process is a metaphor of the mechanics of creation itself. As Carl Sagan<sup>37</sup> said, "If you wish to make an apple pie from scratch, you must first create the universe." In this case, our apple pie is the manifest universe—the world as it presently exists—the world Dee and Kelley wished to understand and magically affect.

This world is the end product of a progression of cosmic events that physicists believe began with an immeasurably dense singularity (containing all the potential information that would eventually become the universe) that burst open and set into motion the phases of creation. The immensely packed assembly of thirty-six 36 x 36 alphanumeric squares found in the Book of Soyga is a crude but appropriate model for such a singularity. The intricate process of combining, shuffling, and distilling information-packed squares magically mimics the astronomical processes by which atoms and elements to stars and planets were formed in the creation cycle from seemingly chaotic units of a potential universe.

The Book of Soyga did not play a direct role in the magical operations of Dee and Kelley, but the patterns and formulae it embodied would remain the methodology of their angelic communications until the end of their association. I believe that the two magicians, by taking part in this incremental process of creation, became personally attuned to the magical universe as it presently exists, and thus prepared themselves to receive and engage in Enochian magick. In the chapters that follow, I will present only the briefest snapshots of the step-by-step process that I believe was the attunement program that prepared Dee and Kelley to receive the Enochian magick system. Hopefully, by your participation in the process, you also will undergo (however vicariously) a similar transformational experience and become fully prepared to actually practice Enochian vision magick.

But first, let us pray.

CHAPTER SIX

Let Us Pray

No man should ever undertake any great or important undertaking without first invoking the blessing of God.

—Master's admonition, California Free and Accepted Masons

The whole secret may be summarized in these four words: "Inflame thyself in praying."

—ALEISTER CROWLEY<sup>38</sup>

One of the most fundamental and important magical tools Dee used throughout his life was prayer. So, before we begin to examine magick rings and protective breastplates and holy tables and other such wizardly items, we need to first get something straight about prayer.

It's okay to pray. Even if you think you don't believe in the same God that Dee and Kelley believed in, it's okay to pray. I realize for many twenty-first-century magicians the word prayer carries with it unpleasant memories of childhood church and Sunday school traumas, and bedtime fears that "if I die before I wake" somebody was going to take my soul to God knows where.

In magick, prayer has nothing to do with religion. It does, however, have everything to do with the magician's grasp of facts of life in the magical world in which he or she intends to operate. Part of that reality is the mystical fact that existence itself is an expression of consciousness, and there are levels of consciousness higher and lower than the one we are currently attuned to.

By the simple act of uttering a prayer, our apparently limited consciousness reaches out and makes contact with a higher level of consciousness, and by doing so, we insert ourselves into the divine circuitry of the cosmos. As we do, part of us (a part that we might not be aware of) wakes up, as it were, and recognizes our rightful place in this circuitry.

In my book The Key to Solomon's Key,<sup>39</sup> I illustrate this concept using the legend of King Solomon as my example. In the excerpt below, I discuss prayer in the context of spirit evocation, but the same thoughts hold true to all forms of magick, including Enochian.

The third chapter of the book of Kings<sup>40</sup> tells us that at the beginning of his reign the Lord appeared to Solomon in a vision by night and said, "Ask that which I should give you." Solomon answered:

"Give therefore to thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people and to discern between good and bad; for who is able to judge this thy so great a people?" And it pleased the Lord because Solomon had asked this thing. And the Lord said to Solomon, "Because you have asked this thing and have not asked for yourself riches, neither have you asked the lives of your enemies nor have you asked for yourself long life, but have asked for yourself wisdom to discern judgment; Behold, I have done according to your words; lo, I have given you a wise and understanding heart, so that there has been none like you before you, neither shall any arise after you like you."<sup>41</sup>

Before undertaking the task of ruling his people and building the Temple, Solomon doesn't begin by consulting with his inferiors (his ministers, his generals, his architects, his building-supply contractors, or labor leaders). He doesn't immediately enmesh himself in the energy-draining details of micromanaging such a huge and important project. Instead he turns his attention upward to the highest level of the hierarchical scale of consciousness. He makes direct contact with Deity and, instead of behaving like a helpless youngster asking a parent for pocket money, he boldly makes himself available to serve as a conduit through which the Deity's infinite wisdom and understanding can pass.

This profoundly mature and uncomplicated request is instantly granted, as if Deity had no choice but to acquiesce. A unique<sup>42</sup> spiritual hierarchy is created, with Solomon enthroned midway between heaven and hell—poised to work in cosmic harmony with the divine consciousness above him, poised to compel the infernal spirits to do the same.

This is the primary secret of Solomonic magic. As long as the magician remains plugged in to that which is above, he or she is simultaneously plugged into (and must begin to master) that which is below.<sup>43</sup>

Dee's prayers, both in English and Latin, fill page after page of his diaries and magical records. I confess I am neither inclined nor devotionally equipped to follow his exhausting example. I do, however, recognize the efficacy of prayer as an indispensable preliminary to magical operations. And, while I do not personally believe that the biblical Solomon ever existed as such in empirical history, as a magical artist I embrace his myth and happily adopt him as a patron saint of magick.

How appropriate, then, that the first magical tool Dee and Kelley would receive from their angelic contacts was the Ring of Solomon, and that before putting on that ring, the magician must first pray.

BOOK II

De Heptarchia Mystica

CHAPTER SEVEN

The Ring

Lo, this it is. This is it, wherewith all Miracles, and divine works and wonders were wrowght by Salomon.

—THE ARCHANGEL MICHAEL, MARCH 14, 1582

The first system of magick Dee and Kelley received from their angelic contacts was a form of planetary magick referred to as De Heptarchia Mystica. It was delivered mostly in late 1582 and amended somewhat the following year. The details of how it was painstakingly received are recorded in Dee's Quinti Libri Mysteriorum<sup>44</sup> and edited for purposes of practical working in his "De Heptarchia Mystica."<sup>45</sup> Unfortunately, we don't know exactly how, or even if, the magicians actually operated this particular form of magick. What we do know is that besides receiving the names and symbols for forty-nine planetary "good angels" Dee and Kelley were instructed to create a number of magical items—items that were almost entirely ignored by the Golden Dawn and Crowley. These items, I believe, can be extremely important tools for the modern Enochian magician; these are the Ring, the Holy Table, the Ensigs of Creation, the Lamén, and the Sigillum Dei Aemeth.

First we need to examine the Ring, for without the Ring the magicians were told they could "do nothing." Unlike most other things they would receive from their angelic contacts, the Ring was delivered in a relatively straightforward manner.

I will not quote long passages from Dee's records, but his description of the circumstances surrounding the reception of the magic Ring are so colorfully dramatic that I cannot resist quoting a brief passage. The date is Wednesday, March 14, 1582. Dee and Kelley were engaged in their fourth action<sup>46</sup> and experiencing a close encounter with the archangels Michael and Uriel. (The following excerpt retains the inconsistent spelling and punctuation of Elizabethan English. The Greek delta, Δ, is Dee, "Mi" the archangel Michael.)

Δ: Now Michael thrust out his right arme, with the sword: and bad the skryer to loke. Then his sword did seame to cleave in two: and a great fyre, flamed out of it, vehemently. Then he toke a ring out of the flame of his sworde: and gave it, to Uriel: and sayd, thus:

Mi: The strength of God, is unspeakable. Praysed be god for ever and ever.

Δ: Then Uriel did make cursy unto him.

Mi: After this sort, must thy ring be: Note it.

Δ: Then he rose, or disapeared, out of the chayre, and by and by, cam again, and sayde, as followeth.

Mi: I will reveale thee this ring: which was never revealed since the death of Salomon: with whom I was present. I was present with him in strength, and mercy.

Lo, this it is. This is it, wherewith all Miracles, and divine works and wonders were wrowght by Salomon: This is it, which I have revealed unto thee. This is it, which Philosophie dreameth of. This is it, which the Angels skarse know. This is it, and blessed be his Name: yea, his Name be blessed for ever.

Δ: Then he layd the Ring down uppon the Table: and sayd, Note.

Δ: It shewed to be a Ring of Gold: with a seale graved in it: and had a rownd thing in the myddle of the seale and a thing like an V, through the top of the circle: and an L, in the bottome: and a barr cleane throwgh it: And had these fowre letters in it, P E L E. After that, he threw the ring on the borde, or Table: and it semed to fall throwgh the Table and then he sayde, thus,

Mi: So shall it do, at thy commanndement. Without this, thow shalt do nothing. Blessed be his name, that cumpasseth all things: Wonders are in him, and his Name is WONDERFULL: His Name worketh wonders from generation, to generation.<sup>47</sup>

Solomon was, and remains, the archetypal magician, and his legendary exploits as a master of spirits fill the pages of traditional Jewish, Islamic, and Ethiopian religious literature. In many of the stories, his magical ring played an important role as the source of his power to control demons. I can imagine Dee and Kelley were very impressed to be given the Ring of Solomon by none other than the archangel Michael himself.

Although the ring's design is unique, the word PELE (wonder worker) is found in two books which Dee already had in his library: De Verbo Mirifico by German humanist and Hebrew scholar Johann Reuchlin and Cornelius Agrippa's Occult Philosophy. (Agrippa apparently took the term from Reuchlin.)

Dee was told the Ring should be made of pure gold. If he indeed had one made, it has not survived the centuries. Realistically, few of us today have the skill to fashion or the resources to have a golden ring custom made.<sup>48</sup> Nevertheless, Michael seemed adamant, "Without this, thow shalt do nothing." And so I've come to the conclusion if I'm to practice this particular art of magick, then before I do anything, I'm going to wear the Ring.

Here is the pattern for a Ring that can be made out of colored paper or poster board. I realize such material is not as impressive or romantic as pure gold. You might even think that a true magick Ring cannot be made from a scrap of paper. You might tell me you'd feel silly wearing a paper ring. If you feel this way, then I hope you won't be offended when I tell you that if you can't make a real magick Ring out of paper, then you'll not be able to make one out of gold. The same goes for the other magical items I am going to discuss in the next few chapters.

Before I practice any aspect of Enochian magick, I recite two short prayers. The first is a prayer John Dee used regularly throughout the years of his magical workings:<sup>49</sup>

Teach me (O creator of all things) to have correct knowledge and understanding, for your wisdom is all that I desire. Speak your word in my ear (O creator of all things) and set your wisdom in my heart.

The second is a prayer I fashioned from the words the archangel Michael spoke to Dee and Kelley during their March 14, 1582, action:

Behold the Ring. Lo, this it is. This is it, wherewith all miracles, and divine works and wonders were wrought by Solomon: this is it, which the Archangel Michael has revealed to me. This is it, which Philosophy dreameth of. This is it, which the Angels scarce know. This is it, and blessed be his name: yea, his Name be blessed forever. Without this I shall do nothing. Blessed be his name, that encompasses all things: Wonders are in him, and his name is WONDERFUL: PELE. His Name works wonders from generation to generation. Amen.

After reciting these prayers and putting on the Ring, I then position myself at the Holy Table and prepare to put on the Lamen.

CHAPTER EIGHT

The Lamen

Beware of wavering. Blot out suspicion of us, for we are God's creatures that have reigned, do reign, and shall reign forever. All our Mysteries shall be known unto you.

—THE ANGEL BRALGES, ONE OF THE ANGELIC PRINCES NAMED ON THE LAMEN, NOVEMBER 16, 1582, PRINCE
BRALGES, NOVEMBER 16, 1582<sup>50</sup>

The Lamen and the Holy Table are inextricably linked. By wearing the Lamen over the heart, the magician becomes linked to the Holy Table. I cannot say it any plainer than that. But putting on the Lamen and sitting at the Holy Table are empty gestures unless the magician has some idea of what these items represent and how they are connected.

The designs for both the Lamen and the Holy Table were distilled from tables composed of letters of the names of planetary angels of the Heptarchia. Even though the chronology of their reception is a bit tangled, it is probably easiest to discuss the Lamen first.

Traditionally a Lamen is a breastplate that is hung from the neck by a chain or ribbon. The breastplate of the high priest of Israel is the biblical archetype for this most important piece of magical adornment. It was a square plate, a 3 x 4 grid embedded with twelve precious stones representing, among other twelveish concepts, the tribes of Israel and the signs of the zodiac. The Lamén that the angels delivered to Dee and Kelley contained no precious stones but displayed eighty-four angelic letters arranged in a most curious and exacting manner.

Two versions of the Lamén were received by Dee and Kelley. The first, delivered in 1582, was a rather odd assortment of lines, squiggles, and letters reminiscent of Solomonic or Goetic sigils. This Lamén, they were told, was to be made in gold and worn as a protective device. After receiving it, the magicians spent the rest of the year and part of 1583 receiving material relating to the forty-nine planetary good angels of the Heptarchia (see figure 5).

The seven-letter names of these angels were received (much to Dee's cryptographic delight, I'm sure) by the complex manipulation and distillation of letters from a cross-shaped table composed of seven 7 x 7 tables (343 squares in all, each containing a number and a letter). This process was dictated by the archangel Michael during a grueling three-hour session. Just to give you an idea of the shape and size of this table, I've included a rough image without the letters and numbers.

The magicians were then instructed how to organize and arrange these 343 letters to reveal the hierarchy of planetary good angels. Each of the seven planetary spheres was assigned a king, a prince, and five ministers. Figure 5 shows how the 343 letters form the names of the forty-nine good angels and how they are arranged according to planet (starting at the top of the wheel and working counterclockwise: Venus, Luna, Saturn, Mercury, Jupiter, Mars, Sol). Note also that only the names of the kings and princes are in all capital letters.

It is obvious from the surviving material that some technique of practical magic was intended to call forth the heptarchic kings, princes, and ministers. Illustrations of flat wooden disks containing the names of the kings and other unexplained characters tantalize us with glimpses of an organized magical system. But the sad fact remains that important source material that could shed light on this has not survived the centuries.

However, just as amber encapsulates and preserves the essence of a prehistoric insect (right down to the DNA), so too the Lamén and the Holy Table capture the distilled essence of the heptarchic hierarchy and system.

After receiving the names, sigils, and hierarchical structures of the forty-nine good angels, the magicians were informed that the first Lamén they received during their actions the previous year was a false one, delivered to them by an "illuding spirit." They were given instructions how to create a new one, which was to be worn not for protection per se, but in order to "dignify" the magicians as worthy practitioners of this form of magick.

I'm going to try to illustrate (as painlessly as possible) how both the Lamén and the Holy Table were created and why I believe their use in Enochian magick is important. Now, the reader might be tempted to skim over the following material, invoking my slogan, "Don't try to duplicate the magick Dee and Kelley did to receive the system—just use the system they received." But I beg you to resist that temptation. By following through (even halfheartedly) the methods by which these magical tools were constructed, you will slip, however subtly, into the divine creative stream that produced them. You will become part of the same process that programmed and prepared Dee and Kelley.

The key to the construction of the Lamén was a 12 x 7 table containing the letters of the names (minus the initial b<sup>51</sup>) of the seven planetary heptarchic kings and their princes (see figure 6).

As you can see, the names of the kings are found on the right half of the table, the names of the princes on the left half. The names in this table are read from right to left. You will immediately notice that the kings of one planet are not matched on the same line as the prince of the same planet (e.g., the sun ☉ king, Bobogel, is set on the same line with the Venus ♀ prince, Bornogo, instead of on the line of the sun ☉ prince, Befafes).<sup>52</sup> This odd juxtaposition of planetary king and prince puts a certain strain on the sensitivities of those of us who like the order of our universe nice and symmetrical. However, this is the arrangement the angels insisted upon for the 12 x 7 table from which the Lamen was to be formed. As we will soon see in the following chapter, they will rectify the imbalance in the 12 x 7 table in order to create the Holy Table. But first let's continue to see how the Lamen is built.

The basic form of the Lamen is a table of twenty-four squares (arranged from top to bottom: 2—4—6—6—4—2) enclosed within diamond square, enclosed by a square, enclosed by a larger square.

The letters of the 12 x 7 table were applied to the Lamen by means of an exercise that first divided the table into three sections, described as flesh, heart, and skin. The letters were then transferred to the blank Lamen in three steps.

Step One: The letters of the flesh were added to the perimeter of the Lamen in their same relative positions to the 12 x 7 table.

Step Two: The letters of the heart were added to the corners of the next inner square of the Lamén in a curiously inconsistent manner. (I've added arrows indicating how the letters are applied.)

Step Three: First, the corners of the skin letters were added to the corners of the innermost diamond square of the Lamén in a manner consistent with their relative positions on the 12 x 7 table. Second, the remaining twenty-four letters of the 12 x 7 table were then braided into the remaining squares in the center of the Lamén.

Dee was told that the Latin letters of the finished Lamén should be translated into the angelic script. (I'll discuss the angelic alphabet a bit later.) Figure 15 shows the completed Lamén with angelic letters.

As with the Ring, gold was the material suggested for the Lamén, but it can be made from paper or poster board. The Lamén I first used was printed on both sides (Latin letters on one side, angelic script on the other) and laminated in plastic. In the area just above the top center I punched a hole through which I threaded a black ribbon.

As I put on the Lamén I utter the prayer:<sup>53</sup>

Behold the Lamén. As the Holy Table conciliates Heaven and Earth, let this Lamén which I place over my heart conciliate me to the Holy Table. Amen.

To understand what I mean by that prayer, we'll next need to turn our attention to the Holy Table.

CHAPTER NINE

The Holy Table

Every one of those sides must have 21 Characters: But first, at every corner make a great B.

—THE ANGEL IL, APRIL 28, 1583<sup>54</sup>

Magick tables were nothing new to Renaissance magicians. Unlike the protective circle and triangle spirit-trap apparatus used by Solomonic magicians, a properly consecrated magick table in a room transforms the entire chamber into holy ground. The table itself becomes the Holy of Holies, the place whereupon earth and heaven touch. Drawings of the period show the magician on his knees, his arms stretched in supplication, before a magick table sheltered by a conical tent.

Dee was already using a table of practice before Edward Kelley entered the picture, but afterwards, as the elements of the heptarchic magick developed, it became clear that the communicating spirits wanted Dee to customize his table in a most specific manner. The angels wanted the Holy Table to be an “instrument of conciliation,” made of “sweet wood,”<sup>55</sup> and built two cubits square and two cubits high.<sup>56</sup> The table was to stand upon a carpet of red silk that was large enough to accommodate the scribe's chair. Once the Sigillum Dei Aemeth and the seven Ensigns of Creation were in position, the Holy Table was covered by a red silk cloth with gold tassels that hung from the corners.

The scrying stone or black mirror was then placed upon the covered Sigillum.

The public's first view of the Holy Table (sometimes referred to as the Table of Covenant or Table of Practice) was published in 1659 by Meric Casaubon in his A True & Faithful Relation . . ..<sup>57</sup> It was Casaubon's image that was reproduced in 1912 in Aleister Crowley's magazine The Equinox<sup>58</sup> and numerous books since then.

It may come as a surprise to many (and be highly amusing to others) that Casaubon's impressively printed image of the Holy Table is perhaps the greatest flaw in his liberally flawed and ill-titled A True & Faithful Relation. One look at the description and drawing in Dee's Quinti Libri Mysteriorum: Appendix<sup>59</sup> reveals the eighty-four letters that form the border of the Holy Table and the twelve letters that fill the 3 x 4 center square of Casaubon's image are printed in backward order. Figures 16 and 19 illustrate the correct arrangement of the letters on the Holy Table.

The Holy Table and the Lamén are inextricably linked. By wearing the Lamén, the magician is linked, or conciliated, to the Holy Table. The object that forms this magical link and serves as the common denominator between the Holy Table and Lamén is the same 12 x 7 table that was used to construct the Lamén—the same table that bore the names of the seven planetary kings and the seven planetary princes of the heptarchic hierarchy.

Did I say the same 12 x 7 table? That's not entirely accurate.

Recall that when we were discussing the 12 x 7 table in the previous chapter, something appeared out of whack. The names of the planetary kings did not share the same lines as their planetary counterpart prince (e.g., the sun ☉ king, Bobogel, is set on the same line with the Venus ♀ prince, Bornogo, instead of his sun ☉ prince, Befafes). This planetary mismatch in the 12 x 7 table's construction did not appear to bother the angels, and indeed the "flaw" seemed to be a vital characteristic of the Lamén.

As you can see in Figure 17, the version of the 12 x 7 table that is the key to the Holy Table "corrects" this imbalance by rearranging the names of the planetary kings to match those of the princes of the same planet. Furthermore, the table is reversed, so that the kings now occupy the left side of the table and princes the right, and the direction in which the names are read is reversed to read from left to right.

In my mind, the differences between the two 12 x 7 tables demonstrate a fundamental fact of life—the fact that even though human beings are an integral part of the hierarchy of spiritual beings, we currently find ourselves “on earth,” trapped in a tomb of matter and to all appearances separated from the greater realities of the spiritual “heavens.”

Qabalists tell us that we are created in the image of Deity—that we are, in the truest sense, a little reflection (a microcosm) of the great intelligence and creative force that creates, sustains, and destroys all things in the universe (the macrocosm). As Hermes Trismegistus said, “As above, so below.”

That’s all fine and good, and I go about my magical business as if it were true. But honestly, even though I’m composed of the same material that makes up the sun and moon and stars and angels and archangels and the supreme Deity, even though I am striving for self-awareness and do my best to be a divinely creative individual, still I don’t feel much like the macrocosmic Deity. Compared to the macrocosm, my microcosm is way out of whack. My life is one of stress and imbalance. From where I stand, there is a very big break between Deity’s above and Lon Milo DuQuette’s below. I’m like the 12 x 7 table from which the Lamén is created: I’ve got all the condensed components of a perfectly tuned universe in me, but they are out of sync just enough to keep me from actually being the perfect reflection of the big “way things are.”

I can really identify with the way the Lamén is constructed. Like it, my hierarchy of planets is mismatched and unbalanced. (Take one look at my astrological chart if you don’t believe it!) Like the curious inconsistencies that characterize how the individual letters are transferred from the 12 x 7 table to the Lamén, my individual components are a litany of curious inconsistencies.

The 12 x 7 table that makes the Holy Table, on the other hand, sets this all straight. It is like the macrocosm showing the microcosm how it’s done. As I sit before the Holy Table with the Lamén over my heart, I can almost feel the Holy Table’s order and perfection pulling magnetically at my heart through the Lamén, connecting me by an almost tangible electric current to the Holy of Holies, pulling my heart and my attention toward the sacred spot in my living-room temple where heaven touches earth. The Holy Table is indeed an instrument of conciliation, an instrument of reunion.<sup>60</sup>

The letters of the 12 x 7 table are transferred to the Holy Table in the following manner. First, to make things a little easier to see let’s turn the 12 x 7 table on its end.

|        |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |

The border of the Holy Table is first segmented into twenty-one cells per side. Per angelic instructions, the sacred letter B is placed in the four corners, and then the letters of the 12 x 7 table are inserted in the remaining cells as indicated by the four sets of arrows on figure 18. The 3 x 4 square in the center of the Holy Table is extracted from the central heart of the 12 x 7 table, as highlighted in figure 18.

The arrows around the edges of figure 19 (see page 54) show that the letters are arranged to generate a counterclockwise whirl. In the Ritual of Preparation of chapter one, I chant seven rounds of the perimeter letters in this order using the angelic pronunciation. I also do the same for the twelve letters of the center square. By doing so, I effectively activate the Holy Table and the objects that sit upon it (including the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, the Ensigns of Creation, and the skrying mirror). The chant affects a powerful shift in consciousness unlike anything I have experienced before in magical practice.

As the manifest universe is the evolving end product of the dynamic forces that created it, so too the Holy Table manifests on earth as the perfect miniature working model of the heavenly matrix. It is a magical machine with many moving parts, all in perpetual motion.

Picture in your artist/magician’s mind how, like the stars in the rotating arms of a spiral galaxy, the eighty-four angelic letters that form the border of the Holy Table circumscribe the other objects on the table-top with an eternal counterclockwise movement around the outside of the table's hexagram (symbol of the macrocosm).

Within, the twelve angelic letters in the 3 x 4 square in the center of the Holy Table's hexagram churn with the dynamics of the up-down/right-left movement suggested by its four rows of three letters networked with its three columns of four letters.

The Lamén is born of the same alphanumeric codes as the Holy Table, but its construction is flawed by a slight imbalance. So too the magician, in his or her present state, is the seemingly flawed microcosmic reflection of Deity. By wearing the Lamén, the imperfect magician is linked to the perfection of the Holy Table, and while in this exalted state may become privy to the secrets of the macrocosmic universe.

CHAPTER TEN

The Sigillum Dei Aemeth

Seven, rest in 7: and the 7, live by 7: The 7, govern the 7: And by 7 all Government is.

—THE ARCHANGEL MICHAEL, MARCH 20, 1582<sup>61</sup>

The design of Dee's Sigillum Dei Aemeth ("the seal of God's truth") is perhaps the most recognizable image of Enochian magick. It is a powerful magical device, alive with the angelic forces of an ordered universe in which "Seven, rest in Seven: and the Seven, live by Seven: The Seven, govern the Seven: And by Seven all Government is."

Unlike the hierarchies of the Lamien and the Holy Table, the Sigillum's hierarchy of angels was not condensed, distilled, or otherwise generated from the seven 12 x 7 tables from which the names of the forty-nine good angels were drawn. Nevertheless, the Sigillum is the centerpiece of heptarchic magick and is the object through which all heptarchic energy (if we dare call it that) is focused.

The Sigillum itself was a disk nine inches in diameter and approximately an inch and a half thick. It was made of pure beeswax and placed in the center of the Holy Table. The scrying crystal or black mirror was placed upon it. Four smaller wax versions were placed beneath small boxes, upon which stood the four legs of the Holy Table.

Dee was first told to simply copy the design from a book he already had in his library. But Dee had at least two volumes<sup>62</sup> that contained designs for sigilla. He couldn't make up his mind which one to use, so he asked for further clarification. The angel then gave instructions how to construct an entirely new sigillum based on the format of the others but adding an array of heavenly personages: seven god names enclosing seven sets of angelic names.

It is clear to me that the construction of the Sigillum was a vital step in Dee and Kelley's preparation program and that construction can serve that same important purpose to the modern magician as well. I'm going to walk you through the steps of how it is constructed, because I hope readers who are serious about actually doing magick, rather than merely studying it, will want to build their own.

I've provided you with a blank sigillum (figure 21), and I encourage you to make multiple photocopies of it. Enlarge it, if you wish, to nine inches in diameter. Then follow the step-by-step instructions. As you do, you will not only be building this magical device on paper, but you also will be installing it inside yourself. Constructing your own Sigillum Dei Aemeth is the fastest and easiest way I know to meet and connect with the angelic forces resident in the design and make them part of you. It may take you several tries to get it all right, but I'm confident when you have completed your Sigillum you will think it worth the effort.

Building the Sigillum

Step One: The Seven God Names

The seven god names were drawn from numbers and letters that appear in the forty cells that make up the perimeter of the Sigillum. The magicians were told to divide the outer perimeter of a blank ring into four sections. Then they were to divide each of the four sections into ten (making forty cells in all). Kelley then had a dramatic and colorful

1. a number positioned above a letter,
2. a letter positioned above a number, or
3. a single letter.

- Some of the letters were capitalized, but most were lowercase. As they revealed their letters and numbers, each of the forty angels also uttered a different pious declaration in Latin, such as, “O God, God, our God, blessed are you, now and forever” or “And you are true in your works.” Then the angel disappeared or was consumed in flashes of fire or other such dramatics. The magicians were then left with a string of numbers and letters, which I’ve arranged in a table (see figure 22).

4 9 7 t 22 6 22 20 14 6 18 26 l l 7 13 H y t o e 10 11 15 8 r 6 o 5 h o a a T G n 9 h n m o a n a h o l 30 n 8 G r 12 og 15 11 8 21 b A I a 16 n A 10 G 14 17 s 5 24

First make sure your blank Sigillum is oriented so that the pentagram in the center is pointing toward the top of the page. Then refer to figure 23 and locate the topmost cell of the Sigillum's outer perimeter—the cell that contains the number 4 over the capital letter T. Fill in that cell with a 4 over a T. Then, referring to the table (figure 22) and moving clockwise, fill in the remaining thirty-nine cells of the outer perimeter of your blank Sigillum as you see them in figure 23.

From the letters and numbers of the perimeter the seven god names and their sigils are drawn. The starting points for the god names are the cells that contain capital letters. These are also identified in figure 22 with asterisks beneath them.

From those starting points, note the number inside the cell and count your way to find the next letter in the god name. You count clockwise when the number in the cell is positioned above the letter, and you count counterclockwise when the letter is positioned above the number. Keep counting until you reach a cell that contains a letter but no number. That will be the last letter of that particular god name. It's almost like turning the dial of a combination lock, and, indeed, that's exactly what you're doing.

Confused? Don't be. It's much easier to actually do it than describe it. Just keep figure 23 in front of you as you follow the directions that follow.

Starting at the cell with 9/G in it (near the top of the circle), count nine cells clockwise (because the number is above) to 6/a. From there, count six cells clockwise to l/8. Count eight cells counterclockwise (because the letter is above) to 20/a. Count twenty cells clockwise to 8/a. Count eight cells clockwise to the single letter s. Because there is no number assigned to the s cell, we know that s is the final letter to this god name.

When all the counting is done, we have spelled the god name Galaas. The archangel Michael would later advise Dee and Kelley to alter the spelling (an archangel's prerogative) to Galas.

Michael assigned Galas a characteristic sigil and a number (see figure 24). He also instructed that the sigil and number of Galas should be placed on the Sigillum, in the area between the perimeter of cells and the outer bar of the heptagon at approximately the eleven o'clock position (see figure 32). Although a connection is not mentioned overtly in the original material, the god name Galas and its sigil are generally considered by many modern Enochian magicians to be associated with the qabalistic planetary sphere of Saturn.

Starting with 7/G (near the bottom of the circle), count seven cells clockwise to e/21. Count twenty-one cells counterclockwise to t/9. Count nine cells counterclockwise to h/14. Count fourteen cells counterclockwise to the unnumbered letters og to finish the god name Gethog.

Michael assigned Gethog the sigil and number shown in figure 25 and instructed that they should be placed on the Sigillum in the area between the perimeter of cells and the outer bar of the heptagon at approximately nine o'clock (see figure 32). Although a connection is not mentioned overtly in the original material, the god name Gethog and its sigil are generally considered by many modern Enochian magicians to be associated with the qabalistic planetary sphere of Jupiter.

Starting with 4/T (near the top of the circle), count four cells clockwise to 22/h. Count twenty-two cells clockwise (because the number 22 is on top) to 11/A. Count eleven cells clockwise to a/5. Count five cells counterclockwise to o/10. Count ten cells counterclockwise to t/11. Count eleven cells counterclockwise to the cell that contains the single letter h to finish the god name ThAaoth.

Again using his archangel's prerogative, Michael later advised Dee to slightly alter the spelling to Thaoth. He also assigned Thaoth the sigil and number shown in figure 26 and instructed that they should be placed on the Sigillum in the area between the perimeter of cells and the outer bar of the heptagon at approximately seven o'clock (see figure 32). Although a connection is not mentioned overtly in the original material, the god name Thaoth and its sigil are generally considered by many modern Enochian magicians to be associated with the qabalistic planetary sphere of Mars.

Horlōn

Starting with H/12 (near the bottom of the circle), count twelve cells counterclockwise to 22/o. Count twenty-two cells clockwise to r/16. Count sixteen cells counterclockwise to 26/l. Count twenty-six cells clockwise to 6/ω.<sup>63</sup> Count six cells clockwise to single letter n, producing the god name Horlōn.

Michael assigned Horlōn the sigil and number shown in figure 27 and instructed that they should be placed on the Sigillum in the space between the perimeter of cells and the outer bar of the heptagon at six o'clock (see figure 32). Although a connection is not mentioned overtly in the original material, the god name Horlōn and its sigil are generally considered by many modern Enochian magicians to be associated with the qabalistic planetary sphere of Sol.

Starting with 15/I (near the left-hand side of the circle), count fifteen cells clockwise to 7/n. Count seven cells clockwise to 14/n. Count fourteen cells clockwise to o/8. Count eight cells counterclockwise to the single letter n, producing the name Innon.

Michael assigned Innon the sigil and number shown in figure 28 and instructed that they should be placed on the Sigillum in the area between the perimeter of cells and the outer bar of the heptagon at approximately four o'clock (see figure 32). Although a connection is not mentioned overtly in the original material, the god name Innon and its sigil are generally considered by many modern Enochian magicians to be associated with the qabalistic planetary sphere of Venus.

With Aaoth, you have your choice of either (1) starting at 11/A (near the left-hand side of the circle) and counting eleven cells clockwise to a/5 or (2) starting with 6/A (near the left-hand side of the circle) and counting six cells clockwise to a/5.

In either case, once you get to a/5, count five cells counterclockwise to o/10. Count ten cells counterclockwise to t/11. Count eleven cells counterclockwise to finish at h, producing the god name Aaoth.

Michael assigned Aaoth the sigil and number shown in figure 29 and instructed that they should be placed on the Sigillum in the space between the perimeter of cells and the outer bar of the heptagon at approximately two o'clock (see figure 32). Although a connection is not mentioned overtly in the original material, the god name Aaoth and its sigil are generally considered by many modern Enochian magicians to be associated with the qabalistic planetary sphere of Mercury.

Starting at 5/G (near the left-hand side of the circle), count five cells clockwise to a/24. Count twenty-four cells counterclockwise to l/30. Count thirty cells counterclockwise to e/21. Count twenty-one cells counterclockwise to t/9. Count nine cells counterclockwise to h/14. Count fourteen cells counterclockwise to the single letters og, producing the name Galethog.

Michael assigned Galethog the sigil shown in figure 30 and instructed that they should be placed on the Sigillum in the area between the perimeter of cells and the outer bar of the heptagon at approximately one o'clock (see figure 32). Although a connection is not mentioned overtly in the original material, the god name Galethog and its sigil are generally considered by many modern Enochian magicians to be associated with the qabalistic planetary sphere of Luna.

These seven god names—Galas, Gethog, Thaoth, Horlōn, Innon, Aaoth, and Galethog—are distilled into one supreme name. Strangely enough, the great name is also spelled Galethog. The code that reveals this distillation can be found on those little numbers that appear beside six of the sigils of the god names. Let's take a look at the supreme god name as it appears with the sigils.

Obviously, the sigils of the divine names contain the stylized letters G, a, l, xe, t, and og. The little numbers beside the letters point out seven landmarks among the forty cells: 5/G, a/24, l/30, e/21, t/9. Og has no number attached to it, confirming that it is the end of the supreme god name.

Step Two: The Seven God Names of the Outer Heptagon and of the Planetary Archangels

A heptagon (a seven-sided figure) rests just inside the perimeter of the Sigillum. Each of the seven bars that compose the heptagon is divided into seven cells and is filled with the names of the next order of angels in the hierarchy of the Sigillum. These seven names were drawn from a 7 x 7 (sevenfold) table delivered to Dee and Kelley in a series of brief and colorful visions (see figure 33).

|   |   |   |   |   |   |   |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Z | l | l | R | H | i | a |
| a | Z | C | a | a | c | b |

| k | k | a | a | e | e | e |
| i | i | e | e | l | l | l |

The names are read horizontally and are inserted in the bars of the outer heptagon as shown in figure 34.

When the table is read vertically, however, the names of the seven classic planetary archangels appear:

|          |          |         |           |
|----------|----------|---------|-----------|
| Zaphkiel | (Saturn) | Zadkiel | (Jupiter) |
| Cumael   | (Mars)   | Raphael | (Sol)     |
| Haniel   | (Venus)  | Michael | (Mercury) |
| Gabriel  | (Luna)   |         |           |

These archangels were assigned to these planets many years before Dee and Kelley received them and could have been found in any number of books in Dee's library. However, Dee and Kelley insisted that the table was given to them before they noticed these names were generated by the table. Whether we choose to believe their assertion or not, the fact remains that these particular angels are not unique to the Enochian system.

In order to read each archangel's name using the seven god names on the bars of the heptagon, we are obliged to project the letters in progressive layers rising from the surface of the Sigillum itself. I wish I could graphically illustrate this using the modern magick of animation, but you can demonstrate this for yourself. Let's turn to the first table in figure 35 and use the name of the planetary archangel of Saturn, Zaphkiel, as our example.

Start with the capital Z found in the first cell of the name ZllRHia, then move to the first cell of the name aZCaacb (to pick up the a), then move to the first cell of the name paupnhr (to pick up the p), then move to the first cell of hdmhIaI (to pick up the h), then move to the first cell of Kkaae to pick up the K, then move to the first cell of eellMG (to pick up the e). Finally, move to the second cell of the ZllRHia bar of the heptagon and pick up the final I to spell Zaphkiel.

I hope you can visualize what happens every time you move to another bar of the heptagon to pick up a letter in the archangel's name. As you move, you are literally shifting the dimensional structure of the Sigillum up another level—in the case of Zaphkiel, eight levels in all (see figure 36). (Picture the multilevel chess game played by characters on Star Trek.)

Compound this with the fact that Zaphkiel's name is braided together in these same layers with the names of the six other archangels' names. Viewed this way, the Sigillum is no longer a flat image placed on the flat surface of the Holy Table. It is a multidimensional space hovering over the Holy Table—a magical basket formed of the netting of the entwined letters of the names of the seven planetary archangels. It is within this invisible basket that the scrying stone or black mirror is placed during the magical operation. Is it any wonder visions appear in such an environment?

But we're far from through with the wonders of the Sigillum. Fill the cells of your personal Sigillum's outer heptagon, and then let's move inward another step.

Step Three: The Seven Names of the Planetary Angels Beneath the Bars of the Outer Heptagon

Just inside the bars of the outer heptagon are seven more divine names. These names are drawn from a second 7 x 7 (sevenfold) table given to Dee and Kelley, letter by letter, in vision. These names are read horizontally and placed beneath the bars of the outer heptagon.

You will immediately notice some of the squares in this table contain tiny numbers (21 over 8, 8, 26, 30, and so on) and variously placed dots. These are added to indicate the addition of the letter l or letters el or al (angelic suffixes) to the letter in the square, the better to spell out the names of the various angels this table will produce.

These names of these seven great angels are added to the Sigillum as shown in figure 38.

Step Four: The Daughters of the Light

Five more sets of planetary angels are drawn from the second sevenfold table. The first set was revealed in vision by seven young women (called "Daughters of Light" or "Women") clad in green silk. Each bore a little blue tablet on her forehead that identified her by name: El, Me, Ese, Iana, Akele, Azdobn, and Stimcul.

The names of the Daughters of Light are drawn from the second sevenfold table by reading the upper right section of the table in a diagonal, downward direction.

|                 |   |   |                              |                              |               |                 |
|-----------------|---|---|------------------------------|------------------------------|---------------|-----------------|
| B               | T | Z | K                            | A                            | S             | E <sup>30</sup> |
| I <sup>26</sup> | M | E | G                            | C                            | B             | E               |
| I               | L | A | O                            | I <sup>21</sup> <sub>8</sub> | V             | N               |

Although the angels were not identified with planets in the original material, the manner in which the vision proceeded to reveal these names suggests these seven angels carry the following planetary assignments:

|         |        |        |         |
|---------|--------|--------|---------|
| E(l)    | Saturn | Me     | Jupiter |
| Ese     | Mars   | Iana   | Sol     |
| Akele   | Venus  | Azdobn | Mercury |
| Stimcul | Luna   |        |         |

The names of the Daughters of Light are placed on the Sigillum in clockwise order in the points created by the interlocking lines of the heptagram (see figure 40).

Step Five: The Sons of the Light

Next came seven young men (called the “Sons of the Light” or “Men”) dressed in white, each carrying a metal ball: the first ball was gold, the second silver, the third copper, the fourth tin, the fifth iron, the sixth quicksilver, and the seventh lead. Each had a tablet of gold on his breast that identified him by name: I, Ih, Ilr, Dmal, Heeo, Beigia, and Stimcul.

The names of the Sons of Light are drawn from the second sevenfold table by reading the lower left section of the table in a diagonal, downward direction.

|                 |   |   |                              |                              |               |                 |
|-----------------|---|---|------------------------------|------------------------------|---------------|-----------------|
| B               | T | Z | K                            | A                            | S             | E <sup>30</sup> |
| I <sup>26</sup> | M | E | G                            | C                            | B             | E               |
| I               | L | A | O                            | I <sup>21</sup> <sub>8</sub> | V             | N               |

The metal of the ball carried by each of these characters suggests these seven angels carry the following planetary assignments:

|         |        |        |         |
|---------|--------|--------|---------|
| I       | Saturn | Ih     | Jupiter |
| Ilr     | Mars   | Dmal   | Sol     |
| Heeo    | Venus  | Beigia | Mercury |
| Stimcul | Luna   |        |         |

The names of the Sons of Light are placed on the Sigillum in clockwise order on the interlocking bars of the heptagram (see figure 42).

Step Six: The Daughters of Daughters of the Light

Next came seven “little wenches” (“Daughters of Daughters”) dressed in white, having tablets, which appeared to be white ivory, on their bosoms, identifying them as S, Ab, Ath, Izad, Ekiei, Madimi, and Esemeli.

The names of the Daughters of Daughters are drawn from the second sevenfold table by reading the upper left section of the table in a diagonal, downward direction.

| L | E | A | O | I | V | N |

Although these seven angels are not identified with planets, they are generally believed to carry the following planetary assignments:

|         |        |        |         |
|---------|--------|--------|---------|
| S       | Saturn | Ab     | Jupiter |
| Ath     | Mars   | Izad   | Sol     |
| Ekiei   | Venus  | Madimi | Mercury |
| Esemeli | Luna   |        |         |

The names of the Daughters of Daughters of Light are placed on the Sigillum in clockwise order beneath the bars of the heptagram (see figure 44).

Step Seven: The Sons of Sons of the Light

Next came seven “little children . . . like boys” (“Sons of Sons”) dressed in robes of purple silk with long pointed sleeves and hats such as priests or scholars wear. They had triangular green tablets on their breasts identifying them as E, An, Ave, Liba, Rocle, Hagonel, and Ilemese.

The names of the Sons of Sons are drawn from the second sevenfold table by reading the lower right section of the table in an upward, diagonal.

|                 |   |   |                              |                              |   |   |
|-----------------|---|---|------------------------------|------------------------------|---|---|
| B               | T | Z | K                            | A                            | S | E |
| D               | E | I | M                            | O                            | E | E |
| I <sup>26</sup> | M | E | G                            | C                            | B | E |
| I               | E | A | O                            | I <sup>27</sup> <sub>8</sub> | N | E |
| I               | H | R | L                            | A                            | A | E |

The names of the Sons of Sons of Light are placed on the Sigillum in clockwise order on the inner heptagon (see figure 46).

Step Eight: The Planetary Angels of the Pentagram

Finally, Dee and Kelley were instructed in a relatively straightforward manner how to arrange the names of seven planetary angels—Sabathiel

(Saturn), Zedekiel (Jupiter), Madimiel (Mars), Semeliel (Sol), Nogahel (Venus), Corabiel (Mercury), and Lavanael (Luna)—around a pentagram at the very center of the Sigillum. These seven names are also drawn from the second sevenfold table by reading it in a zigzag manner, illustrated in figure 47.

|                 |   |   |                              |                              |   |   |
|-----------------|---|---|------------------------------|------------------------------|---|---|
| B               | T | Z | K                            | A                            | S | E |
| D               | E | I | M                            | O                            | E | E |
| I <sup>26</sup> | M | E | G                            | C                            | B | E |
| I               | E | A | O                            | I <sup>27</sup> <sub>8</sub> | N | E |

Because the original Dee and Kelley material does not confirm the planetary attributions to all the various names on the Sigillum, I will not presume to do so either. I have, however, created a chart (see figure 49) that I currently use to help me in my meditations on the subject. I offer it along with the key to reading the names of planetary archangels from the first sevenfold table.

|----------|---------------|
| Zaphkiel | Saturn ♄ 1-8  |
| Zadkiel  | Jupiter ♃ 1-7 |
| Cumael   | Mars ♂ 1-6    |
| Raphael  | Sol ☉ 1-7     |
| Haniel   | Venus ♀ 1-6   |
| Michael  | Mercury ☿ 1-7 |
| Gabriel  | Luna ☾ 1-7    |

Step Nine: The Crosses

Once the names of these angels were placed around the central pentagram, a number of tiny crosses were added to the Sigillum in a curiously inconsistent manner (see figure 50).

And now your Sigillum is nearly complete. The only thing left to add is the design on the back. It is a very simple image of a cross dominating a small circle, around which are the letters of the divine word AGLA (an acronym for the Hebrew phrase Ateh Gibor Le-olam Adonai, “the Lord is mighty forever.”)

Years ago, on a Christmas morning, I melted the stubs of scores of candles into a round Christmas cookie tin.<sup>64</sup> After the wax cooled and hardened, I removed the wax disk from the tin and set to work carving

my own Sigillum. Other magicians I know have sealed their drawings of the Sigillum upon wooden disks that they purchased for pennies at a crafts store, or glued the image to foam board. Whatever the medium, I think the presence of the Sigillum is an important factor in creating the magical environment conducive to Enochian vision magick.

There is so much more the angels told Dee and Kelley about the Sigillum, including suggestions for how every letter in each of the names contains a set of angels, and on and on by sevens by sevens. I encourage you to continue your exploration of the Sigillum's mysteries. But now we must move on to the seven Ensigns of Creation, where I promise you a much shorter journey.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

The Ensigns of Creation

Of these seven tables, characters, or scotcheons. Consider the words spoken in the fifth book Anno 1583, April 2nd. How they are proper to every King and prince in their order. They are Instruments of Conciliation.

—JOHN DEE, FOOTNOTE TO Quinti Libri Mysteriorum: Liber Tertius

The Ensigns of Creation are seven planetary talismans designed to be positioned on the Holy Table in a circle surrounding the Sigillum Dei Aemeth or laid out in a line along the edge of the table nearest the scribe. They were to be made of purified tin or else painted directly upon the Holy Table. Like the Lamen and the Holy Table, they are "Instruments of Conciliation" connected to the Heptarchia planetary kings and princes in a manner that, I must confess, is not altogether clear to me.

Five of them are square tables containing squares filled with numbers, letters, crosses, and lines. Two ensigns are a circle surrounded by a square. The letter B (Pa in the angelic language) is by far the most used letter in the ensigns.

The ensigns originally displayed Latin letters. The communicating angel would later insist that the Latin letters be replaced with the corresponding characters of the angelic script (see chapter fourteen). Dee was reluctant to do this and even asked the angel if he really had to. The angel said he must. We don't know if he ever did.

It is clear that the ensigns were to be utilized ritualistically, such as being held in the magician's hand during prayers or invocations. But information on exactly how things were to be done is incomplete, and there are no records whatsoever of Dee and Kelley actually performing rituals of heptarchic magick.

However, the ensigns remain part of the Holy Table ensemble, and their subsequent connection to the table and the magician's own Lamén make them, in my opinion, an integral component of the hierarchical current that charges the holy ground of the Enochian magick temple.

Figures 53 and 54 show the ensigns lettered in the angelic script. To my knowledge, this is the first time the ensigns have appeared in print in their correct form.<sup>65</sup> As with the Ring, Holy Table, Lamén, and Sigillum, the ensigns can be reproduced in paper board or whatever material is at the magician's disposal.

Do I Need All This Stuff?

Never since the beginning of the world was this secret delivered, nor this holy mystery set open, before the weaklings of this world.

—THE ANGEL IL, APRIL 29, 1583

The question I'm sure many of you are asking at this point is, "Do I need all this stuff?"

During the classes that I conducted in our home in 2005 and 2006 (with experienced magicians) and subsequent day-long workshops I've conducted around the country with people having little or no prior magical experience) it has become abundantly clear to me that the magical objects and "furniture" Dee and Kelley received during the Heptarchia periods (the Ring, the Holy Table, the Lamén, the Ensigns of Creation, and the Sigillum Dei Aemeth) can and should be formally employed in order to create the specific environment of consciousness conducive to the practice of angelic vision magick.

Furthermore, it has been my observation that regular and repeated activation of this magical "temple" by means of the little ritual outlined in chapter one (and laid out more fully in appendix I) can attune the magician to this uniquely ordered universe and serve to progressively strengthen and enhance his or her visionary capabilities.

Most exciting for me was the discovery that once the magician is prepared and the temple activated the angelic forces (especially the good angels resident in the Holy Table, Lamén, Ensigns of Creation, and the planetary angels resident in the Sigillum) can be individually called forth or visited by means of classic evocation techniques or even informal extemporaneous prayers and conjurations. In other words, I believe that even if he or she never went on to practice Enochian magick per se, a resourceful magician, willing to experiment, and armed with a proper understanding of the tools and formulae of the Heptarchic periods would be already prepared to engage in angelic vision magick of a high order.

This is new territory for all of us, but it holds much promise, for it entails the possibility of contacting the same angelic forces that engaged Dee and Kelley throughout most of their day-to-day actions. Obviously, dealing with these angelic forces offers an alluring challenge for today's more intrepid magicians who, when frustrated by gaps and perplexities in the original material, will not be afraid to go straight to the communicating angels for guidance and clarification on how all this should operate. Indeed, I expect to see in the years to come exciting and viable magical systems develop as the result of the magical efforts of gifted practitioners who dare to make such angelic contact.

But do you need all this stuff?

My answer is this: In order to do this particular variety of magick you need all this stuff inside you. That's where the real magick takes place. But until such time as you have internalized all this (even in the most cursory and general manner) it is necessary to have some outward, visible, material representation of the magical concepts and forces you are dealing with.

I suggest, if you're serious about engaging in this magical art form, then you should, at the very least, provide yourself with a Ring, a Holy Table, a Lamén, a Sigillum Dei Aemeth, and the seven Ensigns of Creation. Make them out of paper if you have to. Copy them straight out of this book if you have to. But have them. Make them real to you. Consecrate them by using them. Use them to create your Enochian magick temple.

The sense of art for some magicians is stimulated by replicating as much as humanly possible the tools and procedures as outlined in ancient texts. By doing so, they achieve a level of empowerment they believe is necessary to execute the work. Personally, my sense of art is quite happy with paper rings and photocopied Holy Tables. However,

I have over the years been blessed with many talented colleagues who have generously helped me equip my temple so I might better demonstrate these things to others.

Here is as good a place as any for me to pause and describe what I believe the source material suggests would transform a clean uncluttered room into the holy ground of an Enochian magick temple.

The Temple

Upon the floor in the center of the room is a square carpet of red silk cloth large enough to accommodate the Holy Table and the chair of the scryer.

Upon the silken carpet are placed four miniatures of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, made of wax. They are covered and protected from the table legs by shallow cylindrical boxes.

Upon the box-covered sigilli rest the four legs of the Holy Table.

The Holy Table is made of sweet wood (laurel).

Upon the Holy Table, arranged as we've discussed, are the seven Ensigns of Creation (lettered in the angelic script) and the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, made of purified beeswax, nine inches in diameter and an inch and a half thick.

The Holy Table and all the objects upon it are covered by a red silk cloth with gold tassels that dangle from the corners. This cloth should match in material and color that of the red silk carpet.

Upon the covered Sigillum the scrying stone (a crystal ball) or black mirror is placed.

The scryer's chair is placed on the carpet near the table. His or her feet should touch the carpet.

The Ring and Lamens should be near. The magician should ceremonially put them on at the beginning of each session and remove them at the conclusion.

Renaissance magicians often wore crowns and white linen robes, and on one occasion in preparation for a specific working, Dee and Kelley were instructed to wear white linen robes. In an operation that took place on July 13, 1584 (at the very end of the Enochian communications), the archangel Gabriel told the magicians:

See that your garments be clean. Herein be not rash: Nor over hasty; For those that are hasty and rash, and are loathsomely appareled, my knock long before they enter.<sup>66</sup>

In practical operations conducted by my Monday night class and my Enochian magick workshops, everyone is shoeless and wears comfortable street clothes. In private sessions, such as the one I described in chapter one, I put on a simple black robe. Not only does it carry with it a certain personal magical virtue, but its color does not distract from the images reflected in the black mirror as I scry.

BOOK III

Liber Loagaeth and the Angelic Alphabet

Liber Loagaeth

*Every element (of the book) hath 49 manner of understandings.
Therein is comprehended so many languages. They are all spoken at once, and severally, by themselves, by distinction many be spoken.
Until thou come to the City, thou canst not behold the beauty thereof.*

—THE ANGEL ME TO JOHN DEE, EASTER DAY, 1583<sup>67</sup>

The second phase of Dee and Kelley's magical operations remains, for the most part, a tantalizing mystery to modern students. Covering most of 1582 and 1583, it is a period characterized by considerable tension between the two magicians, but one that also produced a large body of work in the form of a book referred to at various times as Liber Mysteriorum Sextus et Sanctus, the Book of Enoch, and Liber Loagaeth.<sup>68</sup> While in recent years Enochian scholars have courageously set out to give us a closer examination of this information, it unfortunately has not been enough to allow modern practitioners to develop anything near a workable system from this material.

One of the reasons more attention isn't paid to this period is the nature of the material itself and the nearly complete lack of direction concerning how it is to be applied. Also, the focus of the communications of this period is driven by Dee's very personal fixation on discovering lost books of the Bible, the Apocrypha, and in particular the Book of Enoch, which is mentioned in several places in the Bible. The resulting character of Liber Loagaeth is rich in apocalyptic imagery and prophetic sounding rhetoric. This has been seized upon in recent years by commentators who would project a patently sectarian interpretation upon the material, even going so far as to suggest sinister (perhaps even Satanic or Lovecraftian) motives behind the "angelic" communications.

We are all, of course, free to our own religious convictions and spiritual worldviews. After all, they are part of the magical artist's pallet of tools. I think it wise, however, to keep in mind that when we study the Dee and Kelley material, we are not only eavesdropping on questions framed in the minds of two sixteenth-century Englishmen and put in the context of biblical literature, but we are also hearing the answers to those questions given in such a manner as these men could understand—that is, framed within the same cultural and Biblical context. I'm sure if Dee had been a Chinese alchemist or an African shaman in these same circumstances, the angels would have communicated the same universal answers unencumbered by the apocalyptic nomenclature familiar to the Jewish or Christian mind.

Joseph Peterson wrote in the introduction of his marvelous book John Dee's Five Books of Mystery:

The importance of Liber Loagaeth cannot be overemphasized. From it would "be restored the holy bokes, which haue perished euen from the beginning, and from the first that liued." The truths it contains will end religious disputes and restore religious unity. "Which when it hath spread a while, THEN COMMETH THE END."<sup>69</sup> In short, it will usher in the new age. Since the book is so central to these angelic communications, it is amazing that it has remained unpublished.<sup>70</sup>

Amazing indeed, but as I wrote concerning De Heptarchia Mystica, it is only a matter of time before someone cracks the code of this breathtakingly immense body of work. What do I mean by breathtakingly immense?

One surviving manuscript comprises forty-eight leaves, each containing 49 x 49 lettered squares, 115,000 lettered squares in all. Each square was filled, letter-by-letter, according to Kelley's vision. In the end, the magicians were left with forty-nine calls in an angelic language. (Note: These calls were not the same calls in the angelic tongue that would come later and form the centerpiece of the Enochian phase of Dee and Kelley's partnership.) Loagaeth literally means "speech from God," and the magicians were informed that the words of the forty-nine calls were the same as those uttered by God at the dawn of creation—in the same language spoken by Adam when he named all things.

Unfortunately, these calls were never translated (or else the material has been lost), and attempts by modern linguists have failed to find enough landmarks of a properly constructed language to put the calls of Loagaeth in the same category as the angelic language that would be received in the third and final phase of the magicians' actions.

Kelley's visionary skills were severely exploited during this period, and his visions were characterized by the presence of a dazzling light that both magicians could see. The light would fly out of the scrying stone and penetrate Kelley's head, putting him in a trance in which he could read and comprehend the text of Liber Loagaeth. He was, however, forbidden to translate it and told that God would later provide the translation. At the end of the session, the light would leave Kelley's head and return to the stone. When he returned to normal consciousness, he claimed to have no memory of the experience.

As tempting as it might be, I am, for the time being not incorporating any of the calls from Loagaeth in my Enochian-magick preparation ritual. However, something else of great importance came out of this period: the angelic alphabet.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

The Angelic Alphabet

He wiped his finger on the top of the Table, and there came out above the Table certain Characters enclosed in no line: but standing by themselves, and points between them. He pointed orderly to them with his finger, and looked toward the skryer at every pointing.

—EDWARD KELLEY DESCRIBING HIS VISION OF THE ANGEL'S REVELATION OF THE ANGELIC ALPHABET, MARCH 26, 1583<sup>71</sup>

I confess, even with clear copies and transcriptions of the source material in front of me, it has been very difficult for me to wrap my mind around the order of the visionary events of Dee and Kelley's years together. Because certain elements of these magical systems were often corrected or amended by the angels in subsequent visions, often occurring months apart, it is extremely difficult (for me at least) to present a clean chronology of events. The circumstances surrounding the reception of the angelic alphabet are no exception.

The alphabet was received during the Loagaeth period, but because the magicians were told to replace the Latin/English letters of the Lamen, Holy Table, and the seven Ensigns of Creation with letters from the angelic script, its influence reached back in time to touch the Heptarchia period as well.

The twenty-one characters of the angelic alphabet appeared fully formed in yellowish letters that rose in Kelley's vision above the table. The images of the individual letters then obligingly hovered over a sheet of paper and stayed visible long enough for him to copy them in ink before fading away.

Words in the angelic language are written from right to left, and that is the order the letters first appeared to Kelley. All twenty-one letters appeared in a single row and were separated by dots. There was also a dot preceding the first letter.

You will notice that the name for the first letter received, Pa, is the only letter whose name is capitalized. Pa, b in English, has a special significance in the magick of the Heptarchia. For example, the names of all the forty-nine good angels begin with b, the letter b appears overwhelmingly on the Ensigns of Creation, and each of the four corners of the Holy Table displays an oversized Pa.

This abundance of bs has caused several knowledgeable modern magical commentators to speculate that b must represent the number seven, the number upon which these magical systems seem to be based. While that makes a great deal of sense to me, I have nonetheless found nothing in the original material that would specifically suggest numerical equivalents to any of the single letters of the angelic alphabet.

What is very clear, however, is the fact that the communicating angel wanted Dee and Kelley to immediately memorize the letters of the angelic alphabet and the letters' names. Dee was a busy man and wanted to be excused from this time-consuming duty. The angel Me would have none of it. In this March 26, 1583, exchange, Dee tries to make the angel understand, "Look man, I've got a life!"

Me: I instructed thee before-hand and told thee, that both of you must jointly learn those holy letters (For, so, I may boldly call them) in memory: with their names: to the intent, that the finger may point to the head, and the head to the understanding of his charge.

Dee: You perceive that I have diverse affairs which at this present do withdraw me from peculiar diligence using to these Characters and their names learning by heart: And therefore I trust, I shall not offend, if I bestow all the convenient leisure that I shall get, about the learning thereof.

Me: Peace, Thou talkest, as though, thou understoodest not. We know thee, we see thee in thy heart: Nor one thing shall not let another. For short is the time, that shall bring these things to proof.<sup>72</sup>

BOOK IV

Enochiana

Enochian Magick

The Lord appeared unto Enoch, and was merciful unto him, opened his eyes, that he might see and judge the earth, which was unknown to his Parents, by reason of their fall : for the Lord said, Let us shew unto Enoch, the use of the earth : And lo, Enoch was wise, and full of the spirit of wisdom.

—THE ANGEL AVE, MONDAY, JUNE 25, 1584<sup>73</sup>

To my knowledge, Dee and Kelley never used the word Enochian to describe the system of magick they received between April 10 and July 13, 1584. Throughout their actions, they simply referred to it as angelic. We cannot, however, be faulted too badly for attaching the biblical patriarch's name to the system. The magicians were told that this was the magick given by God to Enoch (the seventh man from Adam) in the form of a book and that Enoch (before he ascended bodily into the presence of God) passed it on to others. Over the generations, the book fell into wicked hands, and God caused it to be lost. But because of Dee's piety and prayers, God was moved to once again deliver it to mankind.

These final days were an especially difficult period in Dee and Kelley's relationship. They and their families were living in Krakow, Poland. Their actions were regularly interrupted by "evil spirits," who encouraged the magicians to abandon the actions. Kelley was increasingly impatient and uncomfortable with the work, voicing his fear of the possible evil nature of the communications on one hand. Ironically, Kelley was at the time practicing demon magick behind Dee's back. Dee was furious when he learned of this. So were the communicating angels, who warned that such behavior attracted evil spirits into the magician's environment—an annoying and time-consuming distraction. Finally Kelley promised Dee and the angels that he would knock off the black magick.

The angels, too, appeared to be growing impatient with Dee and Kelley, as if they realized the magical chemistry that existed between the two magicians (the personal factors that made them such a perfect operator/receiver team) was rapidly disintegrating. In April, the magicians were told in no uncertain terms that the work had to be completed by August. The magicians met their deadline with time to spare. July 13, 1584, Dee's fifty-seventh birthday, saw the final communication that completed the reception of the angelic calls and provided the names of the thirty Aethyrs. Not only had the Enochian phase of Dee and Kelley's operations ended, but, indeed, the entire angelic adventure had also come to a close. The plug was pulled. The communicating angels fell silent.

The magicians would continue on and off for several years with visionary operations and unsuccessful mago-political adventures in Europe. But, with the exception of only three brief references in their subsequent diaries, they never again mention the angelic magick. One of those latter-day references (the Tabula Recensa), however, is very significant to the study of the Enochian magick period. I'll speak more on that very soon.

The reception of the Enochian material was (at least to my impatient attention span) even more confused and topsy-turvy than that which characterized the Heptarchia and Liber Loagaeth periods. Sadly, as we discovered in the two earlier cases, the surviving information, while abundant, still does not provide us with adequate information on how it all was supposed to work as a practical system of magick.

And here is where we must again tip our magical hats to S. L. MacGregor Mathers, the adepts of the Golden Dawn, and Aleister Crowley, who at the dawn of the twentieth century developed this material into a remarkably logical system of vision magick—a system possessed of the solid infrastructure lacking in the surviving source material, a system that, for all intents and purposes, offers the diligent practitioner a practical and elegant unified field theory of hermetic and qabalistic magick.

As applied most commonly today, Enochian magick is a two-part magical system: one part focusing on the elemental universe, the other on the aethyric. The former enables the magician to summon or visit in vision the spirits of the myriad levels of the elemental worlds of Fire, Water, Air, Earth, and Spirit; the latter enables the magician to systematically penetrate increasingly higher heavens (or Aethyrs) to access information from those heavenly levels of consciousness.

I will soon show how these two systems are operated. But before I do that, and in keeping with our program of systematic attunement, I need to introduce you to another magick table. It was the first revelation of the Enochian period, but it is also, in my opinion, the final component of the preparation protocol. This tablet was delivered to the magicians by the angel Nalvage in April of 1584. It is an item that was acknowledged by the adepts of the Golden Dawn but never incorporated into any practice. It is something, however, I believe should not escape our attention. No name was given to this object. Some modern scholars designate it simply the Tablet of God. I shall refer to it as the Round Tablet of Nalvage.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

The Round Tablet of Nalvage

The order and knitting together of the parts in their due and perfect proportion, God the Holy Ghost. Lo the beginning and end of all things.

—THE ANGEL NALVAGE, APRIL 10, 1584

"The Method of Science—The Aim of Religion" was the official motto of The Equinox, the great magical periodical first published by Aleister Crowley and his colleagues in the early years of the twentieth century.<sup>74</sup> This same phrase could also comfortably serve as the watchwords that describe what the art of magick is to me.

Conversely, superstition (as the word is commonly understood) has, in my opinion, no place in the arsenal of the modern magician. This, I believe, is especially true concerning the practice of Enochian vision magick. In all my years of magical practice and exploration of this system, I have never encountered a single case of so-called psychic attack, demon possession, headache, hives, or hernia—indeed any ill effects whatsoever—resulting from the practice of this particular kind of magick.

That being said, strange and unexpected things do occasionally happen to those who practice magick. And while I believe it is bad for one's mental health to ascribe undue importance to these phenomena, it is important that they be dispassionately observed and recorded. So, before I discuss the Round Tablet of Nalvage and its importance to the system of Enochian magick, I feel I must share with you two little stories that might help you understand the level of respect I hold for this particular magical object.

Twenty years ago, I was teaching a class in Enochian vision magick at our home in Costa Mesa. This class was different from the Enochian magick classes I had taught previously, for it was the first time we would study and experiment with using the Round Tablet of Nalvage. In preparation for the first class, I decided to make a copy of the tablet out of wax (as I had done with my Sigillum Dei Aemeth). A friend had given me two massive, black wax candles shaped like giant chessmen (bishops). My plan was to melt these down in a round Christmas cookie tin and carve the squares and the angelic letters of the Tablet of Nalvage on the cooled wax disk.

It was a foolish time to be starting an arts project like this, because our landlord had just informed us he was bulldozing our house in two weeks and building apartments on our lot (thanks a lot!), and we were deep in the midst of packing up our things to move. Still, magick is magick, and life goes on. I put the two black wax bishops in the cookie tin and slid them into the oven. I set the heat on the lowest possible warm level and went out to the garage to help (watch) Constance pack.

As you might imagine, we had some very interesting things in our garage, many of which we hadn't looked at in years. We did more reminiscing than packing. I didn't forget the black wax bishops in the oven, however, and checked on them regularly. It seemed they were taking a long time to melt, so I turned up the heat a little higher.

Back out in the garage we found a stash of psychedelic artwork Constance had painted and drawn in the late sixties, when we were hippies living in the woods of southern Oregon. We hadn't seen them in fifteen years. What a treat! We lingered over them for probably ten minutes before I remembered the black wax bishops for the Round Tablet of Nalvage in the oven.

When I opened the back door, I found the kitchen dark except for a warm orange glow that, like a spectacular sunset, brightened the dark clouds of smoke that filled the house from the ceiling to about four feet from the floor. The oven was completely engulfed in flames. I ran into the living room and found our son, Jean-Paul, lying on the floor watching television completely oblivious to the black smoke pressing its way toward him from above.

Once he and the dog were evacuated, I called for Constance (always a level head in times of emergency), and we proceeded to attack the fire. When I opened the flaming oven, I discovered that one of the bishops had slid to the side of the cookie tin and parts of it had melted down the outside rim. The wax had run to the bottom of the oven and dripped down upon the pilot light, which then became the eternal flame of Costa Mesa. There was nothing we could do to turn off the oven. Constance eventually had to turn off the gas outside, and with the help of baking soda and wet towels, we got the fire out. I rescued the cookie tin and let it cool in the sink. A couple hours later, in the charred ruins of our kitchen, I carved a beautiful black wax Round Tablet of Nalvage.

Now, I'm the first to confess that this story has less to do with magick and superstition and more with my own carelessness and stupidity. (I am now forbidden to use the oven for magical crafts.) The accident did, however, serve to give me a healthy respect for the Round Tablet of Nalvage—a respect that in the last year has increased immeasurably. And that brings me to my second magical tale of Nalvage.

As we'll soon see, there is much we know about the Round Tablet of Nalvage. What we don't know is how it was intended to be used. As I was preparing for the class series that inspired this book, I debated with myself how (or even if) I was going to introduce it into our studies. After all, there is nothing in the source material that hints at what is to be done with it. Late in the afternoon, I prepared our living room temple for the evening's class. The Sigillum and ensigns were set neatly on the Holy Table; the table was covered with its red silk cloth, and the obsidian mirror was set in place.

I went to the closet cupboard in my office and took down my black wax Round Tablet of Nalvage from the topmost shelf. I unzipped its plastic bubble-wrapped envelope and carefully removed it. I had to admit, after all those years, it still looked magnificently magical. I took it into the living room and set it down upon the covered table. I sat down in my comfy chair, and in the warm glow of sunset (which brought to my mind the glow of our blazing kitchen so many years earlier), I meditated about how the Round Tablet of Nalvage fits into the system.

I didn't get much meditating done, because the moment I closed my eyes I fell asleep. I awoke just a few minutes before people would start arriving for class. I still didn't know how or if I was going to use the tablet for the night's gathering. I hastily decided that if I didn't have sound reasons for using the tablet, I was going to skip it altogether—at least for that night. I took the tablet off the Holy Table, wrapped it back up, and carefully put it back on the top shelf of the closet cupboard.

I went to my desk to turn off the computer and gather things for class, when I was startled by the sound of something smashing against my guitar, which was mounted upright in its stand near the open closet door. With the guitar strings still ringing, I turned to see that the Tablet of Nalvage had flown from its shelf, ricocheted off my guitar, and was resting inches from my feet.

As a reasonably rational man, I am of the opinion that there is nothing supernatural in the world, just natural things that have yet to be explained. I'm sure there is nothing I can say to convince the cynic that the tablet hadn't fallen naturally from the shelf because I hadn't put it there properly. I remain, however, extremely impressed at the distance this object had to travel across physical space in order to strike the guitar and find its way to my feet at the very moment I had decided not to discuss it at that evening's class.

Needless to say, I changed my mind about the importance of the tablet, and in the few moments remaining before class members started to arrive, I composed the two-part chorus that incorporates the dynamics created by the letters of the Round Tablet of Nalvage—a chant that has become the last (and perhaps the most important) component of the Ceremony of Preparation.<sup>75</sup>

Now, let's take a brief look at those dynamics and how a chant based on the Round Tablet of Nalvage can be constructed.

The Tablet of Nalvage is not really round. It is a square divided into four squares (or continents) and surrounded by four outer bars (see figure 59). The continents and bars are subdivided into lettered squares (nine squares per continent and four squares per bar). But before we start filling in the letters, let's see what the angel Nalvage had to say about the continents.

Nalvage told Dee and Kelley that continents 1 and 2 are “dignified,” while 3 “is not yet dignified, but to be dignified,” and 4 is “without glory or dignity.” Nalvage described them in Latin as follows:

1. Vita suprema (highest life), the continent of “joy”;
2. Vita (life), the continent of “potentiality”;
3. Vita non dignificata, sed dignificanda (life not dignified, but which shall be dignified), the continent of “creation”; and
4. Vita est etiam haec, sed quae perperit mors (“Even this is life, but life which will be paid with death”), the continent of “discord.”

Each continent contains nine letters that, when read in various ways, yield words in the angelic language. In order to more easily see these words, I have separated the tablet into its component parts (see figure 60).

When read counterclockwise, the outer bars of the tablet spell the names of four classes of angels: luah (praising angels), lang (ministering angels), sach (confirming angels), and urch (confounding angels).

These angels circumscribe and contain the angelic forces at work within the continents. Nalvage gave the following Latin meanings to the words inside the continents when the words are read horizontally from left to right (see figure 61).

Figure 62 shows how the letters of the continents are read to reveal the nature of the divine powers resident in the tablet.

First notice how the three letters of outer corners of each of the four continents (upper left corner of upper left continent, lower left corner of lower left continent, and so on) all spell the Enochian word meaning God—iad.

Notice next that the three diagonal letters of continents spell the words moz (joy), bab (power), sor (action), and ser (lamentation).

Finally, the three letters of the inner corners of the continents spell the words zir (I am), zna (motion), gru (deed), and osf (discord).

The arrows in figure 62 show the beautiful symmetry the words create within the tablet. If we put the words of each continent together, we arrive at phrases such as:

- Continent 1. iad moz zir (I am the Joy of God.)
- Continent 2. iad bab zna (God's Power in Motion)
- Continent 3. iad sor gru (Result of God's Action)
- Continent 4. iad ser osf (God's Discord and Lamentation)

This rich tapestry of joy, movement, creation, and sorrow is contained and encircled by a counterclockwise whirl of the angels: luah, lang, sach, and urch.

Concerning the tablet as a whole, Nalvage said, "The Substance is attributed to God the Father."<sup>76</sup>

In reference to the letters on the outer bars, Nalvage said, "The first circular mover, the circumference, God the Son, The finger of the Father, and mover of all things."<sup>77</sup>

Referring to the continents and the manner in which their letters are read, he said, "The order and knitting together of the parts in their due and perfect proportion, God the Holy Ghost. Lo the beginning and end of all things."<sup>78</sup>

Like the Holy Table, the Round Tablet of Nalvage, once decoded, displays divine and angelic words and names in perpetual motion in such a way that one can almost sense what is meant by the term choir of angels. In group workings, I break the participants up into two voices as we ceremonially chant the words from the tablet.

Voice One: luah lang sach urch

Voice Two: iad moz zir—iad bab zna—iad sor gru—iad ser osf

The effect is powerful even when I'm alone in the middle of the night and chant one voice at a time.

Once Nalvage described the dynamics of the tablet, he didn't go on to provide instructions on how, or even if, the tablet was to be used. Is it a talisman? Is it to be worn as the Lamen? Is it to be held or placed on the Holy Table? We don't know.

However, we do know that after the two magicians had become attuned to the structure of the Round Tablet of Nalvage, the entire remaining system of Enochian magick was revealed in less than ninety days. This has led more than a few magicians to speculate that the Round Tablet of Nalvage might be the key to a mysterious and unexpressed "first call" of the Enochian system, or perhaps even represent the call itself.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

The Forty-eight Calls

Move, therefore, and show yourselves: open the Mysteries of your Creation: Be friendly unto me: for I am the servant of the same your God, the true worshipper of the Highest.

—FROM THE FIRST CALL<sup>79</sup>

The centerpiece of the Enochian system is a collection of calls<sup>80</sup> in an angelic tongue that is significantly different from the language delivered in Liber Loagaeth. The reception of the calls followed that of the Tablet of Nalvage. They were first dictated to the magicians in the angelic tongue, then afterwards translated into English. Careful examination of the calls and their translations reveal that Enochian is a real language and not simply strings of barbarous names and words. The calls read like evocative hymns or invocations. They are constructed of real, sometimes breathtakingly beautiful sentences that can be translated (not merely transliterated). The language exhibits a remarkable consistency of word meaning from call to call. It has a form of grammar and syntax. This phenomenon, coupled with the multiple double-blind/letter-by-letter method by which it was received, makes this (in my mind at least) one of the most extraordinary aspects of Dee and Kelley's workings.

Technically, there are forty-nine calls. However, as the first call was said to be unexpressed, I will refer to them as if there were forty-eight.

They appear translated in their entirety in appendix II of this book, along with the keys to how they are put to use by modern Enochian magicians (see also chapter twenty-seven).

Beginning on April 10, 1584, the first four calls were painstakingly delivered, letter-by-letter (in backward order, because the angels at first voiced fears that the calls were so powerful it might be too dangerous to deliver them in a straightforward manner). As usual, the letters were drawn from an assortment of lettered grids. The angels also provided translations to the first four calls immediately after their delivery.

Then things changed. It appears that even the angels became impatient with this tedious method. They proceeded to deliver calls five through eighteen in a straightforward manner, but they would wait six weeks before delivering the English translations.

The fact that the translated words from the first four calls (delivered backwards) matched (or were otherwise linguistically compatible with) the translated words of calls five through eighteen (delivered forward and translated six weeks later) all but rules out the possibility that either Dee or Kelley invented the angelic language or the calls.

The nineteenth call (the Call of the Ayres or Aethyrs) and the names of the thirty Aethyrs (or heavens) were received on July 13, 1584, Dee's fifty-seventh birthday, effectively ending Dee and Kelley's angelic magick relationship. However, before that final communication, the angels would deliver an incredible amount of material to the two magicians between April 10 and July 13—material that three hundred years later would inspire the adepts of the Golden Dawn to develop the hybrid system we now call Enochian magick. I call it hybrid because the "Enochian" magick developed by the Golden Dawn and Crowley is based on a number of assumptions that connect the forty-eight calls with other "Enochian" material Dee and Kelley received after the reception of the calls. I refer to what are now commonly called the Elemental Tablets, which I will discuss in detail in chapter twenty-three and beyond. While eminently logical and based on the most anal-retentive hermetic principles, many of the assumptions made by the Golden Dawn and Crowley were nonetheless not clearly made in the original Dee material.

First, however, we need to look at the circumstances that triggered the final and most astounding chapter in the story of the reception of Enochian magick. It all started with Dee wanting to spy on the king of Poland and ended with the reception of what appears to be nothing less than the printed circuit board of the mind of God.

The Ninety-one Parts of the Earth

Dee: Hey Nalvage, I'd sure like to magically eavesdrop on secret meetings between King Stephen of Poland and his ministers. I'd like to know if Count Albert Laski will soon succeed Stephen as king of Poland. Can you help me do this?

Nalvage: No problem, Dr. Dee. But first you have to understand how the universe where this can happen operates. You need to understand how everything in heaven and earth is connected to everything in heaven and earth.<sup>81</sup>

—IMAGINARY CONVERSATION, JOHN DEE AND THE ANGEL NALVAGE

The fantasy dialogue above is more than just another one of my lame attempts to be witty. It describes what, for all intents and purposes, was happening during this phase of the Enochian magick revelations. Dee was indeed trying to squeeze from the angels some information regarding political intrigues in Poland. The angel Nalvage's response was to first try to explain to Dee the mechanics of how specific spirits rule specific parts of the earth. In doing so, Nalvage would ambitiously attempt to demonstrate how everything in heaven and earth is connected to everything in heaven and earth. The results of this revelation Dee would neatly memorialize thirteen months later in Liber Scientiae Auxilii et Vitoriae Terrestris.<sup>82</sup>

Nalvage started by dividing the universe into thirty segments that would eventually be identified as Aires, or Aethyrs (see column I of figure 63). To the thirty Aires he assigned ninety-one parts of the earth (see column II), which he first referred to by the geographical name recognizable to the sixteenth-century magicians, such as Syria (see second name in column III), then by the name by which it is known in the divine realms, such as Pascomb (see second name in column IV).

He then assigned each of these pairs of names to one of the twelve mythical tribes of Israel, along with their directional coordinates, an angelic king, and a respectable number of good ministers.

All this information and more can be found in figure 63. Columns I through V contain the information Dee and Kelley received at this stage of the reception. The symmetrical characters found in column VI and the names of the good princes of the Air in column VII were delivered to Dee and Kelley at a later date than the information in columns I through V. This fact will have astonishing significance when we examine the circumstances and sequence of events that brought to a close the angelic adventures of the two magicians. The key to the columns of the table is as follows:

- Column I Number of the Aire
- Column II Sequence of the ninety-one parts of the earth
- Column III Names of the ninety-one parts of the earth as imposed by man<sup>83</sup>
- Column IV Names of the ninety-one parts of the earth as imposed by God (Note: These are also the names of ninety-one governors of the Aethyrs; see chapter twenty-eight.)
- Column V (from top to bottom) Tribe of Israel, quarter of the earth assigned to the dispersed tribes of Israel, angelic kind, number of good ministers
- Column VI Divinely ordained symmetrical characters (see chapter twenty-one) (Note: The mystery of the missing symmetrical characters 28, 29, and 30 would be revealed to Dee and Kelley later; see chapter twenty-four.

Column VII

Names of the good princes of the Air (Note: These are also the names of the thirty Aethyrs; see chapter twenty-eight.)

Very early on the morning of Wednesday, June 20, 1584, Edward Kelley was aroused from a sound sleep by someone (something) patting him on the head. He opened his eyes and beheld an angel, "clothed with feathers, strangely wreathed about him all over, etc." standing at the head of his bed. The angel would later identify itself as Ave, one of the Sons of Sons of Light from the Sigillum Dei Aemeth (see chapter ten). Ave proceeded to project a vision that would dramatize the elements and structure of the entire system of Enochian magick as widely practiced today. The following is from Dee's diary:<sup>85</sup>

There appeared to him [Kelley] four very fair Castles, standing in the four parts of the world: out of which he heard the sound of a Trumpet. Then it seemed out of every Castle a cloath to be thrown on the ground, of more than the breadth of a Table-cloth . . . <sup>86</sup>

. . . Out of every Gate then issued one Trumpeter, whose Trumpets were of strange form, wreathed, and growing bigger and bigger toward the end.

After the Trumpeter followed three Ensign Bearers.

After them six ancient men, with white beards and staves in their hands.

Then followed a comely man, with very much Apparel on his back, his Robe having a long train.

After him came five men, carrying up of his train.

Then followed one great Crosse, and about that four lesser Crosses.

These Crosses had on them, each of them ten, like men, their faces distinctly appearing on the four parts of the Crosse, all over.

After the Crosses followed 16 white Creatures.

After them, an infinite number seemed to issue, and to spread themselves orderly in a compasse, almost before the four foresaid Castles.

The highlights of Kelley's vision would eventually be memorialized upon a round talisman etched in gold, which is today on display at the British Museum. Much as I'd like to believe this object was fashioned by Dee himself, it is almost certainly a forgery patterned upon the flawed image printed in Casaubon's A True & Faithful Relation. For reference, however, I will continue to refer to both the vision and the image as the Golden Talisman.

The four castles, or Watchtowers, formed a cross, the center of which was a circle supported by twenty-four columns. Figure 64 illustrates the lower quarter of the Golden Talisman.

Ave would elucidate upon the nature, powers, and hierarchical status of the characters on the Golden Talisman. Eventually he would go into far greater detail by projecting and organizing all of it upon what he called the Great Table or the Great Table of the Watchtowers. The Great Table is the Rosetta stone of Enochian magick. How it was received and how it is connected to the information Dee and Kelley had already received concerning the ninety-one parts of the earth present us with perhaps the most convincing proof that the two magicians were indeed in contact with noncorporeal intelligences of a superior order.

CHAPTER TWENTY

The Unlettered Great Table and the Four Great Seals

The seals and authorities of these Houses are confirmed in the beginning of the World. Unto everyone of them be 4 characters, (tokens of the presence of the son of God: by whom all things were made in Creation.)

—THE ANGEL AVE, JUNE 20, 1584<sup>87</sup>

In a working that took place on Wednesday, June 25, 1584, the angel Ave showed the magicians the image of a table that was divided into four sections by a central cross. Each of the four sections was identified as one of the castles of the Golden Talisman vision. Also called Watchtowers, Watchmen, princes, and mighty angels of the Lord, they were each represented by a seal. Three of these seals, by their imagery, bear a direct and unambiguous connection to the Sigillum Dei Aemeth or the Ensigns of Creation.

The first seal was assigned to the upper left section of the table. It was the image of a capital letter T with four rays beaming vertically from the top bar. This seal comes from a major landmark of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth. The 4/T cell is the first (near the top) of the forty cells that form the perimeter (see figure 23). The 4/T cell is where we began counting to create the seven Names of God drawn from the Sigillum.

The second seal was assigned to the upper right section of the table and identified as an alphabet cross. We first saw this cross on the (lower right) corner of the first sevenfold table (see figure 33), which generated the letters of the large outer heptagon of the Sigillum, where the cross appears at the top left (see figure 34).

The third seal was assigned to the lower right section of the Great Table. Its origin was a little harder to track down. Ave said, "It is in that table, which consisteth of 4 and 8." One of the seven Ensigns of Creation that ring the Sigillum on the Holy Table (the one many modern magicians associate with Mercury) is a 4 x 8 table (see figure 54). The square occupying the position of the second column, second row, contains the cross, numbers, and letters exactly as appears on the vision of the third seal.

The forth seal was assigned to the lower left section of the table and was the image of "a little round smoke, as big as a pin's head." It is illustrated in one of the drawings of the Great Table in Sloane 3191 as a tiny circle with twelve rays issuing from it. It is perhaps the stylized representation of the figure that appears on the back of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth: a small circle from which projects the four capital Ts of a cross potent formed from twelve right angles (see figure 51). Perhaps it is connected to the Round Table of Nalvage and the twelve words that occupy its four continents. Frankly I've been unable to find any reference in the original material that would suggest either of these connections.

Figure 65 shows the positions of the Great Seals on the Great Table and the order in which they were revealed to Dee and Kelley on June 25, 1584. On April 18, 1587 (nearly three years after the magicians had, for all intents and purposes, discontinued their angelic workings), Kelley would receive a vision that would alter (or reform) several aspects of the Great Table, including the relative positions of the seals and all they represent.

As one might expect, this reformation remains the source of intense frustration to Enochian students and practitioners. To add to all the confusion, Dee at different times assigned different directional attributes to the quarters of the table. Later, the Golden Dawn, in order to develop a workable system from this material, would attribute the quarters of the Great Table to the elements of Air, Water, Earth, and Fire. Eventually, I will do that as well, but for the moment, let's be satisfied with identifying the four quarters of the Great Table by their seals and original numbers as shown in figure 65, while we move on to the wonders of what next took place.

The Great Table

There was a terrible storm of thunder and rain, toward the end of our yesterdays action: which I said, was somewhat more than natural.

—JOHN DEE, JUNE 26, 1584<sup>88</sup>

I feel I must here briefly outline (if only for my own benefit) the sequential landmarks of the Enochian magick period up to this point:

- The reception of the Round Tablet of Nalvage,
- The beginning of the reception of the forty-eight calls in the angelic language,
- The reception of the order and earthly name of each of the ninety-one parts of the earth, together with:
  - its divinely given name,
  - the tribe of Israel to which it is assigned,<sup>89</sup>
  - the direction assigned to that tribe,
  - the name of its ruling angelic king,
  - the number of good ministers.

(All of the above information is itemized in columns I through IV of the figure 63 in chapter eighteen.)

Then came:

- The vision of the Golden Talisman, with its four sets of castles:

- one trumpeter,
- three ensign bearers,
- six seniors (“six ancient men”),
- the king and his five princes (the “comely man, with very much Apparel” and the “five men, carrying up of his train”),
- five crosses in the air (“one great Crosse” and “four lesser Crosses”),
- sixteen dispositors (“16 white Creatures”).
- The vision of the unlettered Great Table and the four Great Seals.

What happened next was so remarkable that I hope I can recount what happened clearly enough for you to appreciate how remarkable it was.

During the working of Monday, June 25, 1584, Kelley was given in vision four blank grids, each of which was twelve squares wide by thirteen squares high. These grids were said to represent the four quarters of the unlettered Great Table of the vision of a few days earlier. As the vision proceeded, “little pricks,” or dots, began to appear in the squares. Kelley was then instructed to connect the dots in groups of seven, which created sigils, each forming a curious pattern.

When he was through connecting the dots, all but eight of the 624 squares that make up the four grids were covered by eighty-eight characters, each unique in form, each covering seven squares, but none of which intruded upon another character's squares. These symbols were identified as “the true images of God his Spiritual Creatures.”

Now we know what those zigzag lines that fill column VI in chapter eighteen's figure 63 are. They are called symmetrical characters because each one is formed from the same number of pricks—in this case, seven.

Once the blank grids were filled with the lines of the symmetrical characters, Kelley was instructed to fill in the squares with letters. Starting at the top left of each grid and moving to the right, letters began to appear to Kelley, one by one, as Dee copied them down. Some of the letters were capitalized, but most were not. A few of the capitalized letters appeared to be written backwards.

When all four grids were filled in with letters and characters, it became clear that the characters spelled out names. Not only that, but each of these eighty-eight names also began with a capital letter and contained no other capital letter among the remaining six.

This phenomenon is in itself impressive, but it is nothing compared to what Dee and Kelley would learn next. Within a few hours (and with a few helpful hints from the angels), the two magicians discovered, to their utter amazement, that the symmetrical characters spelled all but three of the divine names of the ninety-one parts of the earth—names they had been given days earlier and in list format. Figure 67 shows an example of how the divine name of the second part of the earth, Pascomb, is spelled out by its symmetric character.

All four grids were filled with similar characters all spelling out (with a few minor irregularities) the names of eighty-eight of the ninety-one parts of the earth.

The next day the angels tidied up this array by joining the four 12 x 13 grids with a central cross and turning it into one Great Table. The letters of the three missing divine names of the parts of the earth were found distributed in the central cross (sometimes referred to as the Black Cross or the Great Central Cross) and a mysterious ninety-second name, Paraoan, was created from certain of the backwards letters that occupied the squares left vacant by the symmetrical characters (see chapter twenty-four). Things were wrapped up pretty neatly.

Before we continue, I would like to again stress how impressive was the method of reception. Enochian scholar and magician David R. Jones, wrote:

The student of Enochian can compare the lists of names with the sigils, which formulate their existence on the Watchtowers, and easily see the correlation. But realize that the names were delivered first and then the Watchtowers horizontally line by line and after having both figures at hand. The Angels demonstrated that, by discrete (7 letters, the number of letters in each Governor's name) linear connections, all of the letters given in the Watchtowers could be accounted for from the letters that formulate names of the Governors previously given. This would require either a monumental and complex second and third order memorization (2 dimensions to 1 dimension then back to 2 dimensions and with directional correlation from a 3 dimensional origin to a 3 dimensional conclusion) on Kelly's part or an elaborate and extremely obtuse deception on Dee's part. This constitutes one of the chief proofs of the system.<sup>90</sup>

The magicians would eventually be informed that the ninety-one divine names of the parts of the earth are also the names of ninety-one governors who inhabit the thirty Aethyrs, or Aires, or heavens that surround the Watchtowers like a heavenly glass onion. We've yet to discuss the Aethyrs because their names (see figure 63, column VII) were among the last bits of information Dee and Kelley received in their Enochian magick workings. The lowest of these Aethyrs, Tex, is inhabited by four governors. The remaining Aethyrs including the highest, Lil, each have three governors.

I will talk more about the Aethyrs in chapter twenty-five. Here it is important for us to simply understand that linking the ninety-one parts of the earth to the thirty Aethyrs was the Enochian way of identifying and linking all levels of divine consciousness from bottom to top. Thus, the dynamics of the Great Table really are a demonstration of how everything in heaven and earth is indeed connected to everything else in heaven and earth.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

Tabula Recensa

At length, E. K. was willed to go down into his Chamber, and I did remain still at our Dining Table till his return, which was within an hour or somewhat more. And at his return this he brought in writing . . .

—JOHN DEE, APRIL 20, 1587<sup>91</sup>

Such was the amazing genesis of the Great Table. How all this is connected to the vision of the Golden Talisman and the practice of modern Enochian magick will be the subjects of the next chapters. Before moving on, however, and in order to more easily illustrate the structure of the system, I need to temporarily tighten up some of the loose ends that the irregularities in the original material often leave dangling in the eyes of the student. The most serious of these concerns the lettering of the Great Table and the various names of angels drawn therefrom. Here's the problem:

After they initially received the Great Table, the magicians were obliged to change or add certain letters in some of the squares. To confuse things further, in documents they received both earlier and later,<sup>92</sup> the names of a handful of the ninety-one governors of the table (whose names are spelled out by the symmetrical characters) and the names of specific angels drawn from the Watchtowers of the Great Table are in subsequent communications spelled a bit differently than they appear in the original table. This difference has proven very frustrating to modern Enochian magicians, who naturally would like to be confident in their ability to accurately identify and spell the name of the angel with whom they wish to communicate.

There are other loose-end inconsistencies that plagued Dee and Kelley, one of which was the uncertainty over which compass directions were to be assigned to the four quarters of the Great Table—a problem that Dee appears never to have resolved to his satisfaction, and one that I have chosen to sidestep completely by not using the directional references to identify the four quarters of the Great Table at all. These inconsistencies, however, pale before what happened in April of 1587, nearly three years after Dee and Kelley had ended their Enochian workings.

For some reason Kelley felt compelled to revisit the mysteries of the Great Table and once and for all settle the questions of unresolved inconsistencies. During a conversation with the archangel Raphael that lasted approximately one hour, he claimed to receive the Tabula Recensa, or “Reformed Table.” This table, while correcting a few of the letters, was characterized by one very dramatic change: three of the quadrants housing the four Watchtowers were shifted to different positions within the full table. This alteration did not change any symmetrical characters, nor did it tinker all that much with the names of the governors or other angels within the table. What it did do was change the basic construction of the Great Table.

For the duration of this book I will, for the sake of consistency, try to use the Tabula Recensa as my main model for both the lettering and arrangement of the Watchtowers of the Great Table. I say “try to use” because for nearly the entire Enochian period the angels referenced the original Great Table (figure 68) when explaining the angelic hierarchies and spelling the names of individual angels. It will be necessary from time to time to refer to the original, unreformed Great Table, especially when we start discussing the Kerubs (see chapters twenty-three and twenty-four), whose names might be dramatically affected by the reformed table’s new arrangement.

I should remind the reader that in magick it is eminently possible for many contradictory ideas to be simultaneously true. In the pages that follow, the alert reader will notice that the names of certain angels are spelled in a manner inconsistent with the original Great Table, the Tabula Recensa, and/or other obvious references within the text. It is probable that particular inconsistencies are the result of subsequent angelic instructions or other extenuating reasons. For a practical manual such as this it would be distracting to the point of absurdity for me to pause, footnote, cross reference, defend, and explain each and every one of these aberrations, especially considering the fact that in many instances I myself have not been able to track down the source of the differing lettering. For those of you whose research will take you deeper into this subject, I have included in appendix IV versions of the Watchtowers containing all the variations in lettering that I have been able to discover.

Also for convenience sake, I'm going to represent the segue between the Enochian magick of Dee and Kelley and Enochian magick as it is generally practiced today. Up to this point in the chronology of the adventures of Dee and Kelley, each of the four Watchtowers of the Great Table (both the original and reformed) have been identified by the one of the four Great Seals (see figure 65) or by certain landmark letters. At different times in the original material they have been identified by the order they were received or by the directions: east, south, west, or north. Nowhere in the surviving documents have I been able to find the four quadrants of the Great Table overtly identified as the Elemental Tablets of Fire, Water, Air, and Earth.

That being said, certain clear references in the continuing communications revealed elemental hierarchies and rulerships both of and within the individual Watchtowers. Building on this information, the adepts of the Golden Dawn projected an eminently logical elemental structure to the Great Table, its central Black Cross, and its individual subdivisions. These elemental attributions are the heart and soul of the system of Enochian magick taught and practiced by the Golden Dawn, Aleister Crowley, and most modern practitioners.

I personally believe that when these more modern adepts treated the Watchtowers as expressions of the elements they were picking up where Dee and Kelley had stopped and were taking the next logical step in the development of the system. To more easily discuss how all this is going to relate to the practical application of the system, I will now and for the remainder of this book, refer to the four Watchtowers by their modern elemental designations. Please refer to figure 69.

- The upper left quadrant of the reformed Great Table I will now refer to as the Watchtower, or Elemental Tablet, of Air.
- The upper right quadrant of the reformed Great Table I will now refer to as the Watchtower, or Elemental Tablet, of Water.
- The lower left quadrant of the reformed Great Table I will now refer to as the Watchtower, or Elemental Tablet, of Earth.
- The lower right quadrant of the reformed Great Table I will now refer to as the Watchtower, or Elemental Tablet, of Fire.

This is how they are identified in most modern Enochian literature. There is a fifth Elemental Tablet—the Tablet of Union—that is attributed to the quintessential element, Spirit. It is much smaller, containing only twenty squares, and its letters are drawn from those on the central Black Cross of the Great Table, which serves to unite the four Watchtowers in precisely the same way Spirit is said to unite and separate the four elements. I will have more to say about this very important tablet in chapter twenty-six.

The Great Table Meets the Golden Talisman

The Angels of the 4 angles shall make the Earth open unto you, and shall serve your necessities from the 4 parts of the Earth.

—THE ANGEL AVE, JULY 2, 1584<sup>93</sup>

Recall, from chapter nineteen, that the vision of the Golden Talisman revealed four castles from which flowed four cloths of different colors. Out of each castle, marching in procession came one trumpeter, three ensign bearers, six seniors, and one king. The king was followed by five men (who held up his train) and five crosses (one great cross surrounded by four lesser crosses) that floated in the air above them. Each of the four lesser crosses “had on them, each of them ten, like men, their faces distinctly appearing on the four parts of the Crosse, all over.”<sup>94</sup>

After the crosses came sixteen white creatures, identified as dispositors on the Golden Talisman, and then “an infinite number seemed to issue, almost before the four foresaid Castles.”<sup>95</sup>

These images and characters provide, at least partially, the key to the divine hierarchy of the Great Table. This hierarchy represents the spiritual forces that govern not only the phenomenal universe but also heaven. Let’s take a moment and project the vision of the Golden Talisman upon the Great Table.

The Four Castles

The castles are obviously the four Watchtowers (Elemental Tablets) themselves, and the rest of the characters in the vision represent the angelic hierarchy resident in each tablet. These angels can be called forth and visited in vision by intoning one or more of the first eighteen calls to activate the Elemental Tablet and the specific area of the tablet where they reside. I will show how that is done in appendix I. First, let’s see how the cast of characters from the Golden Talisman fit on the individual Elemental Tablets.

For purposes of illustration, I will use the Elemental Tablet of Fire (the lower right quarter of the reformed Great Table) as our model.

The Trumpets (Trumpeter)

The first character to issue from each of the castles was the trumpeter. The trumpeters are the Great Seals of the tablets. In our example (the Elemental Tablet of Fire), the seal is the image of the sun emitting rays.

The Three Ensign Bearers

At the top of the hierarchical ladder of each Elemental Tablet are the three ensign bearers, who represent the Three Great Secret Names of God. These names appear in the central horizontal row of the Great Central Cross that divides each Elemental Tablet. This cross is made of the two vertical columns that bisect the tablet into left and right; the left column is called the Line of the Father and the right column is called the Line of the Son, and the single central row that bisects the tablet top and bottom is called the Line of the Holy Ghost.

Dee and Kelley were told that the three ensign bearers were respectively of the nature of "3, 4, and 5." This means that the Three Great Secret Names of God are spelled using the first three letters, the next four letters, and the final five letters of the central horizontal row of the central cross. In the case of the Fire tablet, these letter combinations are: oiP, teaa, pDoce.

Figure 73: The Three Great Secret Names of God of the Elemental Tablet of Fire

If there was any doubt as to the angels' meaning concerning the four sets of the Three Great Secret Names of God, they thoughtfully provided a round diagram with all twelve names neatly represented as ensign flags surrounding a central quartered square. In that diagram, all the letters of the names appeared in uppercase letters: OIP, TEAA, PDOCE.

The Three Great Secret Names of all four Elemental Tablets are found in appendix IV.

The Six Seniors

Next came the six seniors. While there is little specific indication in the surviving documents that would suggest the six seniors carry planetary attributions, it is nonetheless a logical assumption; it was made by the adepts of the Golden Dawn and is made by most modern practitioners. For clarity of reference (and for the duration of our discussion), I will adapt the modern planetary designations given to the seniors.

The six seniors of each of the Elemental Tablets are found on the Great Central Cross of each tablet. The seven-letter names of the six seniors radiate from the center two letters of the cross to its extremities.

On the Elemental Tablet of Fire, the six seniors are: aaetPio (Mars), adoeoet (Jupiter), aLndVod (Luna), aapDoce (Venus), arinna (Saturn), and aNodoin (Mercury).

In subsequent references to the seniors (such as in lists and prayers), Dee would standardize the capitalization of the names on all the Elemental Tablets. In our example: Aaetpio, Adoeoet, Alndvod, Aapdoce, Arinna, Anodoin.

The names of the seniors of all four Elemental Tablets are found in appendix IV.

In Kelley's vision of the Golden Talisman, the six seniors from each of the four castles march to the center and meet as pillars that support, as it were, the entire structure. This image is suggestive of the twenty-four elders who surround the throne of God in the Book of the Revelation of John.<sup>96</sup> The twenty-four seniors together are represented on the Golden Talisman as the twenty-four columns that ring the center circle of the talisman (see figure 64).

There is a seventh planetary senior who is attributed to the sun. Just as the sun is the central “king” of our solar system, so too is the sun senior identified as king and found in the center of each Elemental Tablet.

The King

Like the sun, which attracts and holds the planets in orbit, the king of each Elemental Tablet is said to summon and direct the seniors for heavenly duties. When those duties are of a merciful nature, the king spells his name a bit differently than when the duties are those of severity and judgment.

Like those of the six seniors, the seven letters of the king’s name are drawn entirely from the Great Central Cross (the lines of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost) of the Elemental Tablet. Beginning with the fifth letter from the left in the horizontal line of the Holy Ghost, the name is spelled out in a clockwise whirl that ends in one of the two squares that occupies the center of the cross: either at the sixth letter from the left for operations of mercy (figure 75) or the seventh letter from the left for operations of judgment (figure 76).

In the case of the Elemental Tablet of Fire, the letters that hold those positions are both as, so both names are Edlprna.

Figures 75 and 76: Clockwise whirl spelling the two names of the king of the Elemental Tablet of Fire, Edlprna and Edlprna

Perhaps my use of the Elemental Tablet of Fire is not the best example to illustrate how the name of the king is formed by the clockwise whirls because the resulting names are the same. The other three Elemental Tablets yield distinctly different names.

The names of the Kings of all four Elemental Tablets are found in appendix IV.

The Five Crosses (One Great Cross and Four Lesser Crosses)

Each of the four quarters formed by the Great Central Cross is a rectangle five squares wide by six squares high. These quadrants are often referred to in modern Enochian magick as lesser angles or subangles. Just as the reformed Great Table positions the Elemental Tablet of Air in its upper left, Water in its upper right, Earth in its lower left, and Fire in its lower right quadrants, so too each subangle is assigned one of the four elements and positioned on its Elemental Tablet in the same way.

Each of the four subangles is dominated by a Calvary cross made up of ten squares (the ten men of the vision of the Golden Talisman), which form the two god names of the subangle. The name drawn from the six letters of the vertical column of the cross (read top to bottom) was said to summon the angels of the subangle, and the five-letter god name of the horizontal bar of the cross (read left to right) was said to command them. Figure 78 shows the god names rzionr and nrzfm from the Fire subangle (the lower right quadrant) of the Elemental Tablet of Fire.

Sixteen White Creatures (Dispositors)

Next in procession in Kelley's vision (and next in the hierarchy of the Elemental Tablets) are the "16 white Creatures." On the Golden Talisman diagram they are represented as sixteen small columns standing side-by-side at the extremity of each rectangular cloth (see figure 64) where they are labeled "XVI Dispositors."

Among modern magicians there are several schools of thought concerning the identity of the sixteen dispositors. The simplest (and in my opinion the most correct) theory holds they are made up of the four angels who reside beneath the arms of the Calvary cross of each of the four subangles of the Elemental Tablet. Referred to as good angels or servient angels, they are invoked and commanded by the god names of their Calvary cross and have powers and knowledge that can be of great practical use to the magician (see appendix IV).

The names of the servient or good angels can be spelled with four letters (if you omit the central letter from the vertical bar of the Calvary cross) or with five letters (if you include the letter from the cross). In our example, the names are:

adre or ad[i]re
sisp or si[o]sp pali or pa[n]li
ACar or AC[r]ar

This is a logical and very workable way of looking at the angelic hierarchy of the Elemental Tablet and conforms nicely to the vision of the Golden Talisman and to the way Dee composed his prayers to conjure these good angels.

This theory does, however, leave out in the cold the four letters above the arm of each Calvary cross. To address this issue we must bring up the several schools of thought concerning Kerubs.

Kerubic Angels

In Christian iconography, every well-appointed crucifix bears a rectangular piece of wood nailed above the head of Christ and displaying the four letters INRI.<sup>97</sup> So too above the arms of the Calvary cross of every subangle we find four letters that spell the name of the Kerub of the subangle, a unique spiritual personage. The Golden Dawn dubbed these angels Kerubs.<sup>98</sup>

Now, if you are paying attention, you might want to point out that there are only four subangles and only four Calvary crosses (one in each Elemental Tablet), and therefore there should only be four Kerub/dispositors, not sixteen, per tablet. Of course, your observation would be accurate—if we restrict ourselves to spelling their names in a straightforward and orderly manner. But according to this theory, there are actually four Kerubs hidden in the four letters above the arms of every Calvary cross, and these sixteen Kerubs are actually the sixteen dispositors.

Let's use the Fire (lower right) subangle of the Fire Elemental Tablet and the Kerub ZiZa as our example.

This subangle's four Kerubs are created from a simple permutation of the four letters above the arms of the Calvary cross; simply slide the four letters to the left, each time placing the displaced first letter to the back of the line:

ZiZa iZaZ ZaZi aZiZ

This dynamic perpetual motion of letters doesn't stop with the Kerub, for each letter of the Kerub's name can also rule a column and row of the sixteen letters of the servient angels residing beneath the arm of the Calvary cross.

In our example, the first Z in the Kerub's name rules the column directly beneath it and the arm of the cross: aspA.

The Z also rules the bottom row of the subangle: ACar.

Figure 81 shows how the other letters in the Kerub's name rule the servient angels of the subangle.

Figure 81: How the letters of the Kerub rule the servient angels of the Fire subangle: The first Z rules column name aspA and row name ACar. The letter I rules column name diaC and row name pali. The second Z rules column name rsIa and row name sisp. And finally, the letter a rules column name epir and row name adre.

According to this theory, in order to open a subangle to summon or contact a servient angel, the magician must first invoke the two god names of the Calvary cross of the subangle in question, then invoke the Kerub, then invoke the servient angel of choice. This is a logical and workable system, but one that doesn't appear to have been on Dee and Kelley's menu. In fact, original material suggests that the Kerub is a unique citizen of the subangle, one who is not under the rulership of the Calvary cross, but under a "god" whose name begins with a sacred letter drawn from the Black Cross (the Great Central Cross) of the Great Table.

A Super Kerub?

Neither Dee or Kelley nor the modern magicians of the Golden Dawn ever use the term Super Kerub.

There is, however, a variety of kerubic angel who seems to embody that title. Like the variety of kerubs we've just discussed, the names of the Super Kerubs are drawn from the letters above the arms of the Calvary crosses of the subangles of the Great Tablet. But, instead of answering to the two Calvary cross god names of their subangle, the Super Kerubs answer to a higher authority—a supercharged angel who is linked directly to the Black Cross of the unreformed Great Tablet. This angel was the subject of much discussion in the original Dee and Kelley material, for its existence and posers were central to the understanding of the “wicked” angels.

In order for us to understand the nature of the Super Kerubs and the wicked angels, we will need to take a closer look at the Black Cross.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

The Black Cross, Super Kerubs, Wicked Angels, Missing Symmetrical Characters, and the Tablet of Union

—THE ANGEL AVE, JUNE 25, 1584<sup>99</sup>

I stated earlier that I have been unable to find in the surviving Dee and Kelley material any overt references to the four Watchtowers as being Elemental Tablets of Fire, Water, Air, and Earth. However, the communicating angels gave every indication that the dynamics and hierarchical structure of the Great Table were, at least in part, elemental in nature. In the communication of Monday, June 25, 1584, the angel Ave speaks of the virtues of the table:<sup>100</sup>

First, generally this Table containeth:

1. All humane knowledge.
2. Out of it springeth Physick.
3. The knowledge of all elemental Creatures, amongst you. How many kindes there are, and for what use they were created. Those that live in the air, by themselves. Those that live in the waters, by themselves. Those that dwell in the earth, by themselves. The property of the fire—which is the secret life of all things.

4. The knowledge, finding and use of Metal. }
The vertues of them. } They are all of one matter.
The congelations, and vertues of Stones. }
5. The conjoining and knitting together of Natures. The destruction of Nature, and of things may perish.
6. Moving from place to place, [as, into this Country, or that Country at pleasure.]
7. The knowledge of all crafts Mechanical.
8. Transmutatio formalis, sed non effentialis.<sup>101</sup>

If we look at the four quarters of the Great Table as being the Elemental Tablets of Air, Water, Earth, and Fire, the Black Cross that separates and joins the tablets would then obviously represent Spirit—that quintessential force that binds the four elements together in infinite quantities and ratios to create and sustain the universe, while at the same time keeping the elements separated just enough to retain their identities. This push/pull, active/passive nature is a defining characteristic of Spirit. As I mentioned earlier, this characteristic is illustrated (as every good ceremonial magician knows) by the dynamics of the pentagram, which allow for two types of Spirit pentagram, one active and one passive.

The Black Cross contains forty letters that radiate from the central blank square. When we read from the top of the column toward the center, we find the curiously spaced and inconsistently capitalized letters e xarp and h Coma. When we start at the center square of the Black Cross and read to the right, we find the letters nanTa and bitom.

We can find identical sets of letters if we read from the bottom of the column toward the center and from the center of the row to the left. In other words, the Black Cross contains mirror images of the letter groups e xarp, h Coma, nanTa, and bitom—a phenomenon curiously reflective of the dual nature of Spirit.

During the same June 25 session, Ave would (in remarkably few words) explain the letters on the Black Cross, answer questions concerning the three missing symmetrical characters of the tenth Aire (Lexarph, Comanan, and Tabitom—the twenty-eighth, twenty-ninth, and thirtieth parts of the earth; see chapter eighteen, figure 63), and demonstrate how those three names construct a master table, the Tablet of Union, which appears to rule the whole Great Table.

But before discussing all that, we have a small bit of unfinished business to clean up from the last chapter. I am, of course, talking about the Super Kerubs and the wicked angels.

Super Kerubs, or Gods of the Kerubs?

It is my opinion, and I'm sure many will disagree, that there are two hierarchies of angels existing simultaneously in each subangle. The first hierarchy simply begins with the two god names of the Calvary cross, who are invoked before calling upon the four servient angels whose names appear beneath the arm of the cross. In this schema, all the names of the angels in the hierarchy are drawn neatly and exclusively from within the subangle itself. The Kerub plays no role at all.

The second hierarchy, I believe, does not use the two god names of the Calvary cross at all, nor does it necessarily concern itself with the servient angels. Instead, it places a new character, a Super Kerub, or kerubic god, above a group of angels whose names are drawn exclusively from the four letters above the arms of the cross.

Figure 82 is a version of the original, unreformed Great Table that I've highlighted to, hopefully, make this all clear. I realize it may sound crazy for us to bounce back to using the unreformed table when locating these angels, but it is the unreformed table the angels used in 1584 when this information was received. For the moment, please ignore the circled backwards letters on the diagram.

The letters of the Black Cross are the key to creating the kerubic gods. Note how four of the letters in the column are isolated from others that appear neatly in groups of four. Reading from the top toward the center, the e of e xarp and the h of h Coma are isolated. Reading from the bottom toward the center, the p of exar p and the a of hCom a are also isolated. Note that these four isolated letters appear in the same rows as the Kerubs who live above the arms of the Calvary crosses of all sixteen subangles.

To determine the name of a subangle's kerubic god, simply insert the isolated letter (that appears on the same row as the Kerub's name) at the beginning of the Kerub's four-letter name. For example, the Kerub of the Fire subangle of the Fire tablet, ZiZa, would be transformed into the Super Kerub, pZiZa (see figure 80). Instead of ruling the servient angels, this Super Kerub pZiZa directly rules four angels whose names are created by the permutation of the Kerub's own name: ZiZa, iZaZ, ZaZi, and aZiZ. A table containing all the kerubic gods and their Kerubs can be found in appendix IV.

The important thing to remember is that in this system there are two hierarchies of angels in each of the sixteen subangles: one hierarchy that simply uses the god name of the Calvary cross to summon or contact the serviant angels living under the arms of the cross, and one hierarchy that selects a letter from the Black Cross (outside the Elemental Tablet) and adds it to the Kerub's name to create a kerubic god who rules four Kerubs whose names are created by the permutation of the regular Kerub's own name.

When to use one hierarchy and not the other in a magical operation remains a subject of debate among modern magicians. One thing is certain, the more the magician understands about the nature and dynamics of the Great Table, the more he or she will be able to devise a logical and workable mode. So let's discover more wonders of the Black Cross. Let's start with something we haven't encountered before in Enochian magick—wicked angels.

Wicked Angels

The letters of the Black Cross are also the key to creating the names of the four wicked, or evil or malevolent, angels of each subangle. Up to now we've been dealing with angels whose names are representative of complete and balanced segments of the Great Table and its Elemental Tablets. But during the June 25 session, as the angel Ave was expounding on the virtues of the Black Cross, he also introduced Dee and Kelley to a set of angels that are not complete and balanced—angels he referred to as being "wicked." These malevolent angels manifest aversely the powers of their good-angel subangle neighbors. For example, if the good angels are useful for healing, the wicked angels bring sickness and affliction (see appendix IV).

But some of the wicked angel duties seem rather tempting and are said to be useful in obtaining money and for gambling. Kelley initially got pretty excited about such prospects and was very disappointed when Ave in no uncertain terms told him hands off the evil angels. Why Ave would give details of these critters and turn around and tell the magicians not to use them remains a mystery. Or does it?

The name of an evil angel is a portrait of incompleteness and imbalance supercharged with an injection of the immense power of the Black Cross—a dangerous recipe if there ever was one. Creating it is very simple. Here's how to do it.

Remember how we created the name of a kerubic god by prefacing the name of a regular Kerub with the letter from the Black Cross occupying the same row? Well, that's almost exactly what we do to create the name of a wicked angel. However, instead of prefacing the four letters of a Kerub's name, we preface only the first two letters of the servient angel's name with its neighboring letter from the Black Cross. This three-letter supercharged perversion of the first half of a servient angel's name is a wicked angel.

| r  | r | s | o | n | i |
| p  | i | z | i | n | r |

And how does one, if one were inclined, call forth these evil angels? Who are their hierarchical rulers? As one might expect, the adverse god names that call forth the evil angels are the names on the Calvary cross spelled backwards. In the case of our example they are iOpgna and xanNu.

You can easily work out the names of the other evil angels and their rulers by referring to figure 82 or consulting the table in appendix IV.

Paraoan

Ave was particularly concerned that Dee and Kelley locate the name Paraoan on the Great Table. The significance of this great angel has not (at least to my satisfaction) been adequately explored or explained. The name Paraoan first appeared among the ninety-one parts of the earth as one of the three divine names (number 65) in the twenty-second Aire. Paraoan is the divine name of the part of the earth designated as Marmarica. According to Enochian scholar Robin Cousins, in Dee and Kelley's day, Marmarica was a North African coastal region straddling the Egyptian and Libyan coasts, bounded on the east by the River Nile (see appendix III).

Oddly enough, a perfectly good sixty-fifth symmetrical character already existed. It is found in the lower right section of the Elemental Tablet of Water, and spells the name Laxdizi.

Nevertheless, Paraoan seems to also hold the title of the sixty-fifth part of the earth known as Marmarica. The obvious and inescapable similarity between the names Marmarica and America inserts (into my mind at least) an added dimension of mystery to this curious anomaly. Add to this the enigmatic and direful comments Ave made concerning the final n in Paraoan:

As far as that N. stretcheth in the Character, so far shall that Countrey be consumed with fire, and swallowed into Hell, as Sodom was for wickednesse. The end of all things is even at hand: and the earth must be purified, and delivered to another.<sup>102</sup>

A bit later, Dee presses Ave on this:

Dee: I beseech you say somewhat of the N in Paraoan, of which you said, so far as that stretched, should sink to hell.

Ave: Every letter in Paraoan, is a living fire: but all of one quality and of one Creation. But unto N is delivered a viol of Destruction, according to that part that he is of Paraoan the Governour.<sup>103</sup>

The letters of the name Paraoan are created from seven of the eight backward letters that appear scattered among the four Elemental Tablets of the Great Table. See the circled letters in figure 82. The eighth backwards letter, the backward L found in the lowermost square on the right of figure 82, has another very important job to do.

The Three Missing Symmetrical Characters of the Tenth Aire

Recall from the table in chapter eighteen (figure 63) that there were no symmetrical characters for the three parts of the earth assigned to the tenth Aire (those whose divine names were Lexarph, Comanan, and Tabitom). Neither can these three names be found within the available letters in any of the four Elemental Tablets. They are, however, to be found on the Black Cross, and the angel Ave, in his highly productive lecture of June 25, 1584, shows how it is done.

Ave instructed Dee and Kelley to pluck the backward capital L from the lower right corner of the lower right Watchtower (I've circled it in figure 82) and preface the lowercase letters e, x, a, r, p, and h from the column of the Black Cross to form dual versions of the divine name Lexarph.

Then starting with the capital letter C in the column, moving down from the top C (or up from the bottom C), then continuing to read either right or left into the horizontal row, dual versions of the divine name Comanan are formed.

Then, starting with the capital letter T in the left and right arms of the Black Cross and reading toward the extremities, we discover dual versions of the divine name Tabitom.

Lexarph, Comanan, and Tabitom are respectively the divine names of the twenty-eighth, twenty-ninth, and thirtieth parts of the earth in the tenth Aire, whose symmetrical characters were missing from the original material concerning the ninety-one parts of the earth. Their characters are simply the straight lines and rotating Ls that spell out their names on the Black Cross.

Obviously, angelic beings whose names are drawn from the Black Cross are of a nature that sets them apart from their neighbors in the Elemental Tablets. Their presence in the tenth Aire also distinguishes that portion of the ninety-one parts of the earth for special attention—something that will be important to us later.

The Four Names of the Tablet of Union

Lexarph, Comanan, and Tabitom also contain within themselves the four names that appear in pairs on the Black Cross, names that are very familiar to practicing Enochian magicians: EXARP, HCOMA, NANTA, and BITOM. These are the four divine names of the elements that (in the practice of modern Enochian magick at least) rule the four Elemental Tablets.

These four names are arranged into a table five squares wide by four squares high. This Tablet of Union, in its profound simplicity, extracts the essence and hierarchical dynamics of the entire Great Table. The Tablet of Union is quite literally the Great Table distilled.

We'll soon learn much more about the Tablet of Union. But first, we are almost ready to bring the story of Dee and Kelley's Enochian period to an end. It was not long after Ave's revelations concerning the Black Cross, Kerubs, wicked angels, missing symmetrical characters, and the Tablet of Union that the two magicians' great angelic adventure, for all intents and purposes, came to a close. There remained only a couple of loose ends to tie up. But my heavens, what loose ends those were!

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

"There Is All."

Nalvage is called away and cannot be in Action with you until Wednesday. Then shall you have the Calls that you look for. And so enter into the knowledge and perfect understanding of the 49 Gates and Tables if you will.

—THE ARCHANGEL GABRIEL, MONDAY, JULY 9, 1584<sup>104</sup>

In early July of 1584, the two magicians were busy trying to tie up loose ends before a mysterious August deadline. On July 7, the angel Ave waxed eloquent about how Enoch made tablets such as those Dee and Kelley now possessed, and had labored fifty days in prayer and confession before receiving a supreme revelation. It appears from the communication<sup>105</sup> that the two magicians were to do likewise.

In a breathtakingly short amount of time, Dee and Kelley received the translations of the remaining angelic calls (five through eighteen), which they had six weeks earlier received in the angelic tongue, together with tantalizing hints that the eighteen calls might be connected to the Tablet of Union and the four Elemental Tablets.

On Thursday, July 12, the angel Ilemese<sup>106</sup> began to deliver a nineteenth call, together with its translation. This call was said to be actually thirty calls, bringing the total number of calls to forty-eight. Add the unexpressed "first" call (see chapter sixteen), and we have a grand total of forty-nine (7 x 7) calls. The next day, Friday the thirteenth, 1584, John Dee's fifty-seventh birthday, Ilemese delivered the remaining portion of the nineteenth call and revealed that it was the key to accessing the thirty Aires (the heavens connected to the ninety-one parts of the earth). Lastly, he revealed the names of the thirty Aires, which until then had only been identified by numbers (see chapter nineteen, figure 63, columns I and VI).

The nineteenth call was a master call to be used to access each of the thirty Aires or Aethyrs. The only thing that differentiated the thirty calls from one another was insertion of the name of the particular Aire in the first line. Ilemese delivered the names of the Aires as a simple list and then engaged in a brief exchange with Dee.

Ile: There is all—Now change the name, and the Call is all one.

Δ: Blessed be he who onely is always one.

I take these names to be as primus, secudus, tertius, and to 30.

A voice . . . Not so, they be the substantial names of the Aires.

Δ: It was said they had no proper names; but were to be called, O thou of the first Aire, O thou of the second, etc. I pray you reconcile the repugnancy of theses two places, as they should seem.<sup>107</sup>

Dee's testiness evoked a response from none other than the archangel Gabriel, who was sitting nearby in Kelley's vision during Illemese's discourse. The great angel stood and informed the magicians they now possessed the knowledge they needed. He encouraged them to study and prepare for the August operation and then, after one more little jab at Dee's cheekiness, delivered a most poignant valediction.

E. K. The Curtain is opened.

E. E. [sic] Now Gabriel standeth up.

Gabr . . . Thus has God kept promise with you, and hath delivered you the keyes of his storehouses: wherein you shall find, (if you enter wisely, humbly, and patiently) Treasures more worth than the frames of the heavens.

But it is not August come: Notwithstanding the Lord hath kept his promise with you be the time. Therefore, Now examine you Books, Confer one place with another, and learn to be perfect for the practice and entrance.

See that your garments be clean. Herein be not rash: Nor over hasty; For those that are hasty and rash, and are loathsomely appareled, may knock long before they enter.

There is no other reading of the Book, but the appearing of the Ministers and Creatures of God: which shewing what they are themselves, shew how they are conjoyed in power, and represented formally by those letters.

E. K. Now he taketh the Table, and seemeth to wrap it up together.

Δ: Seeing I have moved the doubt of their names I pray you to dissolve it.

Gab . . . You play with me childishly.

Δ: I have done.

Gab . . . Thinkest thou that we speak any thing that is not true?

Thou shalt never know the mysteries of all things that have been spoken.

If you love together, and dwell together, and in one God; Then the self-same God will be merciful unto you: Which bless you, comfort you, and strengthen you unto the end. More I would say, but words profit not. God be amongst you.

E.K. Now they both be gone in a great flame of fire upwards . . .<sup>108</sup>

Thus, in a dramatic burst of flame, the angels of Enochian magick fell silent, and the most amazing magical operation ever recorded came to an end. Unfortunately, we don't know if the two magicians actually performed the fifty-day operation scheduled for August. Surviving diary entries for the month treat on other matters. What we are left with, however, is an elegant and remarkably coherent system of vision magick.

For those of us who have made Enochian magick a part of our spiritual quest, Gabriel's parting words ring profoundly true. God did keep promise with Dee and Kelley and delivered unto them (and us) the keys to the storehouses wherein we shall find, if we enter wisely, humbly, and patiently, treasures worth more than the frames of the heavens.

BOOK V

Putting It Together

Rulership of the Tablet of Union

The Tablet of Union is a Great Table you can put in your briefcase; but EHNB is a Tablet of Union you can put in your pocket.

—LON MILO DUQUETTE

I have purposefully placed this brief overview of practical Enochian vision magick after the chronology of Dee and Kelley's great Enochian adventure. I do so because Enochian vision magick as it is generally practiced today is a system that depends heavily on innovations that were developed long after the great magicians passed into history. Not that I think that modern Enochian magick is an affront to the memories of these two giants of magick. But I do think it is important for us to know the difference between the foundational material and the structures that have later been built upon it.

I think it is also important to remember that there is nothing particularly sacrosanct about the methods and techniques developed by the Golden Dawn, Crowley, or any other latter-day magicians. As an informed and competent magician, you are just as free as these individuals were and are to develop your own Enochian magick art form based and structured on your personal interpretation and understanding of Dee and Kelley's experiences and material. After all, in order for you to justly claim the title of magician you must be a magician, not merely a one-man or one-woman Society for Creative Anachronism dedicated to simply recreating the lives and works of real magicians of the past.

Enochian vision magick as practiced today can be divided into two broad categories: elemental and aethyric. Both require the ability to scry and to keep a faithful written record of one's workings. Scrying the Aethyrs has, in my later years, become the focus of most of my Enochian operations, because that process deals most directly with the current state of my personal initiatory career—by that I mean my personal transformational process, my spiritual journey, the lifting of my consciousness.

However, it has not always been so. Indeed, I would never encourage any magician, especially in the early stages of his or her Enochian career, to neglect either branch of Enochian exploration. I spent many years honing my visionary skills by exploring the elemental worlds that not only make up my physical, mental, and emotional environment but also actually represent everything that my limited senses tell me is me.

It is the elemental branch of Enochian vision magick that I will first discuss. To help me do this, I'm going to talk briefly about the structure of another great magical tool, the tarot.

Rulership of the Tablet of Union

The classic tarot image of the Magician shows the magician standing behind a table, upon which are four magical tools; a wand, a cup, a sword, and a disk. These are the four elemental weapons of the magician. They represent respectively the four suits of the tarot and the elements Fire, Water, Air, and Earth.

The master card of each suit is the ace. The ace is the “Spirit” of the suit—the “Spirit” of the element. The other cards in the suit are given life by the spirit of the ace. They are essentially subdivisions, components, and aspects of the ace—they all “live” inside the ace.

If we put an ace under a magick microscope, we would first see that it is composed of four major components.<sup>109</sup> These are the four court cards (commonly titled king, queen, prince, and princess) that represent respectively the elements Fire, Water, Air, and Earth. For example, if we put the Ace of Wands (Fire) under our magick microscope, we would see that it was composed of the King of Wands (the fiery aspect of Fire), the Queen of Wands (the watery aspect of Fire), the Prince of Wands (the airy aspect of Fire), and the Princess of Wands (the earthy aspect of Fire).

In the Enochian model, we can actually see Spirit's influence interpenetrating the heart and every quadrant of the Elemental Tablet in the form of the Great Central Cross and the Calvary crosses of the subangles. The Black Cross of the Great Table reveals Spirit's influence on an even larger scale. It literally holds together and separates the four Elemental Tablets. The Black Cross is like the ace of aces. All this is expressed most simply and elegantly in the Tablet of Union.

I draw your attention to figure 85 and the four rows of names in the Tablet of Union.

|                      |   | Subangles |   |   |   |   |
|----------------------|---|-----------|---|---|---|---|
|                      |   | ☉         | △ | ▽ | ▽ | △ |
| ElementalTablets | △ | E         | X | A | R | P |
|                      | ▽ | H         | C | O | M | A |
|                      | ▽ | N         | A | N | T | A |
|                      | △ | B         | I | T | O | M |

Recall that Exarp, Hcoma, Nanta, and Bitom are the four names found in pairs on the Black Cross of the Great Table. In modern Enochian magick, these Black Cross letters represent the element Spirit. The four names on the Tablet of Union are not merely the master keys to the elemental universe—they are the elemental universe.

Starting with the top row, we see that EXARP is the elemental world of Air; HCOMA the world of Water; NANTA, Earth; and BITOM, Fire.<sup>110</sup> (Note the little symbols of the elements to the left of each row of names.)

Now let's look at the five columns of the Tablet of Union. The leftmost column is made from the four first letters of the names, giving us the name EHNB. At the top of this column is a little circle with spokes inside. This is the symbol of Spirit. It tells us that EHNB is the column of Spirit and the essence of the entire tablet.

Obviously, the angelic entity described by the letters EHNB is profoundly powerful. It is a name that represents and contains within itself the entire Great Table and all the angelic forces within it. E represents the entire the Elemental Tablet of Air, H the Elemental Tablet of Water, N the Elemental Tablet of Earth, and B the Elemental Tablet of Fire.

In a real sense, the remaining sixteen letters all live inside EHNB in just the same way the sixteen court cards of the tarot live inside their aces. Put E under a microscope and see the letters XARP. Put H under a microscope and see COMA. Put N under a microscope and see ANTA. Put B under a microscope and see ITOM.

As we move right, the next column is XCAI, whose letters represent the four Air subangles of the four Elemental Tablets and all the resident angels inside the Air subangles. (XCAI would be the four princes of the tarot.)

AONT does the same for the Water subangles (queens of the tarot), RMTO for the Earth subangles (princesses of the tarot), and PAAM for the Fire subangles (kings of the tarot).

Now are you starting to see the power resident in the Tablet of Union? If we were to call EXARP, HCOMA, NANTA, and BITOM archangels of the elements, then we would have to say that EHNB is the archangel of archangels of the elements. The Tablet of Union is a Great Table you can put in your briefcase, but EHNB is a Tablet of Union you can put in your pocket.

The Tablet of Union and the four Elemental Tablets are activated and penetrated in vision by intoning one or two of the first eighteen calls in the angelic tongue. I give details showing how this is done in appendix II, but here is a brief overview:

The first two calls are dedicated to the Tablet of Union exclusively and are never used to call or visit the angels of the Elemental Tablets.

The next four calls (three through six) deal with the angels of the individual letters of EXARP, HCOMA, NANTA, and BITOM, and/or are used to activate and penetrate the native subangles of the Elemental

Tablets. (A native subangle is the subangle of an Elemental Tablet that represents the same element as the Elemental Tablet—e.g., the Air Subangle of the Air Tablet, the Water Subangle of the Water Tablet.)

The next twelve calls (seven through eighteen) are used to activate and penetrate the remaining three subangles of the Elemental Tablets. How these calls are allotted to the various subangles is an exercise in routine hermetic logic.

As I mentioned earlier, it is not necessary for you to have elaborate or expensive models of the Elemental Tablets and the Tablet of Union in order to perform Enochian magick. But it is important that you have a good understanding of them and have the equipment “installed” in your mind. When I work with the angels of the Elemental Tablets or the Tablet of Union, I simply have my four colored Elemental Tablets (positioned as they appear in the reformed Great Table) on a table before me and place my small Tablet of Union on the top of them in the center.

Now on to the business of actually doing Enochian vision magick.

Elemental Workings, Temple Openings, and Addressing the Hierarchies

Sylphs and Gnomes and Undines too,

Salamanders beckon you . . .

—“THEME FROM MOUNT OREAD”<sup>111</sup>

Why on earth would anyone wish to call upon an angel of the elements? What can a salamander (Fire elemental) do for me? When does an undine (Water elemental) come in handy? Does a sylph (Air elemental) really look like Tinkerbell? Are gnomes (Earth elementals) really grumpy? Is exploration of the elements a necessary prerequisite to higher magical workings?

As I wrote in the prologue, the question of, “why magick?” is one that is not easily answered. The supreme goal of the magician is spiritual enlightenment and liberation of the soul. Do I expect to accomplish that end through the aid of elemental spirits?

Not directly. But the elementals are a part of my world, a part of my being. They move within me and around me. They dwell among themselves in their infinite number, ratios, and proportions. “Know Thyself” was chiseled above the doors of the ancient temples of initiation. How can I know myself when the mysteries of the elements of my own heart and soul remain undiscovered?

Enochian elemental magick is not a matter of calling up a spirit to command it to do a job for you, to cause the girl next door to fall in love with you, to bewitch your neighbor’s cow, or to kill an enemy at a distance. Instead, when you visit an Enochian elemental angel in vision, you are exploring a specific aspect of creation, a highly specialized area of which the angel is the visual and metaphoric embodiment. You see things the way they are in that narrow quadrant of the universe. Once armed with the insights these spiritual specialists can provide, you are better prepared to know how to go about causing the girl next door to fall in love with you or bewitching your neighbor’s cow. (I understand that killing at a distance is less satisfying than one might imagine.)

Does this really help the magician? First and most obviously, it broadens his or her understanding of how the spirit world is the subjective and underlying reality of the objective world. Just as the educated and seasoned traveler is better equipped than the novice to understand rewards and pitfalls of world travel, a magician experienced with elemental work is endowed with a greater understanding of existence. That in and of itself is a spiritual reward.

But more than that, each willed encounter with the angels of the elements activates, readjusts, and rebalances the magician’s own internal elemental components. Like the computer user who periodically defragments the hard drive of his or her computer in order to make things to run more efficiently, the magician is changed and (hopefully) improved with every thoughtful and seriously examined elemental encounter.

At our Monday night magick class, we’ve developed a series of simple questions we first ask every angel we call from an Elemental Tablet. Just as we would not expect any two computer hard drives to be fragmented in exactly the same way, no two magicians should expect the exact same answers to these questions. Here are a few of them. The first questions are the simplest yet most important:

- What is your name? (Confirm you have who you’ve called.)
- What is your nature?

The next questions deal with how the angel is perceived by the human senses:

- What is your color?
- What is your sound (musical note, if possible)?
- How do you feel to the human touch?
- What do you taste like?
- How do you smell?

The next questions deal with how the angel makes itself known to us through our thoughts and emotions:

- How do I express you through emotions?
- In what form of images and ideas are you most revealed to me?
- When are you most manifest in my daily life?

Other questions could concern things more specific to one's own personal magical issues, but I think you get the picture.

Now that we know a little more about why to practice Enochian elemental magick, let's look at how to do it. It is likely that my opinion on this subject will be slightly at odds with a number of practicing Enochian magicians. It is even more certain to receive condemnation by legions of others who don't actually perform Enochian magick but instead enjoy speculating how Enochian magicians should operate.

Dee and Kelley contacted the angels by praying. Boy, did they pray! There is nothing in the surviving records that suggests that they performed banishing rituals, drew pentagrams or hexagrams in the air, made knocks or magical gestures, or called upon the strings of classic qabalistic Hebrew divine names from the sephiroth of the Tree of Life. The operating procedures of the Golden Dawn and Crowley, however, do all those things and more.

Here is an example of a Golden Dawn-style temple opening appropriate for working with the Elemental Table of Earth. It is a ceremony that incorporates ritual components from the GD's neophyte degree, the grade that represents Malkuth, the tenth and lowest sephirah on the Tree of Life. As you can see, the ritual invokes the qabalistic hierarchy of divine names, archangels, and angels traditionally attributed to Malkuth and the element Earth.

The Opening of the Temple in the Grade of 1° = 10□

Give the Sign of the God SET fighting.

Purify with Fire and Water, and announce

"The Temple is cleansed."

Knock.

"Let us adore the Lord and King of Earth! Adonai ha Aretz, Adonai Melekh, unto Thee be the Kingdom, the Sceptre, and the Splendour: Malkuth, Geburah, Gedulah, The Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the Valley, Amen!"

Sprinkle Salt before Earth tablet.

"Let the Earth adore Adonai!"

Make the Invoking Hexagram of Saturn.

Make the Invoking Pentagram of Spirit Passive and pronounce . . .

"AHIH AGLA NANTA"

Make the Invoking Pentagram of Earth, and pronounce . . .

"ADNI MLK." And Elohim said: "Let us make Man in Our own image; and let them have dominion over the Fish of the Sea and over the Fowl of the Air; and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the Earth. And the Elohim created AT-h-ADAM: in the image of the Elohim created They them; male and female created They them. In the Name of ADNI MLK, and of the Bride and Queen of the Kingdom; Spirits of Earth, adore your Creator!"

Make the Sign of Taurus.

"In the Name of Auriel, great archangel of Earth, Spirits of Earth, adore your Creator!"

Make the Cross.

"In the Names and Letters of the Great Northern Quadrangle, Spirits of Earth, adore your Creator!"

Sprinkle water before Earth Tablet.

"In the three great secret Names of God, MOR, DIAL, HCTGA, that are borne upon the Banners of the North, Spirits of Earth, adore your Creator!"

Cense the Tablet.

"In the name of ICZHIHA, great king of the North, Spirits of Earth, adore your Creator! In the Name of Adonai Ha-Aretz, I declare that the Spirits of Earth have been duly invoked."

Knock. 4444—333—22—1

For many modern Enochian magicians, rituals such as this qabalistically formatted degree opening ceremony are perfect vehicles for establishing the proper elemental environment in which to operate. For years they were an indispensable part of my operating procedure as well. I discontinued, however, about ten years ago.

As we myopically focus on the fascinating intricacies of different magical systems, we often forget the big picture and the fact that we have only one universe to play with. There is no such thing as a separate qabalistic magick universe, or a separate Solomonic magick universe, or a separate Enochian magick universe. These various systems simply oblige us to view the same universe from different angles. Granted, when we look from differing points of view, we see certain similarities. After all, it's the same universe. There are certain to be recognizable landmarks. But we can't expect the structure of one system's point of view to neatly match or define the other.

It is my opinion that the spiritual forces inherent in Enochian magick are expressed units of living consciousness that reflect a uniquely structured and organized point of view of the universe—one that the communicating angels obliged Dee and Kelley to build from scratch. It is a perfect, self-referential system of looking at things that cannot be expected to be consistently compatible with other self-referential systems.

With all due respect to the knowledgeable and eloquent magicians who created the above temple opening, I believe that (unless your sensitivities as a magical artist demands it) most of it is completely unnecessary in order for you to properly activate an Elemental Tablet and effectively address the hierarchy of angels who rule the angel you may wish to contact. The use of the various pentagrams and the hexagram, the assumption of a Samo-Thracian elemental god-form, the invocation of the various names of the Hebrew deity and traditional angels, and the recitation of Bible verses are all tried-and-true magical methods to access the elemental world of Earth, but they are tools used in another kind of magical system—a system that views the magical universe from a slightly different angle, music played using a different scale of notes.

Please don't misunderstand me. Qabalistic temple openings such as the one above work effectively enough for Enochian elemental operations. But what makes them work, in my opinion, is not the pentagrams, Hebrew god names, or Bible verses. They work because, nestled within the ramblings and tossing about of salt and water, the magician is required to recognize and address by name the spiritual forces of the elements as they are uniquely organized and expressed in the Enochian magick system. In our example above, those names are Nanta (the great angel of Earth from the Tablet of Union), Mor, Dial, Hctga (the Three Great Secret Names of God from the Elemental Tablet of Earth), and Iczhiha (the king of the Elemental Tablet of Earth). The hierarchy of high elemental forces that the other magical system calls Adonai ha Aretz, Adonai Melekh, Malkuth, the Rose of Sharon, and the Lily of the Valley—everything the other system calls forth by means of pentagrams, gestures, and Bible verses—are all wrapped up and neatly addressed in the Enochian system in the names Nanta, Mor, Dial, Hetga, and Iczhiha.

If you conclude that my thoughts on this subject have some merit, I encourage you to customize for yourself a simply formatted little speech that addresses by name and in proper order the various angelic personages of the hierarchies of each Elemental Tablet. I will outline my address to the hierarchies at the end of this chapter. But first, let's discuss what the proper procedure for an elemental working might be.

DuQuette's Protocol for Enochian Elemental Vision Magick

The lower the angel you wish to contact is in the hierarchy of the Elemental Tablet, the more superior angels there are above it who must be named and addressed. Therefore, for our example I will use Adre, a lowly servient angel found under the arms of the Calvary cross of the Fire Subangle of the Elemental Tablet of Fire. (See chapter twenty-three, figures 71 through 79.)

I. Preliminaries

Before embarking on any formal magical operation it is helpful, indeed necessary, to feel good about oneself. Therefore, I always recommend that the magician first bathe, dress in clean clothing, and operate in a clean and uncluttered space. It is also wise to formally purify and banish the area before operating. These preliminary ceremonies can be as simple or as elaborate as you feel necessary. I always begin with a simple Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram that I've customized to reflect my own taste and spiritual proclivity. A classic version of the pentagram ritual can be found at the beginning of appendix I.

I next perform the Ceremony of Preparation that is outlined in chapter one and appendix I of this book. I consider this ritual an Enochian magick temple opening par excellence. I believe it serves to purify, banish, and consecrate both the temple and the magician in a manner that is in harmony with the universe as perceived by the Enochian angels. It also establishes and sanctifies the magical environment for the black mirror or scrying stone.

II. The Call(s)

A complete list of the angels of all four Elemental Tablets, together with their traditional duties, can be found in appendix IV.

In order to contact any angel from an Elemental Tablet, one need first activate the tablet by intoning the proper call or calls in the Enochian tongue. The calls and the key to their use can be found in appendix II.

Only one call is necessary if your target angel resides in the Great Central Cross (one of the Three Great Secret Names of God, a senior, or a king). Also, only one call is necessary if your target angel resides in the native subangle of the Elemental Tablet (e.g., the Fire Subangle of the Fire Tablet, the Water Subangle of the Water Tablet, etc.). But if your target angel resides in a non-native subangle (e.g., the Earth Subangle of the Water Tablet, the Air Subangle of the Fire Tablet, etc.), you must also recite an additional call assigned specifically to the subangle.

Our target angel, Adre, resides in the native subangle (Fire Subangle of the Fire Tablet), so we need only recite the sixth call (see appendix II).

Reciting the sixth call switches on the power of the Elemental Tablet of Fire, as it were, and puts it in standby mode to await more specific actions from the magician.

III. Addressing the Hierarchy

Whether you feel it or not,<sup>112</sup> your recitation of the sixth call has put you in an altered state of consciousness. Magically speaking, you are now present within the environment of the Elemental Tablet of Fire. You have awakened the spiritual forces of the tablet, and they are waiting to see if you are worthy of their attention. If you can convince the spirits of the tablet that you know where you are and how you got there, they will acknowledge you as a natural citizen of their well-ordered magical universe. Once you've established rapport with its superiors, the target angel will have no choice but to be compliant and ready to open its mysteries to you.

You prove your worthiness by remembering your manners and addressing by name the angels who reign over your target angel. In the case of a servient angel like Adre, the hierarchy is essentially the whole cast of characters. Starting from the top we have:

1. The Supreme Name of Fire from the Tablet of Union: Bitom.
2. The Three Great Secret Names of God of the Elemental Tablet of Fire: Oip, Teaa, Pdoce.
3. The name of the king of the Elemental Tablet of Fire: Edlprna.
4. The names of the six planetary seniors of the Elemental Tablet of Fire: Aaetpio, Adoeoet, Alndvod, Aapdoce, Arinna, and Anodoin.
5. The first god name of the Fire subangle: Rzionr.
6. The second god name of the Fire subangle: Nrzfm.
7. And finally, the name of our target servient angel: Adre.

If the target angel is higher on the hierarchical ladder, there are fewer names to include in your little speech. For example, to call a senior, you only need to use the names in steps 1, 2, and 3 before calling on the name of the target senior. If your target angel is the king of the Elemental Tablet, you only have to use the names in steps 1 and 2.<sup>113</sup>

And what about the kerubic angels who, as we learned earlier, have a separate hierarchy that skips the god names of the subangle?

In the case of the Fire subangle of the Elemental Tablet of Fire, simply replace the name in step 5 with the name of the god Kerub (Pziza) and replace the name in step 6 with the name of the Kerub (ZiZa, iZaZ, ZaZi, or aZiZ).

IV. Calling Your Target Angel

Repeat out loud the name of the target angel, Adre, several times. State why you have called it; ask your questions and/or make your requests, then sit quietly and scry. If necessary, repeat the call to induce a deeper state of mind. If you wish, have a tape recorder running and describe your vision as it unfolds. Don't tire yourself. Conclude your visionary business at the first signs of fatigue. Thank the angel and formally close the session with a banishing ritual of your choice.

V. Write It All Down

Immediately transcribe everything into your magical journal. I mean everything: the date and time, weather conditions, astrological aspects (if you know them and care about such things). Even if you think there is nothing to report, write that down, along with your thoughts of why things might not have worked.

Sample of a Hierarchical Invocation

The invocation below is what I currently use to acknowledge and invoke the hierarchy of the Elemental Tablet. I will provide the English translation of it first so you will know what it is saying. You may easily customize your own by referring to an Enochian dictionary.<sup>114</sup>

With the Elemental Tablet before me, I utter each angel's name and I wave my wand over the squares that spell it.

I invoke and move thee, O thou, Spirit (name of target angel).

And being exalted above you in the power of the Most High, I say unto you come forth and obey!

In the name of (Supreme Name from the Tablet of Union; e.g., Exarp, Hcoma, Nanta, or Bitom); and in the name of (the Three Great Secret Names of God of the Elemental Tablet), and in the name of (the name of the king of the Elemental Tablet), and in the name of (the names of the six seniors of the Elemental Tablet), and in the name of . . . ,

and in the name of . . . ,

and in the name of . . . (as many names in hierarchy as necessary),

I invoke and move thee, O thou Spirit (name of target angel).

Here is the same invocation in the Enochian angelic language:

Ol vinu od zacam, Ils gah (name of target angel).

Od lansh vors gi Iad, gohus pugo ils niiso od darbs!

Dooiap (Supreme Name from the Tablet of Union), od dooiap (the Three Great Secret Names of God), od dooiap (the name of the king), od dooiap (the names of the six seniors),

od dooiap . . . ,

od dooiap . . . ,

od dooiap . . . (as many names in hierarchy as necessary),

Ol vinu od zacam, Ils gah (name of target angel).

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

Aethyric Workings

Everything in heaven and earth is connected to everything in heaven and earth.

Everything in heaven and earth is the reflection of everything in heaven and earth.

Everything in heaven and earth contains the pattern of everything in heaven and earth.

—RABBI LAMED BEN CLIFFORD<sup>115</sup>

In order to more easily understand what follows, I ask that you turn back to chapter eighteen and refer to the columns in figure 63.

Right up until the last day of the Enochian period, Dee and Kelley believed that the thirty Aires (column I) were simply the numbered segments of creation that organized in groups of three<sup>116</sup> the ninety-one parts of the earth. Furthermore, they believed that the ninety-one divinely appointed names of the parts of the earth (column IV) were merely the angelic language names for the geographic areas of the earth named in column III. But in his final communication of July 13, 1584, the angel Ilemese revealed that the thirty Aires had names and a certain connection with the nineteenth call. As we saw in chapter twenty-five, this concept appeared to confuse and irritate Dee, who seemed comfortable with merely identifying the Aires by their sequence number.

Even though there is very little in the surviving material to suggest the thirty Aires are anything other than containers for the parts of the Earth, many modern magicians believe they carry a more profound significance. Indeed, it appears to me that this is an excellent example of modern magicians picking up the football where Dee and Kelley dropped it and running with it for a very big touchdown. The basic idea is this.

In keeping with the most fundamental hermetic and qabalistic axiom, "As above, so below," the microcosmic world (the physical universe and humanity) is the reflection of a heavenly macrocosmic world of divine consciousness. So too, the thirty Aires containing the ninety-one parts of the earth are the microcosmic reflection of thirty Aethyrs, or heavens, that surround and enclose the four Watchtowers of the Great Table in thirty heavenly spheres, like layers of a glass onion.

Like the ten sephiroth and the twenty-two paths on the Tree of Life, the thirty Aethyrs can be viewed as emanations of divine consciousness. The thirtieth or lowest Aethyr would represent a level of divine consciousness that is so low that it has almost descended into matter. The first or highest Aethyr would represent the pure and undifferentiated mind of Deity.

Using this model, the ninety-one parts of the earth (column IV of figure 63) have their counterparts in the Aethyrs, and the divine names of the parts of the earth (e.g., Pascomb for Syria) also serve as the names of angelic governors, who, in groups of three, inhabit the thirty Aethyrs. The only exception to this is the thirtieth Aethyr, Tex, which has four governors.

There is a great temptation among modern practitioners to project this thirty-Aethyr model upon classic schema of the qabalistic Tree of Life with its ten sephiroth and twenty-two paths that also represent levels of consciousness. Some magicians go so far as to suggest the thirty Aethyrs can simply be divided by three into ten units and superimposed upon the ten sephiroth of the Tree. I wish I could believe things were as simple as that, but, as I wrote in the previous chapter, the classic qabalistic and Enochian models oblige us to view the same universe from different angles.

Aleister Crowley gave perhaps the most comprehensible way of viewing the relationship of the thirty Aethyrs and the Tree of Life:

It is to be remarked that the last three æthyrs have ten angels attributed to them, and they therefore represent the ten Sephiroth. Yet these ten form but one, a Malkuth-pendant to the next three, and so on, each set being, as it were, absorbed in the higher. The last set consists, therefore, of the first three æthyrs with the remaining twenty-seven as their Malkuth.<sup>117</sup>

The angels Crowley is referring to are the governors of the Aethyrs. Because Tex contains four governors instead of three, Crowley considered the last three Aethyrs (Tex, Rii, and Bag) as a set containing ten governors who could be projected on a Tree of Life (see figure 86).

Figure 86: The first (lowest) set of governors (of the thirtieth, twenty-ninth, and twenty-eighth Aethyrs) projected on a single Tree of Life

He then posited that this entire Tree of Life becomes the Malkuth (the tenth and lowest sephirah) of a higher Tree of Life made up of the nine governors of the next three Aethyrs (Zaa, Des, and Vti), which, in turn, become the Malkuth of the next three Aethyrs, and so on all the way to the top.

Figure 87: The last (highest) set of governors (of the first, second, and third Aethyrs) with the remaining twenty-seven Aethyrs and their governors encapsulated in a master Malkuth

You may or may not resonate with Crowley's view on this subject. Still, it is not unreasonable to compare the thirty Aethyrs to the sephiroth of the Tree of Life, especially when we understand both of them to be levels of personal initiation. This is precisely how Aleister Crowley viewed them. His systematic scrying of the Aethyrs as he walked across the North African Sahara in 1909 are chronicled in his visionary masterwork,

The Vision & the Voice, a text I believe should be studied by anyone interested in Enochian aethyric vision work.

While I certainly am not yet ready to compare my aethyric adventures with those of Crowley's, I have on multiple occasions engaged in a systematic exploration of the Aethyrs. I have, on a number of occasions, scryed each Aethyr, starting with number thirty, Tex, and worked my way to number one, Lil. Even my Monday night magick class is obliged to now and again undergo thirty weeks of scrying the Aethyrs.

Am I suggesting that we all actually achieve the sublime levels of consciousness represented by the higher Aethyrs? Of course I am not. But most of us receive provocative and highly personal visions, especially in the lower Aethyrs. That is because the lower Aethyrs represent levels of consciousness that we visit all the time in the natural course of daily life—in dreams, reveries, ecstasies, even deliriums. Even as I write these words, I am probably dipping into the lower Aethyrs as my memory and imagination conjure images that help me crystallize ideas I can put into words on the page. (I probably spent my entire senior year of high school staring into space and cruising in the lower Aethyrs!)

As the magician moves upwards through the Aethyrs, he or she progressively breaks into higher and higher levels of consciousness. If we are prepared for this new territory, our visions are characterized by a certain spontaneity and lucidity. However, when we begin to get out of our depth—when we haven't yet achieved the level of consciousness necessary to take the next step—our visions become murky and forced, as if we were watching it through a glass darkly. When this happens, the vision is usually characterized by a clear message announcing in no uncertain terms that we have not completely penetrated the Aethyr.

But that is not a bad thing. In fact, it is exactly what we want to happen, because we then know where we are on the initiatory ladder. Moreover, we have a chance of knowing what it is we need to do (or, more accurately, we will know who we need to become) to take the next step in our initiatory career. Allow me to illustrate with a hypothetical example.

Let's say you've resolved to systematically scry all thirty Aethyrs, one per night, from thirty to one, over a one-month period. Each night after your scrying session, you dutifully record in your journal the details of your vision. Everything is going along nicely until you attempt to penetrate in vision the fifteenth Aethyr, Oxo. You recite the nineteenth call in the proper manner and call for the three governors of Oxo (Tahando, Nociabi, and Tastoxo; see figure 63 column IV).

As the vision begins, three angels appear in the mirror, crystal, or your mind's eye, and march in a circle around you so that you cannot move in any direction. They will not respond to your questions or vouchsafe a proper vision. When something like this happens, you know that your present level of consciousness (your personal initiatory grade) is not refined enough to penetrate, let alone appreciate, the next Aethyr. It's as though you are a radio receiver not yet equipped to pull in higher broadcast frequencies. In order for you to do so, you will need to upgrade your equipment by raising your level of consciousness.

You will need to undergo an initiatory experience that will turn you into a more refined visionary traveler. And, as in all initiations, there is an obstacle that needs to be overcome. This obstacle can be anything from a psychological issue to a personal demon or character flaw. In order to conquer it, you might need just a tiny illumination concerning life, or a magical shift of focus, or to successfully achieve a more profound meditative state or trance.

You won't need to look far to discover what this obstacle is. It should be right there in your magical diary, in the record of the last Aethyr you could successfully penetrate. Somewhere in that vision there is a message telling you what it is you must do in order to take the next step in your spiritual journey through the heavens. It is sublimely simple and personal. It makes Enochian aethyric magick, in my opinion, a far more effective and user-friendly method of magical self-transformation than guided meditations or qabalistic pathworkings.

The method I use is straightforward. After performing a banishing and the Ceremony of Preparation, I simply recite the nineteenth call using the name of the particular Aethyr I wish to visit. Then I repeat the names of the three governors of the Aethyr until the vision begins.

The vision is usually characterized by the appearance of one or more of the governors, who stand ready to answer my inquiries and demonstrate the nature of the Aethyr. As in elemental workings, I try not to tire myself, and afterward make a detailed record of my experiences in my diary.

A complete list of the governors is found in chapter eighteen, in column IV of the table designated figure 63, and in appendix II, figure 90.

Epilogue

In the Middle of the Night

Isn't it enough to see that a garden is beautiful without having to believe that there are fairies at the bottom of it too?

—DOUGLAS ADAMS

It's 3:15 a.m. For the last few days, I have arranged to sleep through the afternoon heat of an unseasonably hot late summer so that I may write undisturbed in the cool peace and quiet of the wee hours. This book of magick has taken me much longer to complete than I anticipated. Did I say "complete"? It's a well-worn cliché that a writer never finishes a work, but merely abandons it. I've finally come to the place where I'm ready to abandon this book. For as slim as it is, it might be hard for you to believe that it has dominated my life for nearly three years. My publisher expected it in their hands over a year ago, and for their patience I am profoundly grateful.

This is far from the end of the material, however. I've worked hard and long on the appendices, which for the practicing Enochian magician will likely become the most worn and dog-eared section of the book.

I must confess that my attitudes concerning Enochian magick have changed many times in the thirty years it has been part of my life. My respect for the magical art form, however, has never diminished and has continued to grow unabated. I feel like the musician who is moved to tears by listening to a great symphony, but who can play only a few tunes himself and those only moderately well.

Perhaps you will never choose to make Enochian magick a part of your spiritual repertoire. Perhaps you will. In either case, as I abandon this book, it is my sincerest hope that I have been able to help you in some small measure attune your magical ear to the music of the spheres.

Adieu.

Appendix I

The Ceremony of Preparation

The magician purifies and banishes the temple as he or she has skill to do so. Below is a standard version of the Lesser Banishing Ritual, a ceremony used by many modern magicians.

Touching the forehead, say, Ateh ("Unto Thee").

Touching the breast, say, Malkuth ("the Kingdom").

Touching the right shoulder, say, ve-Geburah ("and the Power").

Touching the left shoulder, say, ve-Gedulah ("and the Glory").

Clasping the hand upon the breast, say, le-OLAHM, AMEN ("to the Ages, Amen").

Turning to the east, make the banishing pentagram (that of Earth) with the wand. Say, IHVH ("Ye-ho-wau").

Turning to the south, again draw the pentagram but say, ADNI ("Adonai").

Turning to the west, again draw the pentagram but say AHIH ("Eheieh").

Turning to the north, again draw the pentagram, but say AGLA ("Agla").

Extend the arms in the form of a cross say:

*Before me Raphael, Behind me Gabriel,
On my right hand, Michael,
On my left hand, Auriel,
For about me flames the pentagram
And in the column stands the six-rayed star.*

Touching the forehead, say, Ateh ("Unto Thee").

Touching the breast, say, Malkuth ("the Kingdom").

Touching the right shoulder, say, ve-Geburah ("and the Power").

Touching the left shoulder, say, ve-Gedulah ("and the Glory").

Clasping the hand upon the breast, say, le-OLAHM, AMEN ("to the Ages, Amen").

The Ceremony of Preparation

The Temple

The Holy Table is set in the middle of the room upon a carpet of red silk. Four small versions of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth rest under the table legs. In the center of the Holy Table rests the Sigillum Dei Aemeth surrounded by the seven Ensigns of Creation. All are covered and draped by a red silk cloth with gold tassels at the corners. The black mirror or scrying crystal is placed upon the covered Sigillum. The Ring and Lamens are at hand upon the covered table.

A chair is positioned before the table so that the face of the scryer may be reflected in the mirror. The chair must also rest upon the red silk carpet. When operating at night or in a dimly lit room, one or two candles can also be placed upon the covered Holy Table.

The Ceremony

After banishing, the magician sits down and prays:

Teach me (O creator of all things) to have correct knowledge and understanding, for your wisdom is all that I desire. Speak your word in my ear (O creator of all things) and set your wisdom in my heart. Amen.

The magician picks up the Ring and prays:

Behold the Ring. Lo, this it is. This is it, wherewith all miracles, and divine works and wonders were wrought by Solomon: this is it, which the Archangel Michael has revealed to me. This is it, which Philosophy dreameth of. This is it, which the Angels scarce know. This is it, and blessed be his name: yea, his Name be blessed forever. Without this I shall do nothing. Blessed be his name, that encompasses all things: Wonders are in him, and his name is WONDERFUL: PELE. His Name works wonders from generation to generation. Amen.

The magician picks up the Lamens and prays:

Behold the Lamens. As the Holy Table conciliates Heaven and Earth, let this Lamens which I place over my heart conciliate me to the Holy Table. Amen.

The magician recites seven complete rounds of the chant of the Holy Table's Perimeter Letters. If possible, the magician traces with the wand the covered letters he or she is chanting:

Graph Graph Med Med Or Med Gal Ged Ged Drux.

Pa Drux Un Tal Fam Don Ur Graph Don Or Gisg Gon Med
Un Ged Med Graph Van Ur Don Don Un.

Pa Drux Ur Ur Don Ur Drux Un Med Graph Graph Med Med
Graph Ceph Ged Ged Ur Mals Mals Fam Un.

Pa Gon Med Un Graph Fam Mals Tal Ur Pa Pa Drux Un Un
Van Un Med Un Gon Drux Drux Ur.

The magician chants seven rounds of the twelve letters of the Holy Table's central square:

Med Gon Gisg, Don Ur Van, Ur Don Ur, Med Med Graph.
Med Don Ur Med, Gon Ur Don Med, Gisg Van Ur Graph.

The magician chants one round of the names of the forty-nine angels upon the Sigillum Dei Aemeth:

Galas Gethog Thaoth Horlön Innon Aaoth Galethog

Zaphkiel Zedekiel Cumael Raphael Haniel Michael Gabriel

E(l) Me Ese Iana Akele Azdobon Stimcul

I Ih Ilr Dmal Hecoa Beigia Stimcul

S Ab Ath Izad Ekiei Madimi Esemeli

E An Ave Liba Rocle Hagonel Ilemes

Sabathiel Zadkiel Madimiel Semieliel Nogahel Corabiel
Lavanael

Finally, the magician quietly whispers the Holy Names of the Round Table of Nalvage. First the angel names of the corners:

luah lang sach urch

Then the god names of the four continents:

Iad moz zir—iad bab zna—iad sor gru—iad ser osf.

The magician then proceeds to the business at hand—calling an angel of an Elemental Tablet or scrying an Aethyr.

When the magician's work is done, he or she dismisses the spirit with thanks and prays:

Thy Name be mighty, O God, which canst open the veil whereby Thy All-Powerful Will may be opened unto men. Power, Glory, and Honor be unto Thee, For Thou art the same God of all things, and art life eternal. Amen.

Appendix II

The Enochian Calls (Keys)

The genuineness of these Keys, altogether apart from any critical observation, is guaranteed by the fact that anyone with the smallest capacity for Magick finds that they work.

Invocations?

Enochian magick as developed by the Golden Dawn and widely practiced today uses the first eighteen calls to activate the Elemental Tablets and contact the resident angels. However, in the hectic last days of the Enochian period, Dee was instructed in several places to write his own invocations. It remains unclear to me whether or not the angels were suggesting that additional “homemade” invocations were to be created as appendages to the calls. What is clear to me, after more than a quarter century of practical application, is the fact that the calls by themselves (with only the briefest of additional verbiage to awaken target angels and their hierarchy) serve admirably as the only invocations a magician needs.

Naturally, if it appeals to your magical sense of art to compose additional invocations to utter before and/or after the call, I encourage you to do so.

Pronunciation

You will probably be very surprised at how little time I spend on this subject. In fact, I am very tempted to simply paraphrase Rabbi Ben Clifford’s heretical comment about the Hebrew language and tell you bluntly, “There is no such thing as correct Enochian pronunciation!” On a few occasions, the communicating angels gave Dee and Kelley suggestions as to how certain words are pronounced. But, by and large, we modern magicians are left to our own devices as to how to push these awkwardly constructed words out of our mouths.

Dee notated the words of the calls in columns. The left column contained the Enochian word in all uppercase letters—PIRIPSOL, for example. The right column contained the word in upper- and lowercase letters, which split the word into syllables and characterized certain letters as if to suggest pronunciation: Pe ríp sol. Sometimes the translation of the word appeared in a center column: “of the heavens.”

The Golden Dawn and Crowley use a pronunciation method that they felt rolled more fluidly off the tongue. This method obliged the magician to insert a natural Hebrew vowel sound after every Enochian consonant. For example, the word butmon (meaning “mouth”) would be pronounced, “but-a-mon-u.” This is wonderful for words such as this one, giving it an almost Italian lilt. But things get a little crazy when it comes to the letter z, which the English currently pronounce as “zed” and in Dee and Kelley’s day was pronounced “zod.”

The angels did on occasion instruct Dee when and when not to use “zod,” but its universal application to a language that uses the letter z very often becomes, in my opinion, laughably cumbersome. Using the Golden Dawn pronunciation method, the simple, one-syllable Enochian word zims (“clothing”) becomes the unwieldy, four-syllable “zod-I-me-zod.” You tell me which rolls off the tongue better.

The most obvious alternative to the GD pronunciation is simply sounding out the words as they are written (which appears to be what the angels generally wanted Dee and Kelley to do). For the last fifteen years, this is what I have done, and it is what I recommend to students who are learning Enochian magick. Before that, however, I used the GD/Crowley pronunciation method and was perfectly happy with it. In fact, I still use the Italian sounding method when I recite the first and second calls because I have them memorized and they hold a special place in my heart.

Both methods work just fine. In fact, any sincere effort on the part of the magician to sound out the words as they appear in the call works. Some of the best group scrying sessions I have experienced have followed the most horribly butchered recitations of the calls. It's as though the Enochian angels (like the French) appreciate any attempt on your part to speak their language. I often use the example of a mouse. If a mouse hopped up on your shoe and squeaked, you'd just shoo it away. But if it hopped up on your shoe and started to talk to you in your native tongue, you'd be impressed. You wouldn't even care if it spoke with a thick accent!

I have tried to present the calls below as close as possible to the original spelling, breaks, letter characterization, and punctuation. The English translation that follows each call is generally punctuated in the same way as the Enochian.

The Calls, the Tablet of Union, and the Elemental Tablets

According to the Golden Dawn, Crowley, and many modern Enochian magick practitioners, the first eighteen calls activate the Tablet of Union, the Elemental Tablets, and the hierarchy of angels resident in the tablets in a very specific (and demonstrably logical) manner. Although the Dee and Kelley source material does not support this arrangement, it has become the foundation of a remarkably workable system. This table is the key to their use.

I reign over you, sayeth the God of Justice, in power exalted above the firmaments of wrath: in whose hands the Sun is as a sword and the Moon as a through-thrusting fire which measureth your garments in the midst of my vestures, and trussed you together as the palms of my hands: Whose seats I garnished with the fire of gathering and (which) beautified your garments with admiration: to whom I made a law to govern the holy ones and delivered you a rod with the ark of knowledge. Moreover you lifted up your voices and swear obedience and faith to him that liveth and triumpheth whose beginning is not, nor end can not be, which shineth as a flame in the midst of your palace and reigneth amongst you as the balance of righteousness and truth. Move, therefore, and show yourselves: open the Mysteries of your Creation: Be friendly unto me: for I am the servant of the same your God, the true worshipper of the Highest.

The East is a house of virgins singing praises amongst the flames of first glory wherein the Lord hath opened his mouth and they are become 28 living dwellings in whom the strength of man rejoiceth, and they are appareled with ornaments of brightness such as work wonders on all creatures. Whose Kingdoms and continuance are as the third and fourth strong towers and places of comfort, the seats of mercy and continuance. O you Servants of Mercy, Move, Appear, sing praises unto the Creator and be mighty amongst us. For to this remembrance is given power and our strength waxeth strong in our Comforter.

The Call of the Thirty Aethyrs

The nineteenth call is used to open each of the thirty Aethyrs. Only the name of the Aethyr itself (the third word in the first sentence) is changed.

Each Aethyr (with the exception of the thirtieth) is inhabited by three governors, who could be considered personifications of the nature of the Aethyr. I believe that after you recite the call and before you settle down to scry, it is important to pronounce, vibrate, or otherwise incorporate the names of the governors in a brief invocation.

The names of the Aethyrs and their governors are listed in figure 90. If you wish to incorporate the sigils of the governors (the symmetrical characters) for visualizations or to create talismans, the sigils can be found in chapter eighteen, in column VI of figure 63.

O you heavens which dwell in the First Ayre are mighty in the parts of the Earth, and execute the Judgment of the Highest, to you it is said, Behold the face of your God, the beginning of comfort, whose eyes are the brightness of the heavens, which provided you for the government of the Earth and her unspeakable variety, furnishing you with a power of understanding to dispose all things according to the providence of Him that sitteth on the Holy Throne, and rose up in the beginning saying: the Earth let her be governed by her parts and let there be division in her, that the glory of her may be always drunken and vexed in it self. Her course, let it run with the heavens, and as a handmaid let her serve them. One season let it confound an other, and let there be no creature upon or within her the same, All her members let them differ in their qualities, and let there be no one creature equal with an other: the reasonable Creatures of the Earth let them vex and weed out one an other, and the dwelling places let them forget their names: the work of man, and his pomp, let them be defaced: his buildings let them become caves for the beasts of the field. Confound her understanding with darkness. For why? It repenteth me I made Man. One while let her be known and an other while a stranger: because she is the bed of a Harlot, and the dwelling place of Him that is Fallen. O you heavens arise: the lower heavens underneath you, let them serve you! Govern those that govern: cast down such as fall! Bring forth with those that increase, and destroy the rotten! No place let it remain in one number: add and diminish until the stars be numbered! Arise, Move, and Appear before the Covenant of his mouth, which he hath sworn unto us in his Justice. Open the Mysteries of your Creation: and make us partakers of Undefined Knowledge.

Appendix III

The Geographical Location of the Ninety-one Parts of the Earth Named by Man, as Detailed in John Dee's Liber Scientiae Auxilii Et Victoriae Terrestris<sup>119</sup>

by Robin E. Cousins

Liber Scientiae Auxilii et Victoriae Terrestris, which forms part of Sloane Manuscript 3191, provides the details necessary to operate a system of magic, by which the magician can discover

'how to compare . . . [the] divisions of provinces according to the Divisions of the Stars, with the Ministry of the Ruling Intelligences, and Blessings of the Tribes of Israel, the Lots of the Apostles, and Typical Seals of the Sacred Scripture, [so that he] shall be able to obtain great and prophetic oracles, concerning every region, of things to come.'<sup>120</sup>

On Wednesday 23 May 1584, while in Krakow, John Dee and Edward Kelley received from the Spirit Nalvage the names of ninety-one regions and provinces of the physical world, as defined by man. At this time America was no longer considered to be a group of islands but Australia had yet to be discovered and the search for the North-West Passage had just commenced. The names of the ninety-one parts relate to the Ptolemaic ancient world of about AD 150 with some additions. The Spirit Nalvage explains:

'Notwithstanding the Angel of the Lord appeared unto Ptolemie, and opened unto him the parts of the Earth: but some he was commanded to secret: and those are Northward under your Pole. But unto yon, the very true names of the World in her Creation are delivered.'<sup>121</sup>

The list is not altogether satisfactory. Dee, who was well-versed in geography, had not heard of some of the places and even Nalvage said, 'Here are 15, which were never known in these times . . . The rest are'. Many of the strange locations are indeed in the Polar Regions, which were uncharted at the time. In fact, a considerable Arctic land mass was believed to exist and was featured on sixteenth century maps. Nevertheless, locations for this region are desirable and there are many areas in the extreme north, whether land or sea, which can be covered by the descriptions. The belief of a south polar continent (Tolpam, Part 58) was not inaccurate, a location which can usefully extend to Australasia which was undiscovered at the time.

Two points emerge at the end of the communication relating to known lands not included in the list. Firstly, when Dee asks of 'Polonia, Moschovia, Dania, Hibernia (Ireland), Islandia, and so of many others', Nalvage replies: 'Polonia and Moscovia, are of Sarmatia (Russia); Denmark, Ireland, Frizeland, Iseland, are of Britain: And so it is of the rest.'<sup>122</sup> Does this imply that Brytania (Part 61) can be used to gain access to lands not included within the ninety-one parts? Secondly, when Dee presses Nalvage as to which part governs 'Atlantis and the annexed places, under the King of Spain called the West Indies', Nalvage replies: 'When these 30 appear, they can each tell you what they own. Prepare for tomorrows Action'. The communication is, therefore, incomplete. Unfortunately, 'tomorrows Action' never occurred, because Kelley believed Nalvage to have taken the descriptions from books, including Agrippa's Occult Philosophy, and refused to communicate further. 'E. K. remained of his wilful intent', noted a frustrated Dee. However, Onigap (Part 34) may refer to these lands and there is the possibly implied use of Brytania, as described above. Note that Dee held that the term 'West Indies' was very misleading and preferred to use 'Atlantis' instead of 'America', as a name for the new lands. Nevertheless, the additional thirty parts wait to be realised, which would bring the total of the parts of the Earth to 121. It is interesting to speculate, whether they would affect the design of the Great Table.

Dee bought Gerhard Mercator's Universal Chart of the World and the geographical work of Pomponius Mela to help him with his locations. He does not record his success. Ultimately, the advice of Nalvage in relation to Chaldei (Part 42) and Chaldea (Part 72) is the only way to establish the locations of the obscure and ambiguously described parts of the world: 'You shall finde the difference of it, in practice'.

The Ninety-One Parts of the World

Many of the locations are well-known. However, for the obscurer areas Dee's Spiritual Diaries (Cotton Appendix XLVI, Parts 1 & 2, published as A True and Faithful Relation of What passed for many Yeers Between Dr. John Dee and Some Spirits, edited by Meric Casaubon, 1659) are often the only guide. In these instances, supportive quotations are given. Other parts, especially those located by Kelley or Nalvage in the Far Orient or in the Arctic regions, are difficult to place on the world map today, as in Dee's time these regions were largely unexplored and uncharted.

1 AEGYPTUS: Egypt.

2 SYRIA: Southern Syria.

3 MESOPOTAMIA: Land between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers in Northern Iraq and North-East Syria.

4 CAPPADOCIA: Extensive province of Central Turkey, stretching from the Black Sea in the north to Cilicia (Part 14) in the south. The original territory, Cappadocia Proper, occupied the southern areas.

5 TUSCIA: Tuscany or Etruria, a province in Central Italy including Florence.

6 PARVA ASIA: Asia Minor, Anatolia or Asiatic Turkey.

7 HYRCANIA: Area south-east of the Caspian Sea in Iran.

8 THRACIA: Thrace includes Eastern Greece, Turkey in Europe, and Southern Bulgaria.

9 GOSMAM: According to Kelley, 'Here appear great Hills, and veins of the Gold Mines appear: the men seem to have baskets of leather. This is one of the places under the Pole Artick.'

10 THEBAIDI: Thebes (Egypt) and surrounding area.

11 PARSADAL: Kelly, 'Here the sun shineth fair.' Most probably Pasargardae or Parsagarda ('the habitation of the Persians'), the ancient capital of Parsa/Persis/Persia Proper or the modern Iranian province of Fars (Part 74). Parsagarda is located about 60 miles northeast of Shiraz.

12 INDIA: Includes Indian provinces along the Indus River, roughly present-day Pakistan and India West of the Ganges (India Intra Ganges).

13 BACTRIANE: Bactriana covers Northern Afghanistan and the south-east of the Turkmenistan, the River Amu Darya (Oxus) forming the northern boundary. For lands to the north of the river, see Sogdiana (Part 26).

14 CILICIA: Coastal country bordering the Mediterranean in South-East Turkey.

15 OXIANA: Alexandria Oxiana, a town and its surrounding area on the Oxus River (Amu Darya) on the borders of Northern Afghanistan and Uzbekistan.

16 NUMIDIA: Eastern Algerian coastal district between Africa (Part 86) and Mauretania (Part 91).

17 CYPRUS: Cyprus.

18 PARTHIA: North-East Iran, to the south of Hyrcania (Part 7). The region has a common border with Turkmenistan.

19 GETULIA: The Western Sahara, south of Morocco, including Southern Algeria, Mali and the modern state of Mauritania.

20 ARABIA: Saudi Arabia.

21 PHALAGON: Dee: 'I have never heard of it.'

Kelley: 'It is toward the North, where the veines of Gold . . . appear . . . The men have things on their shoulders of beasts skins.'

Dee: 'Groynland as I think' (i.e. Greenland).

22 MANTIANA: This is Matiana or the Mattieni by Lacus Matianus, now Lake Urmia in North-Western Iran. The population is mainly Kurdish. Lake Van, approximately 200 miles west in Eastern Turkey, was once called Lake Mantiana.

23 SOXIA: Sacae/Sachia/Sakas approximates with Xinjiang Uygur or Sinkiang Uighur region, North-West China. It is also known as Chinese Turkistan.

Kelley: 'People here appear of reddish colour.'

24 GALLIA: A 'greater' France with the Rhine forming the northern and eastern boundaries, thereby including Belgium, Luxembourg, and the Southern Netherlands.

25 ILLYRIA: At its greatest extent, Illyria included Central and Eastern Austria, Western Hungary or Transdanubia, the former Yugoslavia excluding Macedonia, Northern Bulgaria and Romania.

26 SOGDIANA: District between the rivers Amu Darya (Oxus) and Syr Darya (Jaxartes) including Uzbekistan, with the cities of Bokhara and Samarkand, and Western Tajikistan. Afghanistan is to the south, for which see Bactriana (Part 13).

27 LYDIA: Coastal region in Western Turkey.

28 CASPIS: Area to the south-west of the Caspian Sea in Iran.

29 GERMANIA: Includes modern Germany, Poland, the Czech Republic, Slovakia, and extends to the Italian border in the south, incorporating Switzerland and the Tyrol in Western Austria. In the north, Germania can include Denmark, Norway and Sweden, although Dee was told that Brytania (Part 61) could be used for Denmark, which at that time governed Norway as well.

30 TRENAM: Kelley: 'Here appear Monkies, great flocks. The people have leather Coats, and no beards, thick leather, and Garthers . . . '

Nalvage: 'These people are not known to you?'

Dee: 'Are they not in Africa?'

Nalvage: 'They be.'

Probably Teniam, a region on Jodocus Hondius's World Map (1608) straddling the Ivory Coast/Upper Volta/Ghana borderlands.

31 BITHYNIA: Black Sea coastal region in the north of Turkey, west of Paphlagonia (Part 40), including Istanbul (Asian side).

32 GRAECIA: Nalvage: 'A great Citie, and the Sea hard by it.'

Dee: 'Is not that great Citie Constantinople?'

Nalvage: 'It is . . . '

Graecia is thus Istanbul, not Greece; for which use Achaia (Part 37).

33 LICIA: Lycia is a country on the south coast of Turkey or Anatolia.

34 ONIGAP: Kelley: 'Here appear handsome men, in gathered tucked garments, and their shoes come up to the middle of their legs, of diverse coloured leather.'

Nalvage: 'These be beyond Hispaniola.'

Kelley: 'It is a low Countrey. Here appear great piles of Stones like St Andrews Crosses . . . There are on this side of it (a great way) a great number of dead Carkases . . . '

Nalvage: 'It is beyond Giapan.' (That is, beyond Japan across the Pacific to the Americas. Note that Onigap is an anagram of Giapon.)

Dee: 'Then it is that land, which I use to call Atlantis.'

Nalvage: 'They stretch more near the west.'

This can only be Mexico, particularly the Yucatan. Beyond Hispaniola (Haiti and Domenica) and west of 'Atlantis' or America is Central Mexico and the Yucatan, which is a low-lying peninsula. The people wore bright colours; the temples could resemble St Andrew's crosses; and, many people were slaughtered by the Spanish Conquistadores.

35 INDIA MAJOR: India Extra Gangem or India east of the Ganges, which includes all of South-East Asia.

36 ORCHENY: Nalvage: 'A great many little Isles.'

Dee: 'Do you mean the Isles of Orkney?'

Nalvage: 'No.'

Dee: 'They seem to be the Isles of Malacha.'

Dee is mistakenly thinking of the islands around Malaya (Malacha or Malacca) or even the Moluccas. The Orcheni were a people south of Chaldea (Part 72), living on or by islands in the marshlands of the lower Tigris and Euphrates.

37 ACHAIA: Southern Greece, including Athens and the Peloponnisos.

38 ARMENIA: Extensive region which, most comprehensively, stretches from the Euphrates in eastern Turkey to the Caspian Sea, thereby including Armenia and Azerbaijan.

39 CILICIA (NEMROD): Nalvage: 'You never knew this Cilicia. This is Cilicia where the Children of Nemrod dwell. It is up in the Mountains beyond Cathay.' Probably Calatia, a region in this location featured on Emery Molyneux's terrestrial globe of 1592. It equates with the extreme north-eastern province of Russia by the Bering Straits, the Magadan Oblast. Cilicia in Turkey is Part 14.

40 PAPHLAGONIA: Black Sea coastal country in the north of Turkey.

41 PHASIANA: Mainly Kurdish region in Eastern Turkey, north of Lake Van, not to be confused with Phazania/Fezzan in Libya, for which see Garamantica (Part 45).

42 CHALDEI: The people of Chaldea (Part 72).

43 ITERGI: Nalvage: '. . . the people are yellow, tawney . . . They are to the south of the last Cilicians.' This is possibly Mongolia, Manchuria (North-East China), and Korea. The name appears in this region on a terrestrial globe, dated 1492, of German geographer Martin Behaim (c.1459–1507).

44 MACEDONIA: Northern Greece and the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia.

45 GARAMANTICA: Garamantes, a large area in Inner Africa, covering the Eastern Sahara, including the south of Libya (Fezzan), extreme South-Eastern Algeria, Niger and Chad.

46 SAUROMATICA: Sarmatia or European Russia.

47 AETHIOPIA: Includes Ethiopia south of Egypt and also the entire unknown African continent south of the Equator, which was known as Ethiopia Interior in Dee's time. Unexplored parts of Africa north of the Equator were known as Libya Interior.

48 FIACIM: Kelley: 'Now he sheweth by the North Pole and the great Mountain.'

This is the North Pole. A great mountain was believed to exist at the Pole.

49 COLCHICA: Colchis roughly equates with the modern Republic of Georgia, located to the east of the Black Sea.

50 CIRENIACA: Cyrenaica, a Mediterranean coastal region of Eastern Libya.

51 NASAMONIA: III-defined north-eastern Libyan coastal district by the Gulf of Sirte in the west of Cireniaca (Part 50).

52 CARTHAGO: Carthage, Tunisia.

53 COXLANT: Nalvage: 'It appeareth very Eastward.'

Kelley: 'It is on high ground. There come four Rivers out of it, one East, another West, another North, and another South . . . Is this the Paradise that Adam was banished out of?'

Nalvage: 'The very same.'

A discussion follows which does not help to locate Coxlant. The search for the Earthly Paradise, like the Eldorado, was the dream of early explorers. The four rivers are the Pison (The Persian Gulf?), Gihon (The Nile?), Hiddekel (Tigris), and Euphrates. The favourite location of Paradise was considered to be a little north of the confluence of the Tigris and Euphrates. However, other locations favoured sites further north in Mesopotamia and Armenia. Tibet could be another location. It is very easterly; on high ground; and the four rivers are the Mekong (east), the Indus (west), the Yangtze (north), and the Brahmaputra (south). Ultimately, however, the location of Coxlant or the Earthly Paradise must rest with the spirituality of the individual.

54 IDUMEA: Also called Edom, this is Southern Israel and Jordan.

55 PARSTAVIA: Actually Bastarnia, approximately Bessarabia or Moldavia to the east of Romania.

56 CELTICA: Nalvage: 'It is that which you call Flandria, the Low Country.'

This is North-West France and Belgium, not Central Gaul which is usually known as Celtica.

57 VINSAN: Kelley: 'Here appear men with tallons like Lions. They be very devils. There are five isles of them.'

Suggest the ancient kingdom of Wu-Sun, south of Lake Balkhash in Kazakhstan. The 'isles' could be communities near the lake.

58 TOLPAM: Kelley: 'Under the South Pole.' This is Antarctica and Australasia.

59 CARCEDONIA: Carchedonia or modern Tunisia.

60 ITALIA: Italy, including the Istrian Peninsula in Croatia.

61 BRYTANIA: The British Isles, Scandinavia, and possibly places not included in the 91 parts.

62 PHENICES: Phoenicia, approximately the Lebanon and Northern Israel.

63 COMAGINEN: Commagene, a land-locked district in Southern Turkey, bounded on the east by the Euphrates and on the south by Syria. Cilicia (Part 14) is to the west.

64 APULIA: Province in south-east Italy between the Apennines and the Adriatic, bounded on the south by Calabria or the 'heel' of Italy.

65 MARMARICA: North African coastal region straddling the Egyptian and Libyan border. The Nile forms the eastern boundary.

66 CONCAVA SYRIA: Hollow Syria, usually known as Coele Syria, now forms Northern Syria.

67 GEBAL: Later Byblos, now Jubayl, about twenty miles north of Beirut, Lebanon.

68 ELAM: Also known as Susiana, it is approximately the same as the modern Iranian province of Khuzestan at the north of the Persian Gulf, bordering Iraq and including Abadan.

69 IDUNIA: Nalvage: 'It is beyond Greenland.'

70 MEDIA: North-Western Iran, south of Caspis (Part 28) and Hyrcania (Part 7). Includes Teheran.

71 ARIANA: Eastern Iran, Pakistan west of the Indus, Southern Afghanistan.

72 CHALDEA: A tract of country in South Iraq running along the Euphrates from the Persian Gulf to Babylon (about 50 miles south of Bagdad). The Shamiya Desert forms the western boundary.

73 SERICIPOPULI: A people in Eastern Asia. Serica or Seres equates with China and the Far East.

74 PERSIA: Persis or Parsa, this is approximately the modern Iranian province of Fars. Located in South-West Iran and bounded on the west by the Persian Gulf, the province was the kernel of ancient Persia and includes the ancient cities of Parsagarda (Part 11) and Persepolis.

75 GONGATHA: Kelley: 'Towards the South Pole.'

This is Gongala, an area to the south of Libya Interior by the Equator. In the sixteenth century Kelley's description is apt, but today the region equates with South Sudan.

76 GORSIM: Kelley: 'Beares and Lions here.'

Most probably Chorazin/Korazim/Gorazim, an ancient site to the north of Lake Tiberias (Sea of Galilee), Israel, with the ruins of a black basalt synagogue. The place was condemned by Jesus and legend claims the Antichrist will be born there. Note also Chorasnia/Khorezm/Khiva, south-east of the Caspian Sea in Turkmenistan.

77 HISPANIA: Spain and Portugal.

78 PAMPHILIA: Southern Turkish coastal land, between Lycia (Part 33) and Cilicia (Part 14), forming a narrow strip of land around the Bay of Antalya.

79 OACIDI: This is Oasitae ('... of the Oasis'), the oasis area west of the Nile, which includes the great oasis of the Oracle of Amon.

80 BABYLON or BABYLONIA: Region in Southern Iraq, extending north from the Persian Gulf between the Lower Tigris and the northeastern Arabian desert. Babylon, the capital, is about fifty miles south of Bagdad.

81 MEDIAN: Kelley: 'It is much Northward.'

Note, however, Midian—the land of the Midianites by Sinai; or, even the people of Media (Part 70).

82 IDUMIAN: Kelley: 'They are two Isles environed with an arm of the Scythian Sea, which goeth in at Maspi.'

Most probably the region to the north-east of the Aral Sea in the Kazakhstan. Suggest 'Maspi' is a corruption of the Aspisii Montes/Mons Aspisii, which shortened to M. Aspisii, distorts to Maspi. The mountains were supposedly located in this region, but in the sixteenth century much of this land and especially the far north of Siberia or Scythia was Terrae Incognita. Mercator's map of North-East Asia, which is dated 1569, shows a hypothetical arm of the Scythian Sea (Laptev and East Siberian seas) almost reaching to the north-east of the Aral Sea with the M. Aspisii nearby. The Aspisii Scythia were the people dwelling to the west of the mountains and to the north of the River Jaxartes (Syr Darya). Note also, however, the Arimaspi detailed in Part 88 below. The Maspii, a noble Persian tribe, are too far south to be considered.

83 FELIX ARABIA: Arabian Red Sea coastlands, particularly the south-western areas, including the Yemen.

84 METAGONITIDIM: The Metagonitae were a people living in Tangiers and the surrounding area. The district forms the west of Mauretania (Part 91) or modern Northern Morocco.

85 ASSYRIA: Eastern Iraq between the Tigris and the Iranian border.

86 AFRICA: Mediterranean coastal region of Libya, including Tripoli and the modern province of Tripolitania, but excluding the eastern part, for which see Cireniaca (Part 50) and Nasamonia (Part 51). The region also includes the eastern Algerian coastlands and the Algerian/Tunisian border. This is not the continent of Africa.

87 BACTRIANI: The people of Bactriana (Part 13).

88 AFNAN or AFRAN: Kelley: 'Here appear people with one eye in their head, seeming to be in their breast, towards the Equinoctial.'

Dee: 'I remember of people called Arimaspi.'

Dee is confused here, as the Arimaspi ('the one-eyed') were a people on the left bank of the Middle Volga, north of the Caspian Sea. The Afran are the people Ptolemy called the Aphricerones, located just north of Equatorial Africa in North Zaire. The ancient scholars considered that all the southern parts of Africa were uninhabitable (as with many unexplored lands) and populated with strange beasts. Herodotus included in his conjectures on unknown Africa descriptions of peoples with 'one eye in the breast instead of the usual head', which must be the people referred to.

89 PHRYGIA: Large province in Central Turkey. Greater Phrygia was bounded on the east by Cappadocia (Part 4).

90 CRETA: Crete.

91 MAURITANIA or MAURETANIA: Morocco and the north Algerian coastlands, not to be confused with the modern state of Mauritania, which is located further south and for which see Getulia (Part 19).

The Three Great Secret Names of God

At the very top of the hierarchy of the Elemental Tablet are the Three Great Secret Names of God. In the practice of modern Enochian magick, prior to contacting any angel from the Elemental Tablet, the Three Great Secret Names of God should be first be invoked. The Golden Dawn and Crowley incorporated the names in a preliminary temple opening. Whether you use these temple openings in your own work, or if you design your own opening ritual, you must never neglect to recognize by name the Three Great Secret Names of God who rule the Elemental Tablet you are working with.

The Seniors and the Kings

Next in hierarchical order are the six seniors and the king of the Elemental Tablet. After invoking the Three Great Secret Names of God, these seven angels must also be recognized by name and made part of the magician's opening ritual.

If you are invoking an individual senior, you may omit the names of the other seniors (but not the king) in your ritual opening.

Three Examples of Enochian Magick Visions

Nanta, elo Hoath zorge ef.

"Spirit of Earth, first worshiper friendly visit."

—LAIDROM, MARS SENIOR OF EARTH

Example 1<sup>123</sup>

First Session (September 25, 1980) Laidrom, Mars senior of the Elemental Tablet of Earth. Scryer: David P. Wilson.

For our first evocation session I decided we would work as Dee and Kelley did. One person would act as seer, and one as operator. The seer would recite the appropriate call, receive the vision, and communicate it during or after the session. The operator would banish, open and close the temple, and question the seer. I would be the operator, but I did not know who in our little class would be the first to sit in the visionary driver's seat. On class night there was only one rather reluctant volunteer.

David P. Wilson was not new to the world of magick. In the years leading up to his affiliation with our lodge he sat in with a host of magical groups and workshops in the Los Angeles area upon whom he later heaped scorn and ridicule because of their inability to show him "real magick." He was the boldest member of the class, also the most impatient and sarcastic. I could see the Enochian class going down in flames on opening night because David the curmudgeon once again "saw nothing!" He had done none of the preliminary Enochian work with the rest of the class. He hadn't painted a set of tablets or studied any of the calls. Still, he was our only volunteer.

I can't recall why but I decided we would try to contact LAIDROM, the Mars Senior of the Elemental Tablet of Earth. In the spirit of better safe than sorry, we placed the Earth tablet in the South (Capricorn/Cardinal Earth) and enclosed the entire class in a circle cast with a clothesline cord. I banished with the rituals of the lesser and greater pentagrams and hexagrams, then opened the temple and invoked the hierarchical names as indicated in Liber Chanokh. David was seated on the floor at the southern edge of the circle, just inches away from the Earth tablet. Leaning against the wall behind the tablet was a huge cardboard version of the [Elemental] Tablet of Earth that I placed there for the other members of the class to focus upon. I turned on the tape recorder and gave David a copy of the Call to read. I sat down behind him while he read it aloud.

He did rather well considering he had never read it before. When he was finished, he closed his eyes and took a deep breath. Nothing happened. I asked him to read the Call again. He did so and after only a few seconds he said, "I have a landscape. I see a landscape."

I was relieved beyond words. "What does it look like?"

David proceeded to describe in surprising detail a desert vista of flat, trackless white crystalline powder stretching to the horizon. Great gray columns of volcanic rock towering over the plain broke the monotony of the scene. Between the columns the ground was pockmarked with countless gaping pits.

That was it. Nothing else was occurring. I asked him to read the Call a third time. This time there was movement. From out of a pit in the center of his field of vision arose a black cone. He said it sparkled from the inside and upon its surface with thousands of little sparks that jumped from one star to another.

I asked, "Is this LAIDROM?"

David grabbed his pencil and notepad and quickly scribbled something. I looked at what he had drawn. It looked like four very poorly drawn Enochian letters. At the time it meant nothing to me. I asked for a clearer answer. "Is this LAIDROM?"

"It's him! It's him! I see him."

He described a humanoid figure draped in the same material from which the cone was constructed. He had an egg-shaped head but no face. His hands were like mittens—there were no fingers. He reached his arm toward the ground and “drew” a diagram in the sand in front of him. David quickly copied the figure on the notepad. It was a square divided diagonally by two lines with a small circle in the lower left-hand corner. We took this to be LAIDROM’s signature.

We were all very excited. It was as if the entire class saw David’s vision in our mind’s eye. Then it occurred to me. Now that we’ve got this guy, what the hell are we to do with him? Before I could think of what to do next, David said, “Lon, I feel like . . . I feel . . . I could make strange sounds.”

This was a twist. “Let yourself.” I told him. “Go with it.” I tried to sound calm.

“Naw-n tahelo hoh athayzo raygayeff. . . this is bullshit!”

“No! Relax, let it happen!”

“I mean it, I feel like an idiot. I’m too . . . zil-zi-anzilzi-lo-da-arp nan-ta . . . (inaudible) . . . ef . . . efee thar-zi. I am sorry. That’s all. Nothing like this has ever happened before. I just felt like doing it.” David’s apology was comical. We all broke into nervous giggles.

It had been quite an evening. As we had planned nothing particular to do with LAIDROM, I thought it wise to quit while we were ahead. I asked David to thank our spirit guest for his visit and proceeded to banish and close the temple.

One of the class members had brought along his Enochian Dictionary<sup>124</sup> and suggested we try to use it to see if David’s strange babbling actually meant something. I rewound the tape and played it back from the beginning. Everything was crystal clear right up to the time of LAIDROM’s appearance, when the tape developed an irritating distortion. We joked that it was the fault of malicious spirits and expected it to soon clear up. It did not. In fact, by the time the tape reached David’s babbling we could hardly pick his voice out from behind the bank of white noise. As soon as the good stuff was over, the distortion suddenly stopped.

Noise notwithstanding, after replaying the section of tape a dozen times or more, we picked up enough of what was being said to write down three audible strings of syllables:

naw-n tahelo hoh athayzo raygayeff.

zil-zi-anzilzi-lo-da-arp nan-ta . . . (inaudible) and ef . . . efee thar-zi.

Starting at the beginning, we painstakingly played with the phonetics of each word (and the word/words following) and attempted to match them with words in the Enochian Dictionary. Obviously we weren’t being very scientific, nor, I confess, very objective. This was all very exciting and romantic, and I am sure that night we would have squeezed some profundity out of any string of sounds. Be that as it may, it took less than an hour to break the sounds up as follows:

Nanta, elo Hoath zorge ef.—Which translated neatly to: “Spirit of Earth, first worshiper friendly visit.”

Zil zien—“stretch forth hands”

Zilodarp Nanta—“stretch forth and conquer Spirit of Earth”

Ef etharzi—“visit in peace.”

Needless to say we were all very impressed. At the end of the evening it was agreed that from now on class would meet two times a week to pursue Enochian magick. Sadly, David’s ability to break spontaneously into the Enochian language would diminish rapidly as his familiarity with the language of the Calls increased. After the fourth or fifth session, he lost the ability completely. His visions, on the other hand, became clearer, more informative, and more provocative.

Example 2

Monday Night Magick Class (July 17, 2006) Twenty-ninth Aethyr Rii. Scryer: Jill Belanger

Enochian scrying sessions sometimes trigger emotional, physical, even sexual reactions. This is a clip from the transcription of a recording of a Monday night magick class scrying of the twenty-ninth Aethyr, Rii, and its governors: Vastrim, Odraxti, and Gomziam. The main scryer in this session was Jill Belanger, one of the class’s most talented seers. It demonstrates that Enochian visions need not take the form of biblical-esque landscapes and heavy magical pronouncements. I thank

Jill for being a very good sport and allowing us to eavesdrop on part of this provocative session.

This session started with the full opening ritual as outlined in chapter one.

As soon as I closed my eyes I was pulled into a vortex, an upside down six, and I was pulled in with an . . . um . . . another gentleman, a lover, a man, and we were instantly in sexual ecstasy going in water in the form of six, and just flying around, the flame was in the middle, and the water was swirling around, and I was lost in that ecstasy for a while. And then I thought, No, I've got to figure out what this message is about. So I tried to push him away. (Laughter from class.) And I said (very drunkenly), "Gumziam [sic], where are you? And I kept flying around in the water vortex. I then saw two triangles together but three dimensional, in sort of like (garbled) with three or four sides instead of eight sides, and then the two triangles . . . one split off from the other one. One on top, one on bottom, and the widest parts were together, and I was standing in the middle . . . and it was like the floor and ceiling were separating and apart.

And I looked down, and the floor was split into four parts, not like the Watchtowers, more like pyramids, and one was Fire, Water, Earth, and Air. Then it was stuck back together again, and I was swirling with the vortex again. I said, "Fire creates, but water solidifies," and the two pyramids went back together, and I was with this lover again, floating around, and I was like, "OK! Let's . . . well . . . OK!" (Laughter from class.) I'm still kind of hot! (More laughter.)

Public Workshop (July 22, 2006) Thirtieth Aethyr, Tex. Scryer: name withheld

The following is a letter I received a few days after I returned home from a workshop series on Enochian vision magick. The vision the young woman describes occurred during a scrying session that concluded a half-day public workshop. She, like most of the attendees at this event, had never performed Enochian magick before.

After I had outlined a brief history of Dee and Kelley's adventures and the fundamentals of Enochian magick, the entire class took part in the ritual and chanting of the Ring/Lamen/Holy Table/Sigillum/Table of Nalvage opening ceremony. Over their two-part chorus of the Table of Nalvage words, I recited the nineteenth call to penetrate the thirtieth Aethyr, Tex. Here is her experience.

Hi, Lon!

Thanks again for making the trek here . . . last weekend. I learned a lot more than I had expected to, which is why I'm writing you this. I didn't get a chance to talk to you about the things I saw/did when you led the class foray into the Enochian aethyrs, and initially I was hesitant to because of the rather personal nature of some of it. But after talking to [my brother] about it, I realized I should tell you; in fact, he insisted I do so. So here goes.

We had just finished chanting the Holy Table, and you indicated we should close our eyes while you continued chanting and just follow the images that came to us. Initially I got not images per se, but random geometric shapes in dark shades of purple and green, mostly pyramids, and pyramids of one color in front of squares of a slightly darker shade. I realized that I was falling forward, swiftly, down a triangular corridor filled with a dark purplish haze, with occasional lighter purple flashes—like falling through layers and layers and layers, whoosh, whoosh, whoosh, with something spinning all around me at the same time. Then I realized I wasn't going down anymore, but rising, still through this triangular purple infused corridor, whoosh, whoosh, whoosh, still the spinning, and I began to feel my heart pounding like it would burst inside me, I felt dizzy and slightly nauseous, and just when I thought I couldn't stand it for another moment longer, I stopped speeding forward, and the purple mist cleared, and I was standing on a grassy plain, almost a hilltop, that rose slightly upward in front of me. I realized that the thing that had been spinning seemed to be the petals of an enormous flower, a lotus, perhaps, and that the hillside on which I stood was contained within its perimeter, like a low wall going around it. It occurs to me now that I was facing north.

Beyond the border of the wall were two more hills in the distance, one to the left and one to the right, covered in vibrant dark green vegetation, and I knew vaguely that there were Things in those hills, in those trees, but I didn't have time to think about them. There were four pillars that stretched up around me, at the outside edge of the wall, and as I watched, a pyramid rose up out of the hillside in front of me, or perhaps I simply moved swiftly up the hillside towards it. It wasn't large, maybe only one or one and a half stories high; it was four sided and made of a smooth golden brick or stone. A blinding light issued from the center of it, and, as I watched, the form of a person appeared in the center of this light and was walking towards me.

My impression was that he came from inside the pyramid, and he seemed to be coming from some distance, though the pyramid was just in front of me. He was tall and blond and blue eyed and wore a garment of brilliant white and a golden circlet about his temples. And he was smiling, he was so glad to see me. As he came close to me, he opened up the robe to reveal a column of blinding white light running down the centerline of his body. As my eyes adjusted to the light, I realized that the light was coming from his chakras, which were blazing yellow-white light and shaped sort of like flowers. I realized that my chakras were also blazing, and the light from his heart chakra leapt forward in a thin white-yellow tongue of flaming light and entered my heart chakra. Then his throat chakra flamed and leapt into mine, and then all of them at once seemed to, and that blazing sharing of chakra light continued for a few blissful, amazing moments.

He held his hands out in front of him, palms facing toward me, and I placed my palms against them, and the chakras in our hands blazed with light and fire for a moment. Then he took my hands and pulled them straight into his chest so that I held his heart chakra in my hands, and then he indicated that I should put his heart chakra inside my chest. I was amazed that he would suggest that, and slightly hesitant, but he was insistent, and together we thrust it into my chest. I was stunned at the force of the heat of the union of our two heart chakras. Then he gestured to his throat chakra, and again, I took his chakra in my hands, and lifted it out of him and into myself, with another flash of heat. Then I lifted out his third-eye chakra, then his solar plexus chakra, then his hara chakra. I reached next for his root chakra, and realized that in my hands it had become a huge golden phallus, and as in the curious logic of dreams, there was only one obvious way to integrate that into myself—I mounted it, and at the same time, I reached up and removed the crown from his head, symbolic of his crown chakra, and placed it on my own head at the same moment as the phallus slid into me, and the universe exploded. It wasn't sex, it wasn't copulation, it was Union,

I was perfectly with and within him, and he was perfectly with and within me. It was Bliss, it was Light, it was Perfection. I heard his voice in my ear, saying, "You are She, in Whom all things are received; She in Whom all things are created; She in Whom all things are possible. All Life is Yes; all Love is Know. Know that You are She."

At about that moment, I heard your voice saying something about looking around for landmarks that would help me remember this place, and I laughed to myself that I wasn't likely to forget this. You said something else about bringing back a sign, or a key or talisman from this place, something to know and remember it by that would help me return, and I pulled back slightly from this Being with a wordless question, and his answer was to withdraw from me, and he ejaculated into my outstretched hands, a liquid golden light that turned into two glowing, golden diamond crystals that sank into my palms and disappeared as I watched.

Then your voice said it was time to return, and without another word or glance between us I was whisked up and away, coming back into awareness of my body with a nauseating thud, my head spinning, my heart pounding painfully. You started asking us questions about what we'd seen, where we'd been, and I was too nauseated and out of breath to answer, but was amazed to hear my classmates describing similar imagery, lotuses, columns, towers, pyramids, though no one else seemed to have experienced anything close to what had passed between me and that other Being—or at least, no one was admitting to it. I sat there in a haze, listening to them, thinking about my own experience, and waiting for my heart to quit pounding, my stomach to stop churning. I must have looked pretty stunned, because [my husband] asked me if I was OK, and all I could initially articulate to him as he looked over at me was, "What the f___ just happened to me?"

We broke for dinner at about that moment, and I realized my opportunity to share it with the class had passed. But I still wanted to tell you about it, and, of course, [my husband]. We had driven separate cars that day, so we met at the house before going to the restaurant, and there at home I told him. He stared at me while I told him about it, saying it was pretty amazing, but I'd better not say anything about it in front of the class as a whole, that it was way too personal to just lay out there that way. He suggested I call [my brother], that he'd be able to decode it for me and would definitely be interested. I agreed, but thought at the same time that I really should tell you, but wanted to do so in private.

We went to dinner and then to the meet and greet with the class, but I held back, there were always too many people around. Perhaps now, after reading my account, you understand my hesitancy. Because to be honest, I wasn't sure how to begin, I was still unsure of myself, unsure of how to confess to someone I had only just met that under his direction I had experienced a union that was way more than sexual with someone who was apparently a Being of Light, a resident of the angelic realms, and also not sure of what that said about me. But I knew who would know what it all meant, and so as soon as I got home on Sunday, I called my brother and told the whole story to him. He was jubilant, congratulatory, awestruck, and then he asked me, "Well, what did Lon say when you told him?" I had to admit that I hadn't been sure of what or how to communicate it, and had been further stymied by my husband's reaction to it. My brother was incredulous. How could I not have shared that vision with you, who of all people, would understand it and sympathize with my bewilderment at it? I should have told you everything, he insisted. I agreed and promised him I would write you. And so here we are.

My brother was curious to know which of the Aethyrs you had us reading from, and I couldn't remember; my husband thinks you said we were only going to push ourselves up a level, but my brother thinks I went farther than that and said you might recognize which one. There were things about the place that I recognized from dreams—it's a place I've dreamed of my whole life but never consciously remembered until now. I'm not unaccustomed to visions and vision quests, but this was unlike anything I've ever done before. My body's reaction to it was visceral; I crashed hard when I came back from it, and I continued to feel the physical aftereffects for several days (kind of like recovery from a bad acid trip). Today, Thursday, I'm finally feeling back up to steam. My brother said that's a normal reaction to astral projection; is that really what I did? I have my own theories about the imagery and symbolism. I'm a massage therapist and energy worker, a master of the Usui and Karuna systems of Reiki, and the student of a spirit guide who was a Native American shaman. The ejaculation of light that turned into crystals and sank into my palms resonates with me on several levels. I think one possible meaning is that it was a gift to use in my healing work. I can tell you that all this week, whenever I've "turned on" the Reiki or use one of the symbols, the chakras in my palms blaze with heat, my patients have actually commented on it! (In fact, they're heating up right now, just thinking about it.) [My brother] didn't exactly discount my idea about it, but he said there was a lot more mystical significance there than I realized, or than he should even talk to me about until I talked to you. Obviously, it's loaded with archetypal images, but I would love to know what you get from them, what level you sent me to, and if you recognize anything from my descriptions.

Thanks for your patience. This has turned from an email into a novella! I eagerly await your reply!

Brightest blessings!

- 18 In magick, “invocation” usually refers to the calling into oneself the presence or the essence of Deity; “evocation” usually refers to calling forth a spiritual entity (angel, spirit, demon, etc.) into the magician’s triangle of art, there to be constrained and charged to do the magician’s bidding. Theoretically, once the magician has successfully invoked the divine presence within himself or herself, he or she then has the divine authority to evoke the spirits.

51 The letter b (or Pa in the angelic alphabet) is used liberally in Heptarchic and Enochian magick. The frequency of its appearance has prompted some modern scholars to speculate that it represents the number seven, the key or foundational number of Dee and Kelley's angelic magick.

97 INRI is an acronym of the Latin phrase Iesus Nazarenus Rex Iudaeorum, "Jesus the Nazarene, King of the Jews." It appears in the Gospel of John (chapter 19, verse 19). The four letters also have profound esoteric meanings to Christian mystics and ceremonial magicians, who see in the letters a magical formula of creation and being.

98 In astrology it is the four fixed, or kerubic, signs of the zodiac that exemplify the purest elemental quality. For example, there are three zodiac signs that represent the element of Fire: Aries, Leo, and Sagittarius. Aries is the cardinal or initial aspect of Fire, Leo is the fixed (kerubic) or firmly defined aspect of Fire, and Sagittarius is the mutable and most easily influenced aspect of Fire.

The four fixed (kerubic) signs of the zodiac are: Aquarius (Air), Scorpio (Water), Taurus (Earth), and Leo (Fire). The classic symbols of the fixed signs (the angel of Aquarius, the eagle of Scorpio, the bull of Taurus, and the lion of Leo) are called the kerubic emblems and appear often in Christian iconography.

122 Dee, like most of his contemporaries, believed the island of Friseland to exist. It was, in fact, a duplication of Iceland on an early map, an error which was repeated. When its coast was supposedly skirted, this was actually the coast of Cape Farewell, Southern Greenland. Note also that today Germania (Part 29) incorporates Poland. In Dee's time Poland was located further eastward and would have formed part of Sarmatia or Russia (Part 46).

About the Author

Lon Milo DuQuette is a bestselling author and lecturer, whose books on Magick, Tarot, and the Western Mystery Traditions have been translated into ten languages. He is currently U.S. Deputy Grand Master of Ordo Templi Orientis and is on the faculty of the Omega Institute in Reinbeck, NY and the Maybe Logic Academy. Among his many books, he is the author of My Life with the Spirits (Weiser 1999), Understanding Aleister Crowley's Thoth Tarot (Weiser 2003), The Magick of Aleister Crowley (Weiser 2003), and Tarot of Ceremonial Magick (Weiser 1995). He lives in Costa Mesa, CA with his wife Constance. Visit him on the Web at: www.lonmiloduquette.com.

Having mastered the arts and science of his age, Elizabethan magus Dr. John Dee [1527–1608] resolved that worldly knowledge could no longer provide him the wisdom he desired. He turned his attention to magick, and in 1582 he and his clairvoyant partner Edward Kelley made contact with a number of spiritual entities who identified themselves as angels—the same angels that communicated with Adam, Enoch, and the patriarchs of the Old Testament. Over the next three years three distinct magical systems were revealed to Dee and Kelley. The third, thanks largely to efforts from the adepts of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn and the 20th-century practices of Aleister Crowley, is now widely known as Enochian Magick.

Enochian Vision Magick includes extensive background and historical notes, explores the foundation for the creation of the Enochian Magick system, and provides readers with a step-by-step process for using it.

“Lon DuQuette is a miracle worker, and Enochian Vision Magick is his greatest miracle. His uncanny gift for clear and simple explanations has produced the most accessible, interesting, personal and—most importantly—practical guide to Enochian magick available.”

—Richard Kaczinski, Ph.D., author of Perdurabo: The Life of Aleister Crowley

“DuQuette has created a truly original and highly interesting vision of the practical application of the Enochian System. He treats the material as Dee intended it to be treated—as a gateway into another world.”

—Geoffrey James, editor and translator of The Enochian Evocation of Dr. John Dee

“It has fallen to Lon Milo DuQuette to provide an easy entrance to the Watchtowers of Dee’s magic. In doing so he has done modern magic a great service.”

—Stephen Skinner, co-author of The Practical Angel Magic of Dr. John Dees’s Enochian Tables

“We are lucky to finally have a useful introduction to this difficult subject that provides the aspiring Enochian conjurer with both the proper foundation and the tools to successfully begin what can become a lifelong adventure and labor of love.”

—David R. Jones, Master of The Black Lodge of Santa Cruz

HERMETIC MAGIC FOR EVERYONE

Here is . . . the Enochian Magic as taught by the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, but in a complete and easy-to-read textbook that can be used by the magical novice.

Here is . . . a dictionary of Enochian words listed in order of gematria value to facilitate the magical process.

Here is . . . basic information of correspondence and original ideas to also please the seasoned magician.

In late sixteenth century England Dr. John Dee, Astrologer Royal to Queen Elizabeth I, began working with his assistant Edward Kelly, setting down a magical alphabet and system that was presented to him by extraterrestrial intelligences. Communication was by "scrying", or crystal-gazing. The system was unique. It was embellished by Dee's own Qabalistic speculations and by further magical material dictated by the spirits. The Enochian alphabet is unrelated to any previous lettering system; totally dissimilar to Latin, Greek, Hebrew and most magical alphabets. It is almost a series of Qabalistic pictographs meant to be imagined visually and not commonly inscribed. The Enochian language has a unique grammar and syntax structure. Over the years since its introduction, it has come to be regarded as a "classic" of magical working. It was adopted and refined by the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn and, later, by Aleister Crowley.

In this book you are led carefully along the path from "A brief history of the Enochian Magical System", through "How to speak Enochian", "How to Invoke", "The Calls", "Egyptian Deities" and "Chief Hazards" to "How to visit the Aethyrs in Spirit Vision (Astral Projection)". Not a step is missed; not a necessary instruction forgotten.

We are "more than human. The human is but one expression of the divine, albeit an enormously important one. Every magician who has experienced the higher Aethyrs is aware of the awesome power of the magically directed will. S/he is also fully aware of the karmic consequences of his thoughts and actions". So says the author. "Any attempt to appeal to the Enochian deities (even the demons) with selfish intent will produce a corresponding karmic effect. Every student of magic must take this warning seriously if he is to progress."

There are, then, warnings. And this is as it should be, for you must set foot upon the path with as true a map of the way ahead as it is possible to obtain. And this book is such a map. Take it and move forward.

THE OBJECTIVE OF THIS MANUAL

This manual is an attempt to eliminate the unnecessary complexity of the Enochian magical system while combining its numerous elements into a single source. The system described here borrows heavily from both the Golden Dawn and Aleister Crowley. The earnest student is advised to study THE GOLDEN DAWN by Israel Regardie, especially Volume IV. Also recommended are Crowley's THE VISION AND THE VOICE and LIBER LXXXIX VEL CHANOKH, both of which can be found in GEMS OF THE EQUINOX by Israel Regardie.

This manual contains the complete theory behind the system, with explanations and tabulated data, together with step-by-step instructions and detailed examples for the serious student. Charts and tables are provided to summarize data which are unavailable elsewhere. Any student willing to spend time and effort will have a corresponding degree of success. The truly amazing thing about this system is that it really does work.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE ENOCHIAN MAGICAL SYSTEM

As far as anyone knows, the magical system using Enochian language to describe the four quadrants and thirty Aethyrs originated with John Dee and Edward Kelly.

John Dee was born in England in 1527 in the small village of Mortlake on the Thames, just outside of London. He entered college at the age of 15. He later journeyed abroad and became proficient in navigation. At one point he was imprisoned for treason against Queen Mary because he had cast a horoscope for her, even though it was at her request. He was finally cleared of the charge and released, but the experience itself was one he never really got over.

At his family's property in Mortlake, he accumulated a tremendous library which soon became a center for science and learning. Dee himself was considered an authority on mathematics, navigation, astronomy and optics, and was appointed Astrologer Royal to Elizabeth I. He is said to have married in 1574, but his wife's name is not known and she died the following year.

It was in 1581 that Dee began crystal-gazing. By then he had a new wife, Jane Fromond, a lady-in-waiting at Elizabeth's court. He was intensely interested in the art of crystallo-mancy, but was himself unable to succeed at it. He was not a medium, much to his regret. However, he found someone else who was and who was willing to help him in his studies. His name was Edward Talbott; a rogue who, for reasons unknown, changed his name to Kelly after meeting Dee. Although most historians credit Dee with intelligence, curiosity, and the honest kindness that often accompanies men of genius, few paint Kelly as anything but an illiterate swindler whose life of crime evidenced little humanity or concern for humanity. Perhaps the only really positive thing that can be said for Kelly is that he was in fact a very good scrier. His mediumship ability was needed by Dee who simply overlooked, or pardoned, his other less promising characteristics. Whatever the true situation, they became friends and together produced a staggering amount of original work in the fields of occultism and magic.

By using a collection of different "glasses", or crystals, and special "shew-stones," Kelly was able to communicate with extraterrestrial intelligences. Dee directed the ceremonies, observed the proceedings, and carefully wrote down the results. It was in this way that the entire magical system, which is called Enochian, originated. The letters of the Enochian alphabet, or angelic language, were written in rows and columns on large tablets. Magical seals and talismans were devised with Enochian letters on them. The thirty "Aethyrs", or planes, were described. The names of the angelic hierarchies of the universe were carefully recorded.

In 1583, Dee and Kelly toured Europe while practicing their Qabalah and scrying. When they returned to England in 1587, things had changed. A mob had looted Dee's house and partially destroyed his library. He was without money and his old friends were either dead or out of power. The ascension of King James I, in 1603, who feared magic and had no love for Dee, assured his ultimate downfall. He died penniless in 1608.

As for Kelly, he was scrying in the seventh Aethyr one day, when a message came to him that terrified him completely. In fact, he is said to have sworn to scry no more from that fateful day. In an overwhelming fit of desperation, he robbed Dee of what little money he had left, helped Dee's wife pack her bags, and together they left Dee never to return. He is said to have ended his days in a return to crime. The message that so frightened Kelly and brought an end to Enochian Magic was the following:

"I am the daughter of Fortitude and ravished every hour from my youth. For behold, I am Understanding, and science dwelleth in me; and the heavens oppress me. They cover and desire me with infinite appetite; for none that are earthly have embraced me, for I am shadowed with the Circle of the Stars, and covered with the morning clouds. My feet are swifter than the winds, and my hands are sweeter than the morning dew. My garments are from the beginning, and my dwelling place is in myself. The Lion knoweth not where I walk, neither do the beasts of the field understand me. I am deflowered, yet a virgin; I sanctify and am not sanctified. Happy is he that embraceth me: for in the night season I am sweet, and in the day full of pleasure. My company is a harmony of many symbols, and my lips sweeter than health itself. I am a harlot for such as ravish me, and a virgin with such as know me not. Purge your streets, O ye sons of men, and wash your houses clean; make yourselves holy, and put on righteousness. Cast out your old strumpets, and burn their clothes and then I will bring forth children unto you and they shall be the Sons of Comfort in the Age that is to come."

Nothing more was known of this work of Dee and Kelly until late in nineteenth century England. There it was taken up by a mysterious and highly secret brotherhood of Adepts and would-be Adepts who called themselves the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn. Led by three imaginative magicians, S.L. Mathers, W. Wynn Westcott, and A.F.A. Woodford, the Order adopted the system of Enochian Magic created by Dee and Kelly. Members of the Golden Dawn invoked the spirits of the quadrants and traveled in their astral and mental bodies (called "traveling in the Spirit Vision") through the Aethyrs. Like Dee, they maintained meticulous records of their experiences and approached the Enochian magical system with a scientific attitude. But they went even farther than Dee. They related the Enochian with the Qabalah (a Hebrew system of magic) and with the Tarot (a deck of 72 cards said to be the "Book of Thoth"—the god Thoth was the Egyptian god of wisdom and magic). They also devised a system of geomancy and carefully related it to Enochian letters.

The system rested in the secrecy of the Golden Dawn until one of its members published his version of it and then left that Order to form his own. His name was Aleister Crowley and he was perhaps the first since Kelly to actually visit each of the Aethyrs and confront the presiding spirits and guardians. In fact, Crowley claimed to have been Kelly in a past life. This was the reason he gave for his uncanny ability to scry into these mysterious Aethyrs (see below—How the Magic Works: The Planes) using a shew-stone very much like Kelly did. His experiences were recorded in a book called THE VISION AND THE VOICE, which is written in such obscure symbolism and technical language that few today can understand it. Crowley, whose colorful life suggests elements of the rogue, was an amazing psychic and a prolific writer and poet. He advanced the Enochian system by revealing those planetary and numerical correspondences which make Enochian gematria possible. Unfortunately, the published works of Crowley and the Golden Dawn differ slightly in spellings and in certain correspondences. The student is free to judge for himself which interpretation to use.

The Enochian Alphabet.

John Dee and Edward Kelly devised a language so powerful, they had to spell names backwards in order to avoid conjuring unwanted demons. A simple pronouncement of a demon's name in this new language, they believed, would be sufficient to bring that demon forth into manifestation. They called this language Enochian after the patriarch

Enoch, who is said to have "walked with God". The name Enoch was also said by occultists to represent an ancient group of Adepts who kept the flame of occultism burning through many dark centuries. Table I shows the Enochian alphabet with its titles for each letter and their English equivalents, as taught by the Golden Dawn.

Alphabet Numerical Values.

Each letter of the Enochian alphabet corresponds with planetary, elemental, or Tarot properties. In addition, each has a numerical value so that a workable gematria for the Enochian alphabet can be used, as shown in Table II.

Each letter is assigned a numerical value. By substituting numbers for letters, we can add up the numerical equivalents for words and names. Words that are numerically equal have hidden or occult correspondences. In this way an entire Enochian Qabalah, like the Jewish and Greek, can be derived.

The Angelic Secret Language.

The Golden Dawn taught that the Enochian was an ancient language. Traces of it could be found in the sacred and secret mysteries of some of the oldest religions in the world. Parts of it are found on rock-cut pillars and on the remains of ancient temples. However, it is doubtful if it was ever spoken, but was probably used more as sigils and glyphs to record and give life to important ideas.

If this is so, then the question of how Dee and Kelly came upon it has never been satisfactorily answered. According to Dee's diary, Kelly looked through a "shewstone" and saw an angel pointing, in succession, to letters that were prepared in rows and columns on well over one hundred different tablets. Kelly told Dee which letter was being indicated by the angel and Dee dutifully wrote it down. He was always careful to give the row and column number, fearing to say the letter aloud. After each message was received, it was rewritten backwards. The angel himself dictated each letter in reverse order because of the power of the language. In this way the magical names were constructed as well as the calls of the Aethyrs, which use the letters to actually make sentences. Of course, the angel himself probably knew whether the language he used was ancient or new but, if so, he apparently never told Dee.

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: THE WILL

Every intentional act is a magical act. It is the human intent or will that makes an act magical, nothing else. This is a very important idea. It can be seen that most of our daily actions are actually magical. We are in fact, consciously or unconsciously, all magicians.

As one's intent makes an act magical, so it also colors that magic either black or white. As a general rule, "black" magic is any intentional act whose purpose is purely selfish or ego-oriented. By contrast, "white" magic is any intentional act whose motive is altruistic or non-ego-oriented.

The Enochian magical system comprises two chief types of magical operations: (i) invocations of the ruling spirits (i.e. bringing them to you) and (ii) astral traveling into the quadrants and Aethyrs described by the system (i.e. you going to them). Both types have been used effectively and can be used today by the willing student. The system works because the magician wills it so. On the other hand, the system will not work if such is one's will.

There can be a difference between "will" and "desire". The will exercises a strong determination toward conscious and deliberate action. Desire, on the other hand, can be whimsical or impulsive. It is the task of each student to carefully examine his mind and sort out the capricious desires from those strong determinations that mark the will. The quest for one's TRUE WILL, that for which one comes into this world, can take many years.

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: THE MOTIVE

The motive is the driving force behind every magical act and is critical for success. Curiosity alone is usually not sufficient.

The student must look within himself to see what his true motive is. Is it selfish? Will a successful result benefit only himself? Will anyone be hurt? How these and similar questions are answered will determine the karma of the operation.

Karma is the cause and effect relationship that exists between all things and it operates on all planes of existence. Every magical act is charged with karma; physical, mental, emotional, and so on. Karma does not reward or punish. It is amoral. It is impersonal. It is ruthless. It continually seeks a balance between extremes and cares not for the ill-fated magician who inadvertently stresses its delicate network.

Religion and morality aside for a moment, any magical act that falls under the general heading of white magic will produce karmic effects that are pleasant, while acts that are black (i.e. selfish) will produce karmic effects that sooner or later are most unpleasant. This being the case, common sense alone can dictate the choice of proper motive for the wise magician.

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: THE PLANES

Central to Enochian magic, and all other forms of true magic, is the doctrine concerning the cosmic planes of existence. This doctrine says that divinity expresses itself downward (or outward) from spirit into matter in graduated steps something like cosmic quanta. Each of these steps is a plane or universe. Our earth and the entire physical cosmos, is on the seventh (i.e. lowest and most dense) of these cosmic planes.

Table III shows the usual occult and Qabalistic divisions of these planes and the corresponding bodies that we assume on each. There is no need to create any of these bodies, we each already have them. What is needed is to learn to function consciously in them. Notice that the Abyss marks the major division between form and formlessness. Here the Oversoul, or Reincarnating Ego, takes on "new bodies" with each incarnation of the spirit. The doctrine of reincarnation is used to understand and describe these seven planes and how we function on them. This is because initiation into these planes is similar to death.

The major difference between the leveled or stepped system of occultism shown in Table III and the Enochian is that in the latter these cosmic planes are considered as concentric spheres. The Enochian system subdivides these concentric spheres into thirty regions or zones which it calls the Aethyrs.

HOW TO SPEAK ENOCHIAN

The pronunciation of Enochian, as taught by both the Golden Dawn and Aleister Crowley, is similar to Hebrew. Ten major rules to remember are:

1. Most consonants have an e or eh added; for example, the letter B is pronounced beh and the letter K as keh.
2. Most vowels have an h added; for example, the letter A is pronounced ah.
3. The Enochian word SOBHA is pronounced in three syllables as soh-beh-hah. This is the general rule for words.
4. The letter G can be either hard as in the word gimel or soft as in jimel.
5. The letters Y and I are interchangeable, as are the letters V and U. The letters j and w are seldom used.
6. The letter X can be like the s in samekh, or like the tz in tzaddi.
7. The letter S can be pronounced either as ess or seh.
8. The letter R can be pronounced either as rah, reh, or ar.
9. The letter Z is pronounced as zod. It is interchangeable with the letter S.
10. The vowel I is pronounced as ee.

Examples of Name Pronouncements.

Correctly pronouncing the names of the gods, spirits, and rulers of the quadrants and Aethyrs, is critical in order to obtain satisfactory magical results. As a rule of thumb, the syllables should flow together easily and poetically almost like a song. Seldom is a harsh or sharp sound made.

The reciting aloud of these names should be like speaking mantras. Each should be intoned in one long flowing breath, if possible. As an example, recite the name of a Senior of Air, HABIORO. This should be done in a single smooth breath. Say, Hah-bee-oh-roh. The mouth should make four distinct syllables with this name. During an invocation of this Senior, the magician must focus his mind on the qualities of HABIORO, while repeating his name in four melodious syllables.

Some names are subject to several possible spellings. This is because some squares on the Watchtowers contain multiple letters. As a general rule, pronunciation should include all letters, or the highest whenever only one is desired (the multiple letters are given like a fraction with a higher and a lower row). However, there are exceptions to this rule.

An example here is the name of the great King of Earth, IKZHIKAL. This name can also be spelled IKZHHHAL, IKZHIHAL, and IKZHHKAL because the squares give IKZH<sup>H</sup><sub>K</sub>AL where the fifth and sixth letters are multiple. The best way of pronouncing this King's name is to choose the variant spelling that has the most meaningful gematric value. In this case, this is Ee-keh-zod-hee-kal.

How To Vibrate The Names.

In addition to pronunciation, some names should be vibrated. This is especially important during invocations. When a name is to be vibrated, the speaker must imagine the sound of the name going outward from himself into the farthest reaches of the universe. As the name is being pronounced verbally, it must be projected outward mentally. After verbal pronunciation, the magician should still be able to "hear" the name psychically and "see" the name expand over the Watchtowers and Aethyrs. The vibration of a name requires full concentration.

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: THE IMAGINATION

Imagination is essential in magic. It is the golden key to the performance of any magical operation. All of the usual magic paraphernalia—incense, music, rituals, chants, robes, signs, symbols and the like—are useful only insofar as they are able to stimulate the imagination.

For example, during an invocation of a spirit, while chanting the name the magician must concentrate on the known qualities and characteristics until the spirit is clearly visualized in his mind. It is a mental image held by the magician. This image will stimulate the precipitation of the spirit. Because of this intense imagery, after the fact it is usually impossible to determine if a spirit actually manifested physically or not. It is a point of interest here that it doesn't matter in the least so far as the results are concerned.

This magical image is called a Telesmatic image and it is important for effective results. Every Angel, King, Senior, Governor, and so forth, has his own telesmatic image. However, this telesmatic image can vary widely, within certain limits, with each magician. No angel or king will appear exactly the same to every magician, though certain characteristics are universal. For example, every angel in the Watchtower of Fire must exhibit a fiery nature in one way or another. Appearance, in every case, must correspond with locality and function.

The imagination is the creative faculty of man. With its use, thoughts take on form. This may not seem to be of concern on Earth where thoughts have little effect. But in the psychic world, which one sees in the "Spirit Vision", it is very important indeed. There, thoughts are real things. On the Mental Plane the thought-form of a tree, for example, is as real to one's spirit vision as an oak is to one's eyes on the Physical Plane. The magical power of imagination to create thought forms is called Kriya Sakti. The conscious use of thought forms is called Kriya Sakti. The conscious use of Kriya Sakti on Earth is rare, and difficult to develop. But on the Astral and Mental Planes it is very much easier. Actually, we all use Kriya Sakti subconsciously; it is the power which causes dreams. Its control is equivalent to being able to fall asleep and consciously direct a dream.

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: THE SPIRITS

According to the Enochian magical system, the universe is chock full of spiritual intelligent beings and forces. Every region in space throughout the seven cosmic planes is ruled by a hierarchy of deities. Each has a slightly different character and quality. Which one we choose to encounter, depends upon our motive for the magical operation.

This idea is in accord with a basic tenet of occultism: the entire universe is alive. There is no such thing as dead matter (or dead anything else). However, because things have life (and therefore consciousness) completely foreign to ours, they appear quite lifeless and communication with them is impossible. A corollary of this tenet is that there is no such thing as empty space. Every mathematical point in space is a center of some kind of consciousness (called a monad). A vacuum is a figment of our imagination. We can detect nothing in a vacuum, but something is there nonetheless.

Are these spirits real? Do the Kings and Seniors have objective existence? Here the student must adopt a special attitude; it is more convenient to accept their existence than it is to reject it. If we accept them as real, the operations have satisfactory results; if we reject their reality, the magic will not work. It is just that simple. Belief is important in order to properly goad the imagination. Whether they actually exist or not (i.e. whether they exist objectively or subjectively) must be answered individually by each person according to his experiences and convictions.

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: THE ROD

The magician will have to trace pentagrams and hexagrams during invocation and banishing rituals. With this in mind, a rod or wand of some kind is required. This rod is the only magical implement that is actually required for Enochian Magic, although the four Elemental Weapons could certainly be used. These were described in some detail by the Golden Dawn and consecrated by appropriate rituals, but the following could be used just as well:

The Fire Wand—This can be a dowel rod about ten inches long, painted red.

The Water Cup—This can be any blue cup, either metal or glass.

The Air Dagger—this can be a simple knife or letter-opener, painted bright yellow.

The Earth Pentacle—This can be a round wooden disk about four inches in diameter and painted black.

The magic rod can be a wooden dowel either  $\frac{1}{4}$  or  $\frac{1}{2}$  inch in diameter and about one foot long. It should be painted gold or, if preferred, divided into equal sections of white, blue, yellow, black and red, which are the colors of the elements. Painting or engraving the symbols of the elements is also encouraged.

The wand symbolizes the highest will of the magician. This is the so-called True Will; an individual expression of the Great Work. It is the aim of macrocosmic human evolution as this is expressed in the microcosmic magician. This works best when it is unconscious and is allowed to influence the entire life and life-style of the magician as a matter of course. If the Great Work is likened to climbing a mountain, then the True Will is the individual pathway taken up the slopes to arrive at the common peak. This True Will is symbolized by the straightness and arrow-like nature of the rod.

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: THE GREAT WORK

The ultimate aim, and only truly worthy purpose of magic (like mysticism) is to awaken the consciousness of man to his inherent divinity, the god within. Everyone has an inner spiritual being. The mind and personality are but faint expressions of it. The physical body is its far-distant reflection. Table III shows that each of man's vehicles is a creative expression of the other, from the spiritual down to the physical. However, few are directly aware of this and even fewer can focus consciousness on their spiritual body as easily as they can on their physical body. Indeed, modern psychology shows that most people have a difficult time being aware of their own emotions and thoughts. The subconscious seems an alien and threatening land, ready to snuff out the ego at the first opportunity. If we are unable to focus consciousness on the astral body (emotions) or on the mental body (thoughts), how can we do so on the causal and spiritual bodies? How can we function in the spiritual body as consciously as we do in the physical body? It is not easy, yet this is exactly what the real magician tries to do. The attempt is called the "Great Work" and it is the toil of many lifetimes. Every magical operation worthy of being performed (i.e. white magic) is done to further this Great Work. Every invocation and all traveling in the Spirit Vision, as described in Enochian Magic, should be done solely to tread the path which continues, in some degree, the Great Work.

THE HOLY TABLE

Dee and Kelly devised a Holy Twelffold Table containing seven different talismans, as shown in Figure 1. This table is covered with Enochian writings. In the center is:

|   |   |   |
|---|---|---|
| O | I | T |
| M | L | U |
| L | M | L |
| O | O | E |

Reading across, we get OIT which means "this is";

MLU which means "a surge"; LML meaning "a treasure"; and OOE meaning "ecstasy." Taken together, this says, "This is an outpouring of rich ecstasy."

Reading downward we get OMLO which can mean "knowledge of the first"; ILMO meaning "of the Aethyrs"; and TULE meaning "also of the last." Taken together this says, "The knowledge of the first of the Aethyrs even unto the last."

A detailed description of the thirty Aethyrs is given later, however the key to their understanding is contained here in this Holy Table.

Around the outer edge of the Holy Table are Enochian letters. These are arranged without any visible break or starting point. Reading the message either clockwise or counterclockwise is to no avail. But the center four words give the key to reading this message. This is because the words OIT, MUL, LML and OOE are all found in the surrounding message. The message's words are thus read clockwise beginning with the word OIT, but the letters within the words are read counterclockwise (i.e. backwards), except in a few instances where they are scrambled into an anagram. The message around the Holy Table can be translated as follows:

This is the place of the outpouring of forgotten treasure in the form of ecstasy.
OIT EOGA MLU

LN-BAM LML EOAN OOE

Only Fire is substantial here. This is GZE PLG (PRG) BASP OI

the way of Babalon and of PSEA (ESAP) M OAVAANBBL (BABALON-V)

the Beast who is the First Form.
LN-NIA-O SOB SSNO (ZON) - L.

The eyes only need rest upon the name of EG (GE) OOOEON F G-DO any guardian and its representative
BNG (BRABZG) SMAN-M will speedily be encountered.
MEL-F

This message mentions "Babalon" and the "Beast", a favorite theme of Aleister Crowley. According to these directions, a simple glance at the awesome name of a "guardian" will be sufficient to precipitate an encounter. The reader should take this as a dire warning. Although the likelihood of a physical manifestation of one of these guardians right before the reader's eyes is remote, a psychic manifestation in the form of an alien impulse or desire is highly probable. The danger here is that one may ignore this warning, being quite content that no ugly or mischievous demon will suddenly appear before him in a puff of grey smoke. However, demons come in other forms than those seen with eyes. The reader must guard his mind. That Dee and Kelly clearly believed this themselves is evidenced by the way they carefully anagrammed the name of BABALON in the message, fearing that a straightforward spelling would bring her too close. History shows that Kelly himself finally became a victim to one of these strange and powerful Enochian forces.

THE HOLY PANTACLE

The Holy Pantacle, or Great Seal, devised by Dee and Kelly is shown in Figure 2. This magical device was carefully carved in wax and placed on top of the Holy Table during certain operations. The pantacle contains the sacred names of many great angels.

- II. Names of four groups of angels can be found by reading the heptagram of the Pantacle obliquely:

- A.
  1. E (Eh)
  2. Me (Meh)
  3. Ese (Es-seh)
  4. Iana (Ee-ah-nah)
  5. Akele (Ah-keh-leh)
  6. Azdobn (Ah-zod-doh-ben)
  7. Stimcul (Ess-tee-em-kul)
- B.
  1. I (Ee) (Sol)
  2. IH (Ee-heh) (Luna)
  3. Ilr (Ee-lar) (Venus)
  4. Dmal (Dem-ah-el) (Jupiter)
  5. Heeoa (Heh-oh-ah) (Mars)
  6. Beigia (Beh-ee-gee-ah) (Mercury)
  7. Stimcul (Ess-tee-em-kul) (Saturn)
- C.
  1. S (Ess)
  2. Ab (Ab-beh)
  3. Ath (Ah-teh)
  4. Ized (Ee-zod-deh)
  5. Ekiei (Eh-kee-eh)
  6. Madimi (Em-ah-dee-mee)
  7. Esemeli (Ess-em-el-ee)

  2. An (Ah-neh)

3. Ave (Ah-veh)
4. Liba (El-ee-bah)
5. Rocle (Roh-kah-leh)
6. Hagone (Hah-goh-neh)
7. Ilemese (Ee-leh-meh-seh)

III. Seven great angels are named. These are the angels of the Seven Circles of Heaven:

1. SAB-ATH-IEL "He who is first in works"
2. Z-EDEK-IEL "He who is first in attainment"
3. MAD-IM-IEL "He who is first in expressing God"
4. SE-MEL-IEL "He who is first in speed"
5. NO-GAH-EL "He who is first in spirit"
6. K-ORAB-EIL "He who is first in ecstasy"
7. LEV-ANAEL "He who is first in the Secret Wisdom"

IV. Outside the heptagram are the seven names:

1. ZLLRHIA Zod-el-lar-hee-ah
2. AZKAAKB Ah-zod-kah-ah-kebeh
3. PAVPNHR Pah-veh-pen-har
4. HDMHLAI Heh-dem-hel-ahee
5. KKAAEEE Keh-kah-ah-eh-eh-eh
6. IIEELLL Ee-ee-eh-el-le-leh
7. EELLMG Eh-el-lem-geh

V. Around the outer rim of the seal are two sets of numbers and letters at regular intervals. By an imaginative process of deciphering these curious letters and numbers, the Golden Dawn produced the names of the four elemental Kings (these are not the same as the Kings of the Watchtowers) as follows:

1. Elemental King of Air. Tahaoeloge
2. Elemental King of Water. Thahebyobeaatanun
3. Elemental King of Earth. Tahaaaothe
4. Elemental King of Fire. Ohooohaatan

Concerning The Names On The Holy Pantacle.

Although there is no attempt here to describe an invocation ritual for these angels, the reader may do so if he desires. Using the numerical values contained in Table II for letters, gematria can be used to obtain a specific number for each name. For example, the first name of the second group is "I" which letter can mean either "is" or "is not" and therefore denotes the duality of existence and nonexistence. Its character is solar and its number is 60, the number for the Hebrew word GAVN which means "glory" and "sublimity."

The seven great angels who are each "first" are important deities who preside over the Circles of Heaven (i.e. the seven cosmic planes). They should be invoked only with great caution.

THE FOUR GREAT WATCHTOWERS

Dee and Kelly constructed four Tablets, or Watchtowers, one for each of the four quadrants (also called angles) of space. Figure 3 shows an overview of these four great Watchtowers and the Black Cross that unites them together.

quadrangle or Tablet is shown separately in Figures 4 through 7 with English equivalents as used by the Golden Dawn. The names of all of the angelic hierarchies of the universe can be found from these Tablets.

Surrounding the Watchtowers are thirty concentric circles of increasing radii which represent the thirty Aethyrs or Aires.

As the Black Cross divides the Tablet into four quadrants, so each quadrant is itself subdivided as shown in Figure 8. The Black Cross is then arranged in the form of a special Tablet called the Tablet of Union as shown in Figure 9.

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: THE FOUR ELEMENTS

The Enochian, like all other systems of magic, makes use of four primary elements. These are earth, water, air and fire and they correspond to many things, as shown in Table IV. These attributes and correspondences are important in order to determine the precise location on the Watchtowers where one wishes to travel, or to select a spirit to converse with.

Figure 8 shows the elements as they relate to the Watchtowers. Combinations of elements such as Earth-of-Air and Fire-of-Water are made to better specify the nature of the locality. A visit to Water-of-Earth in the north for example, could be interpreted as a lake or pond. Similarly, Earth-of-Water in the west could be interpreted as an island or large ship. Additional explanations are given below.

1. Fire of Fire, Aries, violent fire
2. Air of Fire, Leo, continuous fire
3. Water of Fire, Sagittarius, reflective fire
4. Earth of Fire, dispersiveness
5. Fire of Air, Libra, violent wind
6. Air of Air, Aquarius, steady moving air
7. Water of Air, Gemini, stagnant air
8. Earth of Air, flexibility
9. Fire of Water, Cancer, violent water
10. Air of Water, Scorpio, evaporating water
11. Water of Water, Pisces, stagnant water
12. Earth of Water, cohesiveness
13. Fire of Earth, Capricorn, violent earth, mountains
14. Air of Earth, Taurus, flat earth, plains
15. Water of Earth, Virgo, quiet life-giving earth, fields
16. Earth of Earth, solidity

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: THE FIFTH ELEMENT

In addition to the four elements of the Watchtowers, a fifth element, Spirit, is used in Enochian Magic. This element is assigned to the Tablet of Union. The symbol for Spirit is a spoked wheel ☸ and its color is white. Together, these five elements are symbolized by the five-pointed pentagram (Figure 16). Usually the element Spirit is assigned to the topmost point. When the pentagram is inverted the four elements are over Spirit (and therefore have supremacy). This is said to be an unholy sign, used only in operations of black magic. The reason for this is that Spirit has a natural supremacy over the four elements of earth, water, air and fire (they are in fact, expressions of Spirit) and any reversal is therefore unnatural.

GREAT SECRET HOLY NAMES

The four quadrants each give a great secret Holy Name of God along its middle row (called the "Linea Spiritus Sancti"). Each name is three words having 3, 4 and 5 letters:

1. Air. The air quadrant contains the name
ORO-IBAH-AOZPI (OROI-BAHAO-Z-PI)
This name is pronounced Oh-roh-Ee-bah-Ah-oh-zod-pee and means
"He who cries aloud in the place of desolation."
2. Water. The water quadrant contains the name
MPH-ARSL-GAIOL (MPH-ARS-L-G-IA-OL)
This name is pronounced Em-Peh-heh-Ar-ess-el-Gah-ee-oh-lēh and means
"He who is the first true creator; the horned one."
3. Earth. The earth quadrant contains the name
MOR-DIAL-HKTGA (MORD-IAL-HKT-GA)
This name is pronounced Moh-ar-Dee-ah-leh-Heh-keh-teh-gah and means
"He who burns up iniquity without equal."
4. Fire. The fire quadrant contains the name
OIP-TEAA-PDOKE (OI-P-TEA-AP-DO-KE)
This name is pronounced Oh-ee-peh-Teh-ah-ah-Peh-doh-keh and means
"He whose name is unchanged from what it was."

Correct Pronouncement of the Holy Names.

The four great secret Holy Names should be pronounced in one long flowing breath if possible. However, emphasis should be given to the first syllable of each name section. For example, ORO-IBAH-AOZPI should be spoken with emphasis on the Oh, Ee and Ah syllables which begin each section of the name.

An alternate method of pronunciation is to pause briefly after each section. This results in saying three distinct names. For example, one could say Oh-roh Ee-bah Ah-oh-zod-pee. Either method is effective. The student should experiment with both and then choose the way that works best for him.

Gematria of the Four Great Holy Names.

1. ORO-IBAH-AOZPI is 340, the number for the Enochian word ZOKH meaning "the past," and the Hebrew word PRS meaning "Vulture" (the vulture was used by the ancient Egyptians to symbolize motherhood).

2. MPH-ARSL-GAIOL is 333, the number for the Enochian phrase SIAION-GRAA which means "temple of the moon." It is also the number for the Hebrew spelling of ChURUNZUN (I.E. Choronzon), the demon of the tenth Aethyr and is half of 666, the number of the Beast of the Apocalypse which Crowley assumed for himself. The serious student should not be at all intimidated by this. The number 666 is equal to the Hebrew word IThRUN which means "good."

3. MOR-DIAL-HKTGA is 622, the number for the Enochian phrase PIAP-PATRALX which means "balance of stone," and the Hebrew word BRKTh meaning "blessings."

4. OIP-TEAA-PDOKE is 483, the number for the Enochian phrase LRING-MONONS which means "to stir up the heart," and the Hebrew phrase GRM SPQ which means "to cause doubt."

5. The gematria of the Hebrew words used above are calculated using standard Hebrew gematric values (reference Crowley's LIBER 777) as follows:

$$\text{PRS} = 80 + 200 + 60 = 340$$

$$\text{ChURUNZUN} = 8 + 6 + 200 + 6 + 50 + 7 + 6 + 50 = 333$$

$$\text{IThRUN} = 10 + 400 + 200 + 6 + 50 = 666$$

$$\text{BRKTh} = 2 + 200 + 20 + 400 = 622$$

$$\text{GRM SPQ} = 3 + 200 + 40 + 60 + 80 + 100 = 483$$

General Meaning and Use of the Four Great Holy Names

The four great secret Holy Names are not usually invoked by themselves, being but names of God. Normally the names are used in ritual invocations of the Kings, Seniors, Archangels or Angels of the entire Watchtowers, to get an initial feel or mood of the particular Watchtower under consideration. Each name reflects the general atmosphere of its respective quadrant and should be used with great care. The meaning of the name must be clearly held in mind when the name is spoken.

1. ORO-IBAH-AOZPI. This colors the Watchtower of Air with an atmosphere of great age and of endless past events. The formless aspect of air gives the feeling of emptiness and desolation.

2. MPH-ARSL-GAIOL. This colors the Watchtower of Water with an atmosphere of creation and birth. The life-giving aspect of water gives the feeling of form coming out of formlessness.

3. MOR-DIAL-HKTGA. This colors the Watchtower of Earth with an atmosphere of stability and equilibrium. The solidifying aspect of earth gives the feeling of opposing forces becoming balanced, of chaos becoming structured.

4. OIP-TEAA-PDOKE. This colors the Watchtower of Fire with an atmosphere of instability and turmoil. The violent aspect of fire gives the feeling of continuous dissociation.

THE FOUR GREAT KINGS

How to Obtain Their Names.

Each quadrant has a presiding king or ruler. The name of each Great King is obtained from the center of each respective Tablet by making a clockwise circle, as shown in Figure 10 below for water.

The Names of the Four Great Kings.

Air: The name of the King of Air is BATAIVAH (BA-TA-I-VAH). This is pronounced Bah-tah-ee-vah-heh and means "He whose voice seems to have wings."

Water: The name of the King of Water is RAAGIOSL (RAA-GI-OSL). This is pronounced Rah-ah-gee-oh-sel and means "He whose hands are toward the East."

Earth: The name of the King of Earth is IKZH<sup>h</sup><sub>K</sub>AL (I-KZH-I-KAL). This is pronounced Ee-keh-zod-hee-kal and means "He who solidifies the past."

Fire: The name of the King of Fire is EDLPRNAA (ED-L-PRNAA). This is pronounced Eh-del-par-nah-ah and means "He who is first to receive the flames."

General Character and Qualities of the Four Great Kings

Using gematria on the names of the four Great Kings will give hints of their true nature, as shown in Table V. These Kings can be either invoked or visited by the magician. While speaking the name, the character and qualities of the King must be firmly held in mind. These are:

The King of Air, BATAIVAH, is kindly and loving. His nature is feminine. He bestows mercy and grace and he speaks with a beautiful voice. In fact his words seem like heavenly music, which is both pleasant and seductive.

The King of Water, RAAGIOSL, is creative and is always making things. His nature, being reflective, is such that one often sees one's own worst faults manifested in him. He seeks, through life-giving creativity, to reduce infinite spiritual ideas into finite forms.

The King of Earth, IKZHIKAL, lives in the past. He hates change. He strives to keep things as they are. He loves to describe and define things. He gave all things of the earth their original names, and he seeks to keep them bound to these names.

The King of Fire, EDLPRNAA, is a consuming fiery being, dangerous and easy to provoke to anger. He loves change and hates stagnation. He has a violent temper and seeks to disperse all aggregates into their monadic essence. The inexperienced magician would do well to avoid this King until he is adept at invocations.

THE TWENTY-FOUR SENIORS

How To Obtain Their Names.

The Tablets contain the names of 24 Seniors or Elders; six in each quadrant. These are found in the center row and two center columns of each quadrant by reading from the center outward (or upward and downward). Each name contains seven letters, except when double letters are given in a section. Figure 11 shows the derivation of the Seniors from the Watchtower of Air as an example.

Gematria of the Twenty-Four Seniors.

Each Senior has a numerical value obtained by summing up the appropriate letter values as contained in Table II. Using gematria, the name of each Senior corresponds to key Enochian words or phrases which have a direct bearing on their natures. An example of selected numerical correspondences is in Table VI.

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: THE PLANETS

The seven sacred planets represent seven planetary spheres, or zones of influence. The fact that two of these planets are the sun and the moon, which are not really "planets" as such, does not alter the fact of their respective influences. The most important correspondences are:

| Planet  | Sign | Chief Characteristics                                    | Watchtower Subquadrant Influenced |
|---------|------|----------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| Saturn  | ♄    | Intuition, thought formation                             | Earth of Air                      |

HOW TO INVOKE THE KINGS AND SENIORS

The cross shown in Figure 11 is called the Great Cross of the Watchtower. The Holy Names, and the names of the Kings and Seniors, are all taken from the Great Cross. Any one of the Kings and Seniors can be invoked by using the Hexagram Ritual (see below). Each King is attributed to the sun. Each Senior is attributed to a planet, as shown earlier. A hexagram has six points and each corresponds to a planet, and therefore to a Senior. During the ritual, a hexagram is drawn for a particular Senior by beginning it at the appropriate point. The hexagram is shown in Figure 12. In order to invoke a King, it can be seen that there is no point on the hexagram for the sun. A King is invoked by drawing all six planetary hexagrams as shown in Figure 13.

Figure 14. The Six Banishing Hexagrams for Kings. For each hexagram begin at the point shown and in the direction of the arrow as indicated. Do triangle 1 first, then triangle 2.

Invocation of Kings and Seniors: Step By Step.*A. PREPARATION

1. Select the King or Senior to be invoked. This will depend upon the motive or purpose for the invocation.
2. Determine the corresponding Watchtower, element, and planetary sign (if a King is chosen, all six planetary signs are used).
3. Memorize the pronunciation of all names involved (Holy Name, King and, if invoking a Senior, the Senior's name).
4. Consult Figures 12, 13 and 14 to determine the appropriate hexagrams to be drawn.
5. Stand facing the appropriate Watchtower (i.e. north, south, east or west, from Figure 8).

B. INVOCATION

1. Trace a hexagram in the air with either a magic wand or rod.
  - a. Begin at the point of the hexagram shown in Figure 12 that corresponds to the Senior's planet. If a King, then always begin at Saturn (top).
  - b. Trace a line from that point and continue clockwise until a triangle has been drawn. This is the first triangle (no. 1 in each hexagram of Figure 13) of the hexagram.
  - c. The starting point of the second triangle (no. 2 in each of the hexagrams shown in Figure 13) is the point opposite the Senior's planet. For example, if the first triangle began on Mercury, then the second would start on Jupiter. For a King, the first triangle starts on Saturn and the second on Luna.
  - d. Trace a line from that point and continue clockwise until a triangle is drawn. This is the second triangle and completes the hexagram.
  - e. Imagination is important here. As the magician traces each line, he imagines that a line is actually being drawn in the air before him. The color of this psychic construction is as follows:

| If the starting point is: | Then the color of the hexagram is: |
|---------------------------|------------------------------------|
| Saturn                    | deep red or crimson                |
| Jupiter                   | deep violet                        |
| Mars                      | orange                             |
| Venus                     | amber                              |
| Mercury                   | violet-purple                      |
| Luna                      | deep violet-blue or indigo         |

- f. To further tax the imagination, after any hexagram is drawn, imagine the planetary symbol (as given in Figure 12) at the center of the hexagram. Figure 13 shows the sun sign inside each of the hexagrams drawn for a King.
  - g. A Senior needs only one hexagram to be invoked. However, a King must have all six. for each of the four Great Kings, begin with a Saturn hexagram, then draw one for Jupiter, then Mars, then Venus, then Mercury and lastly for Luna (for certain occult reasons, this order is very important here).
2. With the complete hexagram(s) imagined in shining color, repeat the corresponding secret Holy Name and then the King's name (and then the Senior's name if a Senior is being invoked). Concentrate on the known character traits of these names. If successful, he will appear in the hexagram in some form and converse with the magician. If partially successful, the magician may catch an idea or thought from him.
  3. Success or failure is not measured by requiring that a King or Senior physically jump out at the magician. It is measured only by the degree in achievement of the original motive. Success or failure may come days or even months after the operation.

C. BANISHMENT

1. Every spirit invoked, must be banished after the operation. If unsure whether the invocation was successful or not, use the banishment ritual anyway (just in case).
2. To banish a King or Senior back to his region, simply go through the hexagrams again, but this time begin counterclockwise rather than clockwise. This has the effect of reversing the invocation. (An example of how to banish a King is in Figure 14.)

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: INCENSE

Although the use of incense during a magical operation is optional, an appropriate incense sometimes helps to assist the mind to concentrate. It also helps stimulate the imagination, which can be critical to success. The following list shows the corresponding incense for each subquadrant and can be used for both invocations and traveling in the Spirit Vision:

|                          |                          |
|--------------------------|--------------------------|
| ☉ of ☉ Ambergris.        | ☉ of ☿ Dittany of Crete. |
| ☿ of ☉ The Gall of Rukh. | ☿ of ☿ Assafoetida.      |
| ☿ of ☉ Onycha.           | ☿ of ☿ Clover.           |
| ☿ of ☉ Musk.             | ☿ of ☿ Storax.           |
| ☿ of ☉ Civet.            | ☿ of ☿ Benzoin.          |
| ☉ of ☿ Lign-aloes.       | ☉ of ☿ Saffron.          |
| ☿ of ☿ Galbanum.         | ☿ of ☿ Lign-aloes.       |
| ☿ of ☿ Mastick.          | ☿ of ☿ Red-sanders.      |
| ☿ of ☿ Storax.           | ☿ of ☿ Red Sandalwood.   |
| ☿ of ☿ Olibanum.         | ☿ of ☿ Olibanum.         |
| ☉ of ☿ Myrrh.            |                          |
| ☿ of ☿ Camphor.          |                          |
| ☿ of ☿ Siamese Benzoin.  |                          |
| ☿ of ☿ Indigo.           |                          |
| ☿ of ☿ Opoponax.         |                          |

The following list gives the type of incense to be used for corresponding planetary influences:

|         |                                                                 |
|---------|-----------------------------------------------------------------|
| Saturn  | myrrh, sulphur, indigo ( exercise caution with sulphur ) |
| Jupiter | Cedar, saffron                                                  |
| Mars    | tobacco, pepper                                                 |
| Sun     | olibanum, cinnamon                                              |
| Venus   | rose, benzoin, sandalwood, myrtle                               |
| Mercury | storax, mace, mastic                                            |
| Moon    | jasmine, ginseng, camphor, aloes                                |

The following list gives the type of incense to be used to correspond with the elements:

|       |                                                |
|-------|------------------------------------------------|
| Air   | galbanum, peppermint, any light uplifting odor |
| Water | myrrh, onycha, any purgative odor              |
| Earth | storax, any dull heavy odor                    |
| Fire  | olibanum, any fiery odor                       |

If the incenses listed above are unavailable, the following can be substituted:

|         |                                                         |
|---------|---------------------------------------------------------|
| Saturn  | any odoriferous roots such as pepperwort                |
| Jupiter | any odoriferous fruits such as coconut                  |
| Mars    | any odoriferous woods such as pine or cedar             |
| Sun     | any odoriferous gums such as musk or anise              |
| Venus   | any odoriferous flowers such as roses or violets        |
| Mercury | any odoriferous seeds such as bay berries               |
| Moon    | any odoriferous vegetable leaves such as myrtle or bay  |
| Earth   | any dry, heavy, earthy scent such as musk or sandalwood |
| Water   | any cool, watery scent such as ginger                   |
| Air     | any light, airy scent such as lemon or orange           |
| Fire    | any spicy or fiery scent such as cinnamon               |

INVOCATION OF A SENIOR

Suppose, for an example, one would like to improve one's appreciation for music. Such a boon could be granted by the Senior, ADAEOET, "He who sings like a bird." The magician begins by facing south toward the great Watchtower of Fire, where ADAEOET dwells.

He wears only a robe, or at least very loose-fitting and comfortable clothing. The real importance of clothing is that it must be of a type that can be forgotten or ignored. Tight clothing can interfere with concentration, and for that reason should not be worn. The same can be said for nudity; it is good if one can forget the body and not good if one feels at all awkward or uncomfortable. The magician must be able to forget his body for a while. Anything that aids this is good while, on the other hand, anything that hinders this is bad.

All distracting thoughts and concerns must be cast aside. Total concentration is mandatory.

The magician raises his arms outward toward the South and calls out the Holy Name,

"OIP-TEAA-PDOKE, may my request be granted. You who are unchanged by time, hear me. OIP-TEAA-PDOKE, thou most holy name. You are the Watchtower of the South. You are the Watchtower of Fire. All things return to you. Hear me. LRING-MONONS, I call upon you for your music, OIP-TEAA-PDOKE."

The magician then calls upon the King of Fire:

"EDLPRNAA, O Receiver of the Flames, thou who art King over Fire, assist me. Make me to be a knower of music.

EDLPRNAAH, BITOM, EDLPRNAAH, change me, renew me in your forge.

BITOM, I desire to be changed. I desire to be made anew. EDLP RNAAH, BITOM, EDLP RNAAH."

The magician now feels the presence of the King of Fire near him. He should feel the violent churning of this fiery quadrant around him. Now he takes his fire wand (preferably one he has made himself) and traces a large hexagram in the air before him. This hexagram is deep violet and is drawn as shown in hexagram no. 2 of Figure 13 (i.e. the Jupiter Hexagram). He sees a violet "4" glistening in the center, which charges the hexagram with a tone both religious and creative (if incense is used to heighten the proper mood here, it should be of cedar or saffron).

As the magician gazes into the sparkling violet hexagram of Jupiter, he makes the final invocation:

"ADAE OET, whose voice is music, allow me to share your songs, O ADAE OET.

May your sword cut away my ignorance. May I become new. May my old self be sacrificed as it is in ZEN, the eighteenth Aethyr. May I rise up new with your attributes. May I share your music, O ADAE OET, GOHO, ZEN, TOL-BALT, ADAE OET."

Now the magician feels himself changing under the influence of fire and music. He imagines ADAE OET in the hexagram showering forth his musical ability. He sees himself as a new person. He is now one who loves and appreciates music. His own inherent abilities will now surely be enhanced.

In gratitude to ADAE OET, he now banishes the Senior with a banishing hexagram (hexagram no. 2 in Figure 14). ADAE OET thus returns to the Watchtower of Fire in the South.

No Senior, or any other spirit for that matter, can make something from nothing. They can only work within specific occult laws. Here the magician does not ask for the impossible. He already has a musical ability (as everyone does) buried in his subconscious. He asks only that it be brought out into manifestation. This ADAE OET can do. If properly carried out, this invocation will be effective in some degree. Although the magician will probably not be able to sit immediately at a piano and play Handel or Bach, he probably will find that taking piano lessons is surprisingly easy and that, with practice, he can play tolerably well.

INVOCATION vs SPIRIT VISION

The correspondences between the four elements and the four directions of space, as given for invocations, are:

1. The East Winds are airy therefore Air is in the East.
2. The South winds are hot and dry therefore Fire is in the South.
3. The West Winds are moist with rain therefore Water is in the West.
4. The North Winds are cold and dry therefore Earth is in the North.

These correspondences are in accord with the winds, and in accord with ancient Egyptian tradition. However, whenever astral traveling or moving in the "Spirit Vision" is used, the traditional Zodiac correspondences may be used. These are:

1. Air in the West
2. Water in the North
3. Earth in the South
4. Fire in the East

As a general rule: to invoke, stand facing the position of the winds because the Earth is subject to the winds. However, to travel in the Spirit Vision, face the positions according to the Zodiac.

THE ANGELS OF THE CALVARY CROSS

Each lesser angle (i.e. each subquadrant or angle, such as Water of Air) has a cross called the "Sephiorthic Calvary Cross". Figure 15 shows the four Calvary Crosses of the Watchtower of Earth as an example. There is a total of sixteen Calvary crosses. Each cross contains ten squares corresponding to the ten Sephiroth of the Hebrew Qabalah.

Each Calvary Cross contains two names. Reading downward is a six-lettered name and across is a five-lettered name. The former name evokes the intelligent forces of that subquadrant, while the latter name controls them. These Calvary Cross Names are:

I. Air

1. Air of Air:
  - a. IDOIGO Ee-doh-ee-goh
IDOIGO means "He who sits on the Holy Throne."
  - b. ARDZA Ar-deh-zodah
AR-DSA means "He who protects."
2. Water of Air:
  - a. <sup>1</sup>LAKZA El-lah-keh-zodah
L-KAL-ZA means "He who is first to precipitate."
  - b. PALAM Pah-lah-meh
PA-LAM means "He who is on the Path."
3. Earth of Air:
  - a. AIAOAI Ahee-ah-oh-ahee
AAI-O-AI means "He who is within and among you."
  - b. OIIIT Ohee-ee-ee-teh
OI-I-I-T means "He who is, but also is not."
4. Fire of Air:
  - a. AO<sup>u</sup>RRZ Ah-oh-var-razod AO-VRRS means "He who beautifies."
  - b. ALOAI Ah-loh-ahee
ALO-AI means "He who is from a succession."

II. Water

1. Air of Water:
  - a. O<sup>B</sup><sub>L</sub>GO<sup>T</sup><sub>K</sub>A Oh-beh-goh-tah OBLOG-TA means "He who is like a garland."

- b. A<sup>O</sup>A<sup>B</sup><sub>L</sub> KO Ah-ah-beh-koh ABA-KO means "He who is bent over."
  1. Water of Water:
    - a. NELAPR En-el-ah-par
N-ELAP-R means "He who must have his way."
    - b. OMEBB Oh-meb-beh
OM-EBB means "He who knows."
  3. Earth of Water:
    - a. MALAD<sup>r</sup> Em-ah-lah-dee MAL-ADI means "He who shoots arrows."
    - b. OLAAD Oh-lah-ah-deh
OL-ADA means "He who created birds."
  4. Fire of Water:
    - a. IAAASD Ee-ah-ah-ah-ess-deh
IA-A-ASD means "He who is in truth."
    - b. ATAPA Ah-tah-pah
A-TA-PA means "He who bears a likeness."
- ### III. Earth
1. Air of Earth:
    - a. ANGPOI Ah-neh-geh-pohee
ANG-POI means "He who divides thoughts."
    - b. <sup>u</sup>NNAX Ven-nahtz
VN-N-AX means "He whose great name is All."
  2. Water of Earth:
    - a. ANAEEM Ah-nah-eh-eh-meh
ANA-E-EM means "He who is nine times obedient."
    - b. SONDN Soh-neh-den
S-ONDN means "He who has a kingdom."
  3. Earth of Earth:
    - a. <sup>k</sup>BALPT Ah-bah-leh-peh-teh ABA-LPT means "He who stoops down."

- b. ARBIZ Ar-bee-zod
AR-BI-Z means "He whose voice protects."

4. Fire of Earth: a. <sup>o</sup>sPMNIR Oh-pem-nee-ar
OM-PNIR means "He who increases knowledge."
b. <sup>l</sup>LPIZ Eel-pee-zod
IL-PI-Z means "He whose place is the Aethyrs."

IV. Fire.

1. Air of Fire: a. NOALMR Noh-ah-leh-mar
NOA-L-MR means "He who is first to bring about torment."
b. OLOAG Oh-loh-ah-geh
OL-OAG means "He who makes nothing."
2. Water of Fire: a. VADALI Vah-dah-lee
V-LAIAD means "He who has the Secret Truth."
b. OBA<sup>U<sub>V</sub>A<sub>I</sub></sup> Oh-bah-vah OBA-V-IA means "He who has half of truth."
3. Earth of Fire: a. <sup>U<sub>V</sub>O<sup>l</sup>B</sup>XDO Voh-letz-doh VOLX-DO means "He whose name is Annihilation."
b. SIODA Ess-ee-oh-dah
S-IO-DA means "He who is eternal."
4. Fire of Fire: a. RZIONR Rah-zodee-oh-nar ZIN-ROR means "He who is in the Waters of the Sun."
b. NRZFM En-rah-zod-eff-em
NRZ-F-M means "He who visits here six times."

THE KERUBIC ANGELS OR KERUBIM

Above the horizontal bar of each Calvary Cross are four letters, two on each side of the vertical bar. These four letters form the name of a Kerubic Angel, one for each subquadrant. Each of these names can be anagrammed, or anagramatized transposed, to form three other names. Together this totals 64 Kerubic Angels: 16 in each Watchtower and four in each subquadrant.

I. Air.

1. Air of Air: RZLA (Ra-zodel-ah), ZLAR, LARZ, ARZL
2. Water of Air: <sup>y<sub>U</sub></sup>TPA (Yuh-teh-pah), TPA<sup>y<sub>U</sub></sup>, PA<sup>y<sub>U</sub></sup>T, A<sup>y<sub>U</sub></sup>YP
3. Earth of Air: <sup>T<sub>K</sub></sup>NB<sup>R<sub>A</sub></sup> (Ten-beh-rah), NB<sup>T<sub>K</sub>R<sub>A</sub></sup>, B<sup>T<sub>K</sub>R<sub>A</sub></sup>N, <sup>T<sub>K</sub>R<sub>A</sub></sup>NB
4. Fire of Air: XG<sup>s<sub>Z</sub></sup>D (Tz-egg-seh-deh), G<sup>s<sub>Z</sub></sup>DX, <sup>s<sub>Z</sub></sup>DXG, DXG<sup>s<sub>Z</sub></sup>

II. Water.

1. Air of Water: TAAD (Tah-ah-deh), AADT, ADTA, DTAA
2. Water of Water: TDIM (Teh-dee-em), DIMI, IMTD, MTDI
3. Earth of Water: MAGL (Em-ah-gel), AGLM, GLMA, LMAG
4. Fire of Water: NLRX (En-el-artz), LRXN, RXNL, XNLR

III. Earth.

1. Air of Earth: BOZA (Boh-zodah), OZAB, ZABO, ABOZ
2. Water of Earth: PHRA (Peh-har-ah), HRAP, RAPH, APHR

3. Earth of Earth:  $R_O K_O N_A K_{NM}$  (Roh-koh-nah-kem), $K_O N_A K_{NM} R_O, N_A K_{NM} R_O K_O, K_{NM} R_O K_O N_A$

4. Fire of Earth:  $I_{BT}^A S_A M_O T_M$  (Ee-ah-sah-moh-tem), $S_A M_O T_M I_{BT}^A, M_O T_M I_{BT}^A S_A,$ $T_M I_{BT}^A S_A M_O$

IV. Fire.

1. Air of Fire: DOPA (Doh-pah), OPAD, PADO, ADOP
2. Water of Fire: ANAA (An-ah-ah), NAAA, AAAN, AANA
3. Earth of Fire: PSAK (Pess-ah-keh), SAKP, AKPS, KPSA
4. Fire of Fire: ZIZA (Zodee-zodah), IZAZ, ZAZI, AZIZ*

What the Kerubim Govern

Each of the Kerubic Angels governs that file of squares which begins with its first letter. For example, in the Watchtower of Air, the Kerubic Angel RZLA governs that area of the subquadrant Air of Air that contains the letters R(A)KTSF. In the same way, ZLAR rules over the file of Z(R)ZOIM, LARZ rules over L(Z)NTAN and ARZL rules over A(A)STSD. In each case, the second letter is placed in parenthesis to show that it is a part of the Calvary Cross. It is not governed by the Kerubic Angel but by the Calvary Cross Angel.

*According to the Golden Dawn, AZIZ is a huge human-shaped being, fiery red with flaming wings and emerald green hair.
 ZAZI is black and white, flaming and flashing.
 IZAZ is blue and orange and covered with a fiery mist.
 ZIZA is orange with hazy gold wings which are like gauze, and he has nets of gold around him.

THE ARCHANGELS

In addition to the 64 Kerubim, there are also 64 Archangels who rule over them. The names of these Archangels are found by prefixing one letter from the Tablet of Union or Black Cross to the names of the Kerubim. The letters used are E, H, N and B. These are the first letters of each row as shown in Figure 9 and refer to the element Spirit.

1. "E" prefixes the Kerubic Angels of Air:

Air. ERZLA Er-zodel-ah

Water. E<sup>YU</sup>TPA Eh-yuh-teh-pah

Earth. E<sup>T_K</sup>NB<sup>R_A</sup> Eh-ten-beh-rah

Fire. EXG<sup>S_Z</sup>D Ehtz-egg-seh-deh

Similarly for the 12 lesser Kerubic Angels of Air.

2. "H" prefixes the Kerubic Angels of Water.

Air. HTAAD Heh-tah-ah-deh

Water. HTDIM Heh-teh-dee-em

Earth. HMAGL Hem-ah-gel

Fire. HNLRX Hen-el-artz

Similarly for the 12 lesser Kerubic Angels of Water.

3. "N" prefixes the Kerubic Angels of Earth.

Air. NBOZA En-boh-zodah

Water. NPHRA Enpeh-har-ah

Earth. N<sup>R_O</sup>K<sup>O_N_A</sup>K<sup>NM</sup> En-roh-koh-nah-kem

Similarly for the 12 lesser Kerubic Angels of Earth.

4. "B" prefixes the Kerubic Angels of Fire.

Air. BDOPA Beh-doh-pah

Water. BANAA Ban-ah-ah

Earth. BPSAK Beh-pess-ah-keh

Fire. BZIZA Beh-zodee-zodah

Similarly for the 12 lesser Kerubic Angels of Fire.

Chief Characteristics of the Archangels and Kerubim

The Archangels and Kerubim of the sixteen subquadrants, are characterized according to their locality as follows:

1. Archangels and Kerubim of the four Air subquadrants.

These angels are characterized by pairs of opposing forces such as expansion and contraction, attraction and repulsion, solidification and dispersion. They seek a balance between such dual forces.

2. Archangels and Kerubim of the four Water subquadrants.

These angels are characterized by motion. They desire continual movement and flux. They seek change in all things.

3. Archangels and Kerubim of the four Earth subquadrants.

These angels are characterized by their desire for manifestation. They seek to express subjective thoughts and emotions into objective forms.

4. Archangels and Kerubim of the four Fire subquadrants.

These angels are characterized by their desire to purify human nature. They seek purification by fire of all the lower human character traits.

THE LESSER ANGELS

There are 64 lesser angels of the Watchtowers. Beneath the horizontal bar of each Calvary Cross are sixteen squares (four letters across separated by the vertical bar of the Cross, and four letters down). These are the names of the four Lesser Angels of each respective subquadrant, the first being somewhat more important than the other three.

I. Air.

1. Air of Air: KZNS, TOTT, SIAS, FMND
2. Water of Air: O<sup>v</sup>UB, PAOK, RBNH, DIR<sup>1</sup>
3. Earth of Air: ABMO, NAKO, OKNM, SHAL
4. Fire of Air: AKKA, NP<sup>u</sup>A<sup>T</sup>, OTOI, PMOX

II. Water.

1. Air of Water: T<sup>o</sup>A<sup>KO</sup>, NHDD, F<sup>p</sup>AAX, SAI<sup>z</sup>X
2. Water of Water: M<sup>1</sup>A<sup>Nu</sup>GM, I<sup>L</sup>A<sup>OK</sup>, VS<sup>x</sup>S<sup>y</sup>N<sup>L</sup>H, RV<sup>L</sup>K<sup>I</sup>
3. Earth of Water: PAKO, NDZN, R<sup>1</sup>IPO, XRNH
4. Fire of Water: XPKN, VASA, DAPI, R<sup>N</sup>A<sup>IL</sup>

III. Earth.

1. Air of Earth: AIRA, ORMN, RSNI, IZNR
2. Water of Earth: A<sup>o</sup>MGG, GBAL, RLMU, IAHL
3. Earth of Earth: OPNA, DOO<sup>p</sup>F, RXAO, AXIR
4. Fire of Earth: MSA<sup>T</sup><sub>L</sub>, IABA, IZXP, STIM

IV. Fire.

1. Air of Fire: OPMN, A<sup>p</sup>BST, SKIO, VASG
2. Water of Fire: G<sup>M</sup>N<sup>NM</sup>, EKOP, AMOX, B<sup>v</sup>RAP
3. Earth of Fire: DATT, DIOM, OOPZ, RGAN
4. Fire of Fire: ADRE, SISP, PALI, AKAR

The Ruling Lesser Angels.

Each of the 64 Lesser Angels has a presiding angel whose name can be found by prefixing an appropriate letter from the Tablet of Union.

1. Air (XARP).

1. Air of Air: XKZNS, XTOTT, XSIAS, XFMND
2. Water of Air: AO<sub>V</sub>UB, APAOK, ARBNH, ADIR<sub>L</sub>
3. Earth of Air: RABMO, RNAKO, ROKNM, RSHAL
4. Fire of Fire: PAKKA, PNP<sub>U</sub>A<sub>T</sub>, POTOI, PPMOX

2. Water (KOMA).

1. Air of Water: KT<sub>O</sub>A<sub>KO</sub>, KNHDD, K<sub>F</sub>P<sub>A</sub>AX, KSAI<sub>F</sub><sub>X</sub>
2. Water of Water: OM<sub>I</sub>A<sub>NU</sub>GM, OI<sub>A</sub>OK, OVS<sub>X</sub>S<sub>NH</sub><sub>L</sub>, ORV<sub>K</sub>I
3. Earth of Water: MPAKO, MNDZN, M<sub>I</sub>IPO, MXRNH
4. Fire of Water: AXPKN, AVASA, ADAPL, AR<sub>N</sub>AIL

3. Earth (ANTA).

1. Air of Earth: AAIRA, AORMN, ARSNI, AIZNR
2. Water of Earth: N<sub>A</sub>oMGG, NGBAL, NRLMU, NIAHL
3. Earth of Earth: TOPNA, TDOO<sub>P</sub>F, TRXAO, TAXIR
4. Fire of Earth: AMSA<sub>T</sub>L, AIABA, AIZXP, ASTIM

Fire (ITOM).

1. Air of Fire: IOPMN, IA<sub>P</sub>B<sub>ST</sub>, ISKIO, IVASG
2. Water of Fire: TG<sub>M</sub>N<sub>NM</sub>, TEKOP, TAMOX, T<sub>B</sub>V<sub>RAP</sub>
3. Earth of Fire: ODATT, ODIOM, OOPZ, ORGAN
4. Fire of Fire: MADRE, MSISP, MPALI, MAKAR

Chief Characteristics of the Lesser Angels.

The Lesser Angels and Lesser Ruling Angels of the sixteen subquadrants, are characterized according to their locality as follows:

1. Angels of the four Air subquadrants. These angels assist in purifications. They can help free one from illusion, diseases, ignorance and other karmic afflictions by an occult process of sublimation.

2. Angels of the four Water subquadrants. These angels assist in polarizations. They can help make needed changes in one's character or life-style, and can orient one toward a better future.

3. Angels of the four Earth subquadrants. These angels assist in manifestations. They can help one to express inherent inner divinity in daily life.

4. Angels of the four Fire subquadrants. These angels assist in transmutations. They can help to disperse the lower elements of the human nature such as egotism, fear, hate, pride and so on.

THE DEMONS OF THE WATCHTOWERS

Three-lettered names of 128 separate demons can be found by using pairs of letters, from the sixteen squares under the Calvary Cross, together with an appropriate letter from the Tablet of Union. The names of each Lesser Angel consists of two pairs of letters. Each of these pairs is the base of a name of a demon or elemental. The third letter is the prefix to the Lesser Angels, from the Tablet of Union.

For example, in the subquadrant Air of Air, eight demon names are:

|     |     |
|-----|-----|
| XKZ | XNS |
| XTO | XTT |
| XSI | XAS |
| XFM | XND |

Another example: In the subquadrant Water of Earth, the eight demon names are:

|     |     |
|-----|-----|
| NAM | NGG |
| NGB | NAL |
| NRL | NMU |
| NIA | NHL |

THE CALLS: WHEN TO USE THEM

Dee and Kelly constructed eighteen Calls, or Keys, to be used for either invocations or for traveling in the Spirit Vision. These are rather cumbersome sentences to be recited out loud, prior to any magical operations involving the angels and Aethyrs.

Actually there is a total of 49 Calls. The first is usually numbered 0 and is without words. This Key makes the mind empty of all thoughts, much like the Samadhi of Yoga. It is used to invoke or travel to the highest formless levels beyond the first Aethyr and as such would only be used by the most advanced Adepts.

A single Call is used for all thirty Aethyrs. The only change necessary is to insert the name of the appropriate Aethyr being addressed. In the Call, this name is usually left blank until filled in by a magician as needed.

This leaves eighteen Calls usually numbered one through eighteen. The specific rules governing their use are given in Table VII.

- Example 1. To invoke (or visit) any Archangel, recite Call 1 then 2.
- Example 2. To invoke (or visit) any Ruling Lesser Angel whose first letter is from the line NANTA (but not the "N", which is only used for Archangels) of the Tablet of Union, recite Call 1, then 2 and then 5.
- Example 3. To invoke (or visit) any angel from the subquadrant Air of Air, recite only Call 3.
- Example 4. To invoke (or visit) any angel from the subquadrant Water of Fire, recite Call 6 and then 17.

TABLE VII. WHEN TO USE THE EIGHTEEN CALLS

| Call No. | When To Use Call                                                                                                                                                                              |

| 7        | Use second for all angels of Water of Air beginning with LLAKZA.                                                                                                                              |
| 8        | Use second for all angels of Earth of Air beginning with AIAOAL.                                                                                                                              |
| 9        | Use second for all angels of Fire of Air beginning with AOVRRZ.                                                                                                                               |
| 10       | Use second for all angels of Air of Water beginning with OBGOTA.                                                                                                                              |
| 11       | Use second for all angels of Earth of Water beginning with MALADI.                                                                                                                            |
| 12       | Use second for all angels of Fire of Water beginning with IAAASD.                                                                                                                             |
| 13       | Use second for all angels of Air of Earth beginning with ANGPOI.                                                                                                                              |
| 14       | Use second for all angels of Water of Earth beginning with ANAEEM.                                                                                                                            |

THE EIGHTEEN CALLS TO BE RECITED

The eighteen Calls are written in flowery and rather obscure language. The beginner is very apt to "not see the forest for the trees" in this morass of colorful verbiage. The real purpose of these Calls is to place the mind in a proper receptive state. This is difficult to accomplish, however, when the wording is impossible to comprehend. To avoid this problem for the beginner, each call has been slightly revised for simplicity. The actual Calls, as given by Crowley, are contained in Appendix A, for the more daring magician. Accompanying each Call is Crowley's version of the Enochian. The student is encouraged to wade through these and determine for himself, by experience, which version has the best results. Remember, Enochian words are like mantras; they have definite physical vibratory effects as well as emotional and mental effects. But in themselves, they are simply devices used by the magician in order to manifest his will.

1. The First Call.

"I rule over you," declares the God of Justice. His power is exalted above the torment of the world. In his hands, the Sun is like a sword and the Moon is like an all-consuming fire. He measures your clothing material among the available substances and draws you together like the palms of my hands. [Furthermore he says:] "I have decorated your seats with the Fire of Gathering, and have beautified your garments with admiration. I have made a law to govern the Holy Ones, and have delivered a Rod to you, with the Ark of Knowledge. Moreover, you have lifted up your voices and sworn obedience and faith to Him who lives and triumphs, whose beginning is not, and whose end cannot be, who shines like a flame in the center of your palaces, and who rules among you as the balance of righteousness and truth.”

 [The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Move therefore, and show yourselves! Unveil the mysteries of your creation! Be friendly to me, because I am a servant of this same God, a true worshipper of the Highest.

Notes to the First Call. Here the God of Justice is Karma. The pronoun “you” refers throughout to the angels of the Tablet of Union being addressed by the Call.

2. The Second Call.

Can the winged winds understand your wonderful voices? You are the Second of the First. Burning flames outline you when I speak your names. I will treat you like cups for a wedding, or like beautiful flowers in the Chamber of Righteousness. Your feet are stronger than the barren stone, and your voices are mightier than many winds. You are becoming like a building which does not exist save in the Mind of the All-Powerful.

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

The First commands you to arise and to move therefore toward his servant. Show yourselves in power, and make me a strong Seer-of-things, because I am of Him who lives forever.

Notes to the Second Call. Here the “First” refers to the God of Justice (i.e. Karma) of the first Call. He is above the angels of the Tablet of Union and therefore they are “Second.”

3. The Third Call.

“Behold,” declares your God, “I am a circle on whose hands stand Twelve Kingdoms. Six of these are seats of life, the rest are like sharp Sickles, or like the Horns of Death. Because of this, the creatures of Earth live or die only in my own hands, which sleep and then rise again.”

“In the beginning I made you stewards, and placed you in the twelve seats of government. I gave every one of you an appropriate level of power over the 456 true ages of time. My intent was that from the highest vessels and the farthest corners of your governments, you might work my Power and pour down the fires of life and multiply upon the earth. Thus you have become the skirts of justice and truth.”

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

In the name of this same God, lift yourselves up, I say. Behold, His mercies flourish, and His Name has become mighty among us. In Him we say, move, and descend. Apply yourselves to us as you would to partakers of His Secret Wisdom in your creation.

Notes to the Third Call. Here the “Twelve Kingdoms” are the twelve houses of the Zodiac. Here again the pronoun “you” refers throughout to the angels being addressed. The Enochian word MIKA, which means “mighty” or “powerful”, has the numerical value by Gematria of 456. Also, 456 can be reduced, by a process called “Aiq Bkr” or the Qabalah of Nine Chambers, to  $4+5+6=15$ , where 15 is the number for the word TA, meaning “correspondence.”

4. The Fourth Call.

I place my feet in the South, and look about me and say, “Are not the thunders of increase numbered 33, and do these not rule in the Second Angle? I have placed 9639 servants under them. None have yet numbered them, but One. In them, the Second Beginnings of Things exists and grows strong. They are the successive Numbers of Time. Their powers are like those of the first 456.

“Arise, you Sons of Pleasure, and visit the Earth. I am the Lord your God, who is, and who lives forever.”

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

In the name of the Creator, move and show yourselves as pleasant deliverers, and praise Him among the sons of men.

Notes to the Fourth Call. Here the "Second Angle" is Water. Thirty-three is the numerical value of L-BESZ which means "the first (i.e. primordial) matter." The direction South, can be taken as the direction inward, which is to say toward the spiritual. The number 9636 reduces to  $9+6+3+6 = 27$  and  $2+7 = 9$ . Also 33 is equivalent to 456 because  $3+3 = 6$ , and  $4+5+6 = 15$  and  $1+5 = 6$ . The number 9 is the value of the letter T which means the same thing as the word TA ("likeness" or "correspondence").

5. The Fifth Call.

Mighty sounds have entered into the Third Angle, and have become like olives on the Olive Mount. They look with gladness upon the Earth, and dwell in the brightness of the heavens like continual Comforters. On them I have fastened 19 Pillars of Gladness and gave them vessels to water the Earth together with her creatures. They are the brothers of the First and Second. They have begun their own seats and have decorated them with 69,636 ever-burning lamps. Their numbers are as the Beginnings, the Ends, and the Contents of Time.

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Therefore come and obey the purpose of your creation. Visit us in peace and comfort. Perfect us as receivers of your mysteries. Why? Because our Lord and Master is the All-One.

Notes to the Fifth Call. The "Third Angle" refers to any of the four earth subquadrants. Nineteen is the number for BAG, the name of the 28th Aethyr, and  $19 \times 7 = 133$ , which is the number for VTI, the name of the 25th Aethyr. The number 19 is also the square root of 361, the number for IKH, the name of the 11th Aethyr. Also,  $69,636 = 6+9+6+3+6 = 30$  and  $30 = 3+0 = 3$ , i.e. the Third Angle.

6. The Sixth Call.

The spirits of the Fourth Angle are nine who are mighty in the Firmament of Waters, who the First has planted as a torment to the wicked and a garland to the righteous. He gave them fiery darts to protect the earth, and 7699 continual workmen, whose courses visit the earth with comfort and who are in government and continuance like the Second and the Third.

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Therefore listen to my voice. I have spoken of you, and I have advanced you in power and presence. Your works shall be a song of honor, and the praise of your God shall be in your creation.

Notes to the Sixth Call. The "Fourth Angle" refers to any of the four fire subquadrants. The number 9 occurs throughout these Calls. This is the occult number for the circumference of a circle (360 degrees reduces to 9) and therefore any outward or objective quantity. The number 7699 reduced to  $7+6+9+9 = 31$ , an important number in Qabalism, and  $3+1 = 4$ , i.e. the Fourth Angle.

7. The Seventh Call.

The East is a House of Virgins who sing praises among the flames of the first glory. There the Lord opened his mouth, and they became 28 living dwellings wherein the strength of man rejoices. They are clothed with ornaments of brightness, and they work wonders on all creatures. Their kingdoms and continuance are like the Third and Fourth; strong towers and places of comfort, the seats of mercy and continuance.

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

O you Servants of Mercy, move and appear! Sing praises to the Creator, and be mighty among us, so that this remembrance will give power, and our strength will grow strong in our Comforter.

Notes to the Seventh Call. The East is the direction of the Watchtower of Air. Twenty-eight is the number for the word BALT which means "justice." Here the angels are associated with mercy and comfort. Also,  $28 = 2 + 8 = 10$ , and  $10 = 1 + 0 = 1$ , i.e. the First Watchtower.

8. The Eighth Call.

The Midday, where the First is like the Third Heaven, is made of 26 Hyacinthine Pillars. Here the Elders become strong. "I have prepared them for my own righteousness," declared the Lord, whose long continuance is like a shield to the Stooping Dragon, and like the harvest of a widow. How many are there who remain in the Glory of the Earth, who live, and who shall not see Death until the House falls and the Dragon sinks?

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Come away! The Thunders have spoken. Come away! The Crowns of the Temple and the Robe of Him who is, was, and will be crowned, are divided. Come forth! Appear, to the terror of the Earth and our comfort, and to the comfort of such who are prepared.

Notes to the Eighth Call. "The First is like the Third Heaven" refers to the subquadrant Earth (third) of Air (first). Twenty-six is the number for the word BAHAL meaning "to shout" or "to cry out." Also 26 is half of 52, the number of QAA, "creation." Twenty-six is also the Enochian number for DAATH, the hidden Eleventh Sephiroth. Also  $26 = 2 + 6 = 8$ , i.e. the Eighth Call. Here the angels are associated with a culmination of endurance. The "Stooping Dragon" is Apophrasz (the Apophis or Apep of the Egyptians).

9. The Ninth Call.

A mighty guard of fire, with two-edged swords flaming, and with eight Vials of Wrath for two times and a half, and with wings of wormwood and with marrow of salt, have set their feet in the West. They are measured with their 9996 ministers. These gather up the moss of the Earth like the rich man gathers up his treasure. Cursed are they who have iniquities. In the eyes of those with iniquities are mill-stones greater than the Earth and from their mouths run seas of blood. The heads of the Guard of Fire are covered with diamonds, and upon their hands are marble stones. Happy is he upon whom they frown not, because the Lord of Righteousness rejoices in them.

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Come away, but without your Vials, because the time is such that requires comfort.

Notes to the Ninth Call. The references to Fire of Air are clear here. According to the Zodiac correspondence, West is the direction of Air. Eight Vials for two times and a half:  $8 + 8 + 4 = 20$ . Also,  $9996 = 9 + 9 + 9 + 6 = 33$ , and  $33 = 3 + 3 = 6$ . Furthermore,  $20 + 6 = 26$ . Both 20 and 26 are Enochian numbers for DAATH, the Dark Sephiroth. Here the angels are clearly purgative.

10. The Tenth Call

The Thunders of Judgment and Wrath are numbered, and are contained in the North, in the likeness of an Oak whose branches are 22 nests of lamentation and weeping which are stored up for the Earth. These burn night and day, and vomit out the heads of scorpions and live sulphur mingled with poison. These are the Thunders that, 5678 times in the twenty-fourth part of a moment, roar with a hundred mighty earthquakes and a thousand times as many surges. They rest not, neither do they know any time here. One rock brings forth a thousand, just as the heart of man brings forth his thoughts. Woe! Woe! Woe! Woe! Woe! Woe! Yea, Woe to the Earth, because her iniquity is, was, and shall be great. [The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Come away! But not your mighty sounds.

Notes to the Tenth Call. According to the Zodiac correspondence, North is the direction of Water and these "Thunders" and "mighty sounds" occur in air (i.e. Air of Water). The "22 nests" are the trumps of the Tarot, the paths between the Sephiroth on the Tree of Life.  $5678 = 5+6+7+8 = 26$ , and  $2+6 = 8$ , the occult number for spiral cycles. Here the angels are associated with the turmoil and flux of powerful karmic forces.

11. The Eleventh Call.

The mighty Seat groaned, and there were five Thunders that flew into the East, and then an eagle spoke and cried aloud, "Come away!" And then they gathered themselves together and became the House of Death, which is measured, and they were like those whose number is 31.

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Come away! I have prepared a place for you. Therefore, move and show yourselves. Unveil the mysteries of your creation. Be friendly to me, because I am a servant of this same God, a true worshipper of the Highest.

Notes to the Eleventh Call. East is the direction of Air. Also,

"Thunders" and "eagle" suggest air. However, all of the air has "come away" leaving Earth of Water which is "the House of Death." Thirty-one is the number for the word BESZ, "matter." It should also be noted that Death is the 13th path on the Tree of Life and 13 is the reverse of 31 (both reduce to 4, the occult number for solidity and firmness which characterize the element Earth). Here opportunity and possibility give way to fatality which is a kind of death (in an occult sense, death is stagnation). Also, if 5 (the number of Thunders) is added to 31, the sum reduces to 9 (see the note to the Fourth Call).

12. The Twelfth Call.

O you who range in the South, and who are the 28 Lanterns of Sorrow, bind up your girdles, and visit us. Bring down your 3663 servants so that the Lord may be magnified. His name among you is Wrath.

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Move I say, and show yourselves! Unveil the mysteries of your creation. Be friendly to me, because I am a servant of this same God, a true worshipper of the Highest.

Notes to the Twelfth Call. South is the direction of the element Fire. Twenty-eight is the number for the word BALT which means "justice." Also, 28 reduces to 1.  $3663 = 3+6+6+3 = 18$ , and  $18 = 1+8 = 9$ . The sum of 3663 and 28 reduces to 1, the occult number for unity. Sorrow and wrath accompany the purification by fire only for the unprepared.

13. The Thirteenth Call.

O Swords of the South, who have 42 eyes to stir up the Wrath of Sin, who make men drunken who are empty; Behold, the Promise of God, and His Power which is called among you a bitter sting.

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Move and appear! Unveil the mysteries of your creation, because I am a servant of this same God, a true worshipper of the Highest.

Notes to the Thirteenth Call. The "Swords of the South" can also be considered "spiritual swords" because South is the direction of the spiritual. The "Promise of God" refers to the Air of Earth, the region of possible manifestations. Forty-two is the number of the word ELZAP which means "way" or "course." Also,  $42 = 4 + 2 = 6$ , the occult number for the principle of animation and physical nature. The angels called here can help hasten the growth of one's karmic seeds.

14. The Fourteenth Call.

O Sons of Fury, O Children of the Just One, who sits upon 24 seats, who vex all creatures of the Earth with age, and who have 1636 servants under you; Behold, the Voice of God, the promise of Him who is called among you, Fury or Extreme Justice.

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Move and show yourselves! Unveil the mysteries of your creation. Be friendly to me, because I am a servant of this same god, a true worshipper of the Highest.

Notes to the Fourteenth Call. Here the angels are associated with fury and turmoil, albeit karmic. Twenty-four is the number for LEA, the name of the 16th Aethyr, and PAZ, the 4th Aethyr. Also,  $24 \times 2 = 48$  where 48 is the number for POP, the 19th Aethyr, and LOE, the 12th Aethyr. All of these Aethyrs are related through the number 24. Also the word TAFA, "poison" is 24. This number reduces to 6 ( $2 + 4 = 6$ ).  $1636 = 1 + 6 + 3 + 6 = 16$ , one third of 48. Also  $1 + 6 = 7$ , the occult number for completeness. Seven is also half of fourteen, the number of this Call. The sum of 24 and 1636 reduces to  $6 + 7 = 13$  and  $13 = 1 + 3 = 4$ , i.e. the Fourth Watchtower, or Earth. These angels seek change which appears as fury to the unprepared, and justice to the initiated.

15. The Fifteenth Call.

O Governor of the First Flame, under whose wings are 6739 servants, who weaves the Earth with dryness, and who knows the Great Name of "Righteousness," and the Seal of Honor.

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Move and appear! Unveil the mysteries of your creation. Be friendly to me, because I am a servant of this same God, a true worshipper of the Highest.

Notes to the Fifteenth Call. The "First Flame" relates this Call to the Element of Fire, and "weaving the Earth with dryness" relates it to Earth (i.e. to Fire of Earth).  $6739 = 6 + 7 + 3 + 9 = 25$  and 25 is the number for BESZ, "matter." Also,  $2 + 5 = 7$  to show that the servants of this Call are similar to those in the 14th Call. These angels are associated with the manifestation of purity.

16. The Sixteenth Call.

O Second Flame, O House of Justice, who has His beginning in glory, and who comforts the Just, who walks upon the Earth with 8763 feet, and who understands and separates creatures. You are great, like the God of Conquest. [The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Move and appear! Unveil the mysteries of your creation. Be friendly to me, because I am a servant of this same God, a true worshipper of the Highest.

Notes to the Sixteenth Call. The sense of justice and comfort given here characterizes the subquadrant of Air. The "Flame" refers to the element Fire.  $8763 = 8+7+6+3 = 24$  (see the 14th Call for this number).

17. The Seventeenth Call.

O Third Flame, whose wings are thorns to stir up vexation, and who has 7336 living lamps going before you, and whose God is "Wrath in Anger."

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Gird up your loins and listen! Move and appear! Unveil the mysteries of your creation. Be friendly to me, because I am a servant of this same God, a true worshipper of the Highest.

Notes to the Seventeenth Call. The "Flame" refers to the element Fire, and the "stirring up" is a reference to Water. When Water meets Fire, a great disturbance or "vexation" is produced.  $7336 = 7+3+3+6 = 19$ , and  $19 = 1+9 = 10 = 1+0 = 1$ .

18. The Eighteenth Call.

O Mighty Light and burning Flame of Comfort, who unveils the Glory of God to the center of the Earth, and in who the 6332 Secrets of Truth have their abode, and who is called in your kingdom, "Joy" and who is not to be measured.

[The magician addresses the appropriate angels and says:]

Be a window of comfort to me! Move and appear! Unveil the mysteries of your creation. Be friendly to me, because I am a servant of this same God, a true worshipper of the Highest.

Notes to the Eighteenth Call. Here Fire of Fire is emphasized, but the secret nature of this fire is joy.  $6332 = 6+3+3+2 =$ 14, the number for the word AG meaning "no" or "not." Also  $14 = 1+4 = 5$ , the occult number for a mixture of spirit and matter (also the number for man).

HOW TO INVOKE THE ARCHANGELS AND ANGELS

The Kerubic Angels, Archangels and Lesser Angels are all invoked using the appropriate Calls from Table VII, together with the Pentagram Ritual. Each Angel is attributed to the element of the corresponding Watchtower. The Archangels and Ruling Lesser Angels are attributed to Spirit, the element of the Tablet of Union.

A pentagram has five points and each corresponds to an element, and therefore to one of the Holy Tablets. During the ritual, a pentagram is drawn for a particular Angel or Archangel by beginning it at the appropriate point. The pentagram is shown in Figure 16. The four lower points correspond to the Watchtowers, and above them is Spirit which corresponds to the Tablet of Union.

Invocation of Archangels and Angels: Step by Step

A. PREPARATION.

1. Select the Archangel or Angel to be invoked. This will depend upon the motive or purpose for the invocation.
2. Determine the corresponding Watchtower, Angel and Element.
3. Determine and be familiar with the appropriate Calls, from Table VII.
4. Memorize the pronunciation of all names involved.

The order of the Enochian Hierarchies is:

- a. Great Holy Name
  - b. Great King
  - c. Six Seniors
  - d. Calvary Cross Angel (six letters)
  - e. Calvary Cross Controlling Angel (five letters)
  - f. Archangel
  - g. Kerubic Angel
  - h. Ruling Lesser Angel
  - i. Lesser Angel
  - j. Demons
5. Consult Figures 16, 17 and 18 to determine the appropriate pentagrams to be drawn.
  6. Stand facing the appropriate Watchtower (i.e. North, South, East, or West from Figure 8).

B. INVOCATION.

1. Begin by reciting out loud the appropriate Call or Calls in their proper order. Concentration should place the mind in a receptive state, tuned to the vibratory forces of the particular Angel being invoked.
2. Trace a large pentagram in the air with either a magic wand or rod.
  - a. Begin at the point of the pentagram shown in Figures 17 and 18 depending upon the corresponding element. There are two pentagrams for the Tablet of Union, one for E and B (both are active) and another for H and N (both are passive).

- b. Trace the pentagram in a single unbroken line. Begin in the direction shown in the figures by the arrow and continue until returning to the starting point.
- c. Imagination is important here. As the magician traces the lines in the air, he imagines that a pentagram is actually being drawn. He must be able to see it very clearly in his mind. The color of this psychic construction is as follows:

| If the starting point is: | Then the color of the pentagram is: |
|---------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| Spirit (E,B)              | bright purple                       |
| Spirit (H,N)              | deep purple                         |
| Air                       | sky blue                            |
| Water                     | sea green                           |
| Earth                     | amber                               |
| Fire                      | bright fiery vermillion             |

- d. To further tax the imagination, after any pentagram is drawn, imagine the following symbol at the center of it, shining with the same color:

|        |   |
|--------|---|
| Spirit | ⊗ |
| Air    | △ |
| Water  | ▽ |
| Earth  | ▽ |
| Fire   | △ |

3. As a general rule, pronounce the Holy Name while tracing the pentagram and the Great King's name while constructing the inner symbol. Then pronounce the names of all six Seniors while concentrating on the pentagram.

4. Continue calling out the names of the angelic hierarchy in their proper sequence until naming the Angel to be invoked. While speaking outwardly, the magician vibrates the name inwardly, mentally filling the universe with it. If done properly, this will have the effect of clearly visualizing the locality of the invoked Angel and his exact relationship with the Watchtower. In other words, it will establish a psycho-magnetic link between the magician and the Angel.
5. If successful, he will appear in the pentagram in some form and will converse with the magician. If partially successful, the magician may catch an idea or thought from him.
6. Success or failure is not measured by requiring that an Angel physically jump out of the Aethyr at the magician. It is measured only by the degree in achievement of the original motive. Success or failure may not be known for days or even months after the operation.

C. BANISHMENT.

1. Every Angel invoked, must be properly banished after the operation. If unsure whether the invocation was successful or not, use the banishment ritual anyway. It is a psychological necessity to banish these foreign impulses and forces from one's consciousness lest they influence one unconsciously (which is a form of possession).
2. To banish an Archangel or Angel back to his region, simply make another pentagram in reverse, as shown in Figures 17 and 18.
3. As the banishing pentagram is drawn, imagine that the colored lines previously traced are being erased (this may take some practice at first). Imagine that the central symbol disappears simultaneously. When the banishing pentagram has been drawn properly, the magician will no longer see any pentagram at all. He should feel that a great distance once again separates him from the Angel.

An Invocation of a Lesser Angel.

Suppose, for an example, one would like to increase his capacity for knowledge. Perhaps he has a poor memory, or is slow to learn new things. In order to ease this problem, he decides to call on the assistance of ABMO, the highest of the Lesser Angels in the subquadrant Earth of Air.

As part of his preparation, the magician finds that ABA can mean "to bend" or "to come down" and that OM means "knowledge" or "understanding." AB-OM can thus mean "the coming down of knowledge," and the Angel AB-MO (where MO is an anagram for OM) is "he who brings down knowledge." He also calculates the gematric value of ABMO to be 131 and uses this number to find an equivalent Enochian word or phrase. He knows that he will be working on the Watchtower of Air, so he reviews the Governing Angels of this quadrant and the two pentagrams to be used (one for invoking the other for banishing).

The magician begins by casting aside all distracting thoughts and concerns. He should be alone, or at least without distractions or interruptions. Once such operations begin, any interruption could be disastrous.

The magician stands with arms outstretched facing the East and recites Call no. 3 and then Call no. 8. The meanings of these Calls must be clear. Their symbolism should lead to a vibratory feeling for the subquadrant Earth of Air.

Then the magician speaks the Holy Name, Oh-roh Ee-bah Ah-oh-zod-pee and vibrates it in his mind while tracing a large light blue Air Pentagram. He should be able to see the blue pentagram shining in the air before him.

He then sees a light blue symbol for air (△) in the center of the pentagram while he simultaneously vibrates the five-syllabled name of Bah-tah-ee-vah-heh, "he whose voice seems to have wings."

As he looks at the completed pentagram, he slowly vibrates the names of the six Seniors:

Hab-bee-oh-roh

Ah-ah-oh-zodah-eefeh

Heh-teh-noh-rah-dah

Ah-ha-oh-zodah-pee

Ah-veh-toh-tah-rah

Hee-poh-teh-gah

By now the magician should be in good rapport with the Watchtower of Air. A psycho-magnetic link should be clearly established. He is now ready to proceed to the proper subquadrant. He begins by saying:

"Ahee-ah-oh-ahee, who stands upright at the great Cross, be within me, and grant my request.

Ohee-ee-ee-teh, who expands outward to control the mighty Cross, be within me and without me, and grant my request.

O Mighty Archangel, Eh-ten-beh-rah, who guards over the Earth of Air, manifest my request; make my inner desire for knowledge to be an outer reality.

O mighty and merciful Kerubic Angel, Ten-beh-rah, may my inherent capacity for knowledge be made manifest in this life. O Ten-beh-rah, may a balance be made between ignorance and wisdom.

O kindly presiding Angel, Rah-beh-moh, may knowledge of all things come easily to me."

The magician has now worked his way down to the Angel who is to be invoked, ABMO. Consciousness which was first expanded in all directions (i.e. blank), has been guided to the great Watchtower of Air in the East, and then to the subquadrant Earth of Air, and then to the specific squares of that subquadrant where the Lesser Angel ABMO dwells. All the while the original goal is kept firmly in mind and the Air Pentagram still sparkles in the air before the magician's eyes. He is now ready to invoke ABMO:

"O Ah-bem-oh, who governs over the three Lesser Angels Nah-koh, Oh-ken-em, and Ess-hah-el; assist me!

O Ah-bem-oh, whose number is one hundred and thirty-one, attend me!

You are ETHAMZA (Eteh-ahm-zodah) MAD-BESZ (Em-ah-deh Bess-zod) (i.e. "you are hidden by the god of matter." Both of these equal 131).

Ah-bem-oh, Ah-bem-oh, come to me. Make the ASr of Knowledge to be the earth of intelligence for me. Help me to fully realize my inherent ability to learn and to retain what is learned. May I be made firm in knowledge even as you are earthed in Air.

Ah-bem-oh, assist me!

Now the magician should feel the airy nature of knowledge becoming a solid fact within himself. He imagines ABMO in the pentagram showering forth his ability to manifest the capacity for knowledge. He is now one who can learn easily and remember facts over long periods of time. His own inherent ability will now surely be enhanced.

In gratitude to ABMO, he now banishes the Angel with a banishing Air Pentagram. ABMO thus returns to the Watchtower of Air in the East and the pentagram is gone from his sight.

A successful outcome here is likely because the magician has requested that an inherent ability (i.e. inherent in man) be made manifest in this life. The Angel was not asked to perform an impossible mission. He was asked only to assist the magician to make a desired psychological change within himself in accordance with the Great Work. Enochian Magic is extremely powerful in this regard.

RELATIONSHIP OF THE WATCHTOWERS TO THE TREE OF LIFE

Both Crowley and the Golden Dawn sought to show a correspondence between the Enochian system and the Hebrew system of the Qabalah and its Tree of Life. The Tree of Life consists of ten Sephiroth, globes of splendor, from Kether the most spiritual down to Malkuth, our Earth and the most material. These globes are situated as shown in Figure 19. There are 22 paths connecting these globes. These paths are each represented by one of the trump cards of the Tarot. Figure 19 also shows the matching Enochian letters.

It can be seen from this, and from the data contained in Table II, that an exact match is not possible. Three paths have two letters each, while three paths (Sun, Tower, and Fortune) have none. Crowley states (in THE VISION AND THE VOICE) that the Aethyrs approach the Tree of Life, but are nowhere identical. Nevertheless, a fairly good correspondence can be made using the Abyss as a common reference point for the two systems. The dark and hidden Sephiroth of Daath corresponds tolerably well with the tenth Aethyr.

The Calvary Crosses of the Watchtowers bear a direct correspondence with the Sephiroth, as shown in Figure 20. Each Calvary Cross in the four Fire subquadrants, represent the Sephiroth in the Atziluth World. Each Cross in the four Water subquadrants, correspond to the Sephiroth in the Briah World. Each Cross in the Air subquadrants, the Yetzirah World, and the four Earth subquadrants, the Assiah World. These four worlds or cosmic planes each contain ten Sephiroth according to Qabalistic tradition.

RELATIONSHIP OF THE WATCHTOWERS TO THE UNIVERSE

According to ancient occult philosophy, each person is always located in the center of the universe. The universe itself is said to be like a circle whose circumference is everywhere (i.e. infinite) and whose center is nowhere (i.e. infinitesimal). In magic, this idea means that it is convenient to imagine ourselves at the center of the universe just as it is convenient to imagine that the universe is endless. Whether these things be so or not, is of no consequence to the magician. He finds it convenient to imagine that he is the geometric point at the center of infinity. He finds no difficulty in regarding others as also geometric points, or consciousness-centers, at the center of the universe. If the universe is considered to be infinite, then virtually any point one cares to select can be said to lay at the center.

The Tablet of Union (Figure 9) is the central region of the universe, according to the Enochian magical system. The magician therefore visualizes himself at the center of the Tablet of Union. Around him, like walls rising up from the ends of the world, are the four Watchtowers. Around these Watchtowers are the thirty Aethyrs rising up into the spiritual realms of infinity.

The 30th through the 27th Aethyrs are located in what is generally called the Astral Plane. The 26th through the 11th are on the Mental Plane. The 10th is on the dividing line between formless spirit and formed matter. This is usually called the Great Outer Abyss, or simply the Abyss. The higher Aethyrs, 9th through the 2nd, are spiritual. The highest Aethyr, the first, is divine.

Figure 21 is a diagram of this relationship. The magician visualizes himself standing between the "O" of HKOMA and the "N" of NANTA at the center of the universe. In this way, the quadrants, Aethyrs, Angels, and so forth can become very real and meaningful. Mind traveling to certain squares, subquadrants or Aethyrs, is equivalent to traveling through one's own universe. Figure 21 must not be taken too literally by the beginner. It is a diagram only. Actually the Watchtowers and Aethyrs overlap to a large extent. In fact, the Governors of the Aethyrs are named in the letters of the Watchtowers and through a study of these names, the actual relationships can become known.

TRAVELING IN THE SPIRIT VISION: GENERAL

When Angels are invoked, there must be a reason or motive behind the invocation which relates to the nature of the Angel. Invocations are therefore generally limited in scope. They are constrained by the motive. Not so is traveling in the Spirit Vision.

The ability to consciously leave the physical body and travel mentally through the astral and mental planes is rare, but certainly not unknown. The Golden Dawn referred to such conscious out-of-body experiences as traveling in the Spirit Vision. In truth, whether one actually leaves the physical body in a subtle body and travels in specific directions through the Watchtowers and Aethyrs, or simply uses his imagination tempered by known correspondences, is immaterial to a successful operation. Anyone with a colorful imagination can astral travel, and vice versa.

Just as the Qabalist travels mentally along the paths of the Tarot to the Sephiroth, so the magician here can travel through the four Watchtowers and the thirty Aethyrs.

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: THREE MAGICAL OPERATIONS WITH SPIRIT VISION

The three most important operations using the Spirit Vision in Enochian Magic are:

- a. Scrying in the Spirit Vision
- b. Traveling in the Spirit Vision
- c. Rising on the Planes or Aethyrs

a. Scrying in the Spirit Vision. This is identical with clairvoyance or psychic vision. It is the method most recommended for beginners and should be practiced until proficiency is reached before the other two operations are attempted. Basically, it consists of using signposts or known magical symbols and correspondences to "see", with inner vision, the regions or subquadrants so symbolized. The signposts are used to "prime the pump" of the imagination as well as to keep the imagination in check once it begins. Start by meditating on the symbols and signposts pertinent to the operation. Then gradually slide into seeing them mentally rather than physically. The result will be a psychic vision of the region or subquadrant under consideration.

b. Traveling in the Spirit Vision. This operation is also known as Astral Traveling or Astral Projection. Here the magician actually separates his consciousness from his physical body and, by a concentration of will, projects himself in either an astral or mental body to the desired Aethyr or Watchtower Square. There he observes the region and its inhabitants directly and returns whenever he so desires. The mechanics of this operation are identical to those for falling asleep and entering a dream. The only real difference is that dreams are subconscious and spontaneous whereas this magical operation is conscious and deliberate. In Astral Projection the magician remains in complete control of any situation that may develop. Unlike scrying, which is two-dimensional, traveling in the Spirit Vision is three-dimensional. The magician actually enters into the region rather than merely visualizing it.

c. Rising on the Planes or Aethyrs. This operation is the most advanced and is not recommended for beginners. It should be attempted only after proficiency is established in Astral Projection. The process consists of raising consciousness from the Physical Plane upward (relatively speaking) toward the spiritual realms of the Spiritual Plane and then through them to the Divine Plane. In this sense it is not unlike mysticism and indeed the result is a mystical experience or samadhi. The Western Qabalistic Model of the Tree of Life (Sephiroth), the Eastern Gupta-Vidya Model (Globes) and the Enochian Model (Aethyrs) can all be used as structural maps for consciousness during this operation (these models will be described in detail later).

THE TABLET COLORS

Each magician should draw his own Tablets. The colors used should be those prescribed by the Golden Dawn, and presented by Robert Wang in THE SECRET TEMPLE (Weiser, New York, 1980). These are shown in Figures 22 and 23. Above each Tablet is the appropriate sigil of the elemental king whose name is found from the Great Seal.

These colored Tablets are important for traveling in the Spirit Vision. They give a sense of orientation and direction, as well as expressing the overall mood or tone of the squares. Familiarization of the territory beforehand, can prevent one from going astray during an operation.

HOW TO MAKE EACH TABLET SQUARE INTO A PYRAMID

The Golden Dawn worked out a system whereby each of the Watchtower squares can be made into a truncated pyramid (This is a pyramid with its top cut off). Figure 24 shows a typical example.

Each pyramid is positioned so that triangle no. 2 faces the top of the Tablet. An elaborate scheme has been devised so that each face of every pyramid has correspondences with planets, Tarot cards, Hebrew letters, and elements. Here, it is sufficient to consider only the elements. The appropriate Enochian letter of the square is placed in the center square which represents the chopped-off top of the pyramid. The similarity between Figure 24 (microcosm) and figure 21 (macrocosm) should not go unnoticed.

THE SERVIENT SQUARES

Making Pyramids of the Servient Squares.

The Sixteen Servient Squares under the horizontal bar of each Calvary Cross are especially easy to convert into element-affected pyramids. Using the triangular side numbers as shown in Figure 24, the general rules are:

Triangle no. 1 = Element of the Tablet or Watchtower

Triangle no. 2 = Element of ruling file or column

Triangle no. 3 = Element of Subquadrant

Triangle no. 4 = Element of ruling rank or row

To find the appropriate element for any column or row of a Servient Square, use the correspondence shown in Figure 25. The numbers 1 through 4 represent the elements attributed to the row or column indicated. As an example, the Servient Square "R" of BRAP in the Water subquadrant of the Watchtower of Fire (i.e. Water of Fire), should be designated,

Triangle no. 1 = Fire

Triangle no. 2 = Earth

Triangle no. 3 = Water

Triangle no. 4 = Air

As an additional aid in understanding these Servient Squares, Figure 26 shows the influences of these elements on any square in terms of its strength and/or weakness. For example, in the "R" of BRAP, it should be clear that Water will be very strong and Air very weak while Earth and Fire are about even.

2 = Water

Egyptian Deities of the Servient Squares

The question of why a magician should make pyramids out of the Servient Squares will now be answered. Each of the Servient Squares in the Watchtowers is ruled by an Egyptian god or goddess. The pyramid, with its four-sided attribution of elements, is used to determine which Egyptian deity presides over each pyramid.

Although technically not part of the Enochian Hierarchy, each of these deities can be considered as an additional ruler. However, they usually do not answer to the pentagram or hexagram rituals. For this reason they are seldom invoked but are primarily used when traveling in the Spirit Vision. They are much more familiar to most occultists and magicians than the relatively obscure Enochian Angels. Indeed, Egyptian tradition is the bedrock of western occultism (the Tarot, for example, is the "Book of Thoth", the ibis-headed god of wisdom and magic). Their use thus aids the magician to assimilate the general contour of those subtle regions symbolized by each Servient Square. In this way, the Enochian Hierarchy itself can easily become more familiar.

The exact Egyptian god or goddess of any Servient Square is found as follows:

1. First convert the Servient Square to a pyramid.
2. Determine the element attributed to each of the four triangular sides.
3. Determine the presiding Egyptian deity from these elements by using Table VIII.

TABLE VIII. EGYPTIAN DEITIES OF THE PYRAMIDS

| No.             | Elements in Pyramid                             | Egyptian Ruling Deity                                                                                                            |
|-----------------|-------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1               | One triangle of each element.                   | Osiris, god of death; ruler of the reincarnation cycle.                                                                          |
| 2               | At least three triangles of Water.              | Isis, goddess of nature and magic; ruler of all solidification processes; sister of Nephthys and Set, sister and wife of Osiris. |
| 3 <sup>a</sup>  | At least three triangles of Earth.              | Horus, hawk-headed god of human evolution; son of Osiris and Isis.                                                               |
| 4 <sup>a</sup>  | At least three triangles of Fire.               | Nephthys, goddess of the esoteric; ruler of all dispersion processes.                                                            |
| 5               | At least three triangles of Air.                | Aroueris, or Ur-Horu, Horus the Elder. Horus as humanity matured.                                                                |
| 6               | Two triangles of Earth and two of Water.        | Hathor, cow-goddess, an aspect of Isis as the wife of Horus.                                                                     |
| 7               | Two triangles of Fire and two of Water.         | Sothis, goddess of the dog-star Sirius; a form of Isis who initiates each new season.                                            |
| 8               | Two triangles of Air and two of Water.          | Harpocrates, or Hor-pa-Khrat, Horus the Child, ruler of Silence.                                                                 |
| 9               | Two triangles of Fire and two of Earth.         | Apis, god of the emotions and of desire in the form of a bull.                                                                   |
| 10              | Two triangles of Earth and two of Air.          | Anubis, dog-headed god of the subtle substances and guide through the after-death state; son of Osiris and Nephthys.             |
| 11 <sup>b</sup> | Two triangles of Fire and two of Air.           | Bast, cat-headed goddess of darkness and Witchcraft.                                                                             |
| 12              | At least one triangle of Fire, Water and Earth. | Mestha, protector of disembodied consciousness; son of Horus, in the form of a human-headed mummy.                               |
| 13              | At least one triangle of Fire, Water and Air.   | Hapi, protector of disembodied consciousness; son of Horus, in the form of an ape-headed mummy.                                  |
| 14              | At least one triangle of Earth, Water and Air.  | Tuamautel, protector of disembodied consciousness; son of Horus, in the form of a dog-headed mummy.                              |
| 15              | At least one triangle of Earth, Fire and Air.   | Qebhsennuf, protector of disembodied consciousness; son of Horus, in the form of a hawk-headed mummy.                            |

<sup>a</sup> Here nos. 3 and 4 are the reverse of the Golden Dawn attributions. Nephthys is the ruler of the Fire of Dispersion and should control Fire, while Horus is the prototype of man and should rule Earth. The Golden Dawn listing is either a mistake or a deliberate blind.

<sup>b</sup> Bast is used where Water is strong and Fire relatively weak. In areas where Fire is strong and Water relatively weak, use the lioness headed goddess Sakhet, ruler of heat and fire, and wife of the god Ptah.

The Sphinx of the Servient Squares.

In addition to an Egyptian deity, each pyramid of the Servient Squares is said to contain a sphynx. This sphynx is a composite of four basic sections and is dependent upon the elements of each triangle. The student can construct a rough likeness of this sphynx as follows:

1. Head. The element of Triangle No. 2 determines the head and whether the sphynx has wings:

Air = Human-headed with wings like an angel

Water = Eagle- or hawk-headed with wings

Earth = Bull-headed without wings

Fire = Lion-headed without wings

2. Upper Body. The elements of Triangles 1 and 3 together determine the torso and arms or forelimbs:

Air = Human torso/limbs plus wings

Water = Eagle or hawk torso plus wings

Earth = Bull-like torso/forelimbs

Fire = Lion-like torso/forelimbs

3. Lower Body. The element of Triangle No. 4 determines the lower limbs (and tail for bull, eagle and lion):

Air = Human legs and feet

Water = Eagle or hawk legs and tail

Earth = Bull-like legs and tail

Fire = Lion-like legs and tail

4. Sex. When Air or Fire are emphasized by the triangles the tendency of the sphynx is to be male. When Water or Earth dominate, the tendency is for the sphynx to be female.

Note. The primary purpose of including the sphynx in any pyramid visitation is for a check. If the sphynx seen does not conform to the above signposts, then something is wrong with the Spirit Vision and the operation should be concluded as quickly as possible.

MAKING PYRAMIDS OF THE GREAT CROSS SQUARES

The 36 squares of the Great Cross of each Watchtower can be converted into pyramids. This is done for meditational purposes as well as to develop signposts for visiting in the Spirit Vision. The Great Cross consists of one row and two columns, as shown in Figure 11 for the Watchtower of Air. Conversion is in accordance with Figure 24 which shows the four triangular sides of a typical pyramid. The rules which apply are:

- Triangle No. 1 = Zodiac Influences
- Triangle No. 2 = Element of Spirit
- Triangle No. 3 = Planet Influences
- Triangle No. 4 = Element of Watchtower

1. Zodiac Influences. The general rules for attributing the Zodiac signs are:

- (a) The four fixed signs are given to the row (Linea Spiritus Sancti).
- (b) The four cardinal signs are given to the left-hand column (left side of the *Linea Dei Patris Filii*que).
- (c) The four mutable signs are given to the right-hand column (right side of the *Linea Dei Patris Filii*que).
- (d) Each sign influences three adjacent squares for a total of 36 squares.

The specific rules for Zodiac Influences are:

a. Great Cross of Air.

- (1) Row. From left to right, three squares each, are: Aquarius, Scorpio, Leo, and then Taurus.
- (2) Left-hand column. From top to bottom, three squares each, are: Libra, Cancer, Aries, and then Capricorn.
- (3) Right-hand column. From top to bottom, three squares each, are: Gemini, Pisces, Sagittarius, and then Virgo.

Making Pyramids of the Great Cross Squares / 117

b. Great Cross of Water.

- (1) Row. From left to right, three squares each, are: Scorpio, Leo, Taurus, and then Aquarius.
- (2) Left-hand column. From top to bottom, three squares each, are: Cancer, Aries, Capricorn, and then Libra.
- (3) Right-hand column. From top to bottom, three squares each, are: Pisces, Sagittarius, Virgo, and then Gemini.

c. Great Cross of Earth.

- (1) Row. From left to right, three squares each, are: Taurus, Aquarius, Scorpio, and then Leo.
- (2) Left-hand column. From top to bottom, three squares each, are: Capricorn, Libra, Cancer, and then Aries.
- (3) Right-hand column. From top to bottom, three squares each, are: Virgo, Gemini, Pisces, and then Sagittarius.

d. Great Cross of Fire.

- (1) Row. From left to right, three squares each, are: Leo, Taurus, Aquarius, and then Scorpio.
- (2) Left-hand column. From top to bottom, three squares each, are: Aries, Capricorn, Libra, and then Cancer.
- (3) Right-hand column. From top to bottom, three squares each, are: Sagittarius, Virgo, Gemini, and then Pisces.

2. Spirit. The second triangle of each pyramid of every Great Cross is assigned the element of Spirit.

3. Planet Influences. Planetary influences are obtained from occult correspondences between the seven sacred planets and the Decans of the Zodiac. These are as follows:

a. Row, from left to right.

Leo = Saturn, then Jupiter, and then Mars

Scorpio = Mars, then Sun and then Venus

Aquarius = Venus, then Mercury and then Moon

- Taurus = Mercury, then Moon, and then Saturn
- b. Left-hand column, top to bottom.
    - Aries = Mars, then Sun, and then Venus
    - Capricorn = Jupiter, then Mars, and then Sun
    - Libra = Moon, then Saturn, and then Jupiter
    - Cancer = Venus, then Mercury, and then Moon
  - c. Right-hand column, top to bottom.
    - Gemini = Jupiter, then Mars, and then Sun
    - Pisces = Saturn, then Jupiter, and then Mars
    - Sagittarius = Mercury, then Moon, and then Saturn
    - Virgo = Sun, then Venus, and then Mercury
  4. The fourth triangle of each pyramid of every Great Cross is assigned the element of the Watchtower.
  5. Color.
    - a. Zodiac Influences. These triangles (No. 1) are colored according to type as:
      - Fiery Signs (Aries, Leo, Sagittarius) are red
      - Watery Signs (Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces) are blue
      - Airy Signs (Gemini, Libra, Aquarius) are yellow
      - Earthy Signs (Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn) are black
    - b. Spirit. All Spirit triangles (No. 2) are white.
    - c. Planet Influences. These triangles (No. 3) are colored as:
      - Sun and Jupiter are red (Fire)
      - Saturn and Mercury are yellow (Air)
      - Venus and Moon are black (Earth)
      - Mars is blue (Water)
    - d. Watchtower. These triangles (No. 4) are colored according to the standard Watchtower colors:
      - Air = yellow
      - Water = blue
      - Earth = black
      - Fire = red

Example No. 1.

The square "I" which is the fourth square from the left along the Linea Spiritus Sancti in the Great Watchtower of Air (see Figure 4):

- Triangle No. 1 = Scorpio, blue (watery)
- Triangle No. 2 = Spirit, white
- Triangle No. 3 = Mars, blue (watery)
- Triangle No. 4 = Air, yellow

Example No. 2.

The square "O" which is the second square from the top along the left side of the Linea Dei Patris Filii in the Great Watchtower of Water (see Figure 5):

- Triangle No. 1 = Cancer, blue (watery)
- Triangle No. 2 = Spirit, white
- Triangle No. 3 = Mercury, yellow (airy)
- Triangle No. 4 = Water, blue

Example No. 3.

The square "A" which is the seventh square from the left along the Linea Spiritus Sancti in the Great Watchtower of Fire (see Figure 7):

- Triangle No. 1 = Aquarius, yellow (airy)
- Triangle No. 2 = Spirit, white
- Triangle No. 3 = Venus, black (earthy)
- Triangle No. 4 = Fire, red

Note: In each Tablet, the two squares of the Linea Spiritus Sancti which cut the Linea Dei Patris Filii in half are a part of the former, not the latter.

MAKING PYRAMIDS OF THE SEPHIROTIC CROSS SQUARES

The ten squares of each of the Calvary (Sephiorotic) Crosses can be converted into pyramids. The Sephirotic or Calvary Cross is shown in Figure 15. It consists of five horizontal squares and six vertical squares with one square shared by the two bars. Conversion is in accordance with Figure 24. The rules which apply are:

- Triangle No. 1 Element of Watchtower
- Triangle No. 2 Element of Spirit
- Triangle No. 4 Element of Subquadrant
- Triangle No. 4 Sephirotic Influence

The first three triangles are self-explanatory and should be colored according to the standard Watchtower/Element colors (Spirit is always white). Triangle No. 4 is determined from Figure 20 for each cross. After finding the correct Sephiroth, use the following correspondences:

| No. | Sephiroth | Planet  | Color       |
|-----|-----------|---------|-------------|
| 1   | Kether    | Jupiter | brilliance  |
| 2   | Chokmah   | Mercury | soft blue   |
| 3   | Binah     | Moon    | crimson     |
| 4   | Chesed    | Venus   | deep violet |
| 5   | Geburah   | Mars    | orange      |
| 6   | Tiphareth | Sun     | pink rose   |
| 7   | Netzach   | _____   | white       |
| 8   | Hod       | _____   | white       |
| 9   | Yesod     | _____   | white       |
| 10  | Malkuth   | _____   | white       |

Example No. 1.

The first "A" in OLAAD in the subquadrant Earth of Water (see Figure 5). This is also the first "A" in the name MALADI:

- Triangle No. 1 Water, blue (Water is weak here)
- Triangle No. 2 Spirit, white
- Triangle No. 3 Earth, black (Earth is weak here)
- Triangle No. 4 Tiphareth (Sun), pink rose (influence here is strong)

Example No. 2.

The first "I" of ILPIZ in the subquadrant of Fire of Earth (see Figure 6):

- Triangle No. 1 Earth, black (Earth is strong here)
- Triangle No. 2 Spirit, white
- Triangle No. 3 Fire, red
- Triangle No. 4 Binah (Moon), crimson

Example No. 3.

The "L" in NOALMR in the subquadrant Air of Fire (see Figure 7):

- Triangle No. 1 Fire, red
- Triangle No. 2 Spirit, white
- Triangle No. 3 Air, yellow
- Triangle No. 4 Hod, white

MAKING PYRAMIDS OF THE KERUBIC SQUARES

The Kerubic Squares (four in each subquadrant) are located above the horizontal bar of the Calvary Cross, two on each side of the vertical bar. Conversion is in accordance with Figure 24. The rules which apply are:

- Triangle No. 1 = Kerubic Element
- Triangle No. 2 = Element of Watchtower
- Triangle No. 3 = Kerubic Element
- Triangle No. 4 = Element of Subquadrant

Triangle Nos. 2 and 4 are self-explanatory and should be colored according to standard Watchtower/Element colors. Triangle No. 1 is always the same element and color as Triangle No. 3. The correct element to use is found from Figure 25. Use Figure 25 to find the corresponding number (column nos. 1 through 4) of the Kerubic Square desired. Then use the key given in Figure 25 to determine the correct Kerubic Element.

Example No. 1

The Kerubic Square "S" of PSAK in the subquadrant Earth of Fire:

- Triangle No. 1 Air, yellow
- Triangle No. 2 Fire, red (Fire is weak here)
- Triangle No. 3 Air, yellow
- Triangle No. 4 Earth, black

Example No. 2.

The Kerubic Square "A" of PHRA in the subquadrant Water of Earth:

- Triangle No. 1 Water, blue (Water is weak here)
- Triangle No. 2 Earth, black
- Triangle No. 3 Water, blue (Water is strong here)
- Triangle No. 4 Water, blue

Example No. 3.

The Kerubic Square "D" of TAAD in the subquadrant Air of Water:

- Triangle No. 1 Earth, black (Earth is strong here)
- Triangle No. 2 Water, blue
- Triangle No. 3 Earth, black (Earth is weak here)
- Triangle No. 4 Air, yellow (Air is weak here)

MAKING PYRAMIDS OF THE TABLET OF UNION SQUARES

The twenty squares of the Tablet of Union can easily be converted into pyramids. This Tablet is shown in Figure 9. Conversion is in accordance with Figure 24. The rules which apply are:

Triangle No. 1 = Element of Column

Triangle No. 2 = Element of Spirit

Triangle No. 3 = Element of Row

Triangle No. 4 = Element of Spirit

Example No. 1. The square with letter "E":

Triangle No. 1 = Spirit, white

Triangles No. 2 and 4 = Spirit, white

Triangle No. 3 = Air, yellow

Example No. 2. The square with the letter "X":

Triangle No. 1 = Air, yellow

Triangles No. 2 and 4 = Spirit, white

Triangle No. 3 = Air, yellow

Example No. 3. The square with the letter "P":

Triangle No. 1 = Fire, red

Triangles No. 2 and 4 = Spirit, white

Triangle No. 3 = Air, yellow

Example No. 4. The square with the letter "K":

Triangle No. 1 = Air, yellow

Triangles No. 2 and 4 = Spirit, white

Triangle No. 3 = Water, blue (water is strong here)

TRAVELING IN THE SPIRIT VISION: STEP BY STEP

A. PREPARATION.

1. Select the area to be visited. This can be either an Aethyr or one of the squares of the four Watchtowers.
2. Determine all known correspondences. These act as guideposts along the way to prevent the imagination from fooling itself or being trapped, or lost. One's imagination will project outwardly one's subconscious fears and tendencies, as in a dream. Traveling in the Spirit Vision is indeed similar to falling asleep. The primary difference is that here one consciously controls events, while dreams are unconscious and spontaneous.
3. Sit or lie quietly and relaxed. It is usually considered best to keep the spine upright and straight. Be this as it may, the goal is to forget the physical body for a time. Twisting oneself into a yogic pretzel is not necessary and can, in fact, be dangerous as well as uncomfortable. The key factor here is to eliminate distractions.

B. THE SPIRIT VISION.

1. Face the appropriate direction.
  - a. Use the Zodiac correspondence for the Watchtowers.
  - b. No direction is necessary for Aethyrs because they lie in all directions, like concentric spheres.
2. Recite the appropriate Call or Calls.
  - a. The Calls for invocations are also used for Spirit Vision.
  - b. One Call is used for all of the thirty Aethyrs.
3. Vibrate the names of the corresponding rulers.
  - a. The entire appropriate hierarchy should be recited for each square of a Watchtower. Demon names are excluded unless they are specifically being called (not recommended).

- b. Each Aethyr is ruled by three Governors whose names are each vibrated.
  - c. If entering a Serviant Square, call upon the ruling Egyptian deity and observe the sphynx.
4. Feel as though surrounded by the atmosphere desired. Known correspondences should be used until the imagination gives them form and they appear real. As each name is spoken outwardly and vibrated inwardly, the locality of its ruler should be felt and if possible, visualized in the mind.
  5. Be fully conscious of the experience. Direct the events as they occur (you will direct them subconsciously anyway). Note any discrepancies or incongruities. Anything that goes against the signposts should indicate that something is wrong.
  6. Each encounter with an Angel or deity must be dealt with in the same way as an invocation. Show respect and humility, but also show control of the conversation. The advantages to being previously versed in these correspondences are obvious (you can't take a textbook with you).

C. THE RETURN.

1. Normally, the desire to return is alone sufficient to bring one back to the physical body.
2. Vow to remember the experience after returning. Astral experiences, like dreams, are easy to forget or to get distorted when back in the physical body again.
3. Ideally, one should be able to split consciousness so that while part undergoes experiences in the Watchtowers and Aethyrs, another is fully aware of the physical body and may even be writing down notes or dictating to a scribe. If this is done, a full return is extremely easy.

Signposts for a Spirit Vision: An Example.

Suppose, for an example, that one desires to travel in the Spirit Vision to the Servient Square "D" that is located in the Watchtower of Fire, in the subquadrant Fire of Fire, ruled by the Lesser Angel ADRE. The following signposts can be determined beforehand in order to be certain one is on the right track, and to keep the imagination in check:

1. The Holy Name is Oh-ee-peh Teh-ah-ah Peh-doh-keh, "He whose name is unchanged from what it was." This name causes turmoil outwardly and doubt inwardly to be a presiding characteristic in this Watchtower.
2. The Great King is Eh-del-par-nah-ah, "He who is first to receive the flames." He has a fiery nature, quick to anger and loves change of any kind but especially the dispersion of aggregates into their constituent components.
3. The six Seniors are:

|                            |                           |
|----------------------------|---------------------------|
| Ah-ah-ete-pee-oh    | Ah-ah-ped-oh-keh   |
| Ah-dah-eh-oh-ete-oh | Ah-noh-doh-ee-neh  |
| Ah-len-keh-voh-deh  | Ah-ree-neh-nah-peh |
4. The Angels of the Calvary Cross are:
 RZIONR (Rah-zodee-oh-nar), "He who is in the Waters of the Sun", i.e., he has a solar nature.
 and NRZFM (En-rah-zod-eff-em), "He who visits here six times," i.e., he brings life to this area (six is the number for the principle of animation)
5. The Archangel is BIZAZ (Bee-zodah-zod), "He who is with a voice." He aids in the purification of communication (e.g., he purifies thoughts, languages, speech, and the like).
6. The Kerubic Angel is IZAZ (Ee-zodah-zod), "He who is outlined." According to the Golden Dawn, he is "outlined" with a fiery mist. He aids in the purification of definition (e.g., he purifies restrictions and limitations).

7. The Ruling Lesser Angel is MADRE (Em-ah-dareh), "He who would be a god." He can help to make one more godlike.
8. The Lesser Angel is ADRE (Ah-dareh), a "small mountain" or "hill." He can help to increase strength and endurance.
9. The Demon here is named MAD (Em-ah-deh), "god." He represents the demonic temptation to see oneself as divine and therefore better than others (i.e. the insidious idea that I am more enlightened, further along the Path, than you). The truth is that all men are inherently divine.
10. The pyramid formed from the square here is as follows:
  - Triangle No. 1 = Fire, red
  - Triangle No. 2 = Air, yellow
  - Triangle No. 3 = Fire, red
  - Triangle No. 4 = Fire, red
11. The presiding Egyptian deity of this square (three triangles of fire and one of air on the pyramid) is the beautiful and alluring goddess, Nephthys. Her name means "the Lady of the House" and her chief function is the dispersion of aggregates. She usually wears a low-cut gauze-like robe which is easily seen through and is very sensual. She can reduce any form into its formless essence by her penetrating gaze. She is the complement of her sister, Isis. Her filmy gown is usually crimson and blue.
12. The Sphinx in this pyramid should be male and look like a large lion with a human head. It will have wings.
13. Prior to Spirit Vision, face East and recite the Sixth Call. This Call reminds the magician that the subquadrant Fire of Fire is an area which is "a torment to the wicked and a garland to the righteous." In other words, one's experience here will be highly karmic in nature.
14. In summary, the Servient Square "D" of ADRE is a region where the lower human nature is consumed in a purification by fire. The goddess Nephthys acts as the feminine complement of the King, EDLP RNAA, and she assists those natural fiery forces of this Watchtower to consume the karma of anyone who enters here. If properly prepared, a magician can return with much of the Great Work accomplished. If not properly prepared, he can return with all sorts of karmic problems immediately manifesting themselves. During this spirit vision, the magician has the chance to meet with any or all of the Angels mentioned above, and to benefit from these encounters. BIZAZ can give one a better sense of communication, even telepathy. IZAZ can help one to identify with his inner spiritual essence rather than only as a human being, which is but a temporary manifestation of this essence. MADRE also helps one to see his divine self (i.e. the spiritual body in Table III). ADRE can help one to eliminate transient human qualities and incorporate permanent ones. However, one must beware of spiritual pride embodied in the demon MAD who haunts this square.

15. A Warning: The Servient Square "D" contains powerful forces which will expose one's unconscious karma, in an effort to consume it. That which is not consumed in the fires of this square will nevertheless be exposed. For this reason they will surely manifest for good or ill upon one's return. The student is thus warned not to meddle with this square until fully prepared. One important preparation in any spirit vision like this is to map out the signposts such as this one beforehand. Sometimes the signposts show dangers and the square is best left until later. It cannot be overemphasized that large, shaggy, sharp-toothed monsters are not the prime danger in magic of this type. The danger is a psychological one, and it is very real indeed. Things will happen to anyone who uses this magic, even if no Angels or deities are encountered at all. Just because a magician doesn't see a demon, doesn't mean that the demon isn't there. In the psychic world, thoughts are things. There is no such thing as only a thought or merely an impulse. If one enters "D" unprepared and then has terrible nightmares later, or comes down with the flu, or has an unfortunate accident, one is perfectly free to say "coincidence"; but one could also correctly say that this magic brought to fruition certain karmic seeds that lay unconscious, until the experience in "D" germinated them into manifestation.

HOW THE MAGIC WORKS: AS ABOVE, SO BELOW

The Egyptian teaching "as above, so below" is the cornerstone of Western occultism and magic. It applies to Enochian Magic as well. The phrase means that one principle expresses itself on all of the cosmic planes and Aethyrs. For this reason, the Spiritual Plane can be understood by knowing the Physical Plane. Every universal principle in the physical world is also active in all thirty Aethyrs.

A corollary to the above rule is that man is a microcosm of the macrocosmic universe. Every universal principle in the world is also active in man. This idea expresses the general principle of correspondence upon which the art of magic is based. A correspondence exists between certain things in the universe. If this correspondence is known, then anything otherwise unknown can become known. For example, the invisible worlds, planes and Aethyrs that exist beyond the range of the physical senses, can become known through their correspondences. Furthermore, because man has a physical body which senses an objective physical world, it seems reasonable to propose that this principle holds equally well on all of these planes and Aethyrs. If so, then man has suitable vehicles on each cosmic plane with appropriate sensing organs to experience those planes. The truth of this proposition is demonstrated by dreams, because a dreamer is by definition one who leaves the physical body and functions on the Astral Plane in an astral body. The fact that most people are unconscious of what they are doing in dreams does not disprove the proposition. Rather it shows the frailty of human consciousness on the Astral Plane and the importance of magical exercises if one is to retain conscious control of himself and his surroundings.

Insofar as Enochian Magic is concerned, the Watchtowers and Aethyrs pertain both to the universe and to man. In a very real sense they are regions of the subtle worlds which surround and sustain the Earth. In another sense, equally valid, they are regions of the mind; psychological dimensions whose inhabitants are personifications of powerful psychic forces and impulses both unique and shared (i.e. residents of the personal and collective unconscious defined by Carl Jung). Hinduism likens man to waves that rise up on the surface of an ocean. As a wave, each person is discrete. But as all waves rise up from a common sea, so the consciousness of man rises up from a common subconsciousness. For this reason when any two magicians enter an Aethyr they will share certain experiences and not share others. These "shared experiences" are called signposts. Each Watchtower square and Aethyr has its own signposts. Every magician should encounter these. They serve as buoys, or road signs, by marking safe passageways for those who travel in the Spirit Vision.

THE AETHYRS

The Governors of the Aethyrs: How to Obtain Their Names

Each of the Aethyrs is presided over by at least three Governors. Their names are contained in the Watchtowers, 22 in each Tablet and three in the Black Cross. Figure 27 shows the sigils for these Governors and how their names are obtained. Each sigil has an arrow at the beginning of the name to show the proper direction of the letters.

There is a total of 92 Governors. This is an important magical number, being numerically equivalent to the Enochian word TOANT which means "love."

A careful count of 22 names from each Tablet and three from the Black Cross results in one missing name. An examination of Figure 27 will show that eight squares are not used for the sigils. In these eight squares, Dee had written the Enochian letters backwards. Presumably this was owing to the danger of seeing, or pronouncing, them even by accident. These letters are O and A from Air, L and (Y, L, N, H) from Water, A and (R, O) from Earth, and A and (O, P) from Fire: a total of thirteen letters and eight squares.

Crowley gives the missing secret name as PAROAN and relates it to the 22nd Aethyr, LIN. The remaining backward letter is L and this is prefixed to one of the three names from the Black Cross thus forming the name LEXARPH (all three of these names are attributed to the 10th Aethyr, ZAX).

Two Aethyrs are given four Governors: the 30th, TEX, and the 22nd, LIN. The remaining 28 Aethyrs each have three.

The Call of the Thirty Aethyrs.

There is only one Call for all thirty Aethyrs. The name of any desired Aethyr is inserted into the blank space at the beginning of the Call. The following Call should be recited prior to traveling in the Spirit Vision to any of the Aethyrs (Crowley's version is contained in Appendix B for comparison):

The Heavens that are in the (first, second, etc) Aethyr, (LIL, ARN, etc.) are mighty in those regions of the universe, and they carry out the Judgment of the Highest. To them it is said: Behold, the Face of your God, the beginning of Comfort, whose eyes are the brightness of the Heavens. He enables you to govern the Earth, and her unspeakable variety and furnishes you with the Power of Understanding so that you can carry out all things according to the Providence of Him who sits upon the Holy Throne, and who rose up in the Beginning, saying: The Earth, let her be governed by her parts, and let there be division in her, so that her glory may be both an eternal ecstasy and an inherent vexation.

Her course, let it run with the Heavens, and let her serve them like a handmaiden.

One season, let it mix with another, and let there be no creature upon her or within her that remains the same.

All of her members, let them have different qualities, and let no one creature be equal to another.

The creatures of reason who are on the Earth, such as man, let them disturb and eliminate one another, and their dwelling places, let their Names be forgotten.

The egotistical works of man, let them be destroyed.

His buildings, let them become caves for the beasts of the field.

Dim her understanding with darkness. Why? Because I am sorry that I have made Man. The Earth is well known for awhile, and for another while, she is a stranger, because she is the bed of a harlot, and the dwelling place of him who is fallen.

O Heavens, arise! The Lower Heavens are beneath you. Let them serve you! Govern those who govern! Cast down those who are likely to fall. Bring forth with those who increase, and destroy those who are rotten. Let no place remain in one number. Add and subtract until the stars are numbered.

Arise! Move! Appear before the Covenant of His Mouth which He has sworn to us in His Justice. Unveil the mysteries of your creation, and make us to be partakers of THE UNDEFINED KNOWLEDGE (IADNAMAD).

THE THIRTIETH AETHYR: TEX

Name: TEX is pronounced Teh-etz and means "the Aethyr that is in four parts."

Gematria: TEX = 419 = LONKHO (the fallen)
419 is also the Hebrew word TITH (serpent)
TEX = 413 = 59 x 7 where 59 = BALTOH (the righteous)

Governors:

1. TA<sup>A</sup>o<sup>O</sup>A GL<sup>B</sup>A

a. Name:

Tablet: Water

Sigil:

TAOAGLA, Tah-oh-ah-geh-lah

TA-NOAG-LA can mean "he who becomes the foremost."

b. Gematria: TAOAGLA=73=ATH-ZEN (works of sacrifice)

TAOAGLA=67=L-BALTOH
(most righteous)

2. GEMNIMB

a. Name:

Tablet: Water

Sigil:

GENIMB, Gem-nee-em-bah

GEM-NIMB can mean "He who is only for a season"

b. Gematria: GEMNIMB=313=HOLQ-PANPIR (to increase measurements) also 313=EOLIS BALZIZRAS (to make judgments)

3. AD<sup>U</sup>vORPT

a. Name:

Tablet: Water

Sigil:

ADUORPT, Ah-du-oh-rah-peh-teh
A-DUORPT can mean "She who silently watches"

b. Gematria: ADUORPT=228=QURLST (woman, handmaiden)

228 is also the Hebrew word IRChI
(lunar)

ADUORPT=222, PRDZAR
(to deceive)

4. DO<sup>X</sup>Z<sup>M</sup>TA<sup>N</sup>U<sup>A</sup>L

Tablet: Water Sigil:

a. Name: DOZIAAL, Doh-zodee-ah-ah-leh DOZI-AAL can mean "He who establishes the night."

b. Gematria: DOZIAAL=123=MOZ (joy)=
LONDOH (kingdom)
123 is also the Hebrew word ONG
(pleasure, delight)

DOZIAL=117=NANBA (thorns)=
ZIZOP (vessel)

117 is also the Hebrew word OLIZ
(joyful)

Location: TEX is the lowest and most material of the Aethyrs. It is located on the Etheric Plane, or Lower Astral Plane which surrounds the Earth and is, in fact, the etheric body of the Earth.

Brief Description: This Aethyr, as its name implies, is divided into four major sections as follows:

North; the region of Karma and strong karmic forces.

East; the region of Desire and charged with all manner of personal desires.

South; the region of Silence and a strong tendency toward nonverbal communication because of the difficulty in finding adequate words.

West; the region of personal limitation and a tendency of the ego to realize its shortcomings.

Comment: TEX gives one a brief glimpse into the subtle planes that exist immediately behind (or beyond) the physical. The four fundamental occult teachings of karma (limitations of action), desire (limitations of emotions), silence (limitations of language), and personal restriction (limitations of ego) are all found here. Hints of higher teachings are given, but as yet these seem only a promise yet unfulfilled.

THE TWENTY-NINTH AETHYR: RII

Name: RII is pronounced Ree-ee and means "The Aethyr of the mercy of heaven."

Gematria: RII=220=OM MAD (knowledge of God) also, 220=110x2, where 110=LAMA
(a path) and 220=22x10, where 22=BALT (justice) and 10=ATH (works)

Governors:

1. VASTRIM      Tablet: Earth      Sigil:
a. Name:      VSTRIM      Vah-seh-tah-ree-em VAS-RIT-M can mean "He who is merciful."
b. Gematria: VSTRIM=342=KAL BALT
(solidification of justice)
VASTRIM=336=LEVITHMONG
(beasts of the field)
336 is also the Hebrew word MKVOR
(ugly)
2. ODRAXTI      Tablet: Earth      Sigil:
a. Name:      ODRAXTI      Oh-dar-ahtz-tee OD-RAX-TI can mean "He who opens up the east."
b. Gematria: ORDAXTI=609=203x3, where 203=PIAMOL (righteousness)
203 is also the Hebrew word BRA (created) and the Hebrew word ABR (destroyed)
ODRAXTI      603      OXI-ZIN
(mighty waters)

3. GMOT<sup>o</sup><sub>M</sub>ZIAM      Tablet: Earth      Sigil:
a. Name:      GMOTZIAM      Geh-moh-teh-zodee-ah-meh G-OM-T-ZIAM can mean "She who knows only herself."
b. Gematria: GMOTZIAM=302=151x2, where 151=ZORGE (love)
GMOTZIAM=296=148x2, where
148=ORSBA (intoxicated)
GMOTZIAM=290=RIOR (a widow)

Location: The 29th Aethyr is located on the Astral Plane. This is the dream state, the plane of psychic fantasy, the Heavens of the world's religions.

Brief Description: Like the 30th Aethyr, this too is divided into four sections (there is a strong sense of direction here):

South: This section is characterized by the realization of the survival of consciousness after death; It is the Kama-Loka of Theosophy, or at least a part of it.

East: This section is characterized by the desire for revenge and for destruction of the wicked; there is a strong sense of right and wrong.

West: This section is characterized by a sense of finality and inevitability; evolution seems to be finished here; strong sense of stagnation.

North: This section is characterized by judgment; karmic necessity; destiny; There is a feeling here that karma is a huge wheel that rolls on and on forever.

Comment: RII gives one a clear look at what happens after death for the average person. Life does, in fact, continue on after death of the physical body. But the quality of this life is of a restrictive nature. The religious person enters heaven. The agnostic continues on in a dream-like existence and may not even know that he has died. The closed mind sees an end to all things. The open (but naive) mind sees the hopelessness of an endless cycle of births and deaths beyond his ability to control. The play between these dualistic viewpoints is strong here.

THE TWENTY-EIGHTH AETHYR: BAG

Name: BAG is pronounced Bah-geh and means "the Aethyr of doubt."

Gematria: BAG=19 which is equal to the Hebrew word ChVH (to manifest) also  $19 \times 2 = 38 = \text{OL}$  (to make) and  $19 \times 3 = 57 = \text{GOSAA}$  (stranger)
57 is also the number for the Hebrew AVIM (terrible)

Governors:

1.  $\text{LABNIXP}$

Tablet: Earth

Sigil:

a. Name:

TABNIXP, Tah-ben-eetz-peh

TABN-IXP can mean "He who governs"

b. Gematria:

TABNIXP=539=KORMEP

(to number)

TABNIXP=533=HOL-IOLKAM

(to measure and bring forth)

2.  $\text{FOKLSNI}$

Tablet: Earth

Sigil:

a. Name:

FOKLSNI, Foh-kel-ess-nee

FO-KLZNI can mean "He who visits those in Heaven"

b. Gematria:

FOKLSNI=458=YOLKI (to bring forth)

also  $458 = 229 \times 2$ , where 229=

SAANIR (parts, sections)

3.  $\text{OXLOPAR}$

Tablet: Earth

Sigil:

a. Name:

OXLOPAR, Ohtz-loh-par

OXOL-PAR can mean "He who has them in his hands"

b. Gematria:

OXLOPAR=583=KOMMAH-IA

(to bind up truth)

also 583=MIKA-IADNAH
(powerful knowledge)

Location: The 28th Aethyr is located in the Astral Plane in a subplane characterized by a strong sense of conscience, sin, and the need for purgative suffering.

Brief Description: A strong feeling of one's unworthiness pervades this Aethyr. Sin, especially karmic sin, is seen here as self-limiting. There is suffering here in a purgatory sense, and one feels that sorrow itself is a necessary factor to encounter if one is to spiritually progress. This Aethyr is filled with the symbols of dualism and one may feel that evil is as real and necessary as good. It is the inherent discriminating nature of the human mind that brings about this strong sense of dualism. If the magician looks carefully, he will detect a hint of the illusive nature of the ego here.

Comment: The power of restriction and doubt in this Aethyr comes from one's own sense of guilt and unworthiness, and thus from one's own karma. BAG is the result of one's identification with the human ego, which is seen as little better than an animal and, at best, a sinner. This kind of identification places a restriction on consciousness and prevents further progress. As long as one identifies himself as a human sinner, he will not be able to rise above BAG. The notion that man is more than an animal, that man can cast off egotistical impulses and desires and can retain a spiritual and purified nature, is considered a blasphemy by some, but is essential for the magician to rise into the higher Aethyrs.

THE TWENTY-SEVENTH AETHYR: ZAA

Name: ZAA is pronounced Zodah-ah and means "the Aethyr of solitude."

Gematria: ZAA=21=APA (that which is unchanging)
21 is also equal to the Hebrew word AHIH (existence)

ZAA=15=GAH (spirit)=AP (unchanging)

Governors:

1. SAZIAMI      Tablet: Earth      Sigil:
 a. Name: SAZIAMI,      Sah-zodee-ah-mee
              SA-Z-IA-MI can mean "He who has true power"
 b. Gematria: SAZIAMI=238=VIRG (nests, home) also 238=119x2, where 119=RAAS (east)=ZIN (waters)
              SAZIAMI=232=MALPRGE (appearance of fire)
2. MATHVLA      Tablet: Earth      Sigil:
 a. Name: MATHVLA,      Mah-teh-hev-lah
              M-ATH-VLA can mean "He who ends actions"
 b. Gematria: MATHVLA=190=VONPHO (wrath)
              190 is also equal to the Hebrew word QTz (the end)
              MATHVLA=184=DOSIG-IPA (night of voidness)
3. KORPANIB      Tablet: Earth      Sigil:
 a. Name: KORPANIB,      Koh-ar-pah-nee-beh KAR-PON-BI can mean "He who destroys speech"

- b. Gematria: KORPANIB=560=KOMOIN (window to the void) also 560=280x2, where 280=
 VOVIN (dragon)
 and 560 is equal to the Hebrew
 ThNINIM (dragons)

Location: The 27th Aethyr is located at the apex of the Astral Plane where the primary characteristic is loneliness.

Brief Description: This Aethyr emphasizes man's basic nature of solitude. One is alone in the womb before birth, and returns to this aloneness after death. Because man has an individual or monadic essence, he is forever alone with himself and his reality. This Aethyr contains the feeling of separateness, of being an isolated entity separate and distinct from all other entities. In ZAA the magician will encounter the Great Heresy of Mahayana Buddhism—the awesome and terrible isolation of individuality.

The primary angel in ZAA is the goddess Hecate, who weeps continually for the suffering of humanity. Her tears turn into pearls which she offers to all who enter here. The magician must accept these pearls; he must incorporate within himself the precious characteristic of compassion if he expects to rise above ZAA. This goddess can also be seen as the Egyptian Hathor whose name, Het-Her, means "the place above." Hathor is an expression of the goddess Nut who represents infinite space. It is this quality of Space that is emphasized in ZAA.

Comment: When the magician realizes that he is not a lowly sinner and, in fact, has the potential for spiritual things, he can rise above BAG into ZAA. But his self-image is still restricted and distorted. He still clings to his humanity. This makes him see aloneness as loneliness. If emotional reactions to stimulation are equated with life, then the lack of such reactions will probably be interpreted as death. Life takes on meaning in the interactions of one's self with other selves. In this sense, ZAA is death. Here life is seen as a game wherein all the players must accept clearly defined ground rules. But because this game inevitably ends in death for each player, the only meaningful goal becomes how well the game itself is played. In ZAA one is able to consider how well he has been playing. This builds and otherwise modifies his character traits in preparation for his return to the game. The aloneness of ZAA is therefore a necessary condition in order to assimilate life experiences.

THE TWENTY-SIXTH AETHYR: DES

Name: DES is pronounced in one syllable as Dess and means "the Aethyr that accepts that which is."

Gematria: DES=21=APA (that which is unchanging)=ZAA (27th Aethyr)

DES and ZAA share their nature through the number 21.

also,  $21 \times 16 = 336$ , where 16=ZAH (within) and 336 is the Hebrew word ROIVN (thought)

Governors:

1. POPHAND Tablet: Earth Sigil:

a. Name: POPHAND, Poh-peh-hah-en-deh POPH-AN-D can mean "He who is divided into three parts"

b. Gematria: POPHAND=109=DOSIG (night)=ZAR (ways, paths)

109 is also the Hebrew word OGVL (circle, sphere) and  $109 \times 2 = 218$ , the number for the Hebrew IRCh (moon)

2. NIGRANA Tablet: Earth Sigil:

a. Name: NIGRANA, Nee-gar-ah-nah NI-GRAA-N can mean "He who governs the 28 days of the moon"

b. Gematria: NIGRANA 280=VOVIN (dragon)=IOU-GRAA (soul of the moon)

280 is also the Hebrew word RP (terror)

3. <sup>1</sup>BAZ<sup>H</sup>K<sup>L</sup>H<sup>L</sup>M Tablet: Earth Sigil:

a. Name: BAZHIIM, Bah-zod-hee-ee-meh

BAZHI-IM can mean "He who makes use of the day"

b. Gematria: BAZHIIM=231=T-PRDZAR (to decrease in proportion)

231 is also for the Hebrew word DKVRA (male)

BAZHIIM=225=T-PRDZAR

(to decrease in proportion) also 225=RAAGIOSL (Great King of the Water Tablet) and 225= $15 \times 15$ , where 15=ZAA (27th Aethyr)

Location: The 26th Aethyr is located at the lowest level of the Mental Plane where logic and reason hold sway over intuition.

Brief Description: This Aethyr is the realm of logic and reason. But the intuitive conviction that logic and reason are unable to get at truth, and in fact distort and limit truth, is like an undercurrent running through the Aethyr of DES. The Angel who guides one through DES is dressed in black. DES is torn by great forces of duality which sweep through it. Good and evil, sin and salvation, illusion and reality, all demand attention here. The intellect is hard pressed to cope with these dual forces. It feels its own inadequacy and its lamentations are thunders which boom from one end of DES to the other. This inability of the intellect to cope with duality is demonstrated in Zen Buddhism by the koan which the student is given to meditate on until it is fully understood. The forces flowing through DES are like a koan. At the top of this Aethyr, coincident with the death of the intellect, the magician will have a brief vision of the beautiful goddess Nut, the Eternal Feminine, the Mother of All, Infinite Space, whose body is jeweled with stars.

Comment: The death of one's discriminative faculties marks the birth of a higher type of consciousness. This is the great secret of the Mental Plane, that consciousness can function without the human mind, and without words, and even without forms.

Any magician who can enter DES has already learned to see life as a game but, due to the intellect, it takes the game very seriously. Logic and reason have been exalted. Now the magician can go no higher until he can go beyond logic and reason. This requires some degree of intuitive insight.

DES is covered by intellectual fog. The intellect desperately clings to dualism and sees clearly its own death in the higher Aethyrs, and quite naturally feels threatened. It seeks a rational solution to the problem of dualism but cannot find it any more than the Zen student can explain his koan. In order to rise above DES, the magician must be willing to drop all logical arguments and to bring to an end all intellectual dissections.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH AETHYR: VTI

Name: VTI is pronounced Veh-tee and means "the Aethyr of change."

Gematria: VTI=139=SIBSI (Covenant)=TOR
(23rd Aethyr)

VTI=133=OVOF (to be magnified)

133 is also the value of the Hebrew HChHLP (change)

Governors:

1. MIRZIND Tablet: Earth Sigil:
a. Name: MIRZIND, Mee-rah-zodee-en-deh MIR-ZIN-D can mean "He who is from the Waters of Torment"

b. Gematria: MIRZIND=373=TA-TELOKH (like death)

MIRZIND=367=MOMAO-OHIO
(crown of woe)

367 is also the Hebrew words MMIN
ZKR (masculine) and AISHVN (black)

2. OBVAORS Tablet: Earth Sigil:
a. Name: OBVAORS, Oh-beh-vah-oh-rah-seh OBVA-ORS can mean "She who is half darkness"

b. Gematria: OBVAORS=248=PI-BLIAR (places of comfort)

also 248=SIBSI-DOSIG (covenant with the night) and 248 is the Hebrew word RChM (womb)

3. RANGLAM

Tablet: Earth

Sigil:

- a. Name: RANGLAM, Rah-neh-geh-lah-meh R-ANGLA-M can mean "He who governs his thoughts"
- b. Gematria: RANGLAM=268=BRGDO-OHIO (sleep of woe)
also 268=LRASD-MOLAP
(disposer of men)

Location: The 25th Aethyr is in the Lower Mental Plane in a subplane of change between the old logic and reason of the intellect and the new intuition. It is a natural continuation of the 26th Aethyr, DES. On the Qabalistic Tree of Life, VTI is just under Tiphareth.

Brief Description: This Aethyr at first appears to be volatile and destructive. But this is only because destruction is necessary for creation, just as one must first die in order to be reborn. The chief characteristic of VTI is spiritual pride. The intuition has won over the intellect and the magician is now in VTI. The magician, if not forewarned, will be quick to pat himself on the back and to boast of his attainments. The Guiding Angel of VTI may approach the magician and close his mouth for him.

Comment: The magician leaves DES and enters VTI as a natural continuation of intuition over intellect. However, here the poison of spiritual pride will hold one until this pride can be cast aside. One is very apt to feel himself to be one of the Great Adepts of mankind because of his successes. There is a feeling in VTI that there is nowhere else to go; that there are no "higher" Aethyrs. The desire to "rest on one's laurels" is strong here because VTI will often appear like a great plateau. In order to rise higher, the magician will have to learn how to truly travel about in these Aethyrs.

THE TWENTY-FOURTH AETHYR: NIA

Name: NIA is pronounced En-ee-ah and means "the Aethyr of traveling."

Gematria: NIA=116=POILP (to be divided)=MABZA
(a robe)

116 is also for the Hebrew word IVNIM
(doves)

Governors:

1. OR<sup>A</sup>K<sup>N</sup>A<sup>K</sup>NMIR

Tablet: Earth      Sigil:

a. Name: ORAKAMIR, Oh-rah-kah-mee-ar ORAK-A-MIR can mean "He who is above and below"

b. Gematria: ORAKAMIR=692=ZAMRAN
ZAKARE (to come into movement)
also 692=SALMAN KHIRLAN
(House of Joy)

2. KH<sup>I</sup>AS<sup>A</sup>LP<sup>O</sup>S

Tablet: Earth      Sigil:

a. Name: KHIASALPS, Keh-hee-ah-sal-pess KHIA-SALPS can mean "He of wondrous joy"

b. Gematria: KHIASALPS=404=ABRAMIG-MOZ (preparation of joy)
404 is also the Hebrew word ShQD
(to hasten)

3. SOAGEEL

Tablet: Earth      Sigil:

a. Name: SOAGEEL, Soh-ah-geh-el
SO-A-GE-EL can mean "He who helps the most"

b. Gematria: SOAGEEL=79=HOLQ (to measure)= PAID (always)

also 79=ELU-BESZ

(primordial matter) and 79 is also the Hebrew word

DOH (mind)

Location: The 24th Aethyr is the Aethyr of astral traveling both through space and through time. It is at the apex of the Lower Mental Plane.

Brief Description: NIA is the region of traveling in the mental body. This traveling can be spacial (along the plane) or vibrational (through the cosmic planes) or durational (through time). The Aethyr is thus a preparation for all of the other planes and Aethyrs, especially for the 15th Aethyr.

In order to travel astrally in a "body of light" one must die to the personality and physical body. Entering NIA is therefore similar to dying, except that here a psycho-magnetic link (called the silver cord) still connects the mind with the body. In death this attachment is severed. Because of the nature of this out-of-body traveling, one's personal fears, loves, hates and so forth, must be put aside or else they can interfere and cause dissociation, insanity, and possibly even death. These Aethyrs are not without their dangers.

The magician who can travel about in NIA will probably see an impassible roof gleaming like steel over the top of this region. This is a Ring-Pass-Not for the magician at this stage of his development.

Comment: NIA is somewhat like a summary version of the lower six Aethyrs (TEX through VTI) and it combines the best characteristics of each. But there is a new factor added here. This new quality is joy, which is a true spiritual characteristic. Joy is intensified as one goes higher into the Aethyrs. The sense of joy is essential for the Great Work. The magician in NIA learns that life is inherently joyous, that the game of life is fun to play. The Ring-Pass-Not in NIA is the barrier between the Lower Mental Plane and the Upper Mental Plane. In order to pass this barrier, the magician must pass beyond his normal human mind.

THE TWENTY-THIRD AETHYR: TOR

Name: TOR is pronounced Toh-rah and means "the Aethyr that sustains [the universe]."

Gematria: TOR=139=SIBSI (covenant)=VTI (25th Aethyr) also  $139 \times 2 = 278$ , the Hebrew words GORH (girl) and OVBR (fetus)

TOR=133=OVOF (to be magnified) also  $133 \times 2 = 266$ , the Hebrew word MTzPVN (conscience)

Governors:

1. RONO<sup>o</sup>MB

Tablet: Earth

Sigil:

a. Name:

RONOAMB, Roh-noh-ah-meh-beh
RO-NOAMB can mean "He who protects the process of becoming"

b. Gematria:

RONOAMB=311=KAB (a rod)
311 is also the value of the Hebrew words ShBT (a rod) and AISH (a man)

2. ONIZIMP

Tablet: Earth

Sigil:

a. Name:

ONIZIMP, Oh-nee-zodee-em-ph
O-NIS-IMP- can mean "He who brings labor"

b. Gematria:

ONIZIMP=308=154x2, where 154=VAUL (to work)

308 is also the Hebrew word BVQR (daybreak)

ONIZIMP 302=151x2, where 151=ZORGE (love)

302 is also the Hebrew word BQR (dawn)

3. ZAXANIN

Tablet: Earth

Sigil:

a. Name:

ZAXANIN, Zod-ahtz-ah-nee-en
Z-AX-ANIN can mean "He who names things."

b. Gematria:

ZAXANIN=581=KORMP-QAA

(to number creation)

also 581=KAL-YRPOIL

(to solidify what is divided)

ZAXANIN=575=25x23 where 25=

BESZ (matter); 23=GAH-L

(the highest spirit)

Location: The 23rd Aethyr is located on the Mental Plane in the region of the World Sustainer, the principle of causation. It is he who maintains and powers the Earth.

Brief Description: TOR contains the mystery of toil, and the virtue of labor. It contains the Cause for which the Earth is an effect. The universe is evolving, but not toward any fixed or permanent goal. The end of evolution is the beginning of involution and vice versa. The entire universe and everything in it, oscillates between states of potential and kinetic energy without conceivable end. Matter evolves from spirit and then involves back into it again. For this reason all labor is an on-going process of self-expression or self-unfoldment, called the Great Work. Man and the universe are effects of the labor of an infinite number of constituent parts, all working together. This idea is clearly seen in TOR.

Comment: The joy of traveling in NIA now gives way to the seriousness of labor in TOR. The energy needed to perpetuate the lower planes and Aethyrs is awesome. But, as Einstein showed, energy and matter are directly related and are interchangeable. In effect, the source of energy is infinite, and therefore the potential for creativity is infinite. There is a danger in TOR that the magician will lose the sense of joy acquired in NIA and take creative manifestation too seriously. He should remember that the chief difference between work and play is one's attitude.

THE TWENTY-SECOND AETHYR: LIN

Name: LIN is pronounced El-ee-en and means "the Aethyr of the void."

Gematria: LIN=118=GONO (faith)

118 is also the value of the Hebrew ChLP
(change, renewal)

Governors:

1. O<sup>s</sup><sub>z</sub>IDAIA      Tablet: Air      Sigil:
  - a. Name: OZIDAIA, Oh-zodee-dah-ee-ah
AOZ-IAD-IA can mean "He who is the god of truth"
  - b. Gematria: OZIDAIA=175=OIAD-NAZPS (sword of justice)
also 175x3=525=KHIRLAN (joy)
OZIDAIA=169=RIT (mercy)
2. KALZIRG      Tablet: Earth      Sigil:
  - a. Name: KALZIRG, Kal-zodee-ar-geh
KALZ-IRG can mean "She who is in the firmament"
  - b. Gematria: KALZIRG=491=KOMSELHATABGES (a circular recess)
491 is also the Hebrew word PUTHH (vagina)
KALZIRG=485=ILONON-MONONS (branches of the heart)
485 is also the Hebrew word ThVDOH (mind, consciousness)
3. LAZDIX<sup>R</sup>      Tablet: Water      Sigil:
  - a. Name: LAZDIXR, Lah-zodee-tzar LAS-DIXR can mean "He who brings down a bounty"

- b. Gematria: LAZDIXR=587=YOLKI-MOZ
(to bring forth joy)
LAZDIXR=581=ESIASKH-
QUASAH (brother of delight)

4. PARAOAN      Tablet: 7 of 8      Sigil:
  - a. Name: PARAOAN, Pah-rah-oh-ah-em
PAR-AOAN can mean "He who has eyes"
  - b. Gematria: PARAOAN=207=NIISO (come away)
207 is also the Hebrew word AGRAB (a scorpion) also 207x2=414=KRAL (joy, pleasure)

Location: The 22nd Aethyr is located at a position in the Archetypal Plane where the occult doctrine of polarities becomes self-evident. It marks the beginning of non-dualism, which intensifies as one rises higher. Because of this shift in viewpoint toward the mystical, LIN is an Aethyr of change and renewal.

Brief Description: Consciousness in this Aethyr is in the first stages of the mystical state called samadhi, wherein the human personality is cast aside. Here the beginning of form can be seen as the very sense of extension in space. In addition, the complement of form, the formless, can be seen directly as an endless Void which gives the Aethyr its name. Actually this void in LIN is only an appearance. It seems void to the human mind that experiences it. The higher Aethyrs are no more formless than the deep sleep state, although this oftenseems a void when waking.

Comment: The Aethyr of LIN is the region where form and the formless merge into each other. It represents a dramatic change in one's viewpoint. The magician who enters here must look with eyes other than the human, else he will see only desolation.

THE TWENTY-FIRST AETHYR: ASP

Name: ASP is pronounced Ahs-peh and means "the Aethyr of causation."

Gematria: ASP=22=BALT (justice)

22 is also the value of the Hebrew word TVBH (good)

Governors:

1. KH<sup>4</sup>RZPA      Tablet: Air      Sigil:
a. Name: KHLIRZPA, Keh-helee-rah-zod-pah KHIRL-SAP can mean "He who enjoys loud sounds"

b. Gematria: KHLIRZPA=493=KNILA-ZEN (blood sacrifice)
KHLIRZPA=487=MOZ-TELOKH (joy of death)

487 is also the Hebrew word ALIMUTH (violence)

2. TOANTOM      Tablet: Air      Sigil:
a. Name: TOANTOM, Toh-ah-en-toh-em
TOANT-OM can mean "He who loves knowledge"

b. Gematria: TOANTOM=224=BAHAL-AMMA (He whose cry is cursed) 224 is also the Hebrew DKR (male)
TOANTOM=212=TORZU (to rise up)
212 is also the Hebrew ChDR (to enclose)

3. VIXPAG      Tablet: Air      Sigil:
a. Name: VIXPALG, Veetz-pah-leh-geh V-IX-ALPG can mean "He who consumes"

b. Gematria: VIXPALG=561=

KNILA-ORS

(the blood of darkness)

also 561=MALPRG-ZOKH

(the burning up of the past)

Location: The 21st Aethyr is a continuation of the previous Aethyr in the Archetypal Plane. Here one confronts the reflection of the spirit or atma of man.

Brief Description: ASP is the location of the reflection of atma below the Abyss. It provides a distorted vision of man's spiritual nature. Here existence itself appears as an annihilation. The entire region at first seems an abomination and horror. There is little joy here. In ASP the magician comes face to face with his own reincarnating ego. Here is that part of himself that does the reincarnating into the lower planes. The three Governors of ASP all work together to silence the illusion of the ego and for this reason will at first appear hideous monsters or demons.

Comment: The sense of desolation in ASP is the continuation of the sense of loneliness first experienced in ZAA (the 27th Aethyr). It is due to an erroneous sense of identification. The magician still identifies himself with a single incarnated ego. Therefore the realms above him here appear black and ominous. His own past and future lives can be seen here so that a shift in his sense of identity is necessary in order to properly assimilate these experiences. Insanity is but one real possibility. The magician in ASP must shift his sense of identity from ego to Ego, from a single human being to a reincarnating Ego which has many human expressions.

THE TWENTIETH AETHYR: KHR

Name: KHR is pronounced Keh-har and means "the Aethyr of the wheel."

Gematria: KHR=401=KHIDAO (diamonds)=TOTO-NOR-MOLAP (cycles of the sons of men) 401 is also the value of the Hebrew word ATh (essence)

Governors:

1. ZILDRON

Tablet: Air

Sigil:

a. Name:

ZILDRON,

Zodee-el-dar-oh-en

ZILDRON can mean "He who sets in flight"

b. Gematria:

ZILDRON=261=ZAMRAN

(to appear)

261 is also the Hebrew MChZVR

(a cycle)

ZILDRON=255=ZAMRAN

(to appear)

255 is also the Hebrew MZRCh

(East)

2. PARZIBA

Tablet: Air

Sigil:

a. Name:

PARZIBA,

Par-zodee-bah

PAR-SIB-A can mean "He who promises"

b. Gematria:

PARZIBA=195=ETHARZI (in peace)

also 195=13x15, where 15 is the Hebrew ZCh (to force, impel) and 13 is the Hebrew HGH (wheel)

PARZIBA=189=FISIS-QAA

(to make a creation)

3. TOTOKAN

Tablet: Air

Sigil:

a. Name: TOTOKAN, Toh-toh-kan
TOTO-KAN can mean "He who drives the cycles"

b. Gematria: TOTOKAN=434=ZAKAREF (visitor)
TOTOKAN=422=VNIG-MATORB
(the need for repetition)

Location: The 20th Aethyr is located in a subplane of the Mental Plane where the whole world appears as a huge rotating wheel. The occult doctrine of cycles is self-evident here.

Brief Description: The magician who enters KHR will see the whole world as a tremendous spinning wheel. He may even see the hand of He who spins it. He will also sense that there is little purpose to it all; the Being who spins the wheel does so for His own pleasure. A close inspection will reveal that this wheel is both seductive and deceptive. Its allure is due to the fun and pleasure that it promises. Its deceit is its demand to be taken seriously. It contains games such as politics and religion which all too often turn the promised pleasure into pain and sorrow.

Comment: The magician in KHR should be able to see both sides of the universe; the mayavic deceptions which perpetuate bondage and false identifications, and the joyous expressions of love and beauty in form and color. The universe can be seen either way because, in a sense, it is both simultaneously. The formlessness of ASP gives way to a higher sense of form in KHR. The wheel of the universe is seen with spiritual eyes and as such the magician can see the inside as clearly as the outside.

THE NINETEENTH AETHYR: POP

Name: POP is pronounced Poh-peh and means "the Aethyr of division."

Gematria: POP=48=LOE (12th Aethyr) and 48=24x2, where 24=LEA (16th Aethyr)
=PAZ (4th Aethyr)
also 48=ELO (first)=TALHO (cup)
48 is also the value of the Hebrew words
ChIL (a woman)
and KVKB (a star)

Governors:

1. TORZOXI Tablet: Air Sigil:
a. Name: TORZOXI, Toh-razod-oh-tzee TORZ-OXI can mean "She who rises up in strength"

b. Gematria: TORZOXI=638=VOVIN-TELOKH (Dragon of Death)
also 638=MIKA-ZILDARH
(mighty flier)

TORZOXI 632=316x2, where 316 is the Hebrew AISHH (a woman)

TORZOXI 626=313x2, where 313=GEMNIMB (Governor of TEX)

2. ABRAIOND Tablet: Air Sigil:
a. Name: ABRAIOND, Ah-bar-ah-ee-oh-en-deh ABRA-I-OND can mean "He who prepares his kingdom"

b. Gematria: ABRAIOND=261=ZILDRON
(Governor of KHR)
also 261=ZAMRAN (to appear) and 261 is the Hebrew word DRAVN

(an abomination)

3. OMAGRAP

a. Name:

Tablet: Air

Sigil:

OMAGRAP, Oh-mah-gar-ah-peh
OM-GRAAP can mean "He of lunar knowledge"

b. Gematria:

OMAGRAP=249=SIATRIS

(a scorpion)

249 is also the Hebrew MGVR

(fear, terror)

Location: The 19th Aethyr is also on the Mental Plane; in a region containing the Priestess of the Silver Star. This priestess is the goddess Isis and she is located on the Qabalistic Tree of Life on the path of gimel. This places POP just above Tiphareth.

Brief Description: POP is an Aethyr of initiation. Here the magician is initiated into the karmic need for violence, bloodshed and death; characteristic attributes of human development. The initial vision in POP often results in a alphabet of daggers wherein each dagger symbolizes the sharp penetrating power of thought. The dagger is also used as a glyph for a sunbeam or ray of light; light itself being a symbol for consciousness. These daggers seen in POP are therefore usually related to an alphabet to illustrate how thoughts go together to form communication systems. The actual Aethyr is difficult to enter. It contains conflicting forces and there is a feeling here that life itself is surrounded by violence and death. The magician will usually meet the Guiding Angel, the Priestess of the Silver Star. Her function is to initiate anyone who enters here into a higher sense of life and the meaning of life. She personifies the spiritual impulse in man and embodies the spiritual current, and she offers this current to all who can enter POP.

Comment: The imagery of life surrounded by violence and death can take many forms. It symbolizes the idea that existence is a series of conflicts of some kind. Good fights evil, life fights against death, and so on. All progress must be earned. No Adept can give spiritual insight to another. However, they can give initiation if one is properly prepared and ready for it.

THE EIGHTEENTH AETHYR: ZEN

Name: ZEN is pronounced Zod-en and means "the Aethyr of Sacrifice."

Gematria: ZEN=69=GOHO (to speak)=IP (not) 69 is also the value for the Hebrew words
IGVN (desolation)
and ABVS (an enclosure)
ZEN=21x3, where 21=ZAA (27th Aethyr) also 63x2=126=OMA (understanding)

Governors:

1. NABAOMI Tablet: Air Sigil:
a. Name: NABAOMI, Nah-bah-oh-mee
NABA-OMI can mean "He who knows pain"
Gematria: NABAOMI=247=IADNAH-GRAA
(knowledge of the moon)

2. ZAFASAI Tablet: Air Sigil:
a. Name: ZAFASAI, Zoda-fah-sahee
Z-AFA-SA-I can mean "He who is in emptiness"
b. Gematria: ZAFASAI=97=HOLQ-AFFA
(measurement of emptiness)
97 is also the Hebrew word AMUN
(changeless)
ZAFASAI=91=TABAAN-AP (unchanging governor) also 91=13x7, where 13 is the Hebrew word BHV (emptiness)

3. VALPAMB Tablet: Air Sigil:
a. Name: VALPAMB, Val-pah-meh-beh

VAL-PAMB can mean "He who is the beginning and the end"

b. Gematria: VALPAMB=194=BITOM (fire)=
EMETGIS (seal)=
PARADIZ (virgin)
also 194=97x2, where 97=

Location: The 18th Aethyr is located on the Mental Plane at the place of an important initiation: the initiation of the crucifixion.

Brief Description: One who can enter ZEN will learn the esoteric meaning of sacrifice and crucifixion. First, one must be free of all personal desires, thoughts, regrets and attachments. This is an essential preparation for safe passage through this Aethyr. The main vision encountered is some type of a crucifixion. One possibility here is the Egyptian ritual of the King's Chamber in the Great Pyramid of Gizah. There a candidate was made to lay in the lidless sarcophagus for three days and nights while his subtle body roamed the planes and Aethyrs. If successful, he reached the 8th Aethyr and obtained a direct awareness of his own inner divinity. In other words, he became initiated, and was considered an Adept. In ZEN, one will see two types of crucifixion. In one, the higher Self is crucified on the cross of matter. This idea is symbolized in the Tarot by the Hanged Man. In the second form, the lower self is crucified in a tomb (or womb) of darkness in order to free consciousness. One is a descent into matter, the other is an ascent into spirit.

Comment: In ZEN the magician will see that birth and death are two forms of crucifixion. Both illustrate the principle of sacrifice, and in both the real sacrifice made is the break in the continuity of consciousness. Only an Adept can travel through all of the Aethyrs and retain continuity of consciousness (and therefore memory). The magician who can enter ZEN will learn how to maintain a continuity of consciousness. He will then be able to undergo crucifixion without sacrifice.

THE SEVENTEENTH AETHYR: TAN

Name: TAN is pronounced Tah-en, and means "the Aethyr of one's equilibrium."

Gematria: TAN=65=BI (voice) also  $65 \times 2 = 130$  = SOBOLN (West)
130 is also the Hebrew word HPLIH
(discrimination)

TAN=59=BALTOH (the righteous) also  $59 \times 2 = 118$  = LIN (22nd Aethyr) and  $59 \times 7 = 413$  = TEX (30th Aethyr)

Governors:

1. SIGMORF

a. Name:

Tablet: Air

SIGMORF,

Sigil:

See-geh-moh-rah-feh

SIG-MOR-F can mean "He who visits the darkness"

b. Gematria:

SIGMORF=298=BALZIRAS-OIAD
(judgment of the just)

298 is also the Hebrew word RChMIM (mercy)

2. AYUDROPT

a. Name:

Tablet: Air

AYUDROPT,

Sigil:

Ah-yeh-deh-roh-peh-teh

AY-DROP-T can mean "She who sees us with equality"

b. Gematria:

AYUDROPT=218=TORZU (to rise up)
218 is also the Hebrew word IRCh
(moon)

AYUDROPT=212=TORZU (to rise up)
=TOANTOM (Governor of 21st Aethyr)

212 is also the Hebrew word ZRH
(harlot)

3. TOKARZI

Tablet: Air

Sigil:

a. Name:

TOKARZI,

Toh-kar-zodee

T-O-KARZI can mean "He of such equality"

b. Gematria:

TOKARZI=514=VOVIN-MATORB
(Dragon of Repetition)

TOKARZI=508=127x4, where 127=

IADNAH (knowledge)

508 is also the Hebrew ShChR (dawn)

Location: The 17th Aethyr is the region of the Mental Plane that contains the Karmic Balance. This balance produces cyclic changes throughout the universe from its continuous efforts to reach equilibrium.

Brief Description: The initial vision here is usually of the Guiding Angel who explains that all reality is relative. Things are real only in relation to the consciousness that experiences them. The magician will then be shown the Balance of TAN which is, of course, karmic. This karmic balance strives to bring the universe to an equilibrium which would quite naturally destroy the universe as we know it. However, the Balance considers all imbalance as evil and seeks to equalize it. Actually karma itself can be considered to be the result of this huge Balance of TAN.

Comment: The symbol of the balance illustrates that karma seeks an equilibrium for the forces of duality which define the universe. Karma and duality are dependent principles, neither of which could exist without the other. The entire idea of morality and ethics must be faced in TAN, where good and evil, right and wrong, are weighed in the karmic balance of the universe.

THE SIXTEENTH AETHYR: LEA

Name: LEA is pronounced Eleh-ah and means "the first Aethyr of the [higher] Self."

Gematria: LEA=24=TAPA (poison)=PAZ (4th Aethyr) also 24x2=48=LOE (12th Aethyr)=POP
(19th Aethyr)

and 24 is the value of the Hebrew word GVIH (body)

Governors:

1. KU<sup>U</sup> KU<sup>A</sup> RPT

Tablet: Air

Sigil:

a. Name:

KUKUARPT,

Ku-ku-rah-peh-teh

KUKU-ARP-T can mean "She who replaces what was before with something similar"

b. Gematria:

KUKUARPT=864=54x16, where 54=

TALHO (cup)

and 16=TA (likeness)

864 is also the Hebrew words AShTH
ZNVNIM (women of whoredom)

KUKUARPT=858=OADO-KIKLE-BABALON (to weave the mysteries of Babalon)

also 858=143x6, where 143=

MOLAP (MANKIND)

2. LAUAKON

Tablet: Air

sigil:

a. Name:

LAUAKON,

Lah-u-ah-koh-en

A-ULAKON can mean "the happy one"

b. Gematria:

LAUAKON=470=ZAMRAN-

BLIORA (appearance of comfort)

470 is also the Hebrew word OTH
(time)

3. SOKHIAL      Tablet: Air      Sigil:
- a. Name:      SOKHIAL,      Soh-keh-hee-al SOKH-IAL can mean "He who burns up the past"
- b. Gematria:   SOKHIAL=412=MALPRG-IALPRG
                  (burning fiery flames)
                  412 is also the Hebrew word ChDTh
                  (new)

Primary Angel of this Aethyr: BABALON

- a. Name:      BABALON is pronounced Bah-bah-loh-en and means "wicked" or "evil."
- b. Gematria:   BABALON=110=TOANTA (lust)

Location: The 16th Aethyr is located on the Mental Plane in a region of change and transition. Here one begins to identify himself as a spiritual being.

Brief Description: The Guiding Angel of this Aethyr is named Babalon. She is extremely alluring and enticing. If the magician who enters here were to imagine the most beautiful woman in the universe (an obviously relative concept), such would be his vision of the angel here. In the duality of objectivity and subjectivity, Babalon personifies objectivity and the beast upon which she often rides symbolizes subjectivity. The magician in LEA feels that his consciousness is like an unruly beast in need of discipline. It is driven willy-nilly about the Aethyr by the seductive nature of the environment. Because the enchanting beauty of LEA is available to all who enter here, she is sometimes figuratively called a harlot (the Enochian word BABALON means "harlot").

A second Angel will then approach the magician. He personifies the past, especially the personal past (and therefore karma) of the magician. He will lament bitterly because he knows that he is dying. If asked, he can show a vision of the Tarot trump of the Lightning Struck Tower, the 27th path of the Tree of Life. He will also provide a vision of one's spiritual self, but at this level of understanding it usually appears irrational and quite mad. For this reason it is called a beast. The Angel knows quite well that this beast will someday slay him. He may show this in a vision to the magician. One may even glimpse the ultimate victory of this beast, the spiritual self.

Comment: In LEA the great duality of the subjective self and the objective world is seen symbolically. This vision generally (but not always) takes the form of a beautiful naked woman riding upon an unruly beast of some sort. The attraction between these two polarities of Babalon and the beast is called lust. This lust is the theme of the Tarot card that symbolizes the 9th path of the Tree of Life, which connects the Sephiroths, Chesed and Geburah.

THE FIFTEENTH AETHYR: OXO

Name: OXO is pronounced Oh-tzoh and means "the Aethyr of dancing."

Gematria: OXO=460=GLO-KRAL (things of joy)
460 is also the value of the Hebrew NShIQ
(to kiss, to come together)
also 460=230x2, where 230=ROR (the sun)
230 is also the Hebrew word KDVR
(the Earth)

Governors:

1. TAHAN<sup>M</sup>DO Tablet: Air Sigil:
  - a. Name: TAHAMDO, Tah-hah-meh-doh
TA-HAM-DO can mean "He who lives according to his name"
  - b. Gematria: TAHAMDO=146=IAOD-GLO
(beginning of things)
TAHAMDO=140=TIANTA (a bed)
2. NO<sup>T</sup>KIABI Tablet: Air Sigil:
  - a. Name: NOKIABI, Noh-kee-ah-bee
NOK-IA-BE can mean "Servant who speaks the truth"
  - b. Gematria: NOKIABI=511=NOKO-LONSA
(the servant of everyone)
3. TASTO<sup>Z</sup>XO Tablet: Air Sigil:
  - a. Name: TASTOXO, Tah-seh-toh-tzoh
TAST-OXO can mean "She who initiates dancing"
  - b. Gematria: TASTOXO=491=OXO-BESZ
(dancing matter)=KALZIRG
(Governor of 22nd Aethyr)

The Fifteenth Aethyr: OXO / 179

491 is also the Hebrew word PUTHH (vagina)

TASTOXO=479=BI-KRAL
(voice of joy)

Location: The 15th Aethyr is on a subplane of the Mental Plane where all life is seen directly as a great dance. This is the play of Brahman taught in Hinduism.

Brief Description: The vision of OXO is based on the realization that life needs no purpose or goal other than itself. The purpose of life is to live. When one enters OXO, he will usually see a beautiful goddess dancing. Some say that this is the biblical Salome where, by gematria, SALOME=151=ZORGE (love)=HOATH BABALON (a true worshipper of Babalon). Whatever the case, she is indeed a reflex of the seductive world personified by Babalon. She is also a form of that aspect of the Hindu Brahman which is called ananda or bliss (Brahman is often called sat-sit-ananda or existence-consciousness-bliss). Her dance expresses the ecstatic joy of spiritual consciousness. It is a visual representation of the highly occult "music of the spheres." If a magician looks closely, he will usually see a rose here in one form or another. The feminine symbol of the rose is an apt glyph for the atmosphere of OXO.

Comment: OXO contains the sense of joy that began in NIA (24th Aethyr). Here the joy that was found in the harmony of the Aethyrs is intensified. Life is now seen as a divine dance, the lila of Hinduism. From the viewpoint of the serious and time-oriented ego, OXO appears as a terrible blasphemy. The message of OXO is that the creativity of divinity causes matter to flow from spirit until an equilibrium point is reached and then causes this matter to return back into its spiritual essence. This endless cyclic flow of the universe is seen as a joyous game in OXO.

THE FOURTEENTH AETHYR: VTA

Name: VTA is pronounced Veh-tah and means "the Aethyr of semblances."

Gematria: VTA=85=VLS (the outermost, the most distant)
85 is also the value of the Hebrew word
MILH (circumcision)

VTA=79=HOLQ (measured)

79 is also the value of the Hebrew word GUO
(to die)

Governors:

a. Name:

VIVIPOS, Vee-vee-poh-seh
VIV-POSI can mean "She of many repetitions"

b. Gematria: VIVIPOS=306=MATORB-TOTO-A (one who repeats)

306 is also the Hebrew ASH
(a woman)

3. VOANAM<sup>N</sup><sub>B</sub>

Tablet: Fire

Sigil:

a. Name:

VOANAMB, Voh-ah-nah-em-beh
VAOAN-MB can mean "He to whom truth is relative"

b. Gematria: VOANAMB=257=MONONS

(the heart)

257 is also the Hebrew words ChRTM
(a magician)

and MRIBH (discord)

Location: The 14th Aethyr is on the Mental Plane in a region that contains the City of the Pyramids. This region partakes of both the darkness of Daath and the severity of Geburah on the Tree of Life, and is probably somewhere along the 7th path, the Lovers of the Tarot.

Brief Description: VTA is the home of those Adepts who have left the world of form and now reside in a formless darkness. They will appear black and lifeless to the magician who can enter here because they are without emotions of any kind. Their home is called the City of the Pyramids and it is covered with the thick black smoke of solemnity. The Aethyr is pervaded with a current of transiency. The transient nature of all things is felt here as a living presence and is sometimes called the "Great One of the Night of Time." Everyone who enters here will encounter him in one form or another. In the inky blackness of VTA countless Masters sit very still and quiet, looking like dark pyramids. They can neither see nor hear nor speak. They have eliminated all personal desire and lust for life.

Comment: The pyramid is both a place of initiation and a tomb. The Masters of VTA combine both of these possibilities. They are both initiated and dead. They represent those people who have used yoga or magic for personal gain. They have burnt-out desire and have risen to this lofty spiritual height. But to what end? They represent the lowest form of Pratyeka-Buddha. This is an Adept who seeks only his own salvation. Only by being like the bodhisattva who has compassion for others, can one hope to ascend the Aethyrs all the way to LIL, the first.

THE THIRTEENTH AETHYR: ZIM

Name: ZIM is pronounced Zodee-meh and means
"The Aethyr of application (or practice)."

Gematria: ZIM=159=TABAAN-FIFALZ (governor who weeds out) also 159=53x3, where 53=BALTOH (righteous)
53 is also the Hebrew word GN (a garden)
ZIM=153=LORSL (flowers)=ABRAASSA-
ATH (to provide work)

Governors:

1. GEKAOND Tablet: Fire Sigil:
a. Name: GEKAOND, Geh-kah-oh-en-deh
GE-K-ADNO can mean "She who only obeys"

b. Gematria: GEKAOND=408=QURLST-NEMO (Nemo's handmaiden)
also 408=204x2, where 204=
PAPNOR (remembrance)

2. LAPARIN Tablet: Fire Sigil:
a. Name: LAPARIN, Lah-pah-ree-en LAP-AR-IN can mean "He who is the protector of man"

b. Gematria: LAPARIN=239=FIFALZ-GROSB
(weeding out the unworthy)
239 is also the Hebrew word GURL
(fate)

3. DOKEPAX Tablet: Fire Sigil:
a. Name: DOKEPAX, Doh-keh-pahtz
DO-KEP-AX can mean "He who names only great names"

b. Gematria: DOKEPAX=759=KORMP-ROR

(to number the sun)
and 759=23x33, where 23 is the Hebrew ChDUH (joy) and 33 is the Hebrew ABL (sorrow)

Primary Angel of this Aethyr: NEMO

A. Name: NEMO can be pronounced either Neh-moh in two syllables or En-em-oh in three syllables. The name means "Master of the Temple" and refers to an initiatory title. This name spelled backwards is OM-EN which means "know thyself."

b. Gematria: NEMO=180=LIMLAL (treasure)=
MAD-NETAAB (divine government)

Location: The 13th Aethyr is on the Mental Plane at the subplane of Nemo, the Silent Watcher of mankind.

Brief Description: ZIM is the Aethyr of NEMO, the Master of the Temple of Great White Brotherhood. This is a universal organization of men and women whose sole task is to help others to realize their spiritual potential. It is this organization which keeps the spirit of love and brotherhood alive in the world. One of the leaders of this group is called Nemo and he resides in the 13th Aethyr. The magician who enters ZIM will usually see Nemo tending his enormous garden like a devoted horticulturist. The garden symbolizes the universe. The flowers that occasionally can be seen to spring up from this garden are the new members of the organization, sometimes called the Hierarchy of Compassion.

Comment: The vision of Nemo in ZIM emphasizes the importance of compassion and concern for others. Without compassion, one will probably become a pyramid-like Adept in VTA. Nemo represents a principle form of this compassion; the desire to help others no matter how long it takes and with no thought for any personal reward.

THE TWELFTH AETHYR: LOE

Name: LOE is pronounced El-oh-eh and means "the first Aethyr of glory."

Gematria: LOE=48=POP (19th Aethyr)=TALHO
(a cup)

48 is also the value of the Hebrew CHIL
(a woman)

also 48=6x8, where 6=A (I, self), and 8=G (not, void)

Governors:

1. TAPAMAL

Tablet: Fire

Sigil:

a. Name:

TAPAMAL,

Tah-pah-mal

TA-PAM-AL can mean "She who is like she was at the beginning"

b. Gematria:

TAPAMAL=134=TAFABABALON
(poison of BABALON)

also 134=ED-NAS-GOSAA
(receiver of strangers)

TAPAMAL=128=TIANTA (a bed)

128 is also the Hebrew word HChLPH
(change)

2. GEDOONS

Tablet: Fire

Sigil:

a. Name:

GEDOONS,

Geh-doh-oh-ness

GE-DO-ONS can mean "He who eliminates your name"

b. Gematria:

GEDOONS=139=SIBSI (covenant)
=TOR (23rd Aethyr)

also 139=FIFALZ-DODSEH
(elimination of vexation)

3. AM<sup>B</sup>RIOL

Tablet: Fire

Sigil:

a. Name:

AMBRIOL,

Ah-em-beh-ree-oh-leh

AM-BLIOR can mean "He who continuously comforts"

b. Gematria: AMBRIOL=299=ZUMVI (seas)=

BLIAR-GRAA (comfort of the moon)

299 is also the Hebrew word

AVRHLBNH (moonlight)

LOCATION: The 12th Aethyr is located on the Mental Plane at the place of the Mystery of Babalon.

Brief Description: LOE contains the leaders of the Hierarchy of Compassion, those who have given their life's blood for others. It also contains the fate of the so-called Black Brothers, those who seek to avoid the Abyss because of fear or egoism. Those who are able to rise above VTA but lack compassion congregate here. The magician who enters LOE can see the chariot which is the symbol of the 8th path of the Tree of Life. This path crosses the Abyss while connecting the Sephiroths Geburah and Binah. There the Mystery of Babalon will be seen. This mystery was first sighted in LEA (16th Aethyr) and is intensified here. Babalon will again be seen riding a beast. Here the beast will have the title "Lord of the City of Pyramids" and it is the inner divinity of the magician, but more self-conscious than before.

Comment: LOE is the natural culmination of compassion which is developed over the preceding Aethyrs. In LOE one has to shed the last taint of a personal ego. Here the magician will feel that compassion for others is a sacred duty, a holy trust. However, there usually remains a tiny subtle thought that says something like, "Look at me, I am an Adept. I am working for your benefit. Therefore you should give me your gratitude and respect." Even this kind of thought, an expression of spiritual selfishness, must be eliminated.

THE ELEVENTH AETHYR: IKH

Name: IKH is pronounced Ee-keh and means "the Aethyr of tension."

Gematria: IKH=361=KAL-TOL (solidification of everything) and 361=19x19, where 19 is the Hebrew word ChVH (to manifest) and 19=BAG (3rd Aethyr)
361 is also the Hebrew word ASHIN (foundation)

Governors:

1. MOLPAND

Tablet: Water      Sigil:

a. Name: MOLPAND, Moh-leh-pan-deh MOLAP-ND can mean "He who receives men"

b. Gematria: MOLPAND=197=ISRO (promise)=
VRELP (an Adept)
197 is also the Hebrew word
TzIMAVN (thirst)

2. VSNARDA

Tablet: Water      Sigil:

a. Name: VSNARDA      Fes-en-ar-dah VS-ADRAN can mean "He who casts down into the depths"

b. Gematria: VSNARDA=243=SIATRIS
(a scorpion)
243 is also the Hebrew words BRAM (created) and GRM (to destroy) also 243=81x3, where 81=NAZPS (a sword)
81 is also the Hebrew ALIM (violence)

The Eleventh Aethyr: IKH / 187

3. PONODOL

Tablet: Fire      Sigil:

a. Name: PONODOL, Poh-noh-doh-leh PON-OD-OL can mean "He who destroys and creates"

b. Gematria: PONODOL=161=IAIDA-BESZ
(the highest substance)
=TOL-OM (all-knowing)

Location: The 11th Aethyr is situated in the highest subplane conceivable to the human mind, on the brink of the Outer Abyss.

Brief Description: IKH contains a city, sometimes called the Holy City, which represents the highest possible residence for the human mind (manas). The entire Aethyr is pervaded by an atmosphere of tension. The proximity of the Abyss gives the feeling of being on a great precipice. There is a strong feeling here that something extremely important is about to occur, although nothing actually happens. The magician who enters here can sometimes see the god Shu. This Egyptian god originally separated the sky (Nut) from the earth (Seb). Here he can be seen separating structured manifestation from the chaotic blackness of the Abyss. The Aethyr also contains vast armies of Angels whose function is to assist Shu and to defend the cosmos from the chaos that encircles it. They keep the mighty Khoronzon in ZAX and prevent him from entering the Aethyrs below the Abyss.

Comment: IKH contains a sense of impending doom. the last vestiges of egoity scream out for survival against the promise of dispersion awaiting in the next Aethyr. The 11th Aethyr marks the last frontier of human consciousness.

THE TENTH AETHYR: ZAX

Name: ZAX is pronounced Zod-ahtz and means "the Aethyr of the One with a Great Name."

Gematria: ZAX=415=83x5, where 83=FIFALZ
(to eliminate)

ZAX=409=MALPRG-BITOM

(fiery flames of Fire)

also 409=QUASB-MALPIRG

(destruction of the fires of life)

Governors:

1. LEXARPH Tablet: Black Cross

a. Name: LEXARPH, El-etz-ar-peh-heh
L-EXARPH can mean "He who is first of the air"

b. Gematria: LEXARPH=534=KIAOFI-NAZPS (terrible sword)
also 534=276x2, where 267= YRPOIL (a division)

2. KOMANAN Tablet: Black Cross

a. Name: KOMANAN, Koh-mah-nah-heh
K-OM-NANA can mean "He who knows how to manifest"

b. Gematria: KOMANAN=532=PATRALX
(stone, rock)=AX-OMA
(Great Name of Knowledge)

3. TABITOM Tablet: Black Cross

a. Name: TABITOM, Tah-bee-toh-meh TA-BITOM can mean "He who is like fire"

b. Gematria: TABITOM=209=BLIORA (comfort)

209 is also the Hebrew word BZR (dispersed)

TABITOM=197=VRELP

(an Adept)=MOLPAND

(Governor of 11th Aethyr)

Demon of ZAX: KHORONZON

A. Name: KHORONZON is pronounced Keh-hoh-roh-en-zodoh-en in seven syllables and means "He who is the basis of form" (KHORO-N-ZON).

b. Gematria: KHORONZON=600=OXI-BABALON (mighty evil one) KHORONZON=594=ZIXLAY-GOSA (the confusion of strangeness) also 594=54x11, where 54 is the Hebrew word LAACHID (incoherent)

Location: The 10th Aethyr is located at the subplane called the Great Outer Abyss. On the Qabalistic Tree of Life it is called the Veil of the Abyss and separates the three higher Sephiroth from the lower seven.

Brief Description: ZAX is a Ring-Pass-Not for the human mind. It represents an indescribable barrier between phenomena and noumena, matter and spirit. ZAX is the first stage of the Nirvana of Buddhism because it annihilates any ego that enters into it like a great wind blowing out the flame of a lamp. The chief resident in ZAX is the demon Khoronzon. He personifies the forces of dispersion and incoherence, the two primary qualities of this Aethyr. He is sometimes said to be the Master of Form, and he can change shape to suit the magician who dares to enter his domain.

Comment: When the magician enters ZAX, he must relinquish the personal sense of identity. The ego cannot enter ZAX, because Khoronzon will disperse it, and the result will be certain death. The key to this barrier is to meditatively silence the mind in samadhi before entering. Consciousness can safely pass through the Abyss so long as it is untainted by personality. The ability to reach a mental state equivalent to samadhi is a prerequisite to the higher Aethyrs.

THE NINTH AETHYR: ZIP

Name: ZIP is pronounced Zodee-peh and means "the Aethyr for those who are not (i.e. void of ego)."

Gematria: ZIP=78=TOTO (cycles) also  $78 \times 2 = 156 = \text{ARN}$  (2nd Aethyr) and $78 \times 3 = 234 = \text{QURLST}$  (a handmaiden)
 ZIP=72=TOOAT (to provide) also  $72 = 24 \times 3$ , where  $24 = \text{LEA}$  (16th Aethyr)
 =PAZ (4th Aethyr)
 and  $72 \times 5 = 360$ , the number for the Hebrew word NShI (feminine, womanly)

Governors:

1. ODDIORG Tablet: Fire Sigil:
 a. Name: ODDIORG, Oh-deh-dee-oh-rah-geh OID-OD-RG can mean "He of fire and justice"
 b. Gematria: ODDIORG=236=ENAY BABALON
 (the Lord of Babalon)
 236 is also the Hebrew word MTzUQ
 (a cliff)
 also  $236 = 59 \times 4$ , where  $59 = \text{BALTOH}$ (righteousness)

2. KRALPIR Tablet: Fire Sigil:
 a. Name: KRALPIR, kar-al-pee-ar
 KRAL-PIR can mean "He of bright joy"
 b. Gematria: KRALPIR=583=BOGPA-KHIRLAN (to rule with joy)
 also  $583 = 53 \times 11$ , where  $53 = \text{BALTOH}$  (righteous)

53 is also the Hebrew word GN (garden)

3. DOANZIN Tablet: Fire Sigil:
 a. Name: DOANZIN, Doh-an-en-zodee-en
 DOAN-ZIN can mean "He who names the waters"
 b. Gematria: DOANZIN=209=TABITOM
 (Governor of 10th Aethyr)
 DOANZIN=203=BLIOR (comfort)=
 PIAMOL (righteousness)

Location: The 9th Aethyr is located directly above the Abyss on the lowest subplane of the Spiritual Plane.

Brief Description: The magician who rises through the Abyss will be awed by the beauty and splendor of ZIP. After leaving the tension of ZAX, the atmosphere of ZIP will appear like a beautiful garden. In this garden is a stone palace sometimes called the Stone of the Philosophers and sometimes the Palace of the King's Daughter. As one enters further into this Aethyr the stone will be seen as skin and the palace will be seen as the body of an enormous and beautiful woman. She is known as the Virgin of Eternity and the Daughter of Babalon. She personifies the femininity that pervades this Aethyr. The 9th Aethyr will give one the strong feeling that spirit is reality and that matter is illusion. Ananda, or bliss, is strong here.

Comment: The 9th Aethyr is very close to the Sephiroth of Binah on the Tree of Life. The Daughter of Babalon is the Shakti or Kundalini of Tantracism, and Isis, the reflex or "daughter" of the Egyptian goddess Nut. But this is only one side. She is also the black Kali and the lioness Sekhet, the dark side of femininity. However, this side is only hinted at here. The magician will probably do little more than bask in the bliss of this Aethyr and contemplate the multiple aspects of femininity.

THE EIGHTH AETHYR: ZID

Name: ZID is pronounced Zodee-deh and means "the Aethyr of one's [inner] god."

Gematria: ZID=73=GOSAA-ZAH (the stranger within)

73 is also the Hebrew word ChKMH
(wise one, the Sephiroth Chokmah)

ZID=67=ASPT-ADPHAHT

(before the unspeakable)

67 is also the Hebrew word BINH

(understanding, the Sephiroth Binah)

Governors:

1. ZAMFRES

Tablet: Fire

Sigil:

a. Name:

ZAMFRES,

Zodah-em-far-eh-seh

ZAM-F-RES can mean "He who appears when praised"

b. Gematria:

ZAMFRES=225=EOLIS-

BABALON (to make evil)

also 225=15x15, where 15=AP

(unchanging)=GAH (spirit)

ZAMFRES=219=ZIRN (wonder)

also 219=73x3, where 73=ZID

(8th Aethyr)

2. TODNAON

Tablet: Fire

Sigil:

a. Name:

TODNAON,

Toh-deh-nah-oh-en

T-OD-NOAN can mean "He who is and who will be"

b. Gematria:

TODNAON=179=BLIAR

(with comfort)

TODNAON=173=THARZI (peace)

also 173x2=346=ZOKHA

(what is past)

3. PRISTAK      Tablet: Fire      Sigil:
- a. Name: PRISTAK, Peh-ree-seh-tah-keh
PIR-S-TA-K can mean "He who has the likeness of a Holy One"
- b. Gematria: PRISTAK=491=KALZIRG
 (Governor of 22nd Aethyr)
PRISTAK=485=KALZIRG
 (see 22nd Aethyr)

Location: The 8th Aethyr is located on the Spiritual Plane above the Abyss in the region of one's Holy Guardian Angel. It is between Binah and Chokmah on the Tree of Life, probably somewhere along the 4th path, the Empress.

Brief Description: The Guiding Angel of the 8th Aethyr is one's inner god, the divinity within man. He is sometimes called one's Holy Guardian Angel and his encounter here is known as having "knowledge and conversation with the Holy Guardian Angel." The truth of one's spiritual nature is directly confronted here. The magician who enters ZID must face this truth even though the god usually appears objectively. This Angel will explain one's True Will to each magician who can face him.

Comment: The 8th Aethyr is as masculine as the 9th is feminine. Furthermore the joy that is in ZIP is now serious and sober. Entrance into ZID is the primary goal of all true magic. Only by meeting one's own inner divinity, and thereby learning of one's True Will, can one hope to set about accomplishing that Will.

THE SEVENTH AETHYR: DEO

Name: DEO is pronounced Deh-oh and means "the Aethyr of [spiritual] selfishness."

Gematria: DEO=44=OBZA (dual)

44 is also the value of the Hebrew word AGM (sorrow)

also 44=22x2, where 22=BALT (justice)

Governors:

1. O<sup>8</sup>MAKAS      Tablet: Fire      Sigil:
- a. Name: OPMAKAS, Oh-pah-mah-kah-seh
O-PAM-KAS can mean "He who is from the beginning"
- b. Gematria: OPMAKAS=448=16x28, where 28=
BALT (justice)
 and 16=ATH (works)
 448 is also the Hebrew word MBVQSh (desire)

2. GENADO<sup>8</sup>      Tablet: Fire      Sigil:
- a. Name: GENADOL, Geh-nah-doh-leh
GE-ALDON can mean "He who only attracts"
- b. Gematria: GENADOL=116=NIA (24th Aethyr)
=MABZA (a robe)
 also 116x3=348, the number for the Hebrew ShMCh (joyful)

3. ASPIAON      Tablet: Fire      Sigil:
- a. Name: ASPIAON, ah-seh-pee-ah-oh-en
ASP-IA-ON can mean "She who pre-

ceeds inner truth"

- b. Gematria: ASPIAON=168=BOGPA-BABALON
(the rule of Babalon)
also 168=42x4, where 42 is the Hebrew word AMA
(supernal mother)

Location: DEO is located in the Spiritual Plane where love is predominate. This love takes two forms, love of self (spiritual selfishness) and love of others (compassion).

Brief Description: The 7th Aethyr contains the duality of love for self and love for others. Here love for self is not simple egotism because the ego was left below the Abyss. It is rather the spiritual selfishness embodied by the Pratyeka Buddha, who sees others as maya or illusion and therefore has no compassion for them. The Guiding Angel of DEO is a woman who can take many forms. She says, "I am a harlot for such as ravish me, and a virgin with such as know me not." It is this dichotomy that disturbed Edward Kelly when he entered here in the Spirit Vision. The lady of this Aethyr is Venus, goddess of love. She is also the woman portrayed in the Tarot trump called the Star. She is also Sakti, goddess of creative energy. The magician who enters DEO will see the Pratyeka Buddhas that inhabit this Aethyr at the feet of this goddess. They will appear similar to those Adepts in the City of the Pyramids.

Comment: There is a mystical notion that comes to one and says something like, "I am all. There is none but me. I am real and all else is illusion." Some mystics succumb to this idea and think of themselves as a drop of spirit slipping into a spiritual sea. They become Pratyeka Buddhas and occasionally rise all the way to DEO but never farther. The higher Aethyrs are for the Bodhisattvas. The former denies the existence of others. The latter recognizes others and strives to help them to become like himself.

THE SIXTH AETHYR: MAZ

Name: MAZ can be pronounced either Em-ah-zod or Mah-zod and means "the Aethyr of appearances."

Gematria: MAZ=105=FAONTS (to dwell in)= ZIZOP (vessels)
105 is also the Hebrew word HPK (change)
also 105=21x5, where 21 is ZAA
(5th Aethyr)=DES (26th Aethyr)
MAZ=99=FAONTS (to dwell in)
99 is also the Hebrew word ChUPH
(vault of Heaven)

Governors:

1. SXTOMP      Tablet: Fire      Sigil:
  - a. Name: SXTOMP, Sahtz-toh-em-peh
S-AX-T-OMP can mean "She whose name means understanding"
  - b. Gematria: SXTOMP=551=OM-ZAKARE
(knowledge of motion)
SXTOMP=545=109x5, where 109=DOSIG (night)
545 is also the Hebrew word MShRH (end)
2. VAUAAMP      Tablet: Fire      Sigil:
  - a. Name: VAUAAMP, Vah-uah-ah-em-peh
VAU-A-AMP can mean "He who initiates action"
  - b. Gematria: VAUAAMP=257=MONONS
(the heart)
257 is also the Hebrew word ChRTM
(a magician)

The Sixth Aethyr: MAZ / 201

3. ZIRZIRD      Tablet: Fire      Sigil:
  - a. Name: ZIRZIRD, Zodee-rah-zodee-rah-deh ZIR-ZIRD can mean "He who was and who will be"
  - b. Gematria: ZIRZIRD=342=HOM-MALPRG
(to live in fiery flames)
342 is also the Hebrew word ShLHBH (flame)
ZIRZIRD=330=LEVITHMONG
(beasts of the field)
330 is also the Hebrew words ShL (male) and MRTz (energy)

Location: The 6th Aethyr is situated on the Spiritual Plane in a region which touches the Sephiroth Chokmah on the Tree of Life.

Brief Description: The 6th Aethyr is charged with masculine creative power. As the angel of DEO is feminine, so the angel of MAZ is masculine. He is called Ave (AVE=86=NETAAB (government) by Enochian Gematria). He will show the magician who enters here three types of Adepts who personify the three ways one can look at the world. The yellow Adept is one who is neutral with regard to his environment. He watches it but is not affected by it. The black Adept reacts negatively to his surroundings. He rejects it as illusion or as sorrow. The white Adept reacts positively to his environment. He is joyous and sees all as a delight. These Adepts personify the consciousness-existence-bliss aspects of Brahman. Sometimes Ave will show one the Temple of MAZ. It looks like a huge urn suspended in the air and it contains the ashes of one's past experiences (i.e. one's karmic residue).

Comments: The Temple of MAZ symbolizes that one's karma has been consumed. MAZ is the Aethyr that ends one's personal karma. The magician who can enter MAZ thus becomes a jivamukti, one who is "liberated while living."

THE FIFTH AETHYR: LIT

Name: LIT can be pronounced either Lee-teh or El-ee-teh and means "the Aethyr that is without a supreme being."

Gematria: LIT=77=THIL (seat)=ED-NAS (receivers)
77 is also the Hebrew word SIBH (cause) also  $77 \times 3 = 231 = \text{IADNAH-MAL}$ (knowledge of the arrow)

LIT=71=THIL (seat)=BIA (voice)

71 is also the Hebrew word ALM (silence)

Governors:

1. LAXDI<sup>2</sup>xI      Tablet: Water      Sigil:
a. Name: LAXDIXI,      Lahtz-dee-zee
L-AX-DIX-I can mean "He who has no supreme name"

b. Gematria: LAXDIXI=938=PATRALX-AX (stone name)

2. NOKAMAL      Tablet: Water      Sigil:
a. Name: NOKAMAL,      Noh-kah-mal NOKA-MAL can mean "He who is servant of the arrow"

b. Gematria: NOKAMAL=490=OXI (mighty)
490 is also the Hebrew word
CHIVNIVTh (life)

3. TIARPAX      Tablet: Water      Sigil:
a. Name: TIARPAX,      Tee-ah-rah-pahtz
T-IARP-AX can mean "He whose name means truth"

b. Gematria: TIARPAX=590=ELO-IPSI-AX (first holder of a name)

also  $590 = 59 \times 10$ , where  $59 =$

BALTOH (righteous)

and  $10 = \text{ATH}$  (works)

TIARPAX =  $584 = \text{IOLKAM-BAGHIE}$

(to bring forth fury)

Location: The 5th Aethyr is on the Spiritual Plane at a point where divinity is seen as an endless host of hierarchies.

Brief Description: The 5th Aethyr contains all of the major gods and goddesses of man. The magician who enters LIT will see rows of these past and future gods. This sometimes appears as many avenues of pylons leading up the side of a mountain. A god or goddess is seated at each pylon. Following one of these avenues will lead one to the top of the mountain where the last pylon is located. Although one would expect the Supreme Deity to be seated there, an inspection will show that the topmost pylon is empty. There is no Supreme Deity as such. Over the top of LIT can be seen a huge arrow. This arrow is sometimes called the Arrow of Truth. It has the feathers of Maat (goddess of truth), the shaft of Amen (the "hidden" god) and the barb is the Silver Star of Isis.

Comment: The 5th Aethyr contains the doctrine of hierarchies. The manifested worlds are created and maintained by vast hierarchies of deities. Although each hierarchy has a chief, or Hierarch, there is no one overall supreme Hierarch anywhere in the universe. The Arrow of Truth symbolizes the intelligent forces of guidance and direction which now replace the concept of a personal Supreme Deity.

THE FOURTH AETHYR: PAZ

Name: PAZ is pronounced Pah-zod and means "the Aethyr of impending expression."

Gematria: PAZ =  $24 = \text{LEA}$  (16th Aethyr) = TAFE (poison)

24 is also the Hebrew words AHUBI

(he whom I love)

and AUHBI (he who loves me)

PAZ =  $18 = \text{AFFA}$  (empty) = GE (not) = TAFE (poison)

18 is also the Hebrew word AHBI

(my beloved)

Governors:

1. THO<sup>T</sup>KAN<sup>F</sup><sub>P</sub>

Tablet: Water

Sigil:

a. Name:

THOTANF, Teh-hoh-tah-neff

TOH-TA-N-F can mean "She whose visit means victory"

b. Gematria: THOTANF =  $108 = \text{BAMS}$  (forget) =

OTHIL (seat)

108 is also the Hebrew word ChNN

(to love very much) also  $108 = 54 \times 2$ , where  $54 =$

TALHO (a cup)

THOTANF =  $96 = \text{SONFA}$

(one who reigns)

2. AX<sup>Z</sup>IARG

Tablet: Water

Sigil:

a. Name:

AXZIARG, Ahtz-zodee-ah-rah-geh

AX-Z-IARG can mean "He whose name is Flame"

b. Gematria: AXZIARG =  $589 = \text{ZIXLAY-GLO}$

(to stir up things)

AXZIARG =  $583 = 53 \times 11$ , where  $53 =$

BALTOH (righteous)

3. POTHN<sup>r</sup>R Tablet: Water Sigil:
- a. Name: POTHNIR, Poh-teh-henee-ar
P-OTH-NIR can mean "Son of the three-fold throne"
- b. Gematria: POTHNIR=259=T-VABZIR
(like an eagle)
259 is also the Hebrew word NHDR (lovely)
POTHNIR=253=23x11, where 23 is the Hebrew word ChDVH (joy)

Location: The 4th Aethyr is on the Spiritual Plane in a region which combines femininity and masculinity. It is apparently midway between the two Sephiroths Binah and Chokmah, but well above the path of the Empress on the Tree of Life.

Brief Description: The magician who enters PAZ will see a combination of femininity and masculinity. This usually takes the form of a beautiful dark woman clinging with arms and legs, to a dark repulsive-looking man. They are clasped in a furious embrace and are obviously hurting each other in the process. She is strangling him while he is trying to tear her apart. A close look will reveal that the dark man is Chaos while the dark woman is another form of Babalon (i.e. the cosmos).

Comment: The struggling woman in PAZ is Cosmos while the man who opposes her is Chaos. By Enochian Gematria, KAOS=343, the number for the Hebrew word ChShIKH (darkness) and KOZMOS=466, the number for the Hebrew word OVLM HITzIRH (the World of Formation). The eternal struggle between Cosmos and Chaos gives rise to the manifested planes and Aethyrs below PAZ. In a magical sense, the man here is the Will while the woman is Love.

THE THIRD AETHYR: ZOM

- Name: ZOM is pronounced Zod-oh-em and means "the Aethyr of self-knowledge."
- Gematria: ZOM=129=MOZ (joy)
129 is also the Hebrew word ODNH (pleasure, delight)
ZOM=123=MOZ= (joy)
123 is also the Hebrew word ONG (pleasure, delight)

Governors:

1. SAMAPHA Tablet: Water Sigil:
- a. Name: SAMAPHA, Sah-mah-peh-hah
SA-M-APHA can mean "He who is with continuity"
- b. Gematria: SAMAPHA=125=LRASD
(to dispose of)
125 is also the Hebrew word KPIIH (a force)
2. VIR<sup>l</sup>xOLI Tablet: Water Sigil:
- a. Name: VIRLOLI, Vee-rah-loh-lee
VIR-L-OLI can mean "He who made the first nest"
- b. Gematria: VIRLOLI=336=LEVITHMONG
(beasts of the field)
336 is also the Hebrew words MKVOR (ugly) and ROIVN (thought)

3. AN<sup>a</sup>DISPI Tablet: Water Sigil:
- a. Name: ANADISPI, Ah-nah-dee-ess-pee ADNA-IPZI can mean "He who binds into obedience"

b. Gematria: ANADISPI=202=AMMA-ATH (cursed works)

202 is also the Hebrew words BR
(pure) and BQQ (to make empty)

Location: The 3rd Aethyr is on the Spiritual Plane along the second path of the Tree of Life, the Magician, Magus or Juggler.

Brief Description: The magician who enters ZOM will become a Magus. In ZOM one will learn that all objective reality is intimately connected to the subjective self. The monadic essence of man contains an infinitesimal consciousness center and its infinite universe. In short, man is a circle whose center is nowhere and whose circumference is everywhere. In ZOM the magician will learn how to consciously control his surroundings as well as himself. In the 8th Aethyr, the magician learned his True Will. In ZOM he learns how to carry it out. One who enters ZOM can become a Maker of Illusions because he will learn how to be consciously creative. The Aethyr is permeated by a feeling of creative freedom.

Comment: ZOM is the Aethyr of self-knowledge. The experiences gained here can make one a Magus, the highest of Adepts. Here the magician will see that his True Will is nothing less than the full conscious expression of his inherent qualities and characteristics through the planes and Aethyrs. The Magus in ZOM is like an artist who realizes that he is completely free to paint whatever kind of picture he wants so long as he lets other artists do the same.

THE SECOND AETHYR: ARN

Name: ARN is pronounced Ar-en and means "the Aethyr of fulfillment."

Gematria: ARN=156=OLPRT (light)=
LONSHI (power)
=No. of squares in each Tablet and 156=GLO-BABALON
(the things of Babalon)
also 156=78x2, where 78=ZIP
(9th Aethyr)

Governors:

1. DONAGNIS      Tablet: Water      Sigil:
a. Name: DOAGNIS, Doh-ah-geh-nee-seh
DO-AG-NIS can mean "She who comes without a name"

b. Gematria: DOAGNIS=165=L-ZORGE
(first love)
165 is also the Hebrew word OMMIH
(Master of the Temple)
also 165=55x3, where 55 is the Hebrew KLH (bride)

2. PAKASNA      Tablet: Water      Sigil:
a. Name: Pah-kah-ess-nah
AP-KASNA can mean "She who is unchanged by time"

b. Gematria: PAKASNA=384=48x8, where 48=
TALHO (cup)
48 is also the Hebrew word CHIL
(a woman)
and 8 is the Hebrew word DD (love)

3. DIAI VOIA      Tablet: Water      Sigil:
 a. Name: DIAIVOIA, Dee-ah-ee-voh-ee-ah IAD-I-VO-IA can mean "the god where truth is"
 b. Gematria: DIAIVOIA=296=AR-QUASAH (delight in the Sun)
 also 296=148x2, where 148=ORSBA (intoxicated)

Location: The 2nd Aethyr is close to the top of the Spiritual Plane. It is the region of Babalon.

Brief Description: ARN is the home of the mysterious BABALON who was first seen in LEA, and whose daughter was seen in ZIP. Here she is seen directly and completely. The vision is indescribable. A hint is given in the name itself because BAB-ALON can mean "the attraction of sound." She is in fact a personification of the powerful force of attraction that exists between the subjective self and the objective non-self. The ancient Egyptians symbolized the self as a winged globe (a form of Horus) and the not-self as the goddess Nut (Space), who was shown arched over the world in the form of the night sky. All of these ideas will be encountered in ARN in one form or another. The entire atmosphere of ARN is characterized by intense bliss.

Comment: The direction of the Aethyrs is towards non-duality. Each is slightly more non-dual than the other until LIL, the highest of thirty Aethyrs and the first stage of true non-duality. In ARN the ultimate duality (all of the others are expressions or offshoots of this one) of subject and object is confronted. This results in the highest form of samadhi, called nirvikalpa in Vedanta. The struggle of PAZ is now a gentle and loving sharing.

THE FIRST AETHYR: LIL

Name: LIL can be pronounced either El-ee-el or Lee-el and means "the first Aethyr."

Gematria: LIL=76=TABAAN

(governor, ruler)

76 is also the Hebrew words ChBIUN

(secret place)

and NICHCh (peace)

also 76=38x2, where 38=OL (maker)

38 is also the Hebrew word ZKAI (innocent)

Governors:

1. OKKODON

Tablet: Water

Sigil:

a. Name:

OKKODON, Oh-keh-koh-doh-en

KOKO-DO-N can mean "He whose name is Renewal"

b. Gematria: OKKODON=744=KIKLE-TOTO

(mysteries of cycles)

also 744=93x8, where 93=TOL

QAA (all of creation)

2. PA<sup>x</sup>sKOMB

Tablet: Water

Sigil:

a. Name:

PASKOMB, Pah-ess-koh-em-beh

PAS-K-OMB can mean "He who precedes understanding"

b. Gematria: PASKOMB=447=KRAL-PAGE

(joyous rest)

also 447=148x3, where 149=

T-TIANTA (like a bed)

149 is also the Hebrew words DLIQH

(fire) and KVChHDMIVN (imagination)

3. VALGARS

Tablet: Water      Sigil:

a. Name:

VALGARS, Val-gar-ess

VAL-G-ARS can mean "He who works with that which is"

b. Gematria:

VALGARS=205=NIBM (season)=

PARM (to run, to flow)

205 is also the Hebrew words GBR (man) and HR (mountain)

Location: The first Aethyr is the highest region conceivable to the human spirit. It is located at the apex of the Spiritual Plane just below a Ring-Pass-Not for the spirit.

Brief Description: LIL is the first stage of non-duality. Its symbol is a little child or babe, the embodiment of innocence and purity. As ARN is the Aethyr of Babalon, so LIL is the Aethyr of the beast. But the unruly beast of the lower Aethyrs is now tamed and is changed into a child. This child represents the fruition of the Great Work. The ancient Egyptians embodied this idea in Horpa-Khrat or Harpocrates, the child Horus.

Comment: LIL is the highest Aethyr possible for man to enter and still be able to return to talk about it. Beyond LIL is the realm of non-dual divinity about which nothing can be said.

THE AETHYRS

The Relationships Between The Aethyrs.

The relationships between the thirty Aethyrs can best be seen through numbers. In addition to the gematria numbers, whole numbers from 1 to 8 can be found by adding up each gematria number. This method of addition is called AIQ BKR or the Qabalah of Nine chambers.

First, it can be seen from Figure 31 that the Aethyrs can be broken up nicely into three groups; in the Astral, Mental and Spiritual. Each cosmic plane is separated by a Ring-Pass-Not or spherical barrier. The first is between NIA and TOR and this bars the intellect. The second is between IKH and ZAX (although it could as well be said to be ZAX itself) and this bars the human mind. The third is between LIL and the unspeakable realms of divinity that lie beyond the first Aethyr and this bars the human spirit.

Table IX shows the Aiq Bkr values for each Aethyr. It can be seen that the three Ring-Pass-Nots divide the thirty Aethyrs into three groups each of whose total numerical value can be reduced to 7, the occult number for completeness. There is a hidden relationship between each Aethyr of corresponding numerical values. The student is left to determine these relationships for himself. As an aid, each number has an occult significance as follows:

- 1 unity, oneness, extension, spirit
- 2 duality, divine will
- 3 matter, manifestation, intelligence, space
- 4 solidity, firmness, time
- 5 spirit and matter mixed, man
- 6 animation, life, mind
- 7 completeness, wholeness, satisfaction
- 8 cycles, spirals

It should be noted that the only Aethyr with a value of 2 is TAN, the Aethyr of the Great Balance. Also, no Aethyr has the number 9. Finally, if all thirty Aethyrs are added together by Aiq Bkr, the total reduces to 3, the number for manifestation.

How to Visit the Aethyrs in the Spirit Vision.

Each of the Aethyrs can be visited in the Spirit Vision although few magicians ever get past ZAX, the Abyss. The procedure used is identical for each Aethyr.

- Step 1. Begin by reciting the appropriate Call.
 Step 2. Invoke the support of the Governors. Trace their sigils in the air while vibrating their names.
 Step 3. Concentrate on the signposts of the Aethyr. Use imagination and the will to mentally leave the body and enter the Aethyr.

A CAUTION. The student should be very careful to visit the Aethyrs one at a time, in succession. Visit TEX first. Only after TEX has become familiar should one advance to RII. Become familiar with RII before attempting BAG, and so on. Do not jump into one of the higher Aethyrs. Rising in the Aethyrs should be a gradual and orderly progression.

Example No. 1. The student should begin by entering TEX as follows:

1. Stand facing North (i.e. face the Watchtower of Water which contains the four governors of TEX).
2. Recite the Call for TEX: "The Heavens that are in the Thirtieth Aethyr, TEX, are mighty in those regions of the universe . . ." etc.
3. Vibrate the names MPH-ARSL-GAIOL and RAAGIOL.
4. Vibrate the name TAOAGLA and trace his sigil in the air. The sigil should be blue, the color of the Watchtower. This Governor is kindly and righteous. He rules in the subquadrant Air of Water.

5. Vibrate the name GEMNIMB and trace his sigil in blue. This Governor is very judgmental, but his judgments are temporary and can be changed. He rules in the subquadrant Water of Water.
6. Vibrate the name ADUORPT and trace her sigil in blue. This Governor is feminine and passive like the moon. She rules in the subquadrant Air of Water and Water of Water, partaking of both.
7. Vibrate the name DOZIAAL and trace his sigil in blue. This Governor is very emotional and he can bestow either pleasure or pain, joy or sorrow. He rules in the subquadrant Water of Water.
8. Concentrate on TEX, a region divided into four sections:
  - a. TAOAGLA governs the West.
  - b. GEMNIMB governs the North.
  - c. ADUORPT governs the South.
  - d. DOZIAAL governs the East.
9. Meditate on each of the four Governors and their attributes. Try to see the Aethyr divided by karma, desire, silence and restriction. The inhabitants of the North will be mainly governed by their karma. Those of the East will mainly be controlled by their desires. Those in the South will largely be quiet and reflective. Those in the West will, for the most part, be like captives; bound by their own sense of limitations.

Example No. 2. After experience is gained in TEX, the student can try to enter RII as follows:

1. Stand facing South (i.e. face the Watchtower of Earth that contains the three Governors of RII).
2. Recite the Call for RII: "The Heavens that are in the twenty-ninth Aethyr, RII, are mighty in those regions of the universe . . ." and so on.

3. Vibrate the names MOR-DIAL-HKTGA and IKZHIKAL.
4. Vibrate the name VASTRIM and trace his sigil in the air. The sigil should be black, the color of the Watchtower of Earth (this sigil is a straight line going from left to right). This Governor is ugly to look at but his nature is merciful. He rules mainly in the subquadrant Fire of Earth but also slightly in Earth of Earth.
5. Vibrate the name ODRAXTI and trace his sigil in black. This Governor has the power to create and destroy and he does both according to his strong sense of justice. He rules in the subquadrant Earth of Earth.
6. Vibrate the name GMOTZIAM and trace her black sigil in the air. This Governor is a personification of self-love and self-concern. She rules in the subquadrant Fire of Fire.
7. Concentrate on RII, a region divided into four sections: judgment, purgatory, heaven, and stagnation. The three Governors overlap all four sections.
8. Meditate on each of the three Governors and their attributes of mercy, justice and selfishness. Try to see the Aethyr and its inhabitants; those deceased persons who are awaiting judgment, those who are being judged after death, and those who have already been judged, as well as those who are in a mental stupor and who refuse to acknowledge what is happening to them.

Example No. 3. After experience is gained in TEX and RII, the student can try to enter BAG as follows:

1. Face South, recite the Call for the twenty-eighth Aethyr, BAG, and vibrate MOR-DIAL-HKTGA and IKZHIKAL as in Example No. 2.
2. Vibrate the name TABNIXP and trace his black sigil in the air. This Governor likes to put labels on everyone who enters BAG. He labels most of the inhabitants as sinners. He rules in the subquadrant Fire of Earth.

3. Vibrate the name FOKLSNI and trace his black sigil in the air. This Governor visits the inhabitants of BAG and brings forth those he deems to be worthy. He rules in the subquadrant Earth of Earth and Fire of Earth.
4. Vibrate the name OXLOPAR and trace his sigil in black. This Governor has the power to control the inhabitants of BAG due to their own sense of unworthiness. He knows their personal past histories and uses this to manipulate them. He rules in the subquadrant Earth of Earth.
5. Concentrate on BAG, a region permeated by feelings of unworthiness and doubt and a tendency towards self-pity. The inhabitants of BAG have rather low opinions of themselves and do not feel worthy of the higher Aethyrs.

Note. The remaining Aethyrs can be visited in the same way as the above examples. Remember that all sigils of Governors in the Watchtower of Air are all yellow. The only exception is in ZAX where the Governors have no sigils.

A SPIRIT VISION WORK SHEET

It is a good idea to make up a work sheet for each operation. Such a work sheet should contain all of the major elements that you should need for your operation and would serve three primary functions:

- (1) Preparation. It will allow you to prepare yourself for the operation beforehand by familiarization with the material and its goal in your mind.
- (2) Data Base. It will serve as a source of information, a data base, when you record your results in your diary and plan for future operations.
- (3) Structure. It will help structure each operation in a way that is magically progressive and spiritually rewarding because it will force you to learn something from each operation.

Each student is advised to use a work sheet such as the one shown on page 223. This is a general work sheet that can be used for Spirit Visions in the Watchtowers or Aethyrs. If you like, you can tailor each sheet to fit your specific operation. They should be used in a scientific manner. The purpose is to faithfully record as much information as you can. You won't know what is important until these sheets are analyzed at a later time. Meanwhile, always record as much data as you can. After a series of operations, you will be able to go over these sheets and look for patterns and messages which can indicate your progress in Enochian Magic. For example, you may find that you got poor results on days when your health was also poor. You may find that on some days of the week or certain periods of the month you recorded better results than at other times. By experimenting with weapons and preparations you are almost certain to find a combination that works well for you. You may discover that some regions are easier to visit than others, you may learn more in some regions than in others, and so on. Results of such self-analyses will show you your own biorythmic cycles with regard to Magic and will help you to measure your own progress, or lack of progress. All beginners will have periodic good results and poor results. The important thing is to find your own cycles and to determine the preparations and times that work best for you.

CHIEF HAZARDS OF THE AETHYRS

In addition to the normal hazards associated with Astral Projection and Rising on the Planes, each Aethyr is associated with special dangers for the unwary magician. Awareness of these pitfalls beforehand can prevent unnecessary sorrow.

1. TEX, RII, BAG and ZAA all contain the typical hazards of the Astral Plane. The primary danger is to mistake illusion for reality. The magician in these Aethyrs is apt to use psychic projection unconsciously and thereby mistake a fantasy for a fact. The only remedy for this problem is to eliminate one's personal emotions and ego-oriented desires (a task of many lifetimes). The astral body (i.e. one's emotions and personal feelings) must be clear if one wishes to see through it clearly. Use known signposts as guides against an overly fanciful imagination. Another hazard in these Aethyrs is one's karma. The four lower Aethyrs are highly karmic and many seeds will be germinated from any Spirit Vision there. There is no effective prevention from this hazard. Everyone must work out his own karma sooner or later and in his own fashion.
2. DES suggests to everyone who enters there that the logic and reason of the human mind can eventually solve all problems and resolve all conflicts. This enticement is like a snare in that it tends to hold one in the region with no hope of ever going on to the higher Aethyrs. Logic and reason can go no higher than DES.
3. VTI tends to bring about spiritual pride which is self-limiting.
4. NIA includes Astral Traveling, which is itself dangerous. The "price" that one must pay to enter NIA is death to the "old" personality. One must be willing to be reborn. This idea of death and rebirth is closely associated with the process of initiation, which is emphasized in most of the Aethyrs.

5. In order to rise above NIA into TOR consciousness must pass through the first Ring-Pass-Not. This is a barrier to the astral body. NIA is the highest region attainable in the astral body. TOR must be entered in the mental body. One's personal feelings, emotions and reactions must be put aside. TOR suggests the serious nature of life and the tedious business of maintaining life. The danger in TOR is a lack of joy and of perhaps taking life a little too seriously.
6. LIN is the first "mystical" Aethyr and is entered by approaching a mental state known in the East as samadhi. Most of the typical dangers associated with mystical experiences are also met in LIN. One must be able to change long-held viewpoints about life while retaining sanity and perspective. The human mind sees LIN as a region of cold desolation. Intuitive insight must be used to see that formlessness is not annihilation.
7. The sense of desolation in LIN is intensified in ASP and so the possibility of despair is greater. In ASP the personality sees that it is but one of countless expressions in time and space of an Oversoul or Reincarnating Ego. If not previously prepared for this direct encounter, extensive psychic damage is not only possible, but likely.
8. In KHR the whole world can be seen as either an enticing opportunity for experience or as a deceptive bondage. The danger is to see only one side while rejecting the other. The best preventative remedy for KHR is a good sense of humor.
9. POP and ZEN are both initiatory and require special preparation in order for safe passage. Both can lead to psychological damage for the uninitiated.
10. TAN contains the karmic balance of the universe. The primary hazard in TAN is the possibility of obtaining a false sense of morality. One's entire standard of ethics and morals is rooted in TAN.

11. LEA provides the first opportunity to see Babalon and to experience the lustful attraction of the subjective self with the objective world. The alluring and sultry nature of Babalon is a hazard to anyone who enters LEA with unfulfilled desires. There is a strong sexual force in the atmosphere of LEA which the magician must learn to control.

12. OXO, like LEA, contains a sexual force which the magician must learn to cope with. In OXO the force is clearly a reflex of ananda, spiritual bliss. The magician will encounter symbols charged with strong sexual content such as the lingam and yoni of Hinduism and Tantra. One of the dangers in OXO is the addictive nature of joy there.

13. The chief danger encountered in VTA is the tendency to become one of the countless pyramid-like Adepts who inhabit the City of the Pyramids. Those yogis who have suppressed their desires and attachments while retaining the ego, easily become trapped in VTA.

13. ZIM, LOE and IKH all concern the development of compassion and all are preparatory to the Abyss of ZAX. The ego must be put aside. Failure to do so can be fatal when entering ZAX. There are several ways of silencing the ego. One is compassion for others and this is the preferred method. Another is to see oneself as a spiritual being or Ego and the human ego as an illusion or social fiction. The magical operation required for safe entrance into ZAX is to shift the sense of identity from the human to the divine. In occult terms, one must raise consciousness from the mental body to the spiritual body. The demon Khoronzon will tear all aggregates down to their smallest constituent components. Nothing with form or structure can get by him. But consciousness itself is formless and is unaffected by Khoronzon. The magician must visualize himself as a geometric point of consciousness; a monad. He must cast aside the human mind

(the mental body) and function in the Body of Light, the spiritual body. This body is a monadic sphere of consciousness. It is an understatement to say that this is not easy and that few Adepts can safely enter ZAX. The magician who stands in IKH facing ZAX is equivalent to one who positions his consciousness so that it faces the darkness of the subconscious.

15. ZIP, DEO, PAZ and ARN are all highly charged with feminine force. All four Aethyrs have sexual elements which can snare the uninitiated.

16. ZID, MAZ, LIT and ZOM are all highly charged with masculine force. All four Aethyrs deal with the nature of consciousness and its affect upon the universe. Each requires a high degree of awareness and control.

17. LIL is the highest of the known Aethyrs but not the highest of all possible Aethyrs. The Aethyrs above LIL cannot be visited by any known magical operation, but can be inferred, by analogy and correspondences, to be endless. The feeling of supremacy in LIL is deceptive.

THE NINETY-TWO GOVERNORS: THEIR PRIMARY FUNCTIONS

The details of each Governor will vary with the magician, but in general, the following can be used as signposts through the Aethyrs:

30. TEX

- a. TAOAGLA (Tah-oh-ah-geh-lah) is a kindly but stern judge like a concerned father. He seeks to keep things in their proper places.
- b. GEMNIMB (Gem-nee-em-bah) is a flexible judge who is quick to make decisions but is willing to change them later if necessary.
- c. ADUORPT (Ah-du-oh-rah-peh-teh) is a passive judge who is slow to make decisions and who usually goes along with the other Governors.
- d. DOZIAAL (doh-zodee-ah-ah-leh) is a cruel judge who takes delight in pain and karmic suffering.

29. RII

- a. VASTRIM (Vah-seh-tah-ree-em) is a merciful judge who seeks to carry out the necessities of karma for all those who enter RII.
- b. ODRAXTI (Oh-dar-ahtz-tee) assigns residents of RII to their karmic destinies.
- c. GMOTZIAM (Geh-moh-teh-zodee-ah-meh) causes the residents of RII to emphasize their self-concerns such as self-love or self-hate, pride or pity.

28. BAG

- a. TABNIXP (Tah-ben-eetz-peh) is a Governor who names (i.e. puts labels on) everyone who enters BAG.
- b. FOKLSNI (Foh-kel-ess-nee) visits everyone who enters BAG and causes them to dwell upon their guilts and sense of unworthiness.

- c. OXLOPAR (Ohtz-loh-par) attempts to control those who enter BAG by means of their own sense of guilt and sinfulness.

27. ZAA

- a. SAZIAMI (Sah-zodee-ah-mee) bestows the power to control the elements on all who enter ZAA.
- b. MATHVLA (Mah-teh-hev-lah) gives a sense of desolation, inertness, and stagnation to all who enter ZAA.
- c. KORPANIB (Koh-ar-pah-nee-beh) gives all who enter ZAA the ability to speak with thoughts, to go beyond the need for words, to communicate telepathically.

26. DES

- A. POPHAND (Poh-peh-hah-en-deh) causes division and divisiveness between the intellect (solar) and the intuition (lunar).
- b. NIGRANA (Nee-gar-ah-nah) governs the intuition and assails the logic and reason of the intellect.
- c. BAZHIIM (Bah-zod-hee-ee-meh) dims the intellectual faculty of all who enter DES by using it against itself.

25. VTI

- a. MIRZIND (Mee-rah-zodee-en-deh) slays the intellect of all who enter VTI.
- b. OBVAORS (Oh-beh-vah-oh-ress) gives safety and comfort to the intuition.
- c. RANGLAM (Rah-neh-geh-lah-meh) assists all who enter VTI to control their higher mind (buddhi-manas) while silencing their lower mind (kama-manas).

24. NIA

- a. ORAKIMIR (Oh-rah-kah-mee-ar) bestows mobility on all who enter NIA.
- b. KHIASALPS (Keh-hee-ah-sal-pess) bestows a sense of joy.
- c. SOAGEEL (Soh-ah-geh-el) assists those who enter NIA to assimilate all of the experiences encountered in the lower seven Aethyrs.

23. TOR

- a. RONOAMB (Roh-noh-ah-meh-beh) is a tireless protector of the lower Aethyrs and of the Earth.
- b. ONIZIMP (Oh-nee-zodee-em-peh) emphasizes the love of honest labor.
- c. ZAXANIN (Zod-ahtz-ah-nee-en) is a creator who solidifies ideas by converting spirit into matter.

22. LIN

- a. OZIDAIA (Oh-zodee-dah-ee-ah) bestows joy and mercy on all who enter LIN and seeks to convert all form into its formless essence.
- b. LAZDIXR (Lah-zodee-tzar) bestows joy on all who enter LIN, and gives them a sense of delight as formless essence takes on form.
- c. KALZIRG (Kal-zodee-ar-geh) bestows joy on all who enter LIN and seeks to convert all formless essence into those forms which express them.
- d. PARAOAN (Pah-rah-oh-ah-en) bestows joy on all who enter LIN and allows them to see form being converted into its formless essence.

21. ASP

- a. KHLIRZPA (Keh-helee-rah-zod-pah) delights in the death of the personality and seeks to sacrifice the personality for the individuality behind it.

- b. TOANTOM (Toh-ah-en-toh-em) bestows the knowledge of the Reincarnating Ego to all who enter ASP.
- c. VIXPALG (Veetz-pah-leh-geh) destroys the personality of anyone who enters ASP. No one can confront this Governor and remain the same.

20. KHR

- a. ZILDON (Zodee-el-dar-oh-en) maintains the circuit of the universe and so appears as a perpetual creator.
- b. PARZIBA (Par-zodee-bah) maintains the harmony of the wheel-like universe and also appears as a perpetual creator.
- c. TOTOKAN (Toh-toh-kan) maintains the cycles of the universe at selected intervals and so appears as a periodic creator.

19. POP

- a. TORZOXI (Toh-razod-oh-tzee) assists all who enter POP to face up to, and understand the meaning of, death.
- b. ABRAIOND (Ah-bar-ahee-oh-en-deh) assists all who enter POP to face up to, and understand the meaning of, discord and sorrow.
- c. OMAGRAP (Oh-mah-gar-ah-peh) is a teacher of lunar knowledge who assists all who enter POP to overcome fear, especially fear of death.

18. ZEN

- a. NABAOMI (Nah-bah-oh-mee) is a Master of the Lunar Current who assists all who enter ZEN to overcome pain and suffering.
- b. ZAFASAI (Zodah-fah-sahee) is a Master of Space who will assist all who enter ZEN to understand the meaning of Emptiness.

- c. VALPAMB (Val-pah-meh-beh) is a Master of Time who will assist all who enter ZEN to understand the beginning and the end of all things.

17. TAN

- a. SIGMORF (See-geh-moh-rah-feh) bestows justice tempered with mercy.
- b. AYDROPT (Ah-yeh-deh-roh-peh-teh) bestows a passive sense of equality.
- c. TOKARZI (Toh-kar-zodee) bestows the knowledge of equality and cycles to all who enter TAN.

16. LEA

- a. KUKUARPT (Ku-ku-rah-peh-teh) is beautiful and sexually attractive and will bestow bliss, but will also bring out any unfulfilled desires, especially those of a sexual nature.
- b. LAUAKON (Lah-u-ah-koh-en) will promise happiness and bliss to all who enter LEA, but only as a function of time (i.e. in the future).
- c. SOKHIAL (Soh-keh-hee-al) will consume much of the past karma of anyone who enters LEA and will bestow a new sense of self, one that is spiritual.

15. OXO

- a. TAHAMDO (Tah-hah-meh-doh) bestows a new viewpoint, one of honesty and clarity; the ability to accept outward things and events as they really are, without bias or prejudice.
- b. NOKIABI (Noh-kee-ah-bee) bestows a new viewpoint, one of honesty and clarity; the ability to accept inward thoughts and emotions as they really are without bias or prejudice.

- c. TASTOXO (Tah-seh-toh-tzoh) bestows a joy of life, a delightful acceptance of things and events, the viewpoint that all manifested existence is the dance of divinity.

14. VTA

- a. TEDOAND (Teh-doh-ah-en-deh) bestows the capacity for passive obedience and introspection on all who enter VTA.
- b. VIVIPOS (Vee-vee-poh-seh) gives all who enter VTA a sense of cyclic transiency; all things must end, but all endings are also beginnings.
- c. VOANAMB (Voh-ah-nah-em-beh) bestows the ability to see that all things and events are relative to an observer.

13. ZIM

- a. GEKAOND (Geh-kah-oh-en-deh) activates the magical memory for all who enter ZIM and emphasizes obedience to law.
- b. LAPARIN (Lah-pah-ree-en) is a protector of those who have earned the right to enter ZIM, but will slay those who try to enter prematurely.
- c. DOKEPAX (Doh-keh-pahtz) judges the capabilities of those who enter ZIM and assigns duties accordingly.

12. LOE

- a. TAPAMAL (Tah-pah-mal) intimately receives all who enter LOE and seeks to show them their true selves, without ego-tainted illusions.
- b. GEDOONS (Geh-doh-oh-ness) assists those who enter LOE to prepare for the Abyss by eliminating the ego.
- c. AMBRIOL (Ah-em-beh-ree-oh-leh) bestows safety and comfort on those who have eliminated egoism.

11. IKH

- a. MOLPAND (Moh-el-pan-deh) receives all who enter IKH, seeks to quench any unfulfilled desires, and promises Adeptship for any who can safely enter ZAX.
- b. VSNARDA (Vess-en-ar-dah) assists those in IKH who can face the Abyss of ZAX but slays those who are unprepared.
- c. PONODOL (Poh-noh-doh-leh) shows those who enter IKH how the lower Aethyrs are created and destroyed.

10. ZAX

- a. LEXARPH (El-etz-ar-peh-heh) reduces all formed aggregates entering ZAX from IKH into their formless monadic components.
- b. KOMANAN (Koh-mah-nah-nah) combines the formless monadic particles entering ZAX from ZIP into formed aggregates.
- c. TABITOM (Tah-bee-toh-meh) is like a consuming fire and can either comfort or burn depending upon one's preparedness.

9. ZIP

- a. ODDIORG (Oh-deh-dee-oh-rah-geh) is like a karmic fire and purifies all those who enter ZIP.
- b. KRALPIR (Kar-al-pee-ar) bestows intense joy and bliss on those who enter the garden of ZIP.
- c. DOANZIN (Doh-ah-en-zodee-en) offers safety and comfort to those in ZIP.

8. ZID

- a. ZAMFRES (Zodah-em-far-eh-seh) is wondrous and offers guidance to all who enter ZID.

- b. TODNAON (Toh-deh-nah-oh-en) is timeless and offers peace.
- c. PRISTAK (Peh-ree-seh-tah-keh) is holy and offers joy and safety.

7. DEO

- a. OPMAKAS (Oh-peh-mah-kah-seh) is an Ancient One who fulfills karmic desires by germinating the karmic seeds of those who enter DEO.
- b. GENADOL (Geh-nah-doh-leh) gathers together those who see only themselves (i.e. Pratyeka Buddhas).
- c. ASPIAON (Ah-seh-pee-ah-oh-en) is like a mother for all who enter DEO.

6. MAZ

- a. SEXTOMP (Sahtz-toh-em-peh) bestows that spiritual understanding which consumes karma.
- b. VAUAAMP (Vah-uah-ah-em-peh) shows all who enter MAZ the relationship between the subjective self and the objective world, in terms of the actions and reactions between the two.
- c. ZIRZIRD (Zodee-rah-zodee-rah-deh) assists the inhabitants of MAZ to consume their remaining karma in the fires of purification.

5. LIT

- a. LAXDIXI (Lahtz-dee-tzee) teaches all who enter LIT the doctrine of hierarchies, that there is no supreme being except in a relative sense.
- b. NOKAMAL (Noh-kah-mal) shows all who enter LIT the mighty Arrow of Truth and initiates them into its meaning.
- c. TIARPAX (Tee-ah-rah-pahtz) teaches all who enter

LIT that truth is relative, that existence is open-ended and that there are no absolutes.

4. PAZ

- a. THOTANF (Teh-hoh-tah-neff) teaches all who enter PAZ of the victory of Cosmos (KOZMOS) over Chaos (KAOS) and of their endless loving attraction for each other.
- b. AXZIARG (Ahtz-zodee-ah-rah-geh) teaches all who enter PAZ of the eventual consummation of Cosmos (KOSMOZ) by Chaos (KAOS) and of their endless loving attraction for each other.
- c. POTHNIR (Poh-teh-henee-ar) teaches all who enter PAZ of the beautiful and joyous struggle between Cosmos (KOSMOS) and Chaos (KAOS).

3. ZOM

- a. SAMAPHA (Sah-mah-peh-hah) teaches all who enter ZOM how to maintain continuity of consciousness and how to control consciousness.
- b. VIRLOLI (Vee-rah-loh-lee) is the initiator of thought and teaches all who enter ZOM the power of willed thought.
- c. ANADISPI (Ah-nah-dee-ess-pee) teaches all who enter ZOM how consciousness linked with will can control things and events.

2. ARN

- a. DOAGNIS (Doh-ah-geh-nee-seh) initiates all who enter ARN into the meaning of love and the illusion of names and labels.
- b. PAKASNA (Pah-kah-ess-nah) initiates all who enter ARN into the meaning of love and the Eternal Feminine.

- c. DIAIVOLA (Dee-ah-ee-voh-ee-ah) initiates all who enter ARN into spiritual reality and the doctrines of the Esoteric Tradition.

1. LIL

- a. OKKODON (Oh-keh-koh-doh-en) initiates all who enter LIL into the occult doctrine of the Eternal Return.
- b. PASKOMB (Pah-ess-koh-em-beh) initiates all who enter LIL into the joy and peace of divinity.
- c. VALGARS (Val-gar-ess) initiates all who enter LIL into the esoteric meaning of passive acceptance.

RELATIONSHIP OF THE AETHYRS TO STANDARD UNIVERSE MODELS

The best known universe model is the Qabalistic Tree of Life. This is the standard model used in Western magic to depict the invisible worlds and pathways. Figure 32 shows a standard model of this Tree for easy reference. H.P. Blavatsky introduced the Eastern Gupta-Vidya model in her monumental work, THE SECRET DOCTRINE. Figure 33 shows a representation of her model in the form of a planetary chain (each planet was said to be part of a chain or ring from spirit to matter and back again). Figure 34 shows an interpretation of this model with appropriate pathways for the reader to study.

The student of magic should consider the Globes of the Gupta-Vidya Model as equivalent to the Sephiroths. The only real difference is that the eleventh Sephiroth, Daath, is shown in Figure 33 as two Globes (B and F).

The model in Figure 34 shows a flow of creative energy from divine Be-ness to physicality and then back to Be-ness again (Be-ness is equivalent to the Thatness of Vedanta and the Emptiness of Buddhism). The model shows Be-ness dividing itself into a tendency to differentiate and a complementary tendency to unify. These two tendencies give rise to a spiritualized form of mentation wherein divinity recognizes itself as being separate from something else. The desire for knowledge about this "something else" motivates manifestation into duality and matter. This ultimately results in the formation of the four Globes A through D. Each Globe is more limited and more material than the other. At Globe D the creative impulse reaches a culmination. Divinity, having looked outward towards the "something else" now seeks to look inward towards itself. This inward impulse results in the formation of Globes E through G.

The planetary and astrological correspondences are from the Fountain-Source of Occultism by G. de Purucker

(Theosophical University Press, Pasadena, CA)

Simultaneously with the formation of each Globe, an expression of this same divine impulse appears in forms appropriate to each condition. These living forms express in miniature the same dualistic split of Be-ness into a subjective self and an objective world. They each comprise a focus of consciousness with an appropriate vehicle through which to acquire knowledge of this mysterious "something else".

The flow of manifestation downward from Globe A to Globe G represents the evolution of spirit and the involution of matter. A full circle of such manifestation is called a Round.

As shown in Figure 34, consciousness moves downward on the left side of the model and upward on the right side. The five cross-over paths are each two-directional. This model can be used to structure psychic and spiritual experiences in the same way as the Qabalistic Model.

Although exact correspondences are not possible, the Aethyrs are roughly situated as shown in Figure 35. The arrowed paths show the normal direction of consciousness.

A study of these models and their correspondences provides a wealth of insight into otherwise obscure material. For example, the principle of reincarnation which includes the peregrination of consciousness through the subtle spheres of the cosmos until returning to Earth, can be seen more clearly. In short, they serve as visual diagrams of the inner worlds and their relationships which are otherwise inaccessible to human comprehension. But there are dangers here too. All models have inherent limitations and make use of assumptions which color their output in some degree. Structures such as the Gupta-Vidya Model are double-edged. While enabling the mind to conceptualize the inconceivable, the mind can too easily take its own conceptualization as an objective fact. For example, it is tempting to believe that the seven cosmic planes are layered one above the other, like steps on a ladder or the skins of an onion. Such is not the case. Kether is no more upward, spacially, than Yesod. It is simply less material and more spiritual. As another example, the pathway from Globe D to Globe E is taken by the consciousness of anyone who goes to sleep. From Globe E one can either die and enter Globe F, or cross over in dreamless sleep to Globe C, where a strong karmic force impells consciousness to wake up again on Globe D (Earth). As one does not really go upward when one falls asleep, so one does not really rise upward to get to Globe E in the Spirit Vision.

Models such as the Gupta Vidya Model should be used with care and with full knowledge of the dangers and pitfalls. Then they can provide meaningful insights into our universe and our rightful place in it. The model shows our world to be like an inverted iceberg wherein we know only the exposed tip. According to Enochian Magic, our evolutionary future awaits us in those now hidden portions of the Planes and Aethyrs.

APPENDIX A ALEISTER CROWLEY'S VERSION OF THE EIGHTEEN CALLS

As given in Equinox Vol. I, No. 8, since reprinted as THE VISION AND THE VOICE (Samuel Weiser, N.Y.)

THE FIRST KEY

I reign over ye, saith the God of Justice, in power exalted above the Firmament of Wrath, in whose hands the Sun is as a sword, and the Moon as a through thrusting Fire: who measureth your Garments in the midst of my Vestures, and trussed you together as the palms of my hands. Whose seats I garnished with the Fire of Gathering, and beautified your garments with admiration. To whom I made a law to govern the Holy Ones, and delivered ye a Rod, with the Ark of Knowledge. Moreover you lifted up your voices and swore obedience and faith to Him that liveth and triumpheth: whose beginning is not, nor end cannot be: which shineth as a flame in the midst of your palaces, and reigneth amongst you as the balance of righteousness and truth!

Move therefore, and shew yourselves! Open the mysteries of your creation! Be friendly unto me, for I am the Servant of the same your God: the true worshipper of the Highest!

THE SECOND KEY

THE SECOND KEY

Can the Wings of the Winds understand your voices of Wonder? O you! the second of the First! whom the burning flames have framed in the depth of my Jaws! Whom I have prepared as cups for a wedding, or as the flowers in their beauty for the chamber of Righteousness! Stronger are your feet than the barren stone: and mightier are your voices than the manifold winds! For you are become a building such as is not, save in the Mind of the All-Powerful.

Arise, saith the First: Move therefore unto his servants! Shew yourselves in power, and make me a strong Seer-of-things: for I am of Him that liveth for ever!

THE THIRD KEY

Micama! goho Pe-IAD! zodir com-selahe azodien biabe os-lon-dohe. Vaunigilaji! od im-ua-mar pugo pelapeli Ananael Qo-a-an.

THE THIRD KEY

Behold! saith your God! I am a circle on whose hands stand twelve Kingdoms. Six are the seats of living breath: the rest are as sharp Sickles, or the Horns of Death. Wherein the creatures of Earth are and are not, except (in) mine own hands; which sleep and shall rise!

In the First I made ye stewards, and placed ye in twelve seats of government: giving unto every one of you power successively over the 456 true ages of time: to the intent that from the highest vessels and the corners of your governments you might work my Power, pouring down the fires of life and increase continually on the earth. Thus you are become the skirts of Justice and Truth.

In the name of the same your God, lift up, I say, yourselves!

Behold! His mercies flourish, and (His) Name is become mighty among us. In whom we say: Move! Descend! and apply yourselves unto us as unto the partakers of His Secret Wisdom in your Creation.

THE FOURTH KEY

THE FOURTH KEY

I have set my feet in the South, and have looked about me, saying: are not the thunders of increase numbered 33, which reign in the second Angle?

Under whom I have placed 9639: whom none hath yet numbered, but One; in whom the Second Beginnings of Things are and wax strong, which also successively are the Numbers of Time: and their powers are as the first 456.

Arise! you sons of Pleasure! and visit the earth: for I am the Lord your God; which is and liveth (for ever)! In the name of the Creator, move! and shew yourselves as pleasant deliverers, that you may praise Him among the sons of men!

THE FIFTH KEY

The mighty sounds have entered into the third angle, and are become as olives in the Olive Mount; looking with gladness upon the earth, and dwelling in the brightness of the Heavens as continual Comforters.

Unto whom I fastened 19 Pillars of Gladness, and gave them vessels to water the earth with her creatures; and they are the brothers of the First and Second, and the beginning of their own seats, which are garnished with 69,636 ever-burning lamps: whose numbers are as the First, the Ends, and the Contents of Time.

Therefore come ye and obey your creation: visit us in peace and comfort: conclude us receivers of your mysteries: for why? Our Lord and Master is the All-One!

THE SIXTH KEY

The Spirits of the fourth angle are Nine, Mighty in the Firmament of Waters: whom the First hath planted, a torment to the wicked and a garland to the righteous: giving unto them fiery darts to vanne the earth, and 7699 continual workmen, whose courses visit with comfort the earth; and are in government and continuance as the Second and the Third—

Wherefore hearken unto my voice! I have talked of you, and I move you in power and presence, whose works shall be a song of honour, and the praise of your God in your Creation!

THE SEVENTH KEY

THE SEVENTH KEY

The East is a house of Virgins singing praises among the flames of first glory wherein the Lord hath opened his mouth; and they are become 28 living dwellings in whom the strength of man rejoiceth; and they are apparelled with ornaments of brightness, such as work wonders on all creatures. Whose kingdoms and continuance are as the Third and Fourth, strong towers and places of comfort, the Seats of Mercy and Continuance. O ye Servants of Mercy, Move! Appear! Sing praises unto the Creator; and be mighty amongst us. For that to this remembrance is given power, and our strength waxeth strong in our Comforter!

THE EIGHTH KEY

The Midday, the first is as the third Heaven made of 26 Hyacinthine Pillars, in whom the Elders are become strong, which I have prepared for mine own Righteousness, saith the Lord: whose long continuance shall be as bucklers to the Stooping Dragon, and like unto the harvest of a Widow. How many are there which remain in the Glory of the Earth, which are, and shall not see Death until the House fall and the Dragon sink? Come away! for the Thunders (of increase) have spoken. Come away! for the Crowns of the Temple and the Robe of Him that is, was, and shall be, crowned are divided! Come forth! Appear! to the terror of the Earth, and to our comfort, and to the comfort of such as are prepared.

THE NINTH KEY

A mighty guard of Fire with two-edged swords flaming (which have eight Vials of wrath for two times and a half, whose wings are of wormwood and of the marrow of salt), have set their feet in the West, and are measured with their 9996 ministers. These gather up the moss of the Earth as the rich man doth his Treasure. Cursed are they whose iniquities they are! In their eyes are mill-stones greater than the earth, and from their mouths run seas of blood. Their heads are covered with diamonds, and upon their heads are marble stones. Happy is he on whom they frown not. For why? The Lord of Righteousness rejoiceth in them! Come away, and not your Vials: for that the time is such as requireth Comfort.

THE TENTH KEY

The Thunders of Judgment and Wrath are numbered and are harboured in the North, in the likeness of an Oak whose branches are 22 nests of lamentation and weeping laid up for the earth: which burn night and day, and vomit out the heads of scorpions and live Sulphur mingled with poison. These be the thunders that, 5678 times in the twenty-fourth part of a moment, roar with a hundred mighty earthquakes and a thousand times as many surges, which rest not, neither know any time here. One rock bringeth forth a thousand, even as the heart of man doth his thoughts. Woe! Woe! Woe! Woe! Woe! Woe! Yea, Woe be to the Earth, for her iniquity is, was, and shall be great. Come away! but not your mighty sounds!

THE ELEVENTH KEY

The mighty Seat groaned, and there were five Thunders that flew into the East. And the Eagle spake and cried aloud: come away from the House of Death! And they gathered themselves together and became (those) of whom it is measured, and it is as They are, whose number is 31. Come away! For I have prepared (a place) for you. Move therefore, and shew yourselves! Unveil the mysteries of your Creation. Be friendly unto me, for I am the servant of the same your God: the true worshipper of the Highest.

THE CALL OR KEY OF THE THIRTY AETHYRS

O ye Heavens which dwell in the first Air, ye are mighty in the parts of the Earth, and execute the Judgment of the Highest! Unto you it is said: Behold the Face of your God, the beginning of comfort, whose eyes are the brightness of the Heavens, which provided you for the Government of the Earth, and her unspeakable variety, furnishing you with a power of understanding to dispose all things according to the Providence of Him that sitteth on the Holy Throne, and rose up in the Beginning, saying: The Earth, let her be governed by her parts, and let there be Division in her, that the glory of her may be always drunken, and vexed in itself. Her course, let it run with the Heavens; and as an handmaid let her serve them. One season, let it confound another, and let there be no creature upon or within her the same. All her members, let them differ in their qualities, and let there be no one Creature equal with another. The reasonable Creatures of the Earth, and Men, let them vex and weed out one another; and their dwelling-places, let them forget their Names. The work of man and his pomp, let them be defaced. His buildings, let them become Caves for the beasts of the Field! Confound her understanding with darkness! For why? it repenteth me that I have made Man. One while let her be known, and another while a stranger: because she is the bed of an Harlot, and the dwelling-place of him that is fallen.

O ye Heavens, arise! The lower heavens beneath you, let them serve you! Govern those that govern! Cast down such as fall. Bring forth with those that increase, and destroy the rotten. No place let it remain in one number. Add and diminish until the stars be numbered. Arise! Move! and appear before the covenant of His mouth, which He hath sworn unto us in His Justice. Open the Mysteries of your Creation, and make us partakers of THE UNDEFINED KNOWLEDGE.

THE EGYPTIAN DEITIES AND SPHINXES: HOW TO USE THEM FOR SPIRIT VISION

The fifteen Egyptian deities associated with the Lesser Squares of the Watchtowers (see Table VIII on page 114) are shown in the accompanying figure. They are shown color coded in order to allow the student to make replicas. It is suggested that every student make his/her own replicas of the Watchtower pyramids, the deities and sphinxes out of cardboard or heavy paper and then paint them appropriately with tempa or any other suitable medium as follows:

1. Make the sides of the Watchtower pyramid. Construct sixteen triangles of equal size. Then cut the tops off to make truncated triangles. Paint four red, four yellow, four blue and four black.
2. Make the Egyptian sphinxes. Construct a red lion, a black bull, a blue eagle and a yellow angel. Make each Kerubic figure the same height and width. Cut each figure horizontally into three equal sections. Then cut the middle section horizontally in half to make four overall pieces each. By interchanging these sections, it will be possible to form replicas of any of the sphinxes.
3. Make the Watchtower pyramid. Construct one truncated pyramid. Make the four sides the same size as the triangles. Also, make the truncated top surface big enough to hold any sphinx and include a slot on it near the center for the god.
4. Make the Egyptian deities. Construct small figures of each of the fifteen deities as shown in the accompanying figure. Leave a small tongue at the bottom of each god. Each god-form can then be mounted onto the top face of the pyramid by inserting the tongue into the slot.

5. The pieces made in this way can be used by the student to simulate any of the Lesser Watchtower pyramids. Place the appropriate triangles on the sides of the pyramids, insert the god into the slot on the top surface, and place the sphinx on the top surface near the god. Use this simulation to aid in Spirit Vision by stimulating the magical imagination.

Enochian Magic

The powerful system of magic introduced in the sixteenth century by Dr. John Dee, Astrologer Royal to Queen Elizabeth I, and as practiced by Aleister Crowley and the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, is here presented for the first time in a complete, step-by-step form.

THERE HAS NEVER BEFORE BEEN A BOOK THAT HAS MADE ENOCHIAN MAGIC THIS EASY!

A manual for the beginner and the seasoned magician alike, Enochian Magic is presented clearly and concisely so that nothing is overlooked and everything is easily understood.

"The great value of this system . . . lies in the fact that it is probably the most potent in existence . . . Through Dee's system (Crowley) was able to unlock the pylons of the New Aeon and penetrate unknown dimensions of consciousness outside Space and Time."

—Kenneth Grant
The Magical Revival

"Enoch . . . is identical with the Thoth of the Egyptians . . . The Calls were supposed to have been dictated backwards to Kelly, as direct communication from the 'angels' would have invoked forces that were too powerful."

—Leslie Shepard

tertius questionem respondens taliter factus dedisse responsum. Si de fori orum meorum beneplacitis decernat, curabo. Quod mihi eis prestat minime et petendi rationem. Negodes ex parte adversa/party aduocati et officium subintrans taliter intulit, si in electione fororum meorum ingesserit, qui Reges sunt et Imperatores modatores iuris, quo possessa petitis audire festinare. Unde pars altera ad hoc instimulatur, ut in obsequio proponatur, prout ratio distinxit. Cuius tertius libris mi nimis interrogant. Nos tunc a parte celesti superna sumus delegati et ad audium nostrum decernant, quod ante hanc rimitatem quidam corus pstru ebat, ad quem singulis si ductus quidam non deportaretur, nec ut esset reditum holocaustum malignis spiritibus tunc hoc protensione non esset ratum dominum vestrum neque obsequium. Ad hoc artum est ut vel. xij. so.
Cundo exaltatis protectionem iudicium malignorum spiritum intanta ex terra submittitur quod concessa est eis potestas hunc rursus bobus adducendi et illos sanos et innocuos in penis infernalibus detrahunt.
Vnde volemus ut vestra propria confessione hunc rei veritas nobis pa deretur. Ite vero quia solus veritatis illos produxit, veritatem no lentes subterfugere, confitebantur, quod ita fuit in rei veritate ut de latum fuit in sermone. Vnde simili modo a vobis intendimus, si consilium possitis inquirere, quo minus holocaustum spiritibus malignis exhibetur.
Ite se sine tale consilium abnegauerunt, Quia si spiritibus illud esset tequiti diffuso tempore effluo. Confitebantur etiam se pro tali fante non esse omnino tutos. Ergo ex terra est ipsa terra veritatis no vos ad detenti estis ut sine vestra veritatem pandatis, cum si absumunt.
aureis, vult regnos terre cum analgemate defunctio. Exstiterunt to sermone digressi, hoc est terra veritatis et sine vnumcunus spiritus retulisti. Ergo respiciamus sustinere, si datum esset vobis eundem re. Ergo illud vobis possumus remanere. Ergo si illud vobis remanere.

mirum, ut sufficit terram vestra tunc, ut vos ipsi quibus tunc.
Relinquatur nobis tanquam propria. Quia eandem protigimus, oculis vestris intuitibus. Ipsi respondentel digressum. Volumus si vobis placeat, ut hoc adimpleatis in presentia presbyteri Joannis qui nobis dominatur, et qui quod ipse distulit, ratum habemus. Igitur ante suam presentiam per nos die crastina, die emendate quo terminus prefigebatur ordinaba-tur ante presentiam Presbyteri Joannis et omnia verba preterita secundum ordinem proposita ante presentiam sua proponebantur. Unde sua plenam mirabatur verba intellectus commendans. Et postulabat tunc legimus nomina prenominationem ut si panderetur. Quorum quilibet nomini sibi appropriatum retineant. Et temporis dignitate, qui magis ante provenit erat, ante alios sermonebatur. Dicitur. Nimirum Cuius tertius, qui potest dici Deus tertius. Consequenter dicit alius. Vocor suscepimus, qui mutari potest Deus secundus. Unde alius sequens vos dixit. Monitor demissimus, qui potest nominari Deus primus. Ergo est ne bene quod vos possitis illam locum tunc a subiectione labor lira. Quod affirmaverunt se facturos iuxta oculis intuitibus aditorio dimisso preambulante, et ad se datur a deo nobis possibiliter hunc et dandam possessionem, loca et dandam terminos et dandam sub-iunctiones protigere. Ergo de vobis alijs datur mihi notitia quod deo idem non potestis operari. Cuius etiam quod vos non potestis tunc, quin fariatis hoc dicitur quod ipsi vorant exorantur secundo ut sitis protigi, ut illud confert aliam illorum qui vestris regibus subiacet.
Ne, vos deo quibus tunc, ut uti per vos sunt protigi. Constatantur tunc esse verum. Et quisquis vult per se. Iis dividere ratum habet.
Constatant etiam permanere ad alios quoniam ab eis si iudicium super his offinitu fuerit eis acceptabile, nec, vel de quod non dicitur dicitur. Ip-si suffragantur. Iis nobis affert, tunc nec illud quod non equivalet, sed si ab eis vestris dixerunt, ad vos perierunt, quod rationem nostra audire audiret. De quilibet vestrum perit vobis dicitur. Ergo animus suus vobis fariatur quidam. Et illi de parte vestra animus suus emittent sine pacatione, ut ab omnibus hunc vobis propositis possit sub vestris diffiniri. Iuxta autem illud per diffinitio audiret. I. I. I. Ergo, et par-mora mea favorum administramus ut cuiusque vestrum alleget, prout ratio distulit favorabilior annuere. Et vos qui ipsi maiores vestri astoris subeatis. Incipiam igitur in nomine sanctissimi et eminentissimi regis huiusmodi. Cum unus sit deus in substantia et tres in persona.

Nec per aliquid datur datur minoratio, qui est pater patrum et inra a me distulit. Et omnia que futura sunt, vult ut sint. Nihil enim sine vo-luntati prenalet. Ut ego ad sui nominis dignissimi honorem et ad omnium vestrum commodum hanc rem possim regere. Et ut mihi me consequar et iuris mei partem. Nec illis mihi illorum auferam ut sui iuris parte.
Sicut nostro quod constat sunt dediti, et propter dandam constat hoc quod ab eis rego tenebantur a me regere. Quia res mea ab illis est regenda, sicut illorum propria. Et cum sumus unio, ad utrumque domini unitate. Et in uno iure omnes sumus et respondere, et in uno termino non sunt distulit omne possibilitatem qua quilibet poterit adimplere.
Vide quod tenebantur a me regere, ne illud hominem impetretur, per quod illud homo de medio me tollatur. Ergo quia debent in illo termino, esse et respondere. Et illud terminus in tali termino sititur, quod dicitur summa ne non possint prenalet, ut tanta pena redimatur, quantum importat hominem. Debent a me postulare, ut res sint minime, qua indirit hominem. Ergo cum teneant et respondere pro re quam possim adimple-re. Et iste terminus mihi in presenti regitur. Et illud terminus qui perulo actus. Et propter incommensurabilem, cui videri rem istam sit. Et per addunt in iusto marty-rio. Et ne. Quia hunc rei potestas a deo mihi est. Et temporis ascribam, et quod deus possit. Et per me non teneat pro regere, in. Et mortis penam ascriptus est. Sed deo quia a domino per. Et per, volo vestram, et per sed imminis, et terminus. Et per aduget. Et me diffinitum no domino sed obligatus per me posse quia pro qui in breui. Et reputa longitudo. Nam denigrat interitum, dandis, mea per nova plebiantur pluri favoris habent. Et de quo me per presentiam plenariam, omnia de terminis dandis. Et ipse translatum dandis cum omni, non posse, videri per apparet. Quod meum est.

Conditor, Qui omnium est principum tribus modis est intelligendus.
fuit, est, et erit. Et sunt inquirenda loca et tempora et motus illius scilicet loci et tempore, que submoventur et per eum moventur et in quo illa debent consistere et de illis consistere. Principium enim triplex est, quod est Conditor qui constituit res que fuerunt, sunt et erunt et que de illis consistere possunt.
Tempora et loca et eorundem subiectiones. Sciret illa qui est conditor et immobilis et est materia cuiuslibet rei que existentie subijci potest. Et ita primum modum predicatorum diffinitus est ad existentiam. Secundus modus est signus et loca et termini et eorundem subiectiones, et quicquid sub eis continetur. Tertius modus est planities et eorundem in loco repetitiones loca illorum, et eorundem diffinitiones et extractions et positiones ponentes subiectiones secundas et similitudines adiacentes, loca et eorundem proprietates.
Deus est actus et essentia, huius sine motu, qui in excellentissima maiestate est deus et huius in personis et huius sicut in substantia. Verum tamen inhumanum non habet. Christus enim est et incarnatus in super omnia et data sine naturae et sine existentie optinet huius rei causa que ratio est diffinita quia illa sunt essentia honoris in numeris numeris fac sicut huius et in numeris personarum. Cuius enim sentiat dare tot varias formas in diuersis substantiis que determinat in personis formis, que multis sumantur et eorundem non submittuntur, numerando. Hec sicut est qui habet unum, quod unum et omnis numerus sicut est. et deus Cuius ita est. Quia unum et deus, et eorum sicut ipse numerat et sibi sicut ipse numerat et sibi sicut ipse numerat.

adesse. Quare si unus sit et nullus sit, si similis non est ita materiali prestans ut ipse possit loco assimilari, unde contrahit ori-ginem. Quod est interius et exterius eodem motu motibus est similis.
Et circumstantia consentit se se monimenta exhibere sicut illa et deinde deus subiectio et sunt subiecta. Est etiam qui consentit et concedit res mirabilia scilicet qui fuit et est et est pater in deitate cognovit tu ita creata scilicet rationes celestes corporum celestium, terra et metalla varando et signa et planetas et humanam totaliter subiectioem. Hoc est. Et nobis a patre datur cognoscere nota scilicet ea que si subiacent et ea quorum nobis datur cognitio. Quamvis cognovit et cognoscit et cognoscet tempora et existencias et loca in quibus debent existere. Constat est autem mobiles et non stabiles, nec interius nec exterius. Non mobiles et stabiles interius et exterius et sunt motu. Ipsemet est unus deus principium et conditor, qui est pater et creator unum que sunt vel fuerunt, vel erunt pro uno ponitur et multi sunt in nomine, quantum ad unius comparationem scilicet multi comparari usqueunt dignitati unius et operum quantitati nec boni subiectioem quam omnis ab eo contrahunt. Quamvis unus indignus est in tantum quantum unus numerus gignit. Quando unus dignus est unus summus ad unum per numerum. Est mobilis unus indignus non possit subsistere in subiectioem semper adesse: sed ita est, quod ille conditor est dignus et similis per numerum in uno. Ille qui dignus est semper permanet immobilis nec in tempore nec in temporum quantitate. Hinc a patre datur numero quod muta tenentur quod per unum erat ut unus pater patra a patre possit deo conuenire nec ipse a quo possit conuenire in tantum quod alius exhibet indigentiam. De ipse ipse semper deus in quibus debet desce-dere. Unus enim conditor sub numeris veniunt numeris addunt. Et est unus sanctus conditor qui durabit in omne tempus. Et diuisus est numeris et partes exhibet per numeros hinc unus et permanet in se in se si sunt multi numeri habentes ad sciendum et intelligendum unigenitum et augmentum circuli. Quia multi in uno fuerunt sunt et erunt

OS

Saturnus Aquarius,

fuit, quod Adam fuit. Ergo quicunque esset aliqua stellarum fuit suus fuit, ergo non fuerunt semina, quorum essent alie. Ergo illa stellarum fuit sua. Sed unus. Quia homo non existerat, qui aliquam stellarum posset manuisti propter illam, ergo unus habuit. Ergo de quo semina suam finem et unum. Ergo bene semina, unum, quando semina suam. Quia, ipse est materia, in se ipsa unum. Deo ex se ipso, qui omnium materia, ex se ipso. Ergo bene requiescenda est illius stella, que est nobis tamquam umbra. Et ex illa de qua supradicta est per rationem. Et illud corpus non potuit habere complementum, nisi illa coniungeretur. Non magis quam Adam potuit sine resurrectione Iesu Christi. Et in illo termino existerat complementum huius corporis quod erat modo corpus perfectum.

Ergo illa stella, que nobis est pro materia semina formam compositionis. Et illa stella est de prima materia et que superius obtinet dominium. Sciendum est illius nomen, proprium per se ipsum. Quia illa unus alius recipit. Et omnibus aliis partibus complementum. Et illi qui sunt fuerunt et sunt propter illam significationem tot quot salute debent gaudere significationem boni ab illa obtinent. Ne cessandum est scire quod numero illud corpus possit obtinere. Et quot numero debent esse de parte illius corporis. Et sunt scilicet, ergo unus, ipse non continentur. Quia terminus ab Adam est ad finem diffusus est. Multi enim fuerunt hereditantes in illo termino in hac stella. Ergo per stellam postea est

unde quatuor subiant sub huius medio sunt media veritate. Ad diffu. in huius

Quamvis sit nobis pater et mater, subiacet ei labor matris. Cuius est filius et, cuius est pater. Unde proprium, nomen habet super illam dominatio, in quantum illa obtinet, cuius in causam. Et in supradicta subiacet in pater capitulo futuro proximo. Et ille qui regule submittitur ad hoc magnum pateret, ut non possit submittitur pater, ad quid ad alios. Et qui in ista pater pateret, talis est et dispositio vultu humana. Et talis est vultu pateris. Cui et pateris vultu et vultu tunc labor vultu pateris. Dominus magnum debet augumentari.

Explication des points de vue de la nature humaine, par le P. de la Rivière, de la Compagnie de Jésus.

La nature humaine est un être composé de deux parties, l'une spirituelle et l'autre matérielle. La partie spirituelle est l'âme, qui est immortelle et capable de connaître Dieu. La partie matérielle est le corps, qui est mortel et sensible. L'âme est créée par Dieu et est destinée à le contempler. Le corps est créé par Dieu et est destiné à servir l'âme. La nature humaine est donc un être complexe, qui est à la fois spirituel et matériel. Elle est capable de connaître Dieu et de le servir, mais elle est aussi sujette à la tentation du malin. C'est pourquoi il est important de cultiver la vertu et de résister aux tentations du malin. La nature humaine est un être digne de respect et de considération. Elle est capable de grandes choses et de grandes souffrances. Elle est un être unique et irremplaçable. Elle est un être qui mérite d'être aimé et respecté. Elle est un être qui mérite d'être connu et compris. Elle est un être qui mérite d'être sauvé et glorifié. Elle est un être qui mérite d'être honoré et glorifié. Elle est un être qui mérite d'être aimé et respecté. Elle est un être qui mérite d'être connu et compris. Elle est un être qui mérite d'être sauvé et glorifié. Elle est un être qui mérite d'être honoré et glorifié.

A — I did so dividing it first into 4 parts, & then every one of them into 10.

A — He called one by name Semiel, One came in & knuckled down, and great fire came out of his mouth. Michael said. To him are the mysteries of these Tables known. & Michael said, Semiel (again) & by & by he answered, O God thou hast said, & thou livest for ever: So Semiel stood up, & flaming fire came out of his mouth, & then he said as followeth

Semiel — Mighty Lord; what wouldst thou wth the Tables, Michael — It is the will of God thou fetch them hither.

Sem — I am his Table, Behold, these are his Tables, so where they are.

A — There came in 40 white brethren, all in white silk long Robes; And they like children. And all they falling on their knees said, Thou only art holy among the Highest: O God, thy Name be blessed for ever.

A — Michael stood up out of his Chair; & by & by, all his Leggs, to be like two Pillars of Brass: and he as high, as half way to Heaven: And by & by his sword was all on fire. And he shook or drew his sword over all these 40 their heads. The earth quaked, And the 40 fell down. And Michael, Semiel with a thundering voice; and said, Declare the mysteries of the living God; our God: of One that liveth for ever.

Michael

19.

Sem.

Sem — I am ready.

A — Michael stroke over them with his sword: & they all fell down (and Uriel also) on his knees. And commonly at the striking with the sword, flaming fire, like lightning, did flash withall.

Mich — Note, here is a mystery.

A — Then stepped forth, One of the 40. from the rest: & opened his Chest, which was covered with silk, and there appeared a great T all of gold,

Mi — Note this Number — A — over the T, stood the Number of 4. on this fashion T.

A — The 40 all cry'd, It liveth, & multiplieth for ever: Blessed be his Name.

A — That creature did shut up his Beams, & vanished away like thin.

Mi — Place that in the first place: It is the Name of God.

A — Then there seemed a great clap of Thunder to be:

And so forth: And note that the whole second Book, is nothing else but the mysteries most Marvellous of Sigillum Dei; otherwise called Sigillum F. m. e. t. h. whereof here, I did but leave a little admonishment.

Note further; Almost all the Third Book, was of the 7 Ensigns of Creation, whereof mention was here before made.

A — The Chair was brought in again; and I asked, what it meant:

Uriel —

Dignification.

Therein they are all comprehended: saving certain letters, which are not to be put in here:
By reason that the King's & Princes do spring from God: And not God from the King and Princes. Which excellency is comprehended, & is also manifest, in that Third & Fourth number Round about the sides ~~of the square Table~~ <sup>of the square Table</sup> is every letter of the 14 Names of the 7 King and Princes.

Whereafter shall you perceive, that the glory of this Table, surmounteth the glory of the Sun.
All things of that appertain unto it, are all ready prescribed, by your former instruction.
God is the beginning of all things, but not after one sort: Not to every one alike. But it is in three manner of works, with his name:

- The first, in respect of Dignification.
- The second, in respect of Conciliation.
- The third, in respect of the End and determined Operation.

Now I to what end would you wear your Character? But how do I teach? The Character is an Instrument applicable only to Dignification. But there is no Dignification (as yet) but that which doth proceed, hath his perfect composition (entirely, in the square Number of 3 and 4. The letter whereof shall be equal to the greatest. Hereby you may gather, Not only to what end, the Character (where with thou shalt be dignified) is prepared: But also the Nature of all other Characters.

To

To the second, — A — Conciliation you mean.
It — The Table is an Instrument of Conciliation,
And so are the 7 other Characters, which you call by the Name of Tables: Squared out into the forme of Tables: which are proper to every King & Prince, as according to their Order.

Now to the last — A — Also concerning the End & determined Operation — It — It consisteth in the Mercy of God & the Characters of his Book, &c.
Set downe the King's & their Princes, in a Table,
as thou knowest them, with their letters backward (Excepting their Names) from the right hand to the left. Let Bobogel be the first, & Bornego his Prince, &c.

A. Note,

A — So on my Character or Language of Signification are all the Names of the 7 King's & of the 7 Princes, perfectly as in the great Table.
(called often times Mensa federis) the first only, being the first letter common to them all) kept back in memory.

A — Brief answered, Amen.

Mich — Now what wilt thou? A — I would full sayne proceed according to the matter in hand.

Mich — Divide this outward picture into 40 equal parts, whose greatest Numbers are 4. See thou do

Δ — What is the use of the 7 Tables (like Armes) & from what ground are they framed, or derived?

Uziel — They are the Ensignes of the <sup>ion</sup> Greatness, wherewith all they were created by God: known only by their acquaintance, & the manner of their doing.

Δ — Have I rightly applied the daies to the Knight's name, in the other circumference of the great Circle or Globe?

Uziel — The daies are rightly applied to the Knight.

Δ — The Characters & Words, annexed to the Knight's name, in the other circumference of the great Circle or Globe, how are they to be used?

Uziel — They are to be painted on sweete wood.

And strong art thou in thy glory, w<sup>ch</sup> ~~didst~~ <sup>doest</sup> omit the secret & parte of thy lively workmanship: and that, before the weak understanding of man. Herein is thy power & magnificence opened unto Man. And why? because thy divinity & secret power, is here shut up in numero Ternario, & Quaternario: A quo principium, et fundamentum omne hujus est tui sanctissimi Operis.

For if thou (O God) be wonderful & incomprehensible in thine own substance, it must needs follow, that thy Works are likewise incomprehensible.

But so, they shall now be true, because they see, w<sup>ch</sup> heretofore, could scarcely believe. Strong is the Influence of thy supereminent power, and mighty is the force of that Omnipotence, which overcometh all things. Let all power therefore rest in thee. Amen.

Write out the Names of the 7 names of the 7 Kings, and 7 Princes, And place them in a Table divided by 12, and 7. The 7 spaces being uppermost. And therein write in the upper Line, the Letters of the King, with the Letters of his Prince, following next after his Name. And so of the six other, & their Princes, and read them on the right hand, from the upper part to the lowest. And thou shalt find, then, the Composition of this Table.

Michael his manner of apparition.

Δ. Uriel came again, & another with him.
& signly they two said together, Glorify God for ever. And now Uriel stood behind, and the other sat down in the Chair, with a sword in his right hand. All his head glister'd like the sun: the hair of his head was long, he had Wings: and all his lower parts seemed to be with Feathers. He had a Robe over his Body, & a great light in his left hand, he said, We are Blessed from the beginning, and Blessed be the Name of God for ever.

Michael,
Marty 11.
A. 1502.

Δ. An innumerable company of Angels were about him. And Uriel did knee on the square
Table by. He that sat in the Chair said then,

Go forward, God hath blessed thee;
I will be thy Guide.

Thou shalt attain unto thy teaching
The world begins with thy doings.

Praise God.

The Angels under my power shall be at thy commandment.

Thou shalt see me.

I will be scene of thee.

I will direct thy living & conversation.
Put up thy hands.

Δ — Now

Δ — Now Michael thrust out his right Arm with the sword: & bad the Stryer to look, Then the sword did seeme to cleave in two, And a great fire flamed out of it vehemently.
Then he took a Ring out of the flamm of his sword: and gave it to Uriel, & said, The Strength of God is unspeakable. Praised be God for ever & ever.

Δ — Then Uriel did make journey to him.

Mich — After this sort must the Ring be: Note it, &c. I will describe this Ring: which revel'd since the death of Salomon. with whome I was present: I was present with him, in strength & mercy. So, this it is.
This it is, wherewith, All earthly & divine works & wonders were wrought by SALOMON.
This it is, wch I have revealed unto thee. This it is, wch Philosophers dreamt of.
This it is, wch the Angels scarce know.
This it is, & blessed be his Name: yea his name be blessed for ever, &c.

Δ — Then he layd the Ring downe upon the Table: and said, Note. Δ — I noted the manner of the Ring in all points.

Δ — After that he threw the Ring downe upon the Table, and it seemed to fall through the Table.

Michael — So shall it doe at thy commandment:

Without this thou shalt doe nothing.

Blessed be his Name that compasseth all things:
Wonders are in him, & his Name is Wonderful.
His Name worketh Wonders from Generation to Generation.

Appendix of second Book.

Thou hast a Worke of three proportions in Essence of Heaven in forme, which (if it seeke) divided by a Number Septinarius. Of the source, Estate, & Determination of things Above, things Next, & things Below, which if it seeke, is pure, perfect, & without blemish. &c.

King Armara
Novemb: 21.

O God, how easie is this first understanding. Thou hast been told perfectly, plainly & absolutely, Not only, the condition, dignities, & Estate of all things that God hath framed: But also, withall, thou wast delivered the most perfect forme & use of them, &c.

King Armara
Novemb: 17.

Even as God is just, his Judgment to him, his - Mercies unspeakable: So are we the true Messengers of God, and our words are true in his Mercy for ever. Glory. (O Glory) be to thee, O most high God.

Now you touch the world, & the things upon Earth. Now we shew unto you the lower world. The x Governours that worke & rule under God. By whom you may have power, to worke such things as shall be to Gods Glory, profit of yo: Country, & the knowledge of his creatures, &c. He proceeds to One God, One knowledge, One Operation. Venite filii, Behold these Tables: Herein by their Names, that worke under God upon Earth: Not of the wicked, but of the Angels of Light. The whole Government doth consist in the hand of 49 (in God his Power, strength, mercy & Justice) whose Names are here evident, excellent & glorious. Marke these Tables, Marke them, Record them to your comfort. This is the first knowledge. Here shall you have wisdom Halleluah. Mighty & Omnipotent art thou, O God, God God, Amongst thy creatures. Thou fillest all things, with thy excellent foresight. Thy Glory be amongst us, for ever. A. Amen.

The Fontaine of Wisdom is opened, Nature shall be known. Earth with her secrets disclosed. The Elements with their powers judged. &c.

Uriel.

Behold, I teach: There are 49 Angels, glorious & excellent, appointed for the Government of all earthly Actions: which 49 doe worke & execute the will of the Creator: Committed from the beginning, in strength, power, & glory. These shall be subject unto you. In the Name, & by Intreating upon the Name of God, who doth lighten, direct, and comfort you, &c.

Quando dividebat Altissimus Gentes, Quando separabat filios ADAM, constituit terminos populorum, iuxta numerum filiorum Israel
Moyses in Cantico Deuter. 32.

Et habebat murum magnum, et altum habentem portas Duodecim: et in portis, ANGELOS
Duodecim et Nomina inscripta, quae sunt
Nomina Duodecim Tribuum filiorum Israel.
Apocalypsis. Cap. 21.

¶ ¶ This is a Seate of perfection: from which,
 Things shall be shewed unto thee, which thou hast long desired.

¶ Then was a square Table brought into the Stone, and I demanded what that Table betokened.

¶ I told thee not yet to be knowne. These two shall remaine in the Stone, to the sight of all vnicited creatures.

You must use a four square Table, Two cubits square, whereupon must be set Sigillum Dei: Ie:

This Seate must not be looked upon, without great Reuerence & Devotion.

This Seate is to be made of perfect wax.

This Seate must be 9 inches square [or Diameter]

The roundness must be 27 inches, & somewhat more.

The thickness of it must be an inch & halfe a quarter.

And a figure of a Cross must be on the back side of it, made thus

And Table is to be made of sweete Wood: and 9 two cubits high, with 4 feet with 4 of the former scales under the 4 feet.

Under the Table did seeme to be layd red Silke, two yarde square. And over the Seate, did seeme to be layd red silke to be four square, broader then the Table, hanging downe with 4
 Angles or Tassels, at the 4 corners thereof.

Upon this uppermost red Silke, did seeme this Stone with the Frame, to be set: right over & upon the principall Seate: saying that the red Silke was betwene the one & the other.

¶ Now 21. An: 1592. Then
 I sawe the first Table covered with a cloth of silke changeable yellow, red & green, with a white cloth under it all hanging very low.

Chap: 4.

Some notice of peculiar formes, and attire, wherein, the Kings, Princes and Ministers Heptarchicall appeared: and of some their Actions & gestures at their appearance, &c.

King CARMARA.

This King (being called first by Vriels) appeared as a Man, very well proportioned: clad in a long purple Robe, & with a triple Crowne of Gold upon his head.

At his first coming he had 7 (like men) waiting on him: which afterwards declared themselves to be the 7 Princes Heptarchicall.

Vriels ~~delivered~~ <sup>delivered</sup> unto this King (at his first appearing) a rod, or straight little round staff of Gold: divided into three equall distinctions, whereof two were eacke or black: & the third & bright red. This Rod he kept still in his hand.

This King was the Orderer, or Disposer, of all the Doctrines, w<sup>ch</sup> I term Heptarchicall, as first, by calling the 7 Princes, & after that the 7 Kings: and by giving instructions for use & practice of the whole Doctrines Heptarchicall: for the first purpose & purpose thereof to be engaged by mee: of the two other, there was only mention made.

King CARMARA said
Ecce signum operis.

There appeared there two Letters reversed &aversed on the white flag: a Roman standing by: whose name I did not observe. On the other side appeared the name of England. Thus the flag was.

FRYDAY

BALIGON

Who canst distribute & bestow at pleasure, all, & whatsoever can be wrought in aeriell Actions. Who hast the government of thy selfe perfectly, as a Mystric knowne unto thy selfe. Who didst advertise me of this Stone, & hely Receipts: both needfull to be had: and also didst direct me to the taking of it up: being presently in a few minutes of tyme, brought to my sight (from the Secret of the South, where it was hid, in the uttermost part, of the Roman possession) Which Stone, thou warndest me, that no mortall hand but myne owne, should touch: & saydest unto me Thou shalt prevail with it, with Kings, & with all the creatures of the World. Whose Beauty (in vertue) shalbe more worth, then the Kingdomes of the Earth. For the which purpose, here rehearsed, & others: partly, now to be exercised and enjoyed, & partly hereafter, more abundantly (as thou Lord God of Hosts shall dispose) And also because thou thy selfe art Governour of thy Might, faithfull, and Obedient Ministers: Therefore In the Name &c.

At By Note, of the former show stone,

Basel Uriel sayd to me at Mortack 12: 1503. May 5. a meridi, circa horam 4<sup>a</sup>, as followeth.

U:— The Character must haue the Names of the five Angells (written in the myddest of Sigilluric Emeth) graven upon the other side, in a circle: In the myddest whereof, must the stone be (which was also brought) Wherin thou shalt at all tymes conceale privately to thy selfe) the state of Gods people, through the whole Earth.

Prince

BAGENOL

SATURDAY

BNATSEN

Who saydest unto me, That by thee, I shall cast out the power of all wicked Spirits. And that by thee, I shall or may know the doings, and practises of evil men; & more than may be spoken or uttered to man. Therefore, In the Name &c.

Prince

BORGES

Who, being the Prince, chief Minister, & Governour under the right puissant King & BNATSEN, didst (to my Lere) appear in a most terrible manner, with fiery flaming streames, & saydest Nou Januam Mortis. Et percussit Gloria Dei, Impiorum parietes.

Therefore, In the Name &c.

King

WEDDENSDAY.

King

BNASPOL

To whom the Earth with her Bowells, & secrets, what so ever are delivered: and hast said to me, heretofore, What thou art: There, I may know. Thou art great, but (as thou, truly dost confess) He in whom thou art, is greater than thou. Therefore, In the Name &c.

Prince

BLISDON

Unto whom the Keyes of the chysmeries of the Earth are delivered. Whose 42 chymists, are Angels, that governe under thee: All which thy mighty King BNASPOL, had me vnder and affirmed, that they are & shall be at my commandment. Therefore, In the Name &c.

King

BYNEPOR

Upon the distribution & participation of whose exalted most excellent & glorified power; in which only and dependeth, the generall state & condition of all things. Whose sanctification, glory & renowne, although it had beginning, yet can it not neither shall have ending. He that was with said and thou wast the end of his workmanship. Thou art like him, and of him: yet not as partaking or adherent, but distinct in one degree. When he came, Thou wast magnified by his coming: and art sanctified, Worlds without end.

Vita suprema,

Vita superior;

Vita Infima, tuis sunt mensurata manibus.

Notwithstanding,

Thou art not of thy selfe: Neither is thy power thine owne: Magnified be his Name. Thou art all: And all hath some being by thee: Yet thy power is nothing, in respect of his power which hath sent thee. Thou bringest a new world, new people, new kings, & new knowledge of a new Government. And hast said to me, Thou shalt worke merveilous & heruallously, by my workmanship, in the highest: Therefore, In the Name &c.

Prince

BYRMONO

Who art life & breath in living creatures, All things live by thee: the Image of one exalted: At the sides of Beasts of the Earth, dost thou endure with life. Thy Name is their glory. O God, thou art sanctified: And thou rejoicest the living, the end & beginning of all Beasts, thou knowest: and by sufferance thou disposeth them, on till thy wyll be runne. Therefore In the Name &c.

King

King
BLVMAZA.

Prince
BRAIGES

Who saidst, the creatures living in thy Dominion, are subject to thy own power, whose subjects are invisible, and whose forms appear like little smokes, without any form, whose Scale of Government is this, Who saidst, Behold, I am come, I will teach the ~~Nations~~ without Numbers, the creatures subject unto me shall be knowne unto you. Therefore, In the Name &c.

King

King

BABALEL

Who art King in Waters: Mighty & Wonderfull in Waters: Whose power is in the Bowels of the Waters, whose Royall person with thy noble Prince BEFAFES, & his 42 Ministers, the Triple crown King CARMARA had me use to the Glory, Praise & Honore (him), which created you all, to the Land & Praise of his Majesty. Therefore, In the Name &c.

Prince

BEFAFES

Who art Prince of the Seas: Thy Power is upon the Waters. Thou drownedst Pharaoh: and hast destroyed the Wicked. Thy Name was knowne to all eyes, Thou livedst in Israel: Who hast measured the Waters: Who wast with King Salomon: and also long after that with <sup>the</sup> Scythians, but not knowne to him by thy true Name, except when thou preservedst me (through the Mercy of God) from the power of the Wicked, I wast with me in extremities. Thou wast with me throughly. Who, of the Egyptians, hast been called OBELION, in respect of thy pleasant deliverance. And by that Name to me & knowne, and of me noted in Record, to be the Noble & courteous OBELION. Whose noble Ministers 42 are of very great Power, Dignity & Authority. Now, some in the measuring of the Motion of the Waters, & saltness of the Seas, in giving good success in Battell, reducing Shippes, & all manner of Vessels that float upon the Seas. So some, all the Fishes, and Monsters of the Seas, yea, all that live therein, are well knowne. And generally are the Distributors of Gods Judgements upon the Waters, that cover the Earth. Other doe beautifie Nature in her composition. The rest are distributors & deliverers of the Treasures, and unknowne substances of the Seas. Thou O Noble Prince BEFAFES hadst me use than in the Name of G.C.D. Therefore, In the Name &c.

King

King
BOBOGEL.

Some recitall and contestation by the Peculier Offices, Words & Deeds, of the seaven Heptarchicall Kings, & Princes in their peculiar duties to be used. The Distributing, giving, & bestowing of Wisdom and Science: The teaching of true Philosophy, true understanding of all learning, grounded upon Wisdom: with the Excellencies in Nature: And of many other great mysteries, marvelously available & necessary to the advancing of the glory of our God & Father. And who saydest to me (in respect of these mysteries attaining) Dear Dear Dear, at length, but not too late: Therefore, In the Name &c.

Prince
BORNOGO

The Offering of the formation of Nature into perfection. The knowledge of <sup>Metals</sup> ~~Minerals~~. And generally the princely Ministering to the right noble & mighty King BOBOGEL, in his Government of Distributing, giving & bestowing of Wisdom, Science, true Philosophy, & true Understanding of all learning, grounded upon Wisdom: and of other very many his peculiar Royall Properties. And who saydest to me, What thou desirest in me shall be fulfilled. Therefore, In the Name &c.

King
CARMARA

Who, in this Heptarchicall Section, at the first Urisil his hand, didst receive the golden Rod of Government, & Measuring, and the share of Dignity & Dominion: And didst appear first to us, adorned with a triple Diadem, in a long purple Robe. Who saydest to me, at our table, I minister the strength of food unto thee. Likewise thou saydest, These mysteries hath God, lastly of his great mercies, granted unto thee: Thou shalt be gladdened, & filled. Now thou shalt smelt, & be ruffed up, with the perfect knowledge of Gods mysteries in his mercies. And saydest, This Art is to the farther understanding of all Sciences, that are past, present, & yet to come. And immediately didst say unto me: Kings there are in Nature, with Nature & above Nature: thou art dignified. And saydest concerning the use of these tables: This is but the first step, neither shalt thou practise them in vain. And, saydest, thus generally of Gods Mercies & graces on me, I received & bestowed. Whatsoever thou shalt speak, do, or work, shall be profitable & acceptable. And the end shall be good. Therefore, In the Name &c.

Prince
LAGONEL

<sup>A Light</sup> To whose commandment the sons of Men, and their Sonors are subject: I have the servants. To whose power the operation of the Earth is subject. Who art the first of the Earth: & whose Peak is called Barres, and this O it is. Of whose commandment, are the Kings, Noblemen, & Princes of Nature. Who art Primus et Quartus. Lagonel: Who by the beaven of the 7 (which are the sons of sempiternitie) dost work & lay bailes amongst the people of the Earth: And hast said to me, that I also, by the same thy servants <sup>should</sup> ~~shall~~ work & lay bailes. I noble Lagonel, who art Minister to the triple crowned King CARMARA: And notwithstanding, art Prince over these 42 Angello whose Names & Characters, are here presented: Therefore, In the Name &c.

King

(to the great comfort of thy faithfull servants) as approve, to thy very enemies, & mine, the truth and certainty of thy manifold most mercifull promises, heretofore, made unto me: And that Thou art the True & Almighty God, (creator of Heaven & Earth <sup>all</sup> (upon whom I doe call: & in whom I doe put my trust) And Thy Ministers, to be the true & faithfull Angello of light: which, have hitherto, principally & according to thy Divine Providence, dealt with us:
And, also, I, thy poor, & simple servant, shall than,
In, & By thee, be better able to serve thee, according to thy will pleasing: to thy Honor & Glory: Yea, even in these most miserably & lamentable daies. Grant, oh grant, O our Heavenly Father, grant this (I pray thee) for thy only begotten Sonne IESVS CHRIST, his sake: Amen. Amen. Amen.

Chap. 5.

Oratio ad Deum, singulis diebus, tribus vicibus, ter dicenda.

O Almighty, Eternal, true & living God;
O King of Glory: O Lord of Hosts: O thou the Creator of Heaven & Earth, & of all things visible and invisible: Now (even now at length) among other the manifold mercies, used, & to be used, towards me, thy simple servant, John Dee, I most & humbly beseech thee, in this my present petition to have mercy upon me; to have pittie upon me; to have compassion upon me: Who, faithfully and sincerely, & long tyme, have sought among men, in earth: And also by Prayer (full oft & pittifully) have made sute unto thy Divine Majesty for the obteyning of some convenient portion of true knowledge & understanding of thy Lawes, & Ordinances, established in the nature & properties of thy creatures: By w<sup>ch</sup> knowledge, thy Divine Wisdom, Power, & Goodnes, (on thy creatures bestowed, & to them imparted) being to me made manifest, might abundantly instruct furnish, & allure me (for the same) incessantly to pronounce thy praises, to render unto thee, most hearty thanks, to advance thy true honor, & to ascribe unto thy Name, some of thy due Majestical ~~honor~~ glory, among all people, & for ever. And whereas it hath pleased thee (O God) of thy infinite goodness, by thy faithful, & holy spirituall messengers, to deliver unto me, long since, (through the good & care of F. K.) an Orderly forme, and manner of Exercise HEPTARCHICAL: Now (both

Honor

Honor & glory, & the comfort of my own poor Soule, & of others, thy faithful servants) I may, at all times, use very many of thy good Oracles, their p<sup>re</sup>scribed
Rites; according to the properties of such their Functions & Offices, as to them, by thy divine power, wisdom & goodness, is assigned & limited: (Which orderly forme, & manner of Exercise, until even now, I never found so urgent Opportunity, & extreme necessity, to apply my selfe unto) Therefore, I thy poor and simple servant, doe, most humbly, heartily, and faithfully beseech thy divine Majesty, most lovingly & fatherly to favour: and by thy divine Bless, to further thine my present industry & endeavour to Exercise my selfe, according to the foresaid Orderly forme & manner: And, Now (at length but not too late) for thy dearly beloved Son IESVS CHRIST his sake (I Heavenly Father) to grant also unto me, thine blessing & portion of thy heavenly graces: That thou wilt, forthwith, enable me; make me apt, & acceptable (in Body, Soule & Spirit) to enjoy always the Holy & friendly conversation, with the sensible & plaine, full, & perfect Holy (in word & deed) of thy Mighty, wise, & good spirituall Messengers & Ministers

King
BALIGON.

He is the same mighty King, who is, here, first described by the name of CARMARA, and yet otherwise among the Chigello called MARMARA, but that M is not to be expressed: Therefore he appeared in a long purple gown, & on his head a triple crown of gold, with a measuring Rod of gold in his hand, divided into three equal parts: in the form of a very well proportioned man.

Prince
BAGANOL.

He appeared not by that Name yet.

Ministers.

Note the King himself is Governour over these. The 42 Ministers appeared; like bright people. And besides them, all the Chieftains swarmed with features, their letters were in their foreheads. They stood in a circle. They took their letters from their foreheads & set them in a circle.

He appeared in a red Robe with a Cyclet on his head. And he was the last of the 7, who held the Heptagon. All the rest being set down, who seemed now to extend their hands one towards another: as though they played, being now widd of their work.

Ministers

The powers under his subjection are invisible. They appeared like little white smokes without any form. All the world seemed to be in brightness. This is the Seale of his Government

King
BNASTOL

He appeared in a red Robe, and a Crown on his head.
His Prince followed him, & after him his Ministers.

Prince
BLISDON.

He appeared in a Robe of many Colours, & on his head a Cinct of Gold.
His Character or Seal:  A — Perhaps the red colour was most, & so seemed generally to be used as the others their Robes were.

Ministers
A2.

The A2 seemed to stand about a little hill round. The hill was of Clay.
Behind this company seemed to stand an innumerable multitude of ugly people, a far off.
Those who seem to stand <sup>about</sup> the little Hill, seem to have in the palms of their hands Letters in order, as here follows th.

BABAELE

— Appeared with a crowne of Gold on his head: with a long Robe whitish of colour. His left arme sleeve, was very white: and his right Arme sleeve was black. He seemed to stand upon water. His Name was written in his Fore head. BABAELE.

Prince

BEEAFES

He appeared in a long red robe, with a sirclet of gold on his head. He had a golden Girdle: and on it ~ written BEEAFES. He opened his Bosome, and appeared leane: and seemed to have Feathers under his Robes.

His Seale or Character is thus

Ministers

42.

Of his 42 Ministers, the first 7 had sirclets of gold on their heads, and the King BABAELE called Beeafes, saying, Venit Princeps 7 principum, qui sunt Aquarum Principes. Every one of the 42 had a letter in his Forehead. They were 7 in a row; & 6 downward. But of the first 7 the letters seemed to be betweene their Ears: and the water seemeth continually to pass over these letters.

The first 7 take the water & throw it up, & it becometh Clouds.

The second throw it up, & it becometh Rayes & Snow, &c.

The 42 dive into the water, & so vanish away. And Babael and Beeafes also were suddenly gone.

Their Names & Characters appeared to be these, as follow in the Squares.

Each of these, upon the place of their standing, made a Table, and every Table had but one letter. The first of the first six did goe away, and in his Table appeared an O, and so of the rest: but note that the third six covered downe, & was loath to shew their Tables: but at length did.

The third row went off lamenting: being commanded by the Prince. All perked in fire, falling into the Globe. The fifth row did sink into the Globe, every one in a sundry fire by himselfe.

The sixth fell with smoke downe into the Globe.

A — Note, L: Car: There are but 6 names that are in subjection to the Prince: The first 7 next him, are those who hold the yare & beautiful crowns. The first 7 are called by those names that thou seest O E S &c.

A — Note this diversity of reckoning by 6, & by 7, I cannot yet well reconcile.

King
BOBOGEL

— Appeared in a black velvet Coat: And his hose, close wound hose with velvet upperstockes: overlaid with gold Lace: On his head a velvet hat-cap: with a black feather in it: with a cape hanging on one of his shoulders, his purse hanging about his neck: & so put under his girdle, at which hung a gyll Rapier: his beard was long, he had pantalles & pynzons. And he said, I sweare these Robes, not in respect of my selfe, but of my Government: &c.

Prince
BONORGO

— Appeared in a red Robe, with a gold brooch on his head: he showed his Seale & said, This it is.

Ministers
42.

Seaven of the Ministers are apparalled like Bobogel the King: sagely & gravely: All the rest are almost ruffen or royster like. Some are like to be men & women: for in the forefront they seemed women, & in the back part men, by their apparell. And they were the last 7. They danced, leapt, & tipped: They came afterwarde into a Circle, the Sage, & the rest: But the stage stand all together.

The first of the Sage left by his hand aloft & said,
Faciamus secundum voluntatem Dei: Illi
Deus nr, est verus Nobilis & aternus.

He pluckt up his right foot, & under it appeared an L. and of the rest in like manner, appeared their letters or Names.

Prince
HAGONEL.

— Note: All the Princes, seemed to be Men, & to have red Robes; but this Prince, his Robe was shicker than the others.

All the Princes had circlets of gold on their heads: not crowns, nor coronets. This Prince held in the palm of his right hand, as it had been a round ring, with a prick in the midst: hanging also over his middle fingers, w<sup>ch</sup> he affirmed to be his Seal: and said the name of it, to be Barres: and this it is. O

All the Princes held up together, the staggon stellan (as I term it) and it seemed to be of copper. A light

7 Fily Lucis.

Ch. 12.
Part 21.

The 7 Fily Lucis, appeared like 7 young men, all with bright countenances, white apparails, with white silk on their heads, pendant behind, with a wreath down to the ground; all apparail'd of one sort. Every one seemed to have a metalline Ball in his hands: the first of Gold; the second of Silver; the third of Copper; the fourth of Iron; the fifth of Lead; the sixth of Tin; the seventh of Brass. Between his two hands a round thing of quicksilver; the last had a Ball of Lead. The first had on his Breast a round Tablet of gold, and on it written a great I. And the second on his golden Tablet, had his name also written: And every one orderly coming forth, showed their Names upon their golden Tablets. At their departing they made cursey, and mounted up to Heavenward.

7 Fily Filioz — Appeared like 7 little children, like Boys covered all with purple; with hanging sleeves, like priests, or scholars

Gowne.

Gowne = sleeves: their threads attired all after the former manner with purple silk. They had three cornered Tablets on their breasts: and the Tablets seemed to be very green, and on them the letters of their Names written. The first had two letters, made in one thred, of E and L: Eu. They made reverence to Michael (who had called both the first & these) and so mounted up to Heavenward.

At the call of King Carmara (in the second handling of this Hierarchyall Doctryne) when he said Venite, Respetamus Opera Dei: Appeared Prince Hagonel, and after that upon the globe his four superficies, appeared 42: who said Parati sumus servire Deo nro. Each of these, had somewhat in their hands: and they stood in this order; and Hagonel seemed to embrace the company.

Prince
HAGONEL
his 42 Ministers.

... six of these seemed more glorious than the rest, and their coats longer: I had circlets of Gold, about their heads: and held in their hands perfect crowns of Gold. The second six had three quarters of crowns in their hands: The third six had robes or cloaks in their hands: All the rest seemed to have Balls of Gold; w<sup>ch</sup> they toss from one to another, but at the catching, they were empty: Balls, for they grasp them closing their hands, as if they were not solid, but empty like a blown bladder. The first six made cursey to Prince Hagonel, the second six made cursey to the first, and the third to the second. And thus all, Prince Hagonel, made cursey to King CARMARA.
